OFFICIAL MANUAL
STATE of MISSOURI
2005–2006

ROBIN CARNAHAN
SECRETARY of STATE

Krista S. Myer, Editor

Office of the Secretary of State
State of Missouri
Jefferson City 65101

Dear Fellow Missourians:

I am pleased to present to you the exciting new Official Manual, State of Missouri for 2005–2006. Within these pages you will find an overview of your county, state, and federal government. The Official Manual, often referred to as the "Blue Book," has served as a window on the workings and structure of government since it was first published in 1889.

Inspiration for the 65th edition of the Manual comes from an old hymn familiar to many Missourians: "How Firm a Foundation." A solid base is essential to any structure that must endure the test of time and bear the weight of change. Today, Missouri's foundation stands firm with our ideals, traditions, and culture deeply rooted in our strong rural communities and our diverse and vibrant urban areas.

In keeping with this year's theme, I am pleased to dedicate this edition of the Official Manual to the foundations of our communities. Essential to those foundations are the people in our state whose courage, caring, and sacrifice brighten our lives and enrich our communities. We all know such people. They seek neither praise nor fame, but our communities would be greatly diminished by their absence. They make Missouri what it is today, and we are much in their debt.

This Manual also takes a look at the foundation blocks of our democracy. Four Missouri historians offer accounts of Missouri's past elections, showing how previous elections shaped Missouri and inspire us toward a better tomorrow. These essays remind us that democracy begins at the ballot box, and the opportunity to participate in free and fair elections is the bedrock of democratic government.

Finally, the photo contest section of the Manual is a tribute to the actual physical structures in our communities—the design and architecture of the buildings in which we live, work, worship, and entertain. These structures reflect our history and lifestyles, affect our families, and shape our communities.

This volume is premised on the belief that the vigor of our people, the vitality of our democratic government, and the structures in our communities, define us as a state and determine our future.

Throughout this book, I'm also pleased to share with you a sample of the Louise and Omar Putman Photograph Collection. Louise and Omar Putman were long-time residents of the Kansas City area, and their historic photos provide some insight into life in the 1940s and 1950s throughout the state. The full collection can be viewed at the Missouri State Archives.

Each of these special features serves to complement the Manual's pages of information on your government and its foundations: its agencies, officials, employees, elections, and history.

In addition to being useful and informative, I hope the Official Manual will also make you proud of our great state and its many contributions to our nation and the world.

Very truly yours,

Robin Carnahan

Foundations of Communities: Missouri's "Unsung Heroes"

In Missouri, we are proud of our communities. We know that strong, vibrant communities are what make our state a great place to live and work. The idea of community means people working together and relying on one another.

As Missourians, our communities are important to who we are. Our communities shape our values, form our views of the world, and offer us support in times of need. As communities, we collectively work together to raise our children, educate our youth, support our elderly, and take care of our sick, hurting, and less fortunate members.

Our communities, however, do not exist alone. For communities to flourish, it takes individuals committed to the value of community and to building and maintaining the community around them.

Judy Bentley

That is why, as your Secretary of State, I am pleased to dedicate this 65th edition of the Official Manual to the many Missourians who make up the foundations of our communities. These Missourians dedicate themselves to their communities. They are citizens who devote their lives to supporting their communities by improving the lives of their fellow Missourians and helping those who need it most.

Often these foundations of our communities are people who are relatively unknown and have names that are unfamiliar to us. That is because these people are truly our state's "unsung heroes." They seek neither praise nor fame, but instead rely on the satisfaction of knowing that their actions positively impact our society and are the backbone of our communities. They are people like Judy Bentley, John Joines, and Palle Rillinger.

Judy Bentley is the founder and director of the Community Health-In-Partnership Services in St. Louis. Judy's group provides health care to those members of her community who are uninsured and underserved by our current health care system. Through her clinic, Judy serves approximately 18,000 sick members of her community who might otherwise not get care.

Judy deals with the sick and hurting members of her community every day. In order to keep those people from falling through the cracks of our health care system, Judy offers her service free of charge and works diligently to increase awareness about her clinic's services as an increasing number of people find themselves without any other options for health care.

John Joines, a native southwest Missourian, was born in Neosho and raised in Carthage, where he still resides. As the manager of the Economic Security Corporation of Southwest Area, John has devoted himself to reaching out to those less fortunate members of his community who need a helping hand to free themselves from the grip of poverty.

Among the many programs that John manages are programs to help low-income families by offering them access to clinical services and by providing children with a comprehensive school readiness program. John and his organization run a clinic where people can go to gain access to doctors, medical histories, physical assessments, health education and counseling, and pregnancy screening. They also administer a well-known program called Head Start, which provides comprehensive education, health, nutrition, and parent involvement services to low-income children and their families.

Finally, Palle Rillinger has been the director of the Metropolitan Organization to Counter Sexual Assault for the last 21 years. MOCSA provides services to adult and adolescent victims of rape and sexual assault, sexually abused children, and adults who were sexually abused as children.

On a daily basis, Palle interacts with members of her community who are facing the aftermaths of a terrible and unfortunate experience. While these peoples' wounds may never completely heal, they can find solace among community members who are willing to stand with them during their crisis. Palle's group serves these members of the community by supporting them as they come to grips with their experience, deal with the long-term effects of sexual violence, and navigate the criminal justice system. Palle and MOCSA have made a difference in the lives of thousands of her fellow community members living in the greater Kansas City area.

Judy, John, and Palle are each devoted to improving the lives of the members of their communities. On behalf of all Missourians, I am honored to express our heartfelt gratitude and sincere admiration to Judy, John, Palle, and the many others like them who dedicate themselves to strengthening our communities in order to make our state a better place for all Missourians. You are the foundations of our communities and the "unsung heroes" of our state.

Very truly yours,

Robin Carnahan

I wish to extend my sincere thanks to the many people throughout state government for their assistance in compiling the information in this volume, Missouri's 65th edition of the state's Official Manual. These dedicated public servants made our enormous task possible.

And speaking of dedicated public servants, I am indebted beyond words to Mark R. Reading, our Executive Deputy Secretary of State, for his guidance and leadership through the years on many fronts, including this endeavor.

To the devoted and knowledgeable Publications Staff, I extend my heartfelt appreciation. Thank you also to other members of the Secretary of State team who read, edited, and offered helpful suggestions. We have a better product because of all of you.

I love books, and it was great fun putting this one together. I've been told Missouri's state manual is one of the best in the country. After helping create the 2005–2006 Official Manual, I can see why. I am honored to be a part of the process.

On behalf of Missouri Secretary of State Robin Carnahan, and myself, I offer to you our deepest gratitude.

Warmest regards,

Krista S. Myer

History in Hand: Four Pivotal Missouri Elections

Missouri State Capitol, c1860s.
(Missouri State Archives)

Introduction

Political cynics charge that elections do not mean very much. The more things change, the more they stay the same. "Here comes the new boss, same as the old boss," the rock band, The Who sang in their 1971 song, "Won't Get Fooled Again." Today, the cynicism among the young, has, if anything, gotten worse. The National Youth Survey recently reported that half of all young people they questioned thought voting unimportant.

Familiarity with history shows the contrary. Elections do matter. For good or ill, yesterday's elections shape today, and today's elections shape our tomorrow. That does not mean that elections are not ironic, or even tragic. In Missouri's first statehood election famed explorer, Indian agent, and backwoodsman, William Clark, went down to inglorious defeat as the "aristocratic" candidate of the old French and colonial elite. His equally "aristocratic" ally, Thomas Hart Benton, narrowly won election to the Senate only to emerge as one of America's greatest spokesmen for Jacksonian democracy and the common yeoman farmer. In 1860 Claiborne Fox Jackson won the Missouri governorship with hopes of aligning the state with southern slaveholders, but died in an Arkansas exile, his state self-destructing in vicious guerilla warfare.

People make history, but not always as they choose. Even so, things can be changed, and for the better when people take the making of history into their hands. Progressive governors like Democrat Joseph Folk and Republican Herbert Hadley effectively challenged the commonplace political corruption of the early twentieth century. The 1945 Missouri constitution, forged in world war and informed by the bleak reality of economic depression, still determines the character of our state's politics today.

In the following essays—two from the nineteenth century, two from the twentieth—four Missouri historians use the 1820, 1860, and 1904 governorship elections; and the referendum on the 1945 constitution to illuminate our past, teach us how these past choices made our present; and inspire us how we might, through the example of our ancestors and forerunners, make in our own day, a better tomorrow.

Clark versus McNair: The Decline of the Old Republicans and the Rise of the New Democrats in Missouri's First Statehood Election

William E. Foley

Contemporary Missourians put off by the nasty and accusatory tone of many modern political campaigns may find solace if not comfort in knowing that such practices are not unique to our own times. No less an American icon than William Clark, the celebrated coleader of the Lewis and Clark expedition and Missouri's most successful territorial governor, had to endure a barrage of exaggerated and ill-founded allegations during his failed attempt to become the state of Missouri's first elected governor in 1820. When the illustrious westerner's political opponents spread tales characterizing him as a snobbish aristocrat with little sympathy for plain folk as well as an Indian lover willing to subject exposed frontier settlers to devastation at the hands of ruthless savages, they found a ready audience among the newly arrived farmers and mechanics whose burgeoning numbers had made Missouri's pending admission to the Union possible.

In truth, the partisan words and rhetorical flourishes uttered on the stump and circulated in local newspapers during this campaign were merely surface manifestations of Missouri's changing social and political climate. A combative new brand of popular democracy grounded on a belief that the most ordinary of men could aspire to greatness had already begun to take hold in Missouri. A companion view that Indians stood in the way of settlement and progress had supplanted earlier more tolerant notions about native people prevalent under the colonial regimes of France and Spain. These new ideas, epitomized in the popular imagination by the rising fortunes of Clark's friend Andrew Jackson, drew strength from "Old Hickory's" image as a self-made, tough-as-nails, soldier, Indian fighter, and politician eager to champion the people's interests. While Clark too was a soldier, Indian fighter and public servant, his patrician upbringing, unwavering loyalty to friends, preference for old republican principles, and reputation as a fair-minded Indian negotiator landed him on the wrong side of the political divide in 1820.

Missouri politics had never been a place for the fainthearted. Name-calling, threats of bodily harm, and allegations of military interference were commonplace in the territory's highly charged and intensely personal political culture. An attempt to challenge the rising political newcomer Thomas Hart Benton's eligibility to vote in a hotly contested 1817 territorial election culminated with a tragic affair of honor that left the promising young attorney Charles Lucas dead by Benton's hand on Bloody Island, a notorious Mississippi River dueling ground near St. Louis. Election day antics seldom degenerated into mortal combat, but partisan squabbles had become the order of the day in the turbulent Missouri Territory.

Missouri's long and arduous struggle for statehood added to the muddle. The territorial assembly's 1818 petition to Congress seeking admission to the union as a slave state unleashed a heated national debate that in the words of former president Thomas Jefferson sounded an alarm "like a firebell in the night." Congressional efforts to impose restrictions designed to gradually eliminate slavery from Missouri caught most territorial residents unawares. Angered by what they perceived to be unwarranted federal intervention in their affairs, they rallied to voice their unalterable objection to all such restrictionist proposals.

Eventually the chieftans in Washington, D.C. hammered out an agreement aimed at reconciling national divisions over slavery while sustaining the Union. Missourians (with the obvious exception of the territory's ten thousand African American slaves who were never allowed to express themselves publicly on such matters) proclaimed their satisfaction with the final settlement because it authorized Missouri's admission to the Union as a slave state. That 1820 agreement, known as the Missouri Compromise, also sanctioned Maine's admission as a free state as a counterbalance to Missouri and closed to slavery all remaining portions of the Louisiana Territory north of Missouri's southern latitude (36° 30′).

Following receipt of this welcome news, Missouri officials wasted little time in scheduling elections to select delegates for a constitutional convention charged with drafting a framework of government for the soon-to-be twenty-fourth state. In the contest for convention seats, members of the territorial old guard skillfully held at bay the newcomers intent on making the election a referendum on broadening participation in the political process. By keeping public attention focused on the specter of slavery restriction, the old elite persuaded a majority of Missouri voters to play it safe by selecting prominent proslavery property holders to write their constitution.

That momentary victory had by no means ended the opposition. When the convention's proceedings got underway the old divides quickly resurfaced. A conservative coalition representing the territorial establishment successfully fended off a series of newfangled democratic reform proposals. Dubbed the "caucus" by their opponents, the conservatives blocked attempts to make judges elective and not appointive, and they placed gubernatorial and judicial salaries outside the legislature's purview by fixing them in the constitution. The outnumbered pro-democracy delegates strenuously objected to both provisions and branded the two thousand dollar salaries awarded the governor and judges exorbitant. Notwithstanding those successes, caucus members wisely chose not to buck the powerful national trend that favored universal white manhood suffrage without property qualifications.

While delegates debated these issues, the contesting factions set their sights on the new state's upcoming elections. In the absence of organized political parties, members of the caucus proposed a ticket headed by territorial Governor Clark, while their opponents quickly rallied around the banner of Alexander McNair. Clark's supporters believed that his long years of public service and governmental experience would make him a virtual shoo-in, but McNair's backers correctly sensed that the governor's lengthy record might in fact prove to be a liability. Each side agreed upon a slate of candidates for the other state elective offices, and all was in readiness for a spirited campaign.

Clark had declared his availability for the state's highest office in 1819. The rapidly deteriorating health of his beloved wife Julia, who was stricken with breast cancer, however, had given him second thoughts. He vacillated as he pondered his family's future. The prospect of raising alone five children all under the age of eleven gave him pause. But when his political allies failed to find a suitable alternate, even as the prospects for his wife's recovery dimmed, he consented to allow his candidacy to proceed. Shortly thereafter Clark set out for Virginia, where he had placed Julia and their children under the watchful care of her family. He did not return to Missouri until the fall, and by then the votes had been counted and his political future sealed.

BRIEF NOTICES

OF THE

PRINCIPAL EVENTS

IN THE PUBLIC LIFE

GOVERNOR CLARK.

——At a time when the greatest efforts are made to deprive an honest man of the confidence of his fellow-citizens, it is deemed advisable, by a plain statement of facts, the truth of which can be testified by numerous citizens, to shew that WILLIAM CLARK is worthy of filling the place of first Governor of the STATE OF MISSOURI, and that it is consistent with the public interest and the honor of the STATE to confer that office upon him.

——Governor Clark was born in Virginia, but came to Kentucky, a boy, about the year 1783, and settled in the neighbourhood of Louisville, where he was raised up under the care of his brother, the celebrated General George Rodgers Clark.

He was too young to have borne a part in the expeditions which his brother made against Kaskaskia, Cahokia and Vincennes, to conquer those posts from the British whose garrisons withheld the allegiance of the French inhabitants from the American government; but the frontiers of Kentucky soon furnished him with an opportunity of shewing his disposition for arms, and from the time that he was able to carry a rifle he was out in every expedition which was carried on against the northern Indians until peace was made.—He served under General Hardin, General Scott, and General Wilkinson, and was engaged in all the actions which they fought with the Indians. He went out on each occasion as a simple volunteer, without rank or command, and discharged the duties of a private soldier with a cheerfulness and courage which gained him the good will of all his comrades.—There are many Kentuckians now in this country who will remember these times, and will do justice to the merits of those who exposed their lives for their country.

The Indian war not being terminated by these expeditions, it was found necessary to send a regular force and a formidable army against them. GENERAL WASHINGTON was then President of the United States, and he appointed General Wayne to command the army, and gave to William Clark the rank of Lieutenant in the first regiment of Infantry.—In that rank he made under General Wayne the glorious campaign of 1794, which on the 20th day of August, on the bank of the Miami of the Lakes, annihilated the power of the Indians, and gave peace to the bleeding frontiers of Kentucky and Ohio.

The unassuming merit of Lieutenant Clark gained him the friendship and confidence of General Wayne, and he was often employed by him in services of the greatest difficulty and importance.

It is well known to those who have fought against the northern Indians that their most dangerous mode of warfare was in waylaying the roads, and cutting off the convoys of provisions which were going to the head quarters, whereby the operations of the main army were often delayed and sometimes entirely defeated.

General Wayne knew this, and well comprehended the necessity of confiding these supplies to the care of officers of the greatest prudence and courage. As such Lieutenant Clark had the honor to be selected by him, and on one occasion Fortune gave him an opportunity of proving that the confidence of his general was not misplaced.—A convoy of provisions, of which he had the command, was attacked near Fort Wayne, by a very superior body of Indians, who killed one third of his men in the first fire. The skill and courage of Lieutenant Clark saved the remainder, and the whole of the supplies. For, stripping the packs from his horses, he piled them up into a little breast-work, from behind which a men fired upon the Indians, repulsed them, then gathered up the horses, replaced the packs, and carried the whole in safety to the head quarters of the army.

The peace coming on soon after, Lieutenant Clark resigned his command in (St. Charles Circuit Court)

When Governor Clark officially threw his hat into the ring he advised his constituents that personal circumstances would keep him away from the state during the campaign. He hastened to add that his absence would be of little import since the election was the people's business and even if he were present he would steer clear of any direct involvement. This view, fully comported with the electoral behavior expected by America's Founding Fathers. From this perspective it would have been unseemly for him to take to the hustings in support of his own candidacy.

In a prepared statement, Clark briefly outlined his qualifications for those who did not know him and pledged simply to do his best "to contribute to your prosperity, and to maintain the honor of a State whose name must forever be dear to me." He touted his republican credentials earned in the school of Washington, Jefferson, Madison, and Monroe and offered Missouri's old inhabitants and the Creole elite as character references. As the establishment candidate, Clark was content to run on his record of bringing peace, order, and stability to the fast growing territory.

In contrast, Clark's opponent Alexander McNair, a popular militia officer, capitalized on the growing appeal of political democratization and expanded opportunities for white men. A onetime member of the "St. Louis Clique," he stealthily maneuvered to bring his public stances into closer conformity with America's changing social and political attitudes. As register of public lands he championed squatters' rights and preemption, policies especially popular in Missouri's rapidly growing outstate region. In the constitutional convention McNair artfully positioned himself to run for governor by voting regularly with the populist minority, further distancing himself from old friends in the caucus.

Once on the campaign trail McNair sought to differentiate himself from Clark, who he now branded a captive of special interests. He assured voters that in the conduct of his public duties he had never, and would never, show favoritism based on friendship or party. By presenting himself as a man of the people, McNair made farmers, mechanics, and the popular multitude the focus of his attention.

The lines were drawn, and by mid-July political campaigning was already underway. Missouri's partisan newspaper publishers made no effort to disguise their political preferences as they rushed to define issues and shape popular perceptions of the candidates. Joseph Charless, the Missouri Gazette's fiery publisher, planted himself firmly in McNair's camp, with behind-the-scenes support from the acerbic federal judge, John B.C. Lucas. Working together they set about to settle old scores and tarnish the public image of their longtime nemesis Clark. Lucas still smarted from the death of his son at the hands of Clark's most strident sponsor, Thomas Hart Benton, and employed his pen to portray the governor as an aloof Virginia aristocrat, out of touch with ordinary voters, and a toady for the old guard. Clark's willingness to identify himself with establishment figures and his aversion to direct campaigning made him vulnerable to such charges. In so doing, he revealed a tin ear, deaf to an evolving political culture that expected candidates to affect a common touch. Equally damaging were the relentless allegations that in his dealings with Indians he favored his native charges over his frontier constituents.

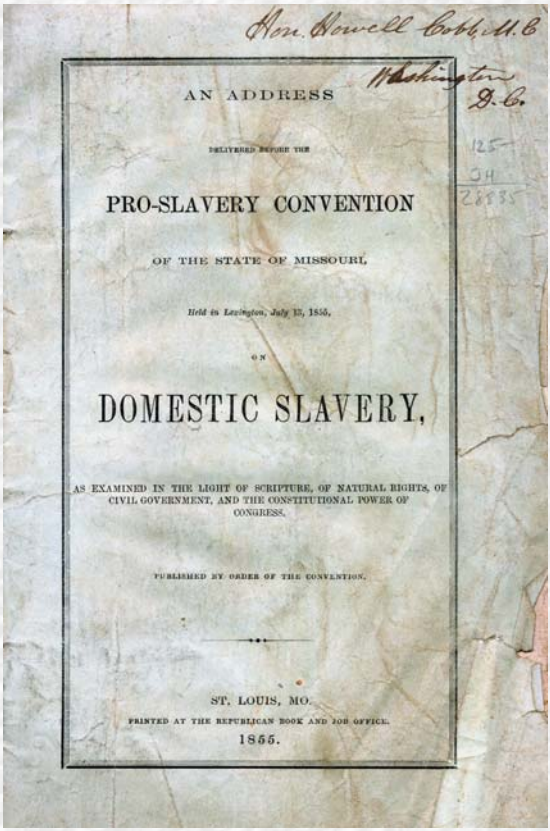
Sensing that this carefully scripted portrait of Clark was gaining popular acceptance, Thomas Hart Benton, editor of the St. Louis Enquirer fired back, questioning McNair's qualifications for the job. After acknowledging McNair as a good man, "An Old Citizen" openly scoffed at attempts to compare McNair with Henry Clay, asserting that McNair's record as a public servant had been lackluster. But it was McNair's campaigning techniques that drew the greatest fire from his foes. They accused him of pitting the recently arrived farmers and the poor against Missouri's old inhabitants and lambasted his vote begging excursions in underground grog shops and back alleys, and his willingness to resort to the use of hard cider (cheaper than whiskey) to attract a crowd.

Cognizant that things were not going his uncle's way, John O'Fallon drafted a sixteen-page campaign biography calling attention to Clark's sterling record of public service and his many accomplishments. But it was to no avail. When the votes were counted McNair had defeated Clark by a margin of nearly three to one. In the lieutenant governor's race William H. Ashley, a militia officer and rising entrepreneur outpolled Nathaniel Cook, the candidate preferred by the old-timers. The contest for both houses in the General Assembly produced similar results as voters eager for change opted for candidates who favored Indian removal and embraced a populist political dynamic championing the common man. John Scott, the territorial delegate in Congress, who ran for Congress unopposed, was the only statewide establishment candidate to escape the onslaught. The only glimmer of hope for the old guard came when members of the newly elected General Assembly chose Thomas Hart Benton as one of the state's U.S. Senators. The other slot went to another traditionalist, David Barton, who would inevitably be unable to make the switch to the new order.

For Missourians, the 1820 elections marked the end of an era. An electorate that included many first time voters took the reigns of government from the hands of a well-entrenched St. Louis-based political establishment controlled by a small clique of wealthy special interest groups, French Creoles and willing American allies, and turned them over to an assemblage of relative political novices. That triumph dramatized the growing power and influence of the legions of newly arrived, democratic-minded farmers in central Missouri's thriving Boonslick country. St. Louis, soon to become America's dominant inland city, lost its designation as the capital, as the shifting locus of political power moved to St. Charles, and then more-tellingly six years later, to Jefferson City in the state's center.



A new style of electioneering was another legacy of this campaign. Henceforth candidates for office in Missouri, whatever their views, found it necessary to court the rank and file voters who now drove the political process. That lesson was not lost on Thomas Hart Benton, who rushed to embrace the causes of democratic politics and the common man. Senator Benton's close identification with the tenets of Jacksonian Democracy and his rising stature in state and national political circles soon signaled the opening of yet another chapter in Missouri's storied political history.

Missouri at the Abyss: the Election of 1860

Christopher Phillips

Most American slaveholders considered the expansion of black servitude into the western territories the life's blood of southern civilization, but few felt it so keenly as Missouri's slaveholders. When Congress announced the opening of Kansas territory for settlement in 1854, Missouri's masters declared it was essential that the new territory embrace slavery if their own human property was to remain secure. Bordered on the east by the "free-soil" state of Illinois and on the north by the "free-soil" state of Iowa, Missouri masters felt isolated. If Kansas to its west also became "free," then runaway slaves would have a haven at every turn, and the example of free blacks practically living among them. Like their fathers before them, Missouri slaveholders also wanted the option of western migration, should they choose. It was an infringement of their liberty to have this opportunity closed to them. To that end, thousands of Missouri slaveholders and their sympathizers temporarily "invaded" Kansas to vote in its elections and eventually to engage in violence against northern free-soil immigrants. By 1856, the escalating conflict known as "Bleeding Kansas" became a national crisis. As the harsh drama unfolded, the initial proslavery "Lecompton Constitution"—adopted with the help of the votes of thousands of "one-day" Kansans from Missouri—failed. To the consternation of southern slaveholders generally, and those in Missouri in particular, it became clear that antislavery settlers from the north outnumbered proslavery settlers from the south, and that Kansas would be "free."

In the wake of slavery's Kansas defeat, many Missourians embraced a proslavery militancy that had only a limited appeal to them previously. Missouri's governor at the onset of the Kansas crisis, Sterling Price, had ineffectively attempted to moderate the growing proslavery belligerency among some political leaders. Although a large slaveholder himself, Price's unwillingness to pander to the proslavery electorate angered those who once looked to him as their leader. Price's successor, Robert M. Stewart, a native New Yorker who had moved to St. Joseph in 1840, did not make the same mistake. He narrowly won election in a special election in 1857, almost exclusively by proslavery voters. From Andrew Jackson's presidency to the late 1850s, a variety of issues had guided the Democratic party. These now collapsed under the single issue of slavery. Recognizing this state of affairs, Stewart stood up strongly for slavery and states' rights throughout his term.

The 1858 midterm election only confirmed Missouri's transition toward this stronger proslavery stance. Fearful of the Republican party's emergence and its opposition to slavery's westward extension, Democratic voters favored proslavery over free-soil Democrats, even in the free-soil stronghold of St. Louis. Outside of St. Louis, proslavery candidates had even greater support. In all, seventy-four Democrats won seats in the Missouri House, most of them proslavery, while the heavily proslavery Senate Democrats dominated their opposition, twenty-four seats to nine. Separate factional Democratic conventions held at Georgetown and Fayette both adopted resolutions declaring the Democratic Party as the lone barrier to the "Black Republican" onslaught. The author of both of these sets of resolutions was the once discredited politician, Claiborne Fox Jackson.

Jackson, a former Howard County state senator, had been exiled from Missouri politics in 1852 for his role in introducing a series of proslavery resolutions in the state legislature in 1849. The so-called "Jackson Resolutions" were designed to forcefully declare the state's enthusiasm for slavery's western expansion, and more specifically, to end Missouri senior senator Thomas Hart Benton's work on behalf of the free-soil movement. The result was highly contentious. Both Benton and Jackson lost their respective seats, and the political fallout stifled the militant proslavery "Ultras," as they became known, for much of the decade. By the late 1850s, however, Jackson's popularity was again on the rise, and by the fall of 1859 he was ready, announcing to a close group of supporters that he intended to run for Missouri's governorship.

Despite his remarkable reversal of fortune, Claib Jackson did not enjoy the unified support of the pro-Southern Ultras, much less the entire Missouri Democratic party. The 1860 party convention, which Jackson chaired, was stormy. At its center stood the presidential candidacy of Stephen A. Douglas, who represented the traditional mainstream of the Democratic party, but whose seemingly equivocal stance on slavery the Ultras found wanting. Discord erupted upon Jackson's relinquishing the chair's gavel in order to seek the convention's gubernatorial nomination. That proved just the beginning. Raucous confusion and violent invective reached its crescendo during the nomination of pro- and anti-Douglas delegates to the national convention. Amidst the tumult, Jackson received the party's nomination for governor on the fourth ballot. In the end, the proslavery faction carried every contest in the convention, from the nominations of Jackson, to that of Thomas Caute Reynolds for lieutenant governor, to the dictating of the Democratic platform. Still, the discordant convention clearly indicated that Jackson would have no party mandate in the fall election.

While widely regarded as an Ultra, Jackson accepted his role as the standard-bearer for all Missouri Democrats. As such, he sought to harmonize the competing factions, a difficult task that national events soon rendered impossible. The country's political edifice crumbled during the spring, with four candidates running for president, two of whom came from the Democratic party. While Illinoisan Stephen Douglas had received the traditional Democratic nomination, breakaway southern Democrats nominated Kentuckian John C. Breckinridge. Tennessean John Bell represented the Constitutional Union party, an alignment of old-line southern Whigs (the Whig party now being defunct), and members of the short-lived nativist, anti-immigrant "Know-Nothing" party. Unionists attempted to assuage the nation's division over slavery by appealing to Union-loving border residents. The final candidate, Illinoisan Abraham Lincoln, led the antislavery Republicans in their party's second national campaign. This slate approximated the nation's sectional alignment. Since the Republicans had taken control of the U.S. House in 1858, proslavery voters grimly had to consider the possibility that Republicans would win the presidency as well in 1860. Many voters, consequently, merged state and national elections in their minds, as a referendum on the fate of the nation.

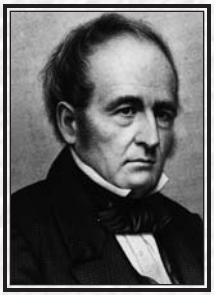
By endorsing neither Douglas, the party's "regular" nominee, nor Breckinridge, the southern rights candidate, Jackson hoped to maintain party unity through the maelstrom of popular politics. Any hope of remaining neutral ended, however, as powerful St. Louisans began pressuring him to announce his choice of presidential preference. Believing the largest portion of the state was secure for the Ultras, Jackson determined that his best electoral advantage lay in catering to St. Louis. Boasting nearly 160,000 residents–a full fifteen percent of the state's free population–antislavery St. Louis could not be ignored. Its voters, however, were resistant to out-state candidates from the politically influential central river counties, particularly a candidate recognized as an anti-Benton, proslavery Ultra. In light of the secessionist flashes emitting from the cotton states, St. Louisans needed assurance that Jackson intended a moderate course if he was elected to the state's highest office. To keep their favor Jackson concluded to support Douglas, but attempted to straddle the fence by trying to make clear that he–beyond all party affiliation–remained staunchly proslavery, and unwaveringly states' rights in his views.



Jackson gambled that his reputation would let him hang onto the majority of proslavery Democrats no matter which national candidate he supported. With St. Louis and central Missouri planned for, Jackson campaigned extensively in the more sparsely settled southwestern portion of the state, a region normally all but ignored by Missouri politicians. The decision was not so quixotic; southwestern Missouri was the home ground of Waldo P. Johnson, who had been Jackson's leading Democratic rival for gubernatorial nomination. Johnson had carried twice as many committed delegates to the recent convention as any of the other candidates. Jackson now sought votes among Johnson's supporters, most of whom shared common origins from the border south. It was only at the end of the campaign did Jackson and Reynolds publicly announce their support for Douglas as the Democratic presidential nominee. As a stunned proslavery audience listened in his Fayette hometown, Jackson argued, somewhat weakly, that the Illinoisan's stance against abolitionism made the party safe in his hands if elected president. Yet Jackson attempted to appease the Ultras by balancing his favorable comments about the controversial Douglas with warm remarks about Breckinridge, who he claimed as his personal favorite. He supported the "regular" candidate, he said, only in pursuit of party unity.

Missouri's gubernatorial race mirrored the national fracture in another way; following Jackson's declaration of support for Douglas, two other candidates jumped into the race. When Jackson embraced the "regular" Democrats, conservative Breckinridge Democrats renounced him as their candidate and named Hancock L. Jackson, a former governor, as their choice. At the same time, an ephemeral coalition of moderate Benton Democrats, former Whigs and Know-Nothings, and even some Republicans, rallied behind Sample Orr. Those supporting Orr became known simply as the "Opposition" and made common cause with the Constitutional Union Party. Orr, himself, was a conservative southwest Missouri judge and farmer. He dogged Jackson for much of his campaign, even speaking in opposition to him at the end of Jackson's own rallies. James B. Gardenhire of Cole County was the Republican nominee.

The election proved tight. Tension ran high on election day, and for the days thereafter, until state officials finally released the results. Jackson had won by 7,863 votes, carrying forty-seven percent of the 158,579 popular votes cast; Sample Orr finished second with forty-two percent of the votes. The remaining candidates, Hancock Jackson and Republican James Gardenhire, together carried just eleven percent of the electorate. The governor-elect drew support relatively evenly from the various sections of the state; he carried seventy counties while receiving respectable ballots in all of the remaining thirty-five. In the slaveholding Boon's Lick river counties of central Missouri, Jackson drew a mixed response, splitting them fairly evenly with Orr. In St. Louis, the state's only Republican stronghold, Jackson ran a strong second, presumably because of his support for Stephen Douglas (validating his strategy of announcing for Douglas).

With the three-month wait between the state's election and the national election, many moderate Missourians became edgy about the nation's future. The state election saw a raft of Breckinridge Democrats elected to the General Assembly, having claimed 15 of 33 seats in the Senate and 47 of 132 seats in the House. Their strong performance in the state's legislative contests had obvious implications for the November presidential election. Moderate fears, however, were unfounded. Missouri proved the only state in the Union that "the regular Democratic candidate" Douglas fully carried in the calamitous election. Breckinridge and Lincoln's candidacies were as sectional in Missouri as that of Breckinridge and Lincoln in the nation. Virtually all of Breckenridge's votes came from sparsely populated counties in the south-central portion of the state, while most of Lincoln's Missouri votes came from Germans in St. Louis and the nearby German settlements along the Missouri River. By and large, Missourians rejected both "Union splitters and rail splitters" at the polls. Compromise candidates Bell and Douglas garnered nine-tenths of the state's votes, and more than seven of every ten of the Boon's Lickers' ballots. Significantly, moderate Douglas prevailed over moderate Bell in the region by a margin, while not one of the state's largest slaveholding counties gave their votes to Breckinridge. Despite the inroads of the Breckinridge Democrats in the state legislature, moderate Democrats and Constitutional Unionists outnumbered them ninety to sixty-two. In St. Louis, the state's Republican stronghold, Douglas ran a strong second to Lincoln, while Breckinridge polled only 544 votes. In the national election, Missourians, above all, had called for temperate action on the issues of slavery and union.

While Missourians evinced a sympathy for the "southern rights," they did so only as fellow slaveholders, not as secessionists. Unlike southern "fireaters," Missourians held that individual states could still protect themselves from the northern majority by invoking, rather than abandoning, the national Union. Even when Douglas had opposed Kansas' corrupt attempt to enter the Union as a slave state, he opposed it as the champion of individual rights. But individual rights, he added, must include the right to own slaves where legal. Missourians agreed. So long as democracy, however imperfect, prevailed in the Union, and so long as the federal government protected liberty by upholding individual rights (including slaveholding where it existed), Missourians would remain loyal.

Within weeks of Abraham Lincoln's presidential election, and ten days before Missouri's General Assembly convened on January 4, 1861, South Carolina claimed as the ultimate state's "right" to withdraw from the union. Six other cotton states, then holding elections for delegates to conventions, would choose a similar response. The American house was divided. Missouri, the crossroads of the nation, now stood at its own crossroads of union or disunion. To Governor Jackson's great disappointment, Missouri alone among those states calling a constitutional convention decided not to secede. It wished to be both slaveholding and Union. At the advent of the war, Missourians opted for armed neutrality, even as many of the neighboring border south states seceded after Lincoln's call for troops to maintain the Union following South Carolina's attack on Sumter, the federal island fortress in Charleston harbor.

Ironically, the neutrality desired by most Missourians opened the state to four years of an anarchical civil war within its boundaries, one that operated on the margin of the formal military conflict. One-fourth of Missouri's eligible men fought in the federal and confederate armies: 109,000 Missourians for the North and as many as 30,000 for the South. Thousands more fought as guerrillas, subjecting Union soldiers and civilians in virtually all sections of the state to more than three years of rampant bushwhacking, sniping, hit-and-run raiding, arson, and murder. While these partisans represented but a fraction of those who served in the Confederate army, their influence on the state's populace far surpassed any mustered by Missourians in gray. But both sides participated. By one estimate, nearly twenty-seven thousand Missouri citizens lost their lives at the hands of southern and union sympathizing raiders, making Missouri, more than any other state, the scene of such vicious savagery as to leave local hatreds lasting decades after the guns of the Civil War had stilled.

More peaceable Missourians, however, shared much of the same high emotion as the bushwhackers, but used politics to avenge their wartime grievances. The harsh Drake Constitution, enacted in 1865 by Missouri's pro-Lincoln Radicals, barred former confederates from voting or office-holding until 1871. After that date they soon swept into state offices, including confederate Lieutenant Governor Thomas Caute Reynolds, who served in the state legislature; Francis M. Cockrell, a former Confederate general, who became a U.S. Senator; and George G. Vest (who had represented Missouri in both houses of the Confederate Congress), who subsequently joined Cockrell in the U.S. Senate in 1879. Cockrell eventually served three decades in the Senate, while Vest stayed nearly a quarter century. The postwar Confederate rise culminated with John Sappington Marmaduke's election as Missouri governor in 1884. Marmaduke, a former Confederate general, was not only the son of a former governor, but the nephew of its exiled rebel governor, Claiborne F. Jackson.

Evidence suggests that Missourians' pro-Southern political defiance merged with a new Confederate identity in which their former status as westerners and unionists became obscured. Many Missourians now claimed the state had been southern all along. Within a few years of the war's end, small towns and cities throughout Missouri erected monuments honoring their Confederate dead. Former Confederates, such as General Daniel M. Frost, championed the establishment of a confederate veterans home and confederate cemetery in Higginsville. Such memorials not only honored the valiant dead, but also served as a counterweight to charges that these soldiers were unpatriotic and treasonous by fighting for the South. Indeed, Missourians sought to preserve the memory of those who sacrificed their lives repelling federal invaders from their state. Memorialization bound Missourians with other Confederate state residents, not only in the replication of such activities as was occurring throughout the South, but also by entwining their shared experience of war.

Once complete, Missouri's Confederate mystique capped a process that spanned decades. Perhaps the most lasting symbol of Missouri's Confederate heritage was the adoption of the term "Little Dixie" as the name of the former slaveholding center of the state. The common sobriquet reflected more than voting trends; it stood as a distorted symbol of what many Missourians believed they were culturally, yet never were, and what they never were politically, yet now believed they had always been. These once-westerners now looked to the region that embodied their sense of betrayal and victimization—the beleaguered south—for their identity.

Conscience of the People: Progressivism and the 1904 Election

Bonnie Stepenoff

In 1902, journalist Lincoln Steffens came to St. Louis to find out if democracy had failed there. With the help of a local reporter, he exposed bribery, corruption, bad government, and collusion between powerful businessmen and politicians. But he also made a hero, Joseph Folk, the prosecutor who fought to bring these men to justice. Democracy might have stumbled in St. Louis, but it had not fallen. Its future depended on people's willingness to act in the best interest of the community and to make their leaders do the same. Faith in human decency, the impulse to create a better society, and belief in the possibility of clean government carried progressive candidates to victory in Missouri's path-breaking election of 1904.

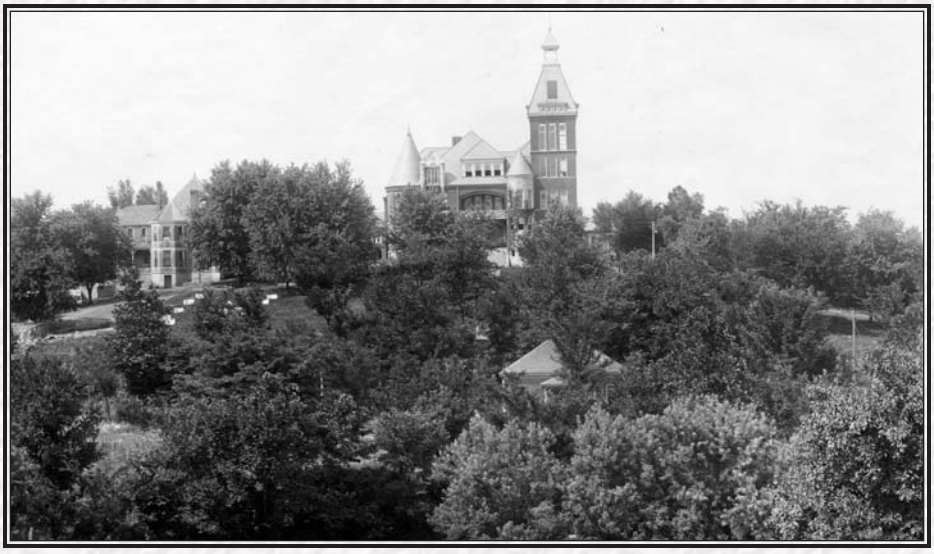
Forty years earlier, the Civil War had battered these simple articles of faith. Among the casualties that limped from the battlefields were three antebellum reform movements: abolition, women's rights, and temperance. When slavery ended, the old abolitionists scattered, leaving the struggle for racial equality to future generations. After the Fifteenth Amendment pointedly omitted the word "sex" from its promise of voting rights, the women's movement faltered. During the Civil War and Reconstruction, the temperance movement failed to find a comfortable home in the Republican and Democratic parties.

In the decades following the war, reform-minded people gradually regained their enthusiasm. In the 1870s, thousands of disenfranchised women rallied to the anti-liquor banner with a surprisingly powerful organization, the Women's Christian Temperance Union (WCTU). Other people responded to other causes. "Populist" farmers swelled the presidential crusades of Nebraska Democrat William Jennings Bryan, who stood up for the common man against the moneyed interests. "Single-taxers," like William Marion Reedy, editor of the St. Louis Mirror, pleaded for economic equality through tax reform. Labor reformers demanded factory inspections, wage and hour laws, workmen's compensation, and a ban on child labor. Clubwomen spoke out against tainted food, spoiled milk, and ineffective drugs. Having been energized by other reform efforts, women resumed their struggle for the right to vote. The threads connecting all these groups were the desire for change and an adamant optimism.

This was not the optimism tied to dreams of the expanding frontier. The war and its aftermath had tarnished that. The trailblazer in buckskin belonged to the past. On Missouri's burned-out western border, Jesse James came to symbolize hopeless resistance to the power of banks and railroads. Passenger trains brought businessmen in starched collars and derby hats. In booming St.

Joseph, Pony Express riders enjoyed a moment of glory, but grain dealers and livestock tycoons built far more substantial monuments. The lavish mansions of the city's Hall Street proclaimed a new era of big money, big spending, and even bigger dreams. Mark Twain called it the Gilded Age.

Steffens was not alone in wondering if American cities had surrendered their souls to greed, arrogance, and corruption. In Kansas City, William Rockhill Nelson, publisher of the Evening Star, declared that his city was no longer a border town and demanded responsible government, street cleaning, building inspections, better sanitation, parks, and boulevards. Beginning in the 1880s, he exposed election fraud and wrongdoing by public utility companies. On the positive side, he praised the creation of wide, tree-lined parkways, gardens, and fountains, springing from the ideal of the well-planned modern city. According to historians A. Theodore Brown and Lyle Dorsett, Nelson represented the "urban Jeffersonians," who wanted to bring the ethics of the old agricultural republic to a new industrial society.



Industrial development penetrated every corner of Missouri. Louis Houck, a lawyer and an entrepreneur, moved heaven and earth to build railroad lines connecting the wetlands of the Bootheel to Cape Girardeau and the wider world. Sawmills whirred at every depot, as lumber companies harvested the hardwood and cypress trees of the southeastern lowlands. By 1905, the Little River Drainage District had begun digging a massive system of ditches to carry water out of the swamps and funnel it into the Mississippi River.

With the ground shifting under their feet, people looked for ways to control the world around them. Temperance advocates found sympathetic audiences in Missouri. Rural areas offered the strongest support for a ban on liquor, but some urban middle class progressives viewed it as a way to clean up corruption, elevate the lower classes, and strengthen democracy. The flamboyant reformer, Carry Nation, famous for her hatchet-wielding attacks on bars, made dramatic appearances in the state. Less theatrically, but perhaps more effectively, other women handed out pamphlets and taught Sunday school lessons about the evils of strong drink. Many Protestant clergymen supported the cause. In 1887, the state legislature had passed a local liquor option law, allowing counties to decide whether or not to issue liquor licenses. By 1917, 96 of Missouri's 114 counties had gone dry.

The temperance crusade underscored divisions in Missouri society. Rural counties voted for prohibition, while urban areas opposed it. Some cities, such as Joplin, remained "wet" holdouts in dry counties. St. Louis depended heavily on the brewing industry and so had much to lose. Kansas City, which had a powerful temperance movement, remained sharply divided on the issue. Baptists, Methodists, and evangelical Protestants generally supported temperance. Catholics, Lutherans, and Jews tended to be against it. The counties with large German-American populations along the Missouri and Mississippi rivers remained staunchly "wet" in a state that was going dry.

In a more positive effort to cope with a changing world, Missourians improved their system of elementary, secondary, and higher education. St. Louis school superintendent William Torrey Harris promoted the public schools as allies of industrial progress. Throughout the state, citizens built colleges and universities to train young people for careers and professions. The University of Missouri extended its offerings to include law and medicine at Columbia and engineering at Rolla. To provide the public schools with teachers, the state created normal schools at Kirksville, Warrensburg, Cape Girardeau, Springfield, and Maryville. Lincoln Institute in Jefferson City trained African-Americans to teach in the black schools. All of Missouri's public schools were still segregated.

On the eve of the 1904 St. Louis World's Fair, Missouri was a state with persistent racial divisions, tension between urban and rural communities, corrupt municipal governments, but possessed of a strong desire to make a positive impression on the world. Steffens' revelations could not have come at a worse moment. In October 1902 and March 1903, McClure's Magazine published articles, written by Claude Wetmore and edited by Steffens, proclaiming that St. Louis had the second worst city government in the United States (after Philadelphia) at the same time it was inviting everyone to come there for the fair.

It was in this context that one man – one slightly built man with a firm chin and a soft voice – emerged as the hero of the day. His name, Joseph W. Folk, suggested honesty and a connection to the common people. His enemies, and some of his friends, called him "Holy Joe." He had a solid middle class background, a record of prosecuting grafters as St. Louis circuit attorney, a healthy political ambition, and a program that he called "The Missouri Idea." Basically Folk wanted to bring the state back to "Jeffersonian orthodoxy," restoring honesty to government and moral rectitude to the people. Although he did not push for prohibition, he rigidly enforced the dram-shop (saloon-licensing) laws and dry Sundays, and closed the racetracks. He also supported a wide range of reform that placed him at the center of Missouri's Progressive Movement.

The state's Democratic convention nominated him for governor by an overwhelming majority in 1904. His rise to fame had been rapid. He helped organize the Jefferson Club, an organization of young Democrats, who campaigned for Bryan as President in 1896. A great admirer of Bryan and an active member of the club, Folk headed the organization in 1898-1899. In 1900, he mediated a transit strike and won the support of organized labor. During that same year, he won election as St. Louis circuit attorney. The McClure's articles helped give him national recognition as a reformer. His platform rested on morality and honesty in public life, faith in the common people, and opposition to special privilege. In the 1904 election, he was the only Democrat to win a statewide executive office. Indeed, presidential candidate Theodore Roosevelt was the first Republican to carry Missouri since Ulysses S. Grant in 1868. Progressivism, which crossed party lines, swept the state.

Folk's inaugural address in January 1905 sounded more like a sermon than a political speech, but his administration achieved important reforms. Anti-bribery legislation attempted to clean up state politics. A statewide primary law gave the people a greater role in choosing public officials. Folk proposed amending the state constitution to allow the initiative and referendum. Passed in 1908, the measure opened the doors for citizens to place issues on the ballot. (In 1910, 1916, and 1918, anti-liquor advocates placed prohibition referenda on the ballot. The large "no" vote in St. Louis clinched their defeat. But the temperance crusaders did not give up.)

Under Folk's leadership, Missouri adopted protective legislation for workers and children. An eight-hour law applied to workers in mines and smelters. New legislation limited railroad workers to no more than sixteen straight hours of work followed by at least eight hours of rest. The governor signed a law prohibiting children under the age of fourteen from working in factories. School attendance became compulsory for children between the ages of eight and fourteen, and the state established detention homes for delinquent and dependent children, who might otherwise end up in jails or poor houses.

The Folk administration strenuously enforced anti-trust laws, attempting to curb the power of big business. Herbert Hadley, the Republican Attorney General, initiated significant legal action against Standard Oil. By taking on this corporate giant, Hadley rose to national prominence. His investigation provided the basis for similar actions in other states and at the federal level. According to Missouri's constitution, Folk could not succeed himself as governor. Hadley, who headed the statewide Republican ticket in 1908, won a decisive victory and continued to push a progressive agenda.

Folk's political opponents however, succeeded in bringing an abrupt end to his career. In 1908, he ran for his party's nomination to the United States Senate, but he lost. Lined up against him were business interests and party regulars. His anti-vice campaign alienated some powerful men in urban centers like Kansas City, where Tom Pendergast was rising as a political boss. Hadley, a Kansas City man, continued to fight crime and corruption in his hometown, but eventually Pendergast and his cronies prevailed over the Republican Progressive's good intention as well. Folk, who still had a national reputation, made an unsuccessful bid for the Democratic nomination to the Presidency in 1912. Woodrow Wilson, who was also a Progressive Democrat, won that election.

Progressive enthusiasm waned quickly in the aftermath of World War I, just as earlier reform efforts had crumbled during the Civil War. The aging William Jennings Bryan opposed American involvement in the European conflict, insisting that the three great reform movements of his day were peace, prohibition, and women's suffrage. In 1917, on a nationwide speaking tour, he delivered an impassioned address to the Missouri legislature. The 49th General Assembly issued 7,500 printed copies of his oration, including 2,500 copies in German. After the war, Missouri ratified the 18th Amendment to the United States Constitution, preparing the way for national prohibition. Women finally won their voting rights when the 19th Amendment became part of the Constitution in 1920. Peace remained an elusive ideal.

The legacy of Progressivism was mixed. On the plus side, women won their voting rights, and workers gained some protection from exploitation. The state embraced the idea that all children deserved an education. In the negative column, prohibition proved to be bad public policy. Corrupt political bosses continued to wield power in the cities. Big corporations found ways to evade government regulations. Economic inequality, urban-rural tension, and ethnic divisions triumphed over good will. Folk's administration gave citizens more control over the electoral process, but did not guarantee all people the full rights of citizenship. Progressive reforms did nothing to alleviate racial discrimination.

Still, with all its faults and complexities, the Progressive Movement had hit upon one essential truth. In order to create a better society, it was necessary to appeal to the conscience of the people. The civil rights movement in the 1950s and 1960s would test this idea and prove its power. Human beings are far from perfect, and therefore, political leaders are far from perfect. But democracy depends on a belief in the fundamental decency of humans, and an insistence that leaders must answer to the people.

A Bridge to the Future: The 1945 Constitution and the Modernization of Missouri

John Korasick

On February 27, 1945, Missourians voted to adopt a new constitution to better manage the problems presented by the modern world. The previous constitution, adopted in 1875, was primarily designed to place a severe limit on the power of state government. This led to the writing of a highly detailed document, but forced the regular adoption of amendments to keep it viable. Indeed, the people amended the constitution sixty times. The first attempt at a comprehensive revision of the 1875 constitution came through an initiative petition in 1920, resulting in a convention in 1922-1923, but produced little by way of reform. The convention, however, successfully proposed a referendum on the holding of a constitutional convention every twenty years. The first required vote came in 1942. With support from many organizations, most prominently the Statewide Committee for the Revision of the Missouri Constitution and the Missouri League of Women Voters, the measure authorizing a convention passed. The ensuing assembly, held in 1943-1944, produced a new constitution, which won voter approval in 1945.

If the 1945 constitution was meant to modernize and reform Missouri government, its 1875 predecessor was intended to right the wrongs wrought by the 1865 constitution. Adopted by the Radical Republicans at the end of the Civil War, the infamous "Drake Constitution," so-named for the convention's dominant spirit, Charles Drake, contained provisions meant to permanently disfranchise Southern sympathizers and keep the Radicals in power. Historians estimate that the constitution disfranchised as many as one-third of all adult males through its infamous "Ironclad Oath," which required a potential voter to avow that he had never fought for, aided, or sympathized with the Confederacy. It also barred Southern sympathizers from working as attorneys, teachers, clergymen, or serving on corporation boards. To ensure the judiciary's sympathy for Radical measures, the convention adopted an "Ousting Ordinance," turning out of office all incumbent judges, county clerks, circuit attorneys, sheriffs, and recorders, and filling their places by gubernatorial appointment.

From the beginning many Missourians, including many Unionists, opposed the draconian elements within the new constitution. By 1870, a coalition of Liberal Republicans and Democrats successfully captured the governor's office and the General Assembly, and adopted a constitutional amendment abolishing the hated test oath. In the 1874 election, the Democrats gained decisive control of state government, as well as all thirteen Congressional seats. With former confederates fully enfranchised, the pressure for change lessened. There, nevertheless, remained a desire for a permanent bulwark against the "tyranny" endured under the Radicals. That year, the General Assembly passed an act authorizing the people to vote for a constitutional convention. Reflecting the easing of tension, the widely ignored proposition narrowly passed by fewer than three hundred votes.

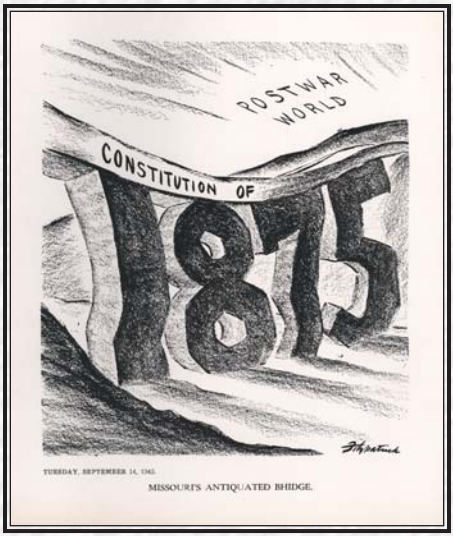
What the conventioneers drew up was a masterpiece of nineteenth century localism. While it reflected the Democrats' general anti-government resentment born of their experience under the Drake Constitution, it even more specifically aimed at curbing the power of the General Assembly. Before the Civil War, the legislature had issued bonds to fund private railroad construction. By 1860, nearly twenty-five million dollars in bonds had been issued. By the war's end, many of these railroads went bankrupt, and the legislature foreclosed on the loans. But the practices of the commissioners charged with recouping the thirty-one million dollars of debt led to charges of corruption. The St. Louis and Iron Mountain Railroad, for example, was sold for $550,000 when it was really worth nearly $3 million. The legislature's role in these outrages convinced many Missourians that it could not be trusted.

Thus, the framers of the 1875 constitution displayed a hostility to government, based on the perceived abuse of both political power and the power of the purse. They equated cheap and limited government with good government. An article from the January 1876 edition of The American Law Review marveled that Missouri's elected representatives should be so severely restricted in their power. Surely "these changes in the Constitution of Missouri," the article declared, "are a departure from the theory of our form of government."

While harsh legislative limitations were popular and workable in a rural society, as time progressed, Missouri, like the rest of the country, became increasingly urban and economically complex. The need for governmental, particularly legislative, flexibility became apparent to many observers. In 1900, nearly sixty-four percent of Missourians lived in rural areas. By 1920, the percentage of rural Missourians had fallen to fifty-three, and was rapidly declining.



It was in this context that in 1920 a group of private citizens called the New Constitution Association successfully circulated a petition calling for a constitutional convention. In the end, the subsequent 1922 convention failed to significantly change the 1875 constitution because it could not muster the support of rural voters. While urban voters generally backed the amendments, rural voters overwhelmingly turned against them. Even though the Great Depression remained some years off, the Missouri farm economy had already plunged into depression. The rural way of life faced an uncertain future. In this context, the expense incurred in the long convention incited anger. To make matters worse, rural cultural values seemed under siege. Urban social change associated with the "loose living" of the "roaring twenties" was anathema to many rural citizens. Mired in economic hardship and surrounded by social transformation conservative rural Missourians voted for the status quo.

When Missourians were legally obliged to consider calling a new constitutional convention twenty years later, the population shifts, evident since the beginning of the twentieth century, had made urban voters a majority. This time support for a new constitution was much stronger. Organizations like the Statewide Committee for the Revision of the Missouri Constitution, the Missouri League of Women Voters, and the Missouri State Teacher's Association waged an educational campaign in support of a constitutional convention on radio, billboards, and newspapers.

Opponents to a constitutional convention offered essentially three arguments—two related to America's participation in the World War. First, the constitution should not be revised during a time of war when many Missourians were overseas. Everyone should have a voice. Second, even the Missourians at home were really too preoccupied with the war to give the issue due consideration. The final objection focused on the high cost of a convention.

Proponents responded to these charges by arguing that reorganizing state government would actually help the war effort by making government more efficient. They also asserted that the 1875 constitution was so outdated it would be wholly inadequate for dealing with post-war issues. The final argument in favor of calling a convention in 1942 was that it was likely going to be the last opportunity to do so for twenty years. Demands on state government had changed. Proponents stressed that the 1875 constitution had been written before telephones, electric lights, cars, airplanes, and concrete highways. Missouri had industrialized, and was now the home of sophisticated business enterprises with greater governmental needs. The Great Depression had, moreover, produced a new "welfare state." Demands for old age assistance, aid to dependent children, and direct relief—things never dreamed of in late nineteenth century Missouri—were now commonplace.

On election day, voter turnout was very low. The "hottest" issue on the ballot was the race for State Superintendent of Schools, then an elected post. The number of votes cast for the Superintendent was 924,683, only about half of the turnout for the 1940 election, and two-thirds of the turnout for the 1938 election. Just two-thirds of those voting for the Superintendent bothered to vote on the convention question, which passed 366,018 to 265,294. Almost one-third of the "yes" votes were cast in St. Louis. It was, in fact, the urban vote that carried the question.

Constitution cartoon, 1943.
(The State Historical Society of Missouri, Columbia)

Eighty-three delegates were selected for the convention. Following the rules established for the 1922–1923 convention, voters chose two delegates from each of the thirty-four Senate districts—one Democrat and one Republican. The remaining fifteen delegates were, in theory, non-partisan, placed on the ballot by petition. Civic groups, in particular the League of Women Voters, had organized the petition process, though in reality, each party approved seven "non-partisan" candidates, and agreed that a fifteenth, Robert E. Blake, an anti-New Deal Democrat would serve as president of the convention.

Of the eighty-three delegates, forty-one were lawyers. Farm interests were represented by seven representatives, including R.W. Brown, President of the Missouri Farm Bureau. There were six newspaper editors, four college professors, and two labor representatives, including Reuben T. Wood, President of the Missouri Federation of Labor. There were also two women delegates, down from four in 1922-1923. Sixty-nine delegates were native Missourians, and two were foreign born. Twenty-six were from St. Louis or Kansas City, and twenty-eight came from towns of less than five thousand inhabitants.

The delegates possessed a wealth of political experience. Among their numbers were a former governor, two former Congressmen, a St. Louis mayor, twenty-four state legislators, five circuit judges, three probate judges, a justice of the peace, and eleven prosecutors. The average delegate's age was fifty-five. Nearly two-thirds of the convention members had attended college.

The convention met for two hundred fifteen days between September 21, 1943, and September 28, 1944. Using the 1875 constitution as their starting place, delegates deleted many sections, reworded others, and adopted many new ones. The resulting document was eleven thousand words shorter than the 1875 constitution. The convention considered three hundred seventy-seven proposals. In months of public hearings, organizations and individual Missourians offered testimony as to how the new constitution should be shaped. Ultimately the convention decided to submit the document to the electorate as an undividable whole. That is, voters would not be allowed to rummage through the document and pick among its various parts. The authors of the proposed constitution had conceived it as a single piece, and in their view, the rejection of any part of it would render the whole unsatisfactory.

The proposed bill of rights included many modern social reforms: the right of women to serve on juries, the expansion of freedom of speech to include media broadcasts, and the right of workers to bargain collectively. The major change in the legislative section involved the reapportionment of senatorial districts every ten years. Regarding the executive branch, there had been a strong push to eliminate most statewide offices in favor of a cabinet system, though, in the end, all offices were retained, except for the State Superintendent of Schools. The conventioneers, nevertheless, attempted to eliminate the problem of the "six little governors" by carefully defining each office's duties. New departments also came into being. All tax collecting was routed to the new Department of Revenue. The constitution also established the Departments of Agriculture and Public Health and Welfare. The constitution, furthermore, signaled the growing interest in depoliticizing some parts of government. Heretofore, partisans had run all divisions of government, no matter how specialized. Now, for the first time, a "merit system" was proposed for the hiring of staff for the state prisons, and eleemosynary institutions, such as Missouri's mental health hospitals, its Blind Commission, and the state's veterans homes. In the judicial section, the nonpartisan court plan originally approved by the voters in 1940 was retained despite a spirited attempt to destroy it. The justice of the peace system, dating from statehood, was fully replaced by magistrate courts. Other provisions adopted included: state aid to libraries, forestry, state parks, historical sites, and home rule for cities and counties. One of the most controversial provisions authorized the legislature to make exceptions to mandatory school segregation.

Missouri politicians, by and large, did not support the document; it upset too much of their world. Its promotion also had to compete with war news. But many Missourians found the arguments on behalf of a new constitution compelling. Despite the obstacles placed in its path, the new constitution won overwhelming approval, garnering sixty-three percent of the vote, albeit in a light electoral turnout. Once again, the urban vote carried the measure, winning by four to one in Jackson County and three to one in St. Louis City and County. Despite some innovative measures, most people still regarded the 1945 constitution as a conservative document, sharply limiting the power of state government. Nevertheless, because citizens from outside the formal political structure thought the time for change had come, Missouri received a new, more modern constitution, which remains the state's basic law today.

Since its adoption sixty years ago the Missouri Constitution has weathered many crises. Like its predecessor, it, too, has been amended many times. Some amendments have been quite mundane, others controversial. Despite frequently voiced unhappiness with its restrictive nature, three opportunities to call a convention have come and gone. Given the reluctance to call a convention through the legislature or initiative petition, it seems likely that the 1945 constitution will become the longest-lived constitution in Missouri history.

Foundations of Missouri: Expressions of Architecture and the Building Blocks of Missouri

Dear Fellow Missourians:

For many of us, the physical foundations of our state pass by unnoticed. But those frequently underappreciated "brick and mortar" buildings are important parts of our everyday lives. The architecture and structures that surround us help define our lifestyles, affect our families and reveal the history of our communities.

When we take a moment to examine some of these structures, we often discover something meaningful or unique. Photographers from across the state have taken the opportunity to express their individual perspectives by composing the images included in this section.

I am especially pleased to present to you this special section of the 2005-2006 edition of the Official Manual. Our theme for this year's Blue Book photo contest, "Foundations of Missouri: Expressions of Architecture and the Building Blocks of Missouri," is a tribute to those Missouri buildings and structures that play a role in our daily lives.

We received a large number of photographs from Missourians throughout the state. The photographs show the diverse elements of contemporary and historic architecture in Missouri. Choosing the winners among all of the outstanding entries was extremely difficult. I am grateful to everyone who submitted photos and to the staff members who assisted with the selection process.

I hope this collection of photographs will serve as a reminder of the unique beauty and character of the foundations of our state — the state of Missouri.

Very truly yours,

Robin Carnahan

State Symbols of Missouri

The Great Seal of Missouri

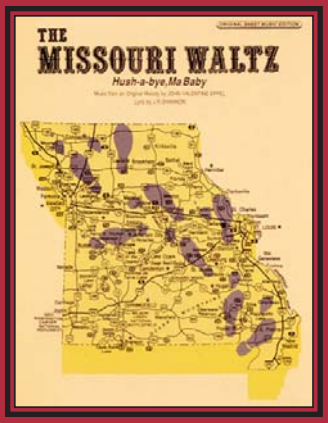
The Great Seal was designed by Judge Robert William Wells and adopted by the Missouri General Assembly on January 11, 1822. The center of the state seal is composed of two parts. On the right is the United States coat-of-arms containing the bald eagle. In its claws are arrows and olive branches, signifying that the power of war and peace lies with the U.S. federal government. On the left side of the shield, the state side, are a grizzly bear and a silver crescent moon. The crescent symbolizes Missouri at the time of the state seal's creation, a state of small population and wealth which would increase like the new or crescent moon; it also symbolizes the "second son," meaning Missouri was the second state formed out of the Louisiana Territory.

This shield is encircled by a belt inscribed with the motto, "United we stand, divided we fall," which indicates Missouri's advantage as a member of the United States. The two grizzlies on either side of the shield symbolize the state's strength and its citizens' bravery. The bears stand atop a scroll bearing the state motto, "Salus Populi Suprema Lex Esto," which means, "The welfare of the people shall be the supreme law." Below this scroll are the Roman numerals for 1820, the year Missouri began its functions as a state.

The helmet above the shield represents state sovereignty, and the large star atop the helmet surrounded by 23 smaller stars signifies Missouri's status as the 24th state. The cloud around the large star indicates the problems Missouri had in becoming a state. The whole state seal is enclosed by a scroll bearing the words, "The Great Seal of the State of Missouri." (RSMo 10.060)

The State Flag

Nearly 100 years after achieving statehood, Missouri adopted an official flag on March 22, 1913. The flag was designed by the late Mrs. Marie Elizabeth Watkins Oliver, wife of former State Senator R.B. Oliver. The flag consists of three horizontal stripes of red, white and blue. These represent valor, purity, vigilance and justice. In the center white stripe is the Missouri coat-of-arms, circled by a blue band containing 24 stars, denoting that Missouri was the 24th state. (RSMo 10.020)



The State Floral Emblem

On March 16, 1923, a bill was signed naming the white hawthorn blossom the official state floral emblem of Missouri. Known as the "red haw" or "white haw," the hawthorn (Crataegus) is a member of the great rose family, which resembles the apple group. The hawthorn blossoms have greenish-yellow centers and form in white clusters. More than 75 species of the hawthorn grow in Missouri, particularly in the Ozarks. (RSMo 10.030)

The State Bird

On March 30, 1927, the native bluebird (Sialia Sialis) became the official state bird of Missouri. The bluebird, considered a symbol of happiness, is usually 6½ to 7 inches long. While its upper parts are covered with light blue plumage, its breast is cinnamon red, turning rust-colored in the fall. The bluebird is common in Missouri from early spring until late November. (RSMo 10.010)

The State Song

The "Missouri Waltz" became the state song under an act adopted by the General Assembly on June 30, 1949. The song came from a melody by John V. Eppel and was arranged by Frederic Knight Logan, using lyrics written by J.R. Shannon. First published in 1914, the song did not sell well and was considered a failure. By 1939, the song had gained popularity and six million copies had been sold. Sales increased substantially after Missourian Harry S Truman became president. (RSMo 10.050)

The State Tree

On June 20, 1955, the flowering dogwood (Cornus Florida L.) became Missouri's official tree. The tree is small in size, rarely growing over 40 feet in height or 18 inches in diameter. The dogwood sprouts tiny greenish-yellow flowers in clusters, with each flower surrounded by four white petals. The paried, oval leaves are olive green above and covered with silvery hairs underneath. In the fall, the upper part of the leaves turn scarlet or orange and bright red fruits grow on the tree. (RSMo 10.040)

The State Mineral

On July 21, 1967, the mineral galena was adopted as the official mineral of Missouri. Galena is the major source of lead ore, and the recognition of this mineral by the state legislature was to emphasize Missouri's status as the nation's top producer of lead. Galena is dark gray in color and breaks into small cubes. Mining of galena has flourished in the Joplin-Granby area of southwest Missouri, and rich deposits have been located in such places as Crawford, Washington, Iron and Reynolds counties. (RSMo 10.047)

The State Rock

Mozarkite was adopted as the official state rock on July 21, 1967, by the 74th General Assembly. An attractive rock, mozarkite appears in a variety of colors, most predominantly green, red or purple. The rock's beauty is enhanced by cutting and polishing into ornamental shapes for jewelry. Mozarkite is most commonly found in Benton County. (RSMo 10.045)

The State Insect

On July 3, 1985, the honeybee was designated as Missouri's state insect. The honeybee, (Apis Mellifera) yellow or orange and black in color, is a social insect which collects nectar and pollen from flower blossoms in order to produce honey. The honeybee is common to Missouri and is cultivated by beekeepers for honey production. (RSMo 10.070)

The State Musical Instrument

The fiddle became the state's official musical instrument on July 17, 1987. Brought to Missouri in the late 1700s by fur traders and settlers, the fiddle quickly became popular. The instrument was adaptable to many forms of music, could be played without extensive formal training and was light and easy to carry. For generations, the local fiddle player was the sole source of entertainment in many communities and held a position of great respect in the region. (RSMo 10.080)

The State Fossil

The crinoid became the state's official fossil on June 16, 1989, after a group of Lee's Summit school students worked through the legislative process to promote it as a state symbol. The crinoid (Delocrinus missouriensis) is a mineralization of an animal which, because of its plant-like appearance, was called the "sea lily." Related to the starfish, the crinoid which covered Missouri lived in the ocean more than 250 million years ago. (RSMo 10.090)

The State Tree Nut

The nut produced by the black walnut tree (Juglans Nigra), known as the eastern black walnut, became the state tree nut on July 9, 1990. The nut has a variety of uses. The meat is used in ice cream, baked goods and candies. The shell provides the soft grit abrasive used in metal cleaning and polishing, and oil well drilling. It is also used in paint products and as a filler in dynamite. (RSMo 10.100)

The State Animal

On May 31, 1995, the Missouri mule was designated as the official state animal. The mule is a hybrid, the offspring of a mare (female horse) and a jack (male donkey). After its introduction to the state in the 1820s, the mule quickly became popular with farmers and settlers because of its hardy nature. Missouri mules pulled pioneer wagons to the Wild West during the 19th century and played a crucial role in moving troops and supplies in World Wars I and II. For decades, Missouri was the nation's premier mule producer. (RSMo 10.110)

The State American Folk Dance

The square dance was adopted as Missouri's official American folk dance on May 31, 1995. Square dances are derived from folk and courtship dances brought to the United States by European immigrants. Lively music and callers are hallmarks of square dancing. The caller directs the dancers by singing the names of figures and steps to be performed. (RSMo 10.120)

The State Aquatic Animal

The paddlefish (Polyodon Spathula) became Missouri's official aquatic animal on May 23, 1997. Only three rivers in Missouri support substantial populations of the paddlefish: the Mississippi, Missouri and the Osage. They are also present in some of the state's larger lakes. The paddlefish is primitive, with a cartilage skeleton, rather than bone.They commonly exceed five feet in length and weights of 60 pounds; 20-year olds are common, and some live 30 years or more. (RSMo 10.130)

The State Fish

On May 23, 1997, the channel catfish became the official fish of Missouri. The channel catfish (Ictalurus Punctatus) is slender, with a deeply forked tail. Young have spots that disappear with age. The catfish does not rely on sight to find its food; instead, it uses catlike whiskers to assist in the hunt. The channel cat is the most abundant large catfish in Missouri streams. Its diet includes animal and plant material. Adults are normally 12 to 32 inches long and weigh from a half-pound to 15 pounds. (RSMo 10.135)

The State Horse

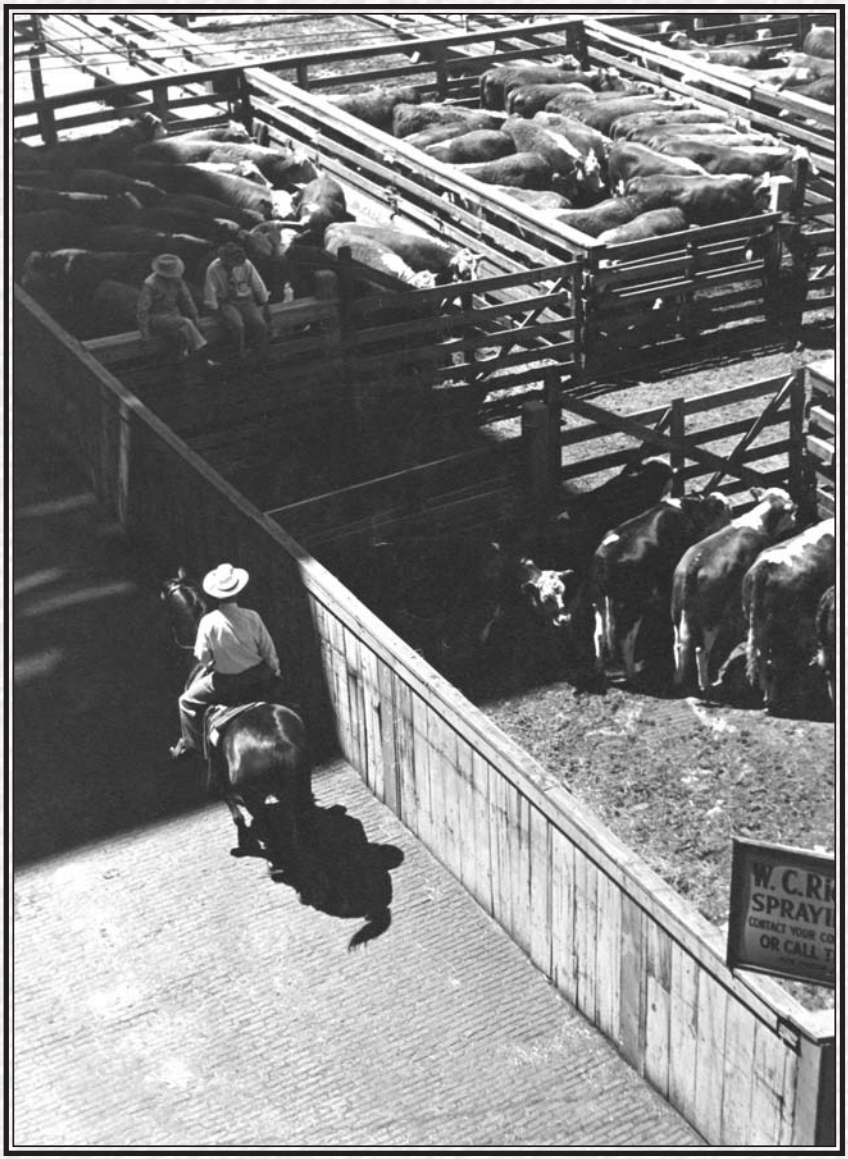
On June 4, 2002, the Missouri fox trotting horse became Missouri's official state horse. Missouri fox trotters were developed in the rugged Ozark hills of Missouri during the early 19th century. Bloodlines can be traced from early settlers to Missouri from the neighboring states of Kentucky, Illinois, Tennessee and Arkansas. The distinguishing characteristic of the fox trotter is its rhythmic gait, in which the horse walks with the front feet and trots with the hind feet. This gait gives the rider a smooth gentle ride. (RSMo 10.140)

The State Grape

On July 11, 2003, the Norton/Cynthiana grape (Vitis Aestivalis) was adopted as the official state grape. This adaptable, self-pollinating variety has been cultivated since the 1830s and is likely North America's oldest grape variety still commercially grown. Norton/Cynthiana has long been prized by Missouri vintners for its hardy growth habit and intense flavor characteristics, which produce lush, dry premium red wines of world-class quality and distinction. (RSMo 10.160)

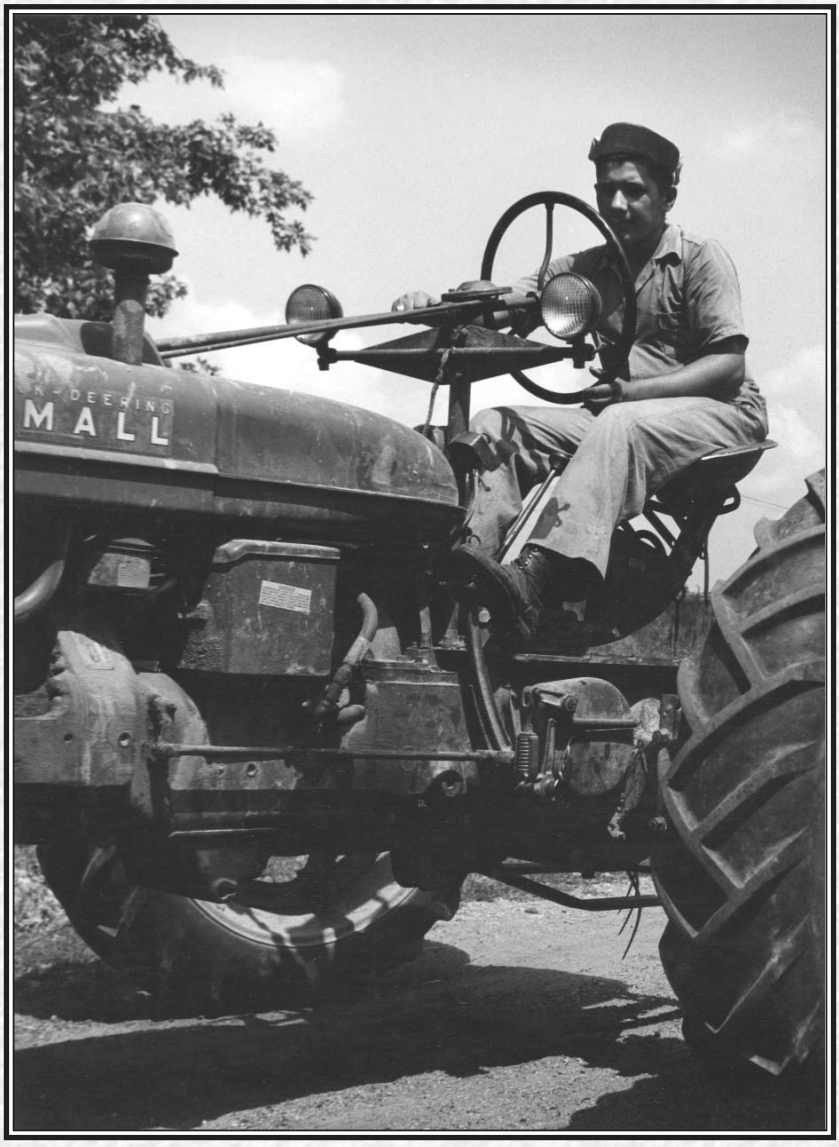
The State Dinosaur

Hypsibema missouriense is a type of dinosaur called a Hadrosaur or "duck billed" dinosaur. It was a herbivore with jaws that contained over 1,000 teeth. Hypsibema had evolved specialized teeth to handle the tough, fibrous vegetation of the time. Hypsibema lived in Missouri during the Late Cretaceous Period. Hypsibema was first discovered in 1942 by Dan Stewart, near the town of Glen Allen, MO, and became the state's offical dinosaur on July 9, 2004. (RSMo 10.095)



The State Amphibian

On June 5, 2005, the American Bullfrog (Rana catesbeiana) became the official state amphibian. The bullfrog is the largest frog native to Missouri and is found in every county. Most Missourians are familiar with the deep, resonant "jug-of-rum" call, which is typically heard on warm, rainy nights between mid-May and early July. The idea for the bullfrog designation came from a fourth grade class at Chinn Elementary School in Kansas City. (RSMo 10.170)



Missouri Day

On March 22, 1915, the 48th General Assembly set aside the first Monday in October each year as "Missouri Day," due to the efforts of Mrs. Anna Brosius Korn, a native Missourian. In 1969, the 75th General Assembly changed the date to the third Wednesday in October. Missouri Day is a time for schools to honor the state and for the people of the state to celebrate the achievements of all Missourians. (RSMo 9.040)

Matt Blunt

Governor

Elected November 2, 2004
Term expires January 2009

MATT BLUNT (Republican) was commissioned by the people to chart a course of economic growth and fiscal responsibility. He was elected as Missouri's 54th Governor by more than 80,000 votes on November 2, 2004, carrying 101 of our state's 114 counties.

Blunt ran on a platform of change. He pledged to make public schools the top priority in the budget; to create a state government that lives within the taxpayers' means; and to establish an economic environment in Missouri which encourages the creation of good, family-supporting jobs.

Before taking office, he fashioned a new state budget to increase funding for classrooms, reject job-killing tax increases on working families, and control rapidly rising state spending. His budget priorities were adopted in his first legislative session as governor, including more than $158 million in new funding for Missouri classrooms.

On his first full day as governor, Blunt began to make good on other promises. He closed the state lobbying office in Washington, D.C., in order to save Missouri tax dollars and halted the purchase of cell phones and non-emergency vehicles. Later, he established a citizen's commission to recommend the first executive branch reorganization in 30 years and he immediately began to consolidate services and personnel within state government.

A productive first legislative session included enactment of litigation reform to improve the quality of and access to health care by reducing unmerited lawsuits against physicians and other caregivers, and changes to prevent abuse of the compensation fund for injured workers.

Blunt was born November 20, 1970, in Springfield. He attended public schools in Strafford and graduated from Jefferson City High School. He graduated from the United States Naval Academy in Annapolis, Maryland, in May 1993 with a Bachelor of Science degree in history.

His active duty naval service included assignments as an Engineering Officer aboard the USS JACK WILLIAMS (FFG-24) and as the Navigator and Administrative Officer on the USS PETERSON (DD-969). He served in Operation Support Democracy, involving the international blockade of Haiti; missions to interdict drug traffic at sea; and the interdiction of Cuban migrants. He received numerous commendations, including four Navy and Marine Corps Achievement medals.

Blunt is the only statewide official in Missouri history called to active military duty in wartime, serving for six months in Operation Enduring Freedom, America's response to the terrorist attacks of September 11, 2001. He continues to serve as a Lieutenant Commander in the Naval Reserves.

As secretary of state, Blunt improved the speed and quality of service to the public while reducing the costs for Missouri taxpayers, and won enactment of bills to reform elections and provide new consumer protections for investors. Blunt's vigorous oversight of the elections process and his landmark election reform bill helped restore Missourians' confidence in the state elections process and contributed to record-setting voter turnout in the August and November 2004 elections.

Prior to being elected secretary of state, Blunt served in the Missouri House of Representatives from Greene County.

Governor Blunt married Melanie Anderson Blunt in March 1997. The couple recently welcomed their first child, William Branch Blunt, who was born on March 9, 2005. The Blunts attend a Baptist church near their home. Governor Blunt is a member of the American Legion and the Missouri Farm Bureau.

Qualifications

The chief executive officer of the State of Missouri must be at least 30 years old, a U.S. citizen for at least 15 years and a resident of Missouri for at least 10 years before being elected governor.

The governor is elected to a four-year term during the same year as a presidential election and may seek re-election to a second four-year term. No person may hold the office for more than two terms.

Responsibilities

The governor appoints the members of all boards and commissions, the heads of all departments in state government and fills all vacancies in public offices unless otherwise provided by law. The board members of Missouri's state universities and colleges are appointed by the governor. The governor also selects the members of the Supreme and Appellate Courts of Missouri from names submitted by the State Judicial Commission. The governor appoints members to the state's six urban election boards, two police boards and the Board of Probation and Parole. Most appointments require the advice and consent of the Senate.

The governor addresses the General Assembly on the state of government and recommends changes or other actions to be taken. A budget is submitted by the governor to the General Assembly within 30 days after the assembly convenes. The budget contains the governor's estimates of available state revenues and an itemized plan for proposed expenditures.

All bills and joint resolutions passed by both houses of the legislature are submitted to the governor for consideration. The governor must return the legislation to the house of its inception within 15 days after receiving it. The governor may either approve a bill, making it law, or return it to the legislature with objections. When the legislature is adjourned, the governor has 45 days in which to consider a bill.

The governor may object to one or more items or portions of items of an appropriations bill while approving other items or portions of the appropriations bill. Upon signing the appropriations bill, appended to it is a statement of the items or portions of items to which there are objections and such items or portions will not take effect. The governor may control the rate of expenditure in other areas whenever the actual revenues are less than the revenue estimates upon which the appropriations were based.

Additional Duties and Powers

The governor performs many other duties assigned by constitution, statute or custom. For example, the governor issues writs of election to fill vacancies in either house of the General Assembly. The governor also has the power to grant reprieves, commutations and pardons, but this does not include the power to parole.

In addition to other duties, the governor is a member of a number of boards and commissions, such as the Board of Public Buildings and the State Board of Fund Commissioners.

Moreover, the governor is the conservator of peace throughout Missouri and is commander-

Governor's Mansion (MaryAnn Craigg)

Missouri Governor's Mansion

Governor Matt Blunt, First Lady Melanie Blunt and their son William Branch Blunt are honored to call the Missouri Governor's Mansion their home.

First occupied by Governor B. Gratz Brown and his family in 1872, this stately three-story brick building is one of the oldest and most beautifully restored Governors' homes in the United States. The Mansion is perched on a bluff near the State Capitol Building and provides a scenic glimpse of the Missouri River. Built and finished in the renaissance revival style, the residence entry consists of an imposing portico with four dignified pink granite columns. A victorian atmosphere greets visitors as they enter the great hall with its dramatic 17-foot ceilings, a rare free-flowing staircase of solid walnut, and one of the best collections of period furnishings in the country. Designed by George Ingham Barnett of St. Louis, the mansion has been listed on the National Register of Historic Places since May 21, 1969.

Missouri First Ladies' portraits are featured throughout the mansion along with loaned works of art created by world famous Missouri artists George Caleb Bingham, who also served as Missouri state treasurer from 1862–1865; Thomas Hart Benton and the Harry S Truman family portrait by Greta Kempton.

The Blunts enjoy making "the people's house" their home and appreciate the opportunity for their son Branch to grow up surrounded by stories and pictures that showcase Missouri's rich history and heritage. Branch is the first baby raised in the mansion since Christopher "Kit" Bond was governor more than 20 years ago. Governor Blunt and Mrs. Blunt appreciate the challenges of raising a baby in the residence.

Faith is the cornerstone of the Blunt family and has influenced Mrs. Blunt's commitment to public service. She feels strongly that individuals need to play an active part in maintaining the overall health of Missouri and its local communities. Mrs. Blunt is a member of the Regional Board of Directors for Boys and Girls Town of Missouri and has mentored students at the Boys and Girls Club learning creative writing skills. As a past member of the executive board and board of directors of the Junior League of Springfield, the first lady has led projects aimed at addressing disability awareness and also represented the League on the State Public Affairs Committee.

Mrs. Blunt always enjoys visiting classrooms and interacting with young people. Her interest in what is going on in Missouri's schools is not new. She helped to coordinate a program in Springfield public schools called "Kids on the Block." This innovative program brought schoolchildren a positive message about diversity and acceptance.

Approximately 60,000 people visit the Missouri governor's mansion annually.

[1]At the time of the elections of McNair, Bates and Williams, and of the first election of Miller in 1825, there were no organized political parties in Missouri. Individual popularity prevailed. All called themselves Jeffersonian Republicans, or what now are called Democrats.

[2]Marmaduke was elected Lt. Governor in 1840. Upon the death of Governor Thomas Reynolds in February 1844, Marmaduke became Governor. He served the remainer of that year, because John Cummins Edwards was elected.

[3]Soon after Polk was inaugurated the Legislature convened and elected him by 101 votes to be a U.S. Senator—he resigned to take that office in February 1857—His occupancy of the Governor's office was shorter than any other Governor of Missouri.

[4]Jackson was Lt. Governor under Polk and became acting governor after Polk resigned in February 1857—He served until October of that year when Robert Stewart took office. Stewart was elected at a special election in August 1857.

[8]Liberal.

[9]Gov. Stephens is credited with creating the State Fair in Sedalia.

[10]Some held multiple terms as governor. In consideration of space, some are listed here only once.

[11]Wilson became Missouri's 52nd governor on October 17, 2000, upon the death of Mel Carnahan.

Peter D. Kinder

Lieutenant Governor

Elected November 2, 2004
Term expires January 2009

PETER D. KINDER (Republican) was elected Missouri's 46th Lieutenant Governor on November 2, 2004, carrying 91 of Missouri's 114 counties. He is the second Republican elected to this office since 1928.

Peter Kinder was born and raised in Cape Girardeau. As the son of one of the last Missouri pediatricians to make house calls, he learned the value of service, responsibility, and hard work. This example of service is one that Peter has sought to emulate in serving the citizens of Missouri.

After attending Cape Girardeau Public Schools, he continued his education at Southeast Missouri State University and the University of Missouri–Columbia. He graduated from St. Mary's University School of Law in San Antonio, Texas, in 1979, and was admitted to the Missouri Bar in 1980.

From 1981 to 1983, he served as a member of U.S. Representative Bill Emerson's Washington staff and then worked as an attorney and real estate representative for Drury Industries. In 1987, he became associate publisher of the Southeast Missourian.

In 1992, Peter was elected to the Missouri Senate. In 2001, the Republicans gained a majority in the Missouri Senate. As a result, Kinder was elected President Pro Tem, the top elected official in the Missouri Senate, and led that body for four years. When he ran for lieutenant governor in 2004, he became the second sitting President Pro Tem to be elected lieutenant governor.

As lieutenant governor, Kinder serves as the official Senior Advocate for Missouri. While in the Missouri Senate, he sponsored and passed the Elderly Protection Act in 2003. Through his leadership as President Pro Tem, Missouri crafted the Missouri Senior Rx plan. He continues to work to protect Missouri seniors. Kinder is promoting MOSAFE (Missourians Stopping Adult Financial Exploitation).

In 2005, the Government Review Commission was created by Executive Order, naming Kinder to the twenty-member board. This commission reviews every executive department, identifying opportunities to restructure, consolidate, or reduce areas of state government to produce the most cost-effective service for Missouri taxpayers. As a member of the executive and legislative branches of government, he is in a position to help eradicate waste and abuse of taxpayer dollars.

During his time in office, Kinder has led the fight for veterans issues. As Senate President Pro Tem, he chaired an interim committee that studied subsidizing veterans' homes and providing assistance to Missouri troops returning home from combat in Afghanistan, Iraq, and other parts of the world. In 2005, Kinder proposed and helped to pass the Missouri Military Family Relief Fund, which benefits family members of the Missouri National Guard and Reserves personnel who have been called to active duty.

The lieutenant governor is a member of several boards and commissions including: Missouri Rx Prescription Drug Program (chair); Tourism Commission; Community Service Commission; Missouri Development Finance Board (chair); and the Missouri Housing Development Commission.

In 1996, he was named chair of the Education Task Force of the American Legislative Exchange Council (ALEC), a Washington, D.C. based association of state legislators.

Kinder is a member of the United Methodist Church, Beta Theta Pi social fraternity, Missouri Farm Bureau, Cape Girardeau Chamber of Commerce, and the Lions Club. He is active in many civic causes, including Southeast Missouri Port Authority, United Way, Nature Conservancy, American Cancer Society and Boy Scouts of America.

Kinder has been honored by various groups including: Boy Scouts of America, Eagle Scout; a special award, St. Louis Children's Hospital, SSM Cardinal Glennon Hospital and Children's Mercy of Kansas City; March of Dimes; Southeast Missouri State University Alumni Association, Distinguished Service; St. Louis Business Journal Legislative Award; Missouri Farm Bureau, Outstanding Service to Agriculture; St. Louis Regional Commerce and Growth Association, Lewis and Clark Statesman Award; Missouri Restaurant Association, Distinguished Service; Associated Industries of Missouri, Voice of Missouri Business; Missouri Right to Life, Defender of Life; Southeast Missouri Alliance for Disability Independence, Elected Official Award; SSM Cardinal Glennon Hospital, Child Advocate Award for Civic Commitment; National Federation of Independent Businesses, Guardian of Small Business; Missouri State Medical Association, for dedication to improving health care; and Missouri Chamber of Commerce and Industry, Spirit of Enterprise.

Qualifications

Missouri's lieutenant governor must be at least 30 years old, a U.S. citizen for at least 15 years and a resident of Missouri for at least 10 years before being elected to the office.

The lieutenant governor is elected for a four-year term and is subject to re-election.

Duties

The lieutenant governor is the only statewide elected official that is part of both the executive and legislative branches in Missouri. The lieutenant governor is elected separately from the governor, and each can be a member of different political parties. Under the constitution, the lieutenant governor is ex officio president of the Missouri Senate. Upon the governor's death, conviction, impeachment, resignation, absence from the state or other disabilities, the lieutenant governor shall act as governor. By law, the lieutenant governor is a member of the Board of Public Buildings, the Board of Fund Commissioners, the Missouri Community Service Commission, the Missouri Finance Development Board, the Missouri Housing Development Commission, the Missouri Rural Economic Development Council, and the Tourism Commission. The lieutenant governor is an advisor to the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education on early childhood education and Parents-as-Teachers program, and the state's official advocate for senior citizens. The lieutenant governor also refers citizen questions and concerns to appropriate state agencies.

Roles of the Office

In recent years, the lieutenant governor has embraced more responsibilities, especially relating to seniors, veterans, tourism and service. These modern developments have made the lieutenant governor more visible and accessible to Missourians. The 15 different boards and commissions on which the lieutenant governor serves provide many more opportunities to help Missouri citizens. These boards and commissions cover a wide variety of functions for Missouri's diverse population.

By statute, the lieutenant governor is the official Senior Advocate for the State of Missouri. This office investigates problems and issues on behalf of senior citizens. The lieutenant governor's office works very closely with the Department of Health and Senior Services to ensure the safety and well-being of our Missouri senior citizens. The lieutenant governor now chairs the Missouri Rx Prescription Drug Program.

Our military veterans exemplify the meaning of service. They have answered the call of duty, boldly facing death, injury, and uncertainty. Their sacrifice should never be forgotten. The lieutenant governor has been appointed to the Governor's Council for Veterans' Affairs and is proud to advocate for issues vital to our Missouri veterans.

Lt. Governor Peter Kinder is also actively promoting the Missouri Military Family Relief Fund, a state administered fund assisting families of Missouri Resident Guard and reservists who have been deployed for the global war on terrorism. Those interested in donating should contact the Missouri Veterans' Commission at (573)-522-4220.

Serving on the Missouri Tourism Commission, the lieutenant governor helps market Missouri to the rest of the world. Out-of-state visitors bring new revenues to Missouri businesses, and new tax dollars to Missouri. Centrally located in the United States and bordering eight other states, Missouri hosts tens of millions of visitors each year. The Tourism Commission plans campaigns to show our visitors all that we have to offer.

As part of the Missouri Community Service Commission, the lieutenant governor is honored to continue a legacy of service to citizens across Missouri. This commission nurtures volunteerism by encouraging an atmosphere that enables citizen service to prosper. By partnering with national service programs, the commission promotes volunteer opportunities to interested citizens. Each year, the Community Service Commission joins with the lieutenant governor to honor those who are actively volunteering in their neighborhoods. Lt. Governor Kinder is also sponsoring the Senior Service Award to promote and highlight the positive accomplishments senior citizens selflessly provide their communities. Quarterly winners are recognized from every region of the state. More information may be found at www.ltgov.mo.gov.

The lieutenant governor also serves on the Missouri Housing Development Commission. As such, the lieutenant governor has the opportunity to help ensure quality affordable housing for Missourians, regardless of income.

As a board member of the Rural Economic Development Council, the lieutenant governor works to help foster sustainable community and economic development programs in rural areas.

The lieutenant governor devotes much time and commitment to all of the boards and commissions the office serves including: Board of Fund Commissioners; Board of Public Buildings; Government Review Commission; Governor's Council on Veterans' Affairs; Governor's Council on Physical Fitness and Health; Missouri Development Finance Board; Missouri Community Service Commission; Missouri Housing Development Commission; Missouri Rx Prescription Drug Program; Missouri Tourism Commission; Missouri Rural Economic Development Council; Personal Independence Commission; Second State Capitol Commission; Statewide Safety Steering Committee; Special Health, Psychological, and Social Needs of Minority Older Individuals Commission; and serves as an advisor to the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education on early childhood education.

This compilation of the lieutenant governor's responsibilities demonstrates how this office can assist all Missourians. Citizens are urged to contact the lieutenant governor's office regarding issues that affect seniors by calling (800)-699-2377, or through the web site at www.ltgov.mo.gov.

Missouri's State Capitol

State government in Missouri focuses on the state's beautiful, domed Capitol, dominating the bluffs of the Missouri River in Jefferson City.

The dome, rising 238 feet above ground level and topped by a bronze statue of Ceres, goddess of agriculture, is the first view of Jefferson City for travelers arriving from the north. The structure is Jefferson City's leading tourist attraction and is a mecca for school groups who arrive by busloads, particularly during General Assembly sessions when they fill the galleries to watch the Senate and House of Representatives in action.

In addition to housing the two legislative bodies, the Capitol provides office space for the governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, treasurer, state auditor and some administrative agencies. The structure is also notable for its architectural features, including its eight 48-foot columns on the south portico and six 48-foot columns on the north side; its 30-foot-wide grand stairway and its bronze front doors, each 13 by 18 feet—the largest cast since the Roman era.

The Capitol's first floor features the State Museum. Outstanding paintings, pediments and friezes decorate the Capitol interior. A prime attraction is a series of Thomas Hart Benton murals in the House Lounge.

Statuary is a prominent feature of the Capitol grounds. Heroic bronze figures depicting Missouri's two great rivers, the Mississippi and Missouri, and a 13-foot statue of Thomas Jefferson dominate the south entrance. A bronze relief depicting the signing of the Louisiana Purchase by Livingston, Monroe and Marbois and the Fountain of the Centaurs are the most outstanding features on the north grounds.

The present Capitol, completed in 1917, and dedicated in 1924, is the fourth Capitol in Jefferson City. Before the seat of government was moved to Jefferson City, the functions of Missouri territorial government were based in the Mansion House, a hotel in St. Louis, and later at the Missouri Hotel, also in St. Louis. The upper story of a mercantile store in St. Charles was designated as temporary capital of the state in 1821 and remained the seat of government until 1826 when Jefferson City became the permanent capital city. The first Capitol in Jefferson City was located on land now occupied by the Governor's Mansion. It burned in 1837, apparently after some hot coals fell out of one of its fire places. A second structure completed in 1840 and expanded in 1887-88 burned when the dome was struck by lightning on February 5, 1911. A temporary Capitol made of lathe and stucco was erected in an area to the east of the present building and was used from 1912 into 1917.

The present Capitol was constructed for $4,215,000, including site and furnishings. It is five stories high, 437 feet long, 300 feet wide in the center and 200 feet wide in the wings. The dome is 238 feet high and the height of the wings is 88 feet. It includes over 650,000 square feet of floor space.

Robin Carnahan

Secretary of State

Elected November 2, 2004
Term expires January 2009

Prior to her election as Secretary of State, Robin Carnahan had a career with broad experience in law, business, and elections. She became Missouri's 38th Secretary of State in January 2005, following a campaign in which she focused on protecting consumers, providing improved customer service, and empowering citizens through fair and accessible elections.

Secretary Carnahan grew up in Rolla, Missouri, and is a member of the Baptist Church. After graduating from Rolla High School, her studies continued at William Jewell College in Liberty, Missouri, and the University of Southhampton in England. She earned a bachelor's degree in Economics, graduating magna cum laude. Carnahan went on to earn a juris doctor degree from the University of Virginia Law School, where she served as Executive Editor of the Virginia Journal of International Law. Carnahan then returned to Missouri to practice business law with the St. Louis law firm of Thompson & Mitchell.

In 1990, Carnahan went to work in central and eastern Europe with the National Democratic Institute where she helped rebuild the region's democracies and economies by drafting voting laws, training new political leaders, and monitoring elections. Since then, she has worked in six countries to promote democracy and free elections.

Carnahan also served as an executive at the Export-Import Bank of the United States where she explored innovative ways to help American companies increase their sale of goods and services abroad. Today, as a small business owner, Carnahan manages her family's 900-acre farm and Angus cattle operation outside of Rolla.

Since taking office, Secretary Carnahan has worked to protect consumers, especially Missouri seniors, by cracking down on firms that attempt to defraud investors and by educating Missourians about investing. The Secretary of State's office has initiated and settled a number of high profile securities cases, including two landmark settlements during Carnahan's first eight months in office. Her development of an "Investor Bill of Rights" further highlights her commitment to responsible investing and the elimination of investment fraud. Carnahan's efforts on behalf of Missouri investors have gained her recognition as a national leader in securities law enforcement.

Secretary Carnahan is serving Missouri customers by providing outstanding service from the Secretary of State's office, cutting red tape for businesses, and making information more accessible. Carnahan has promoted opportunity for Missouri's small businesses to grow by using technology to streamline office interactions for businesses. During her first six months in office, online filings of corporate annual reports increased by over 41%, which saved Missouri's businesses over $1.4 million. She also launched an online limited liability company (LLC) registration program and created a small business advocate position to help small businesses navigate state government.

Secretary Carnahan believes good customer service includes making information more accessible to Missourians. In her role as the administrator of Missouri's State Archives, she has ensured the preservation of historical documents and made more records available on the Internet. As overseer of the Missouri State Library, she has helped further modernize and strengthen Missouri's public libraries through grants to help libraries improve access to information through technology.

As Missouri's chief election official, Secretary Carnahan is empowering citizens by providing confidence, convenience, and privacy in voting. Her top priority is to ensure fairness in the elections system so Missourians have confidence that their votes are counted. She is bringing Missouri's election process into compliance with the 2002 federal Help America Vote Act (HAVA) by implementing a statewide voter registration database, providing accessible voting equipment in all polling places, phasing out punch card voting systems, and educating voters.

Secretary Carnahan is committed to using common sense methods in fulfilling the duties of the Secretary of State. It is her belief that public service is about helping to improve peoples' lives, whether a consumer, customer, or citizen.

Carnahan's family has a lengthy history of devotion to public service. Her father, Mel Carnahan, served as Missouri's State Treasurer, Lt. Governor, and Governor, and her mother, Jean Carnahan, was the first woman to serve Missouri in the U.S. Senate. Her grandfather, A.S.J. Carnahan, a congressman from south-central Missouri for fourteen years, was appointed by President John F. Kennedy to be U.S. Ambassador to Sierra Leone in west Africa.

With approximately 260 employees, the Secretary of State's office serves Missourians in a number of diverse and important ways. The major divisions within the Secretary of State's office are: Business Services, Elections, Securities, State Library, Records Services, and Administrative Services.

At Secretary Robin Carnahan's direction, the office has focused on providing outstanding service to its broad scope of customers and making information more accessible to all Missourians. In business services, Carnahan has cut red tape for small businesses and streamlined operations with her office. Through the securities division, she has also protected consumers by cracking down on firms that defraud investors and educating Missourians about responsible investing. As Missouri's chief elections official, Carnahan has worked to ensure Missouri voters get the confidence, convenience, and privacy they expect and deserve.

In addition, the office is responsible for compiling, storing and publishing a variety of documents. As the keeper of the Great Seal of the State of Missouri, the Secretary of State is also responsible for authenticating official acts of the Governor.

Business Services Division

The Business Services Division has three sections: Commissions, Corporations and Uniform Commercial Code. The division also oversees regional offices for corporate filings in St. Louis, Kansas City and Springfield. The division is committed to providing excellent customer service by developing online filing applications for all its products.

and the State Registrar of Vital Statistics. Many of these documents are for foreign adoptions.

A second major responsibility of the Commissions section is authenticating official acts of the governor. Each year the section affixes the Great Seal of the State of Missouri to over 35,000 documents, which include: all commissions of state and county elected officials; appointments made by the governor to fill vacancies in elected offices and boards and commissions; and proclamations, executive orders, extraditions, commutations of sentence, and restoration of citizenship issued by the governor. The Commissions section maintains bonds and oaths of office for state officials.

The section also registers trademarks and service marks and keeps a registry of all marks. Over 18,000 trademarks and service marks have been registered with this office.

The section is also responsible for facsimile signature filings, resident agent filings and service of process.

The secretary of state is responsible for the registration of all Missouri and out-of-state business entities doing business in Missouri. These entities include for profit and nonprofit corporations, and specialized business entities such as: professional corporations; close corporations; agricultural cooperatives; mutual associations; limited liability companies; limited partnerships; limited liability partnerships; limited liability limited partnerships; and other business entities. Missouri corporations must file articles of incorporation. Out-of-state corporations must obtain a certificate of authority. In addition, corporations file various documents required by law, such as annual reports and articles of amendment, merger, consolidation, dissolution, termination and withdrawal.

There are approximately 326,000 active corporations now doing business in Missouri and 502,000 inactive corporations on file. New general business corporation filings are trending downward while limited liability company filings are increasing. Annually more than 13,000 new corporations and 26,000 new limited liability companies are filed with the Corporations section. More than 27,500 new fictitious name registrations are processed annually.

Each corporation must annually register with the Corporations section the names of its officers and directors in order to remain in good standing with the secretary of state. The section processes more than 167,000 annual reports each year; over 65 percent of the annual reports are filed online with a reduced fee by using the secretary of state's web site, saving businesses millions of dollars each year.

Filing articles of organization for a limited liability company (LLC) is the newest service available online. Other online services include filing a fictitious name registration; obtaining and verifying a certificate of good standing; printing copies of available filed documents; obtaining forms for filing a new business entity; accessing the business entity database to search for a business or corporation; and linking to the Revised Statutes of Missouri and other web sites helpful to those seeking to do business in Missouri. All documents filed with the Business Services Division are now imaged and available online from the secretary of state's web site.

The secretary of state's office is the centralized office for the perfecting of personal property liens and other creditor interests under the Uniform Commercial Code (UCC). These liens are "perfected" by filing a financing statement in the accepted national format indicating the debtor name and address and the secured party name and address along with a description of the collateral. Once a lien or other interest is filed and perfected, the public is considered "on notice" regarding those liens. These financing statements are effective for five years; they may be continued for an additional five-year term by filing a continuation statement within six months prior to expiration. Eighty-five percent of the UCC filings with the secretary of state are now completed online. An electronic search of all UCC information is available on the secretary of state's web site as well. UCC forms and the fee schedule for filing are also available online.

The office of the secretary of state administers all statewide elections for both candidates and issues. Candidates for the six constitutional state offices, U.S. Congress, the General Assembly, and circuit judges not covered by the nonpartisan court plan, file for election with the secretary of state. Statewide ballots for primary, general, and certain special elections are also prepared by the secretary of state, and certified copies of those ballots are sent to local election officials. The secretary of state also certifies statewide ballot measures that are proposed by the General Assembly or through the initiative petition process. The full texts of ballot issues are published in newspapers around the state and printed for display at polling places. It is also the responsibility of the office to canvass, certify and publish election results.

The office, including the oversight of signature verification, also handles initiative petitions. Before an initiative petition can be circulated, groups must first have the form of the petition and a summary statement approved by the Secretary of state and attorney general. The state auditor adds a fiscal impact statement. For an initiative changing state law to be placed on the ballot, signatures must be obtained from registered voters equal to five percent of the total votes cast in the last gubernatorial election in six of Missouri's nine congressional districts. For an initiative changing the state constitution to be placed on the ballot, signatures are needed from registered voters equal to eight percent of the votes cast in the last gubernatorial election in six of the state's nine congressional districts. In 2004, 11 initiative petitions were approved for circulation and two were returned with signatures for approval. Both were ultimately certified for the November 2004 ballot. The elections division also oversees the collection of signatures for new political parties and the nomination of independent candidates for offices that file with the secretary of state.

Missouri has nearly 3.7 million registered voters, and in the 2004 November general election, 2.7 million voters went to the polls.

In addition to assisting the 116 local election authorities interpret and administer state election laws, the secretary of state promulgates rules governing elections and electronic voting systems. The secretary of state is required to publish the Missouri Election Laws for use by county clerks and election boards. Additionally, the office produces various election materials including instructions for poll workers, calendars of annual election deadlines, a web site, training videos and a manual for election authorities. The office cooperates with other officials, schools and civic organizations to provide materials to support voter registration, responsibility and education.

The secretary of state is responsible for bringing Missouri into compliance with federal law, specifically the Help America Vote Act of 2002 (HAVA). HAVA requires accessible voting equipment, increased training for election officials, poll workers and voters and an interactive, computerized voter registration database. Revisions to Missouri's current database will improve the ability of local election officials to manage voter registration records and allow for cross checking for duplicate registrations anywhere in the state.

The secretary of state is responsible for ensuring compliance with state securities laws through activities of the Securities Division. This responsibility includes enforcement of the law when violations occur, and the regulation of investment sales through registration of securities, broker-dealers, agents, investment advisers and investment adviser representatives. State securities laws are intended to protect investors from unfair practices and fraudulent investment schemes. The secretary of state appoints the securities commissioner, who administers these laws and oversees the Securities Division.

The enforcement section of the Securities Division receives and investigates complaints from Missouri investors. A toll-free Investor Hotline (800-721-7996) is maintained so investors can report complaints or make inquiries about members of the securities business. Each year the office initiates around 300 investigations, many of which result in cease and desist orders, licensing revocations, civil injunctions and penalties, or criminal prosecutions. The enforcement section typically collects over one million dollars in penalties and restitution each year. The audit unit of the enforcement section performs random examinations of the offices of broker-dealers and investment advisers to ensure compliance with the Missouri securities laws.

The registration section regulates the registration of individuals, firms and securities.

As of June 30, 2005, there were 98,949 agents, 1,742 broker-dealers, 5,232 investment adviser representatives and 1,362 investment advisers registered in Missouri. Prior to granting each registration an application review process is conducted to determine if applicants are sufficiently qualified to participate in the securities business. The registration section also reviews proposed securities offerings to ensure that Missouri approved offerings are "fair, just and equitable." The staff receives filings of federal covered securities and reviews requests for exemption from the registration provisions, provides interpretative opinions of the securities laws and assists Missouri issuers seeking to raise funds with securities law compliance. In the 2005 fiscal year, the registration section staff received filings for 1,697 securities offerings and collected over $11 million in revenues for the state of Missouri during the 2005 fiscal year, which ended June 30, 2005.

The Securities Division also has an investor education section that creates and promotes investor education initiatives designed to educate and assist both current and future investors. The office is involved in educational programs with elementary, middle and high school students, and for seniors within the state. Free educational material is available to help investors protect themselves and members of their families.

Missouri State Library

In 1907, the General Assembly created the Missouri State Library Commission, which promoted the development of libraries across the state. Under Missouri's new constitution in 1945, the commission went out of existence and the Missouri State Library was put under the Department of Higher Education. Legislation passed in 1991 moved the State Library from the Department of Higher Education to the office of the secretary of state, effective July 1, 1993.

Responsibilities of the Missouri State Library are to: provide library and reference services to Missouri state government; provide library services to the blind and physically disabled; and promote the development and improvement of library services throughout the state.

Library Development

The Library Development section supports libraries through consulting, administration of grant programs, continuing education and statewide programs. The consultant staff works with librarians and library governing boards to improve the quality of library service for all Missouri citizens. Through research, publications and personal contacts, consultants provide assistance on general library issues and needs, promote the organization and development of library services, manage statewide projects and maintain statistics on library services in the state.

The State Library administers several programs to provide funds and services for libraries. State-funded programs include state aid for public libraries, both per capita funds and equalization payments to libraries in poor counties. The State Library also coordinates the funding for the REAL (Remote Electronic Access to Libraries) Program which provides Internet access for public libraries through MOREnet. The federal Library Services and Technology Act provides grant money to fund grants to libraries and statewide projects, including continuing education and training, interlibrary loan support and development of library service for seniors. The State Library also partners with several private sponsors to administer projects and grants to support library services.

Ongoing projects include coordination of the Missouri Summer Reading Program; coordination of the Virtually Missouri web site, a statewide portal for Missouri digital collections; development of library literacy programs in libraries and coordination of literacy efforts with other state agencies and the statewide literacy center; a statewide calendar for library-related continuing education events; collection of public library statistics. A bi-monthly newsletter, Newsline, serves to inform library staff and trustees of Missouri library events. The State Library works intensively with local libraries on development and support of the use of technology to improve library services for Missourians.

As one of 50 state affiliates with the National Center for the Book in the Library of Congress, the Missouri Center for the Book promotes the state's book culture and library heritage.

The State Library also serves as the lead agency for the State Census Data Center program, a cooperative venture with the U.S. Census Bureau.

Reference Services

Telephone: (573) 751-3615 / FAX: (573) 526-1142

The Reference Services section delivers library services to meet the informational and research needs of state government. This objective is achieved through current awareness, library materials collections in multiple formats, monthly publications and online databases provided at the state employee's desktop.

Keeping Up, a daily newspaper clipping summary of news about the activities and operation of state government, is distributed electronically to the legislature and state agencies. Table of contents service allows state employees to receive the table of contents and full text articles from periodicals that assist in the performance of their duties. It is distributed electronically as the current periodicals become available on the statewide periodicals database. Info-to-Go, a subject bibliography of periodical articles, and Missouri State Government Publications, a bibliography of state publications, are published monthly on the secretary of state's web site.

To support the research work done for state government, the State Library maintains a materials collection of 50,000 books, 436 magazine subscriptions, 24 newspaper subscriptions and 451,000 microfilm holdings of government documents, journals and newspapers. The State Library participates in MOBIUS, the statewide union catalog of academic libraries. State employees have access to MOBIUS collection through the State Library. In addition, Reference Services subscribes to a number of online databases geared to the needs of state government. Some of these databases are provided to state employees at their desktop.

The State Library is a congressionally designated library depository for the U.S. government publications. As a selective depository, over 100,000 documents are housed. The library is statutorily responsible for collecting state government publications and providing access to them for the citizens of Missouri. This is now done through a trusted, electronic repository making the full text of the publications available via the Internet.

While the State Library's research services and service-initiatives are directed to the members of the legislature and employees of the agencies of state governmentis, it is open for use by the general public.

Wolfner Library for the Blind and Physically Handicapped serves as the public library for Missourians unable to use standard print because of a visual or physical disability. The library loans a half million books and magazines in Braille, recorded cassette, and large print, from its collection of more than 300,000 volumes. Playback machines are also loaned to users of the recorded materials.

More than 12,000 individuals and 983 institutions, including nursing homes, schools, hospitals and hospices, etc., use the library. In addition to the circulation of books and magazines, Wolfner provides reference and information services, children's programming, interlibrary loan, a newsletter, catalogs and bibliographies, descriptive videos and access to the collection via an online public access catalog (OPAC).

Wolfner services are available to qualified Missourians at no charge. Applications for service are available directly from the library, a local Missouri public library, or on the secretary of state's web site. Wolfner is Missouri's regional library in the national network of libraries serving individuals who are blind and disabled, in cooperation with the National Library Service of the Library of Congress.

The Wolfner Library for the Blind and Physically Handicapped has a rich history of library service, predating the Missouri State Library and the Library of Congress network. Loaning Braille books to a multi-state region in 1924, Wolfner became one of the first 13 regional libraries for the blind designated by the Library of Congress. Named in memory of noted ophthalmologist Henry L. Wolfner and originally administered by the St. Louis Public Library, Wolfner became part of the Missouri State Library in 1977, and physically moved to Jefferson City in 1985.

Records Services Division

Kirkpatrick State Information Center
600 W. Main, PO Box 1747
Jefferson City 65102

The Records Services Division is responsible for managing both current and historical records of the state to ensure those records are accessible to Missouri citizens. It is also responsible for assisting local governments in records preservation and management.

Missouri State Archives

The Missouri State Archives is the official repository for government records of permanent value. Its mission is to foster an appreciation of Missouri history and illuminate contemporary public issues by preserving and making available the state's permanent records to its citizens and their government.

Records in the Archives holdings date from 1770 to the present. They include executive, legislative and judicial records; records of state departments and agencies; Missouri's history under French and Spanish colonial and U.S. territorial rule; military records from the War of 1812 through World War I; the region's role in the nineteenth century fur trade and America's westward expansion; trademarks and business records; and women and African-American history.

Holdings currently total more than 157 million pages of paper; 261,000 photographs; 77,000 reels of microfilm, and 188,000 microfiche. The Missouri State Archives is one of the most used state repositories in the nation and has been formally acknowledged by historical and genealogical organizations for its service to its patrons. While thousands of researchers visit or write to the Archives each year, a dramatic upsurge in use has come from visits to the Missouri State Archives growing web pages—up 36% in Fiscal Year 2005 (www.sos.mo.gov).

Over the last few years the Missouri State Archives has become involved in a number of important initiatives: The African-American History Initiative is designed to stimulate interest in African-American History through educational projects and the promotion of a broad awareness of the holdings of the Missouri State Archives. The Missouri State Archives has also played a leading role in the bicentennial commemoration of the Lewis and Clark Expedition. The nationally recognized St. Louis Circuit Court Records Project, begun as a traditional archival project, is now part of a complex consortium. At the instigation of the Missouri State Archives, an academic advisory board composed of scholars representing nine institutions helps guide its work.

While the St. Louis Circuit Court records project is large, it is just one of many court projects currently being conducted across Missouri. The Archives preserves on microfilm the probate and circuit court records of Missouri's county courts. To date, the Archives has been involved in 410 preservation projects in 113 of 114 counties. There are currently 66 such projects. The Missouri State Archives also partners with the Supreme Court of Missouri Historical Society, which funds two legal internships and a legal fellowship for the Archives.

The Archives is devoted to educating the public about materials in the Archives' holdings. It accordingly provides programs for schools and civic groups, sponsors traveling exhibits based on its collections, offers tours, supports and maintains a regular calendar of monthly educational programs and historical entertainments. The "Friends of the Missouri State Archives," formed in 1989, which promotes and supports the Archives has underwritten many of the costs associated with these outreach activities. The State Archives also hosts student interns and practicum students from Missouri colleges and universities; creates historical exhibits, offers a public speakers series, sponsors regional National History Day activities; and provides tours and talks for school and civic organizations.

Volunteers are an important resource of the Missouri State Archives. In Jefferson City they provide invaluable assistance to the staff, helping with reference services, acting as guides. Across Missouri volunteers help process county and court records, and special collections. More novel is the Archives innovative, "e-volunteer" program in which volunteers can provide indexing and transcription services for the Archives from their home computers. Completed transcriptions are posted online providing greater access to the collection. Access to the Archives is provided through the research room. The reference staff answers written requests. Hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday and 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Thursday. Saturday hours are from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Missouri Historical Records Advisory Board

The Missouri Historical Records Advisory Board was created by statute in 1989 and assigned to the office of the secretary of state. The board is the central advisory body for historical records planning within the state. In addition, the board serves as the state affiliate of the National Historical Publications and Records Commission, the grant-awarding arm of the National Archives and Records Administration, and is responsible for reviewing grant proposals to that program from Missouri applicants, as well as applications to the Local Records Preservation Grant Program.

Missouri State Archives Local Records Program

The Missouri State Archives Local Records Preservation program is an effort to improve long-term local public record management by advising, educating and encouraging the custodians of those records in the use of sound records management and archival practices. Archivists provide their expertise to local government officials on the retention of records. A part time local records and analyst program began in 1986. In 1989 legislation converted this to a full time program. Through the local records program documents of great historical value have been identified and preserved and the State Archives reference collections have been dramatically enhanced. Because of this program, all records are more accessible to the public. They are properly organized and in many instances space in public buildings is freed up for purposes other than storage.

More than 3,500 governmental entities can receive assistance managing records. There are 10 field archivists located around Missouri. Local officials in every county of the state have been assisted.

The Local Records Grant program began in 1991 and is funded through a fee placed on documents filed with county recorders. In Fiscal Year 2004, the secretary of state, with the advice of the Missouri Historical Records Advisory Board, awarded $242,000 in grant funds to 36 projects. For Fiscal Year 2005, $327,000 was awarded to 44 projects. Approximately 60 percent of the funds will be used for microfilming local permanent records to ensure their preservation and to position them for potential digitization. The grants require local matches.

Records conservation staff provides an advisory service to local government offices on all aspects of record care and preservation, as well as advice on disaster recovery.

A Local Records Board reviews and makes decisions on retention schedules for records of local governments.

Records Management Division

Telephone: (573) 751-3319 / FAX: (573) 526-5327

The mission of the Records Management Division is to provide state agencies with the necessary instruments to effectively and efficiently manage information and records, in order to promote the efficiency and continuity of government, document the rights of Missouri citizens, hold state officials accountable for their activities, and preserve Missouri's heritage. To achieve this mission, the division is divided into three sections: Records Management Services, the State Records Center, and Imaging Services.

Sound records management programs consist of a planned and coordinated set of policies, procedures and activities to manage recorded information in all media. Records Management Services assists state government agencies in identifying and effectively managing their official records. Records analysts are assigned to specified agencies. They consult with agency officials to develop retention schedules that list the agency's records and specify the retention period and the ultimate disposition of inactive records. Analysts also advise agencies on cost and technical matters related to microfilm and digital imaging, and low-cost storage of inactive and semi-active records.

The State Records Center provides state agencies with a storage solution for inactive records. Inactive records are those with a reference rate that does not warrant retention in expensive agency office or storage space. Records Center services include pick-up, delivery, reference pulls and re-filing, and destruction of agency records. All records remain in the legal custody of the transferring agency and access to stored documents is restricted to the agency's authorized personnel. The transferring of inactive files to the Records Center allows agencies to free up office space and equipment, saving Missouri taxpayers millions of dollars of costs over the life of the records. State agencies are not charged for these services. As of June 2005, 269,000 cubic feet of records were stored in the State Records Center's three facilities.

Imaging Services provides micro graphics and digital imaging services to state agencies and local governments. Agencies can reduce the volume of, improve access to, and ensure archival preservation for their long-term and significant records by utilizing these services. Micro graphics services include microfilming, processing, quality control, and silver and diazo microfilm duplication. Digital imaging services include image production from microfilm or original documents. The unit provides secure protection for silver original microfilm within a climate-controlled vault.

State Records Commission

Chapter 109.250, RSMo established the State Records Commission. The commission's task is to guide the records management program in the determination of retention periods for all records in the executive branch of state government. Currently, more than 900 state agencies, commissions, bureaus and boards operate under approved record retention schedules. Additionally, the commission reviews, approves and recommends guidelines for the management of electronic records generated by the state of Missouri.

Administrative Services Division

The Administrative Services Division provides fiscal, budget, procurement, human resources and facilities management support and general office services to the office of secretary of state. The Fiscal section ensures efficient and effective internal financial operations including processing vendor payments, purchasing and preparing financial reports for the various divisions of the office. The Human Resources section supports personnel recruitment, compensation, benefits, training and performance evaluation for all divisions. The Administrative Services Division also provides mail delivery, shipping and receiving support as well as central supplies and vehicle support for all personnel.

Information Technology

The Information Technology Services Division (ITSD) acts as a key business facilitator for the secretary of state's office. Through analysis, coordination, development and implementation, and support of information technology solutions, the ITSD assists the secretary of state's office in effectively carrying out its diverse responsibilities and efficiently meeting the information needs of Missouri's citizens.

The Division of Publications handles a variety of printing and graphic arts responsibilities for the office of the secretary of state. The division coordinates the publication of the Official Manual with production, content and distribution administered in accordance with Chapter 11, RSMo. The division compiles information and photographs from every area of state government, edits the material and compiles it in finished form for this premier publication of the State of Missouri. The Official Manual is produced biennially in odd-numbered years.

Since 1976, the Administrative Rules Division has published rulemakings proposed by state agencies that implement legislation in the Missouri Register. After the agencies provide public notice, receive comments and revise the proposed rulemaking based on these comments, the division publishes the final version of the rulemaking in the Missouri Register and subsequently in the Missouri Code of State Regulations. The Missouri Register is published twice a month and the Missouri Code of State Regulations is published once a month. The 14-volume Missouri Code contains approximately 10,000 pages of final agency rules and has a subject index and a cross-index to the Missouri Revised Statutes. These publications ensure that Missourians are aware of any changes that may affect their businesses and daily life.

The Administrative Rules Division also publishes emergency rules in the Missouri Register. An agency may file an emergency rule if the agency finds an immediate danger to the public health, safety or welfare requiring emergency action or if the emergency rule is necessary to preserve a compelling governmental interest that requires an early effective date. An emergency rule is only in effect for a limited period of time and normally has a corresponding proposed rulemaking that allows for public notice and comment. Once an emergency rule is approved and processed, it may be viewed on the secretary of state's web site Emergency Rules section until it is published in the Missouri Register, at which time it may be viewed online in the Missouri Register.

The Missouri Register and Code of State Regulations are available on the secretary of state's web site. Currently, email notification of rule filings by rule number or subject matter is available. Future plans call for enhanced methods to automate the rulemaking process.

The Administrative Rules Division is charged by the Revised Statutes of Missouri to set uniform standards, procedures and guidelines for the preparation and publishing of rules in the Missouri Register and the Code of State Regulations. The division provides a user's guide for the proper preparation and filing of agency rules entitled Rulemaking 1-2-3, Missouri Style.

Claire McCaskill

State Auditor

Elected November 5, 2002
Term expires January 2007

CLAIRE McCASKILL (Democrat), began her second term as Missouri's 34th state auditor in 2003, by continuing to commission groundbreaking financial and performance audits of all state-funded institutions, state agencies and most counties. Many of the notable audits undertaken by the state auditor's office reviewed the effectiveness of child care programs, education funding, senior health initiatives, and efforts to meet state transportation needs. Since 1999, the state auditor and her staff have released hundreds of useful audit reports to the public, lawmakers and government officials, which can be accessed at www.auditor.mo.gov.

A state audit of Missouri's foster care system pointed out the need for better management in order to ensure children are safe. McCaskill's audit of child support collections found that at one time the state had left over $1 billion uncollected. Her look into childcare facilities found that state child care bureau officials do not know how many unlicensed providers operate in Missouri.

In addition, McCaskill authorized audits of domestic violence shelters and the state's child abuse hotline. The domestic violence report cited more than 5,000 victims turned away from shelters throughout Missouri, even though more monies were available to help. Conversely, the child abuse audit found it sometimes difficult for the state to remove children from dangerous settings and financial support lacking.

With budget cuts threatening education operations, the state auditor's office examined the issuance of student loans as well as university and college tuition rates throughout Missouri. Meanwhile, reviews of elementary and secondary education found unequal per pupil funding among Missouri school districts and problems across the state recruiting and retaining teachers.

Noticing most public bonds were privately placed, McCaskill commissioned an audit of general obligation bonds registered with her office. The audit concluded public school districts, and other taxing authorities, paid more than $83 million in excess interest costs over a three-year period by not conducting open competitive bond sales.

As requested by McCaskill, the state auditor's office conducted an audit of the Division of Aging which found more than a thousand employees caring for Missouri nursing home residents who were forbidden to work with children and the mentally handicapped. State lawmakers passed legislation prohibiting the dangerous double standard, and McCaskill was called to testify on her audit's findings before the United States Senate Special Committee on Aging.

McCaskill was the first auditor to aggressively enforce provisions of the Hancock Amendment that afford protection to Missourians from being overcharged on their property taxes.

The Missouri Press Association's Sunshine Award was presented to Auditor McCaskill for her establishment of audits, at all levels of government, questioning information access costs and compliance to Missouri's Sunshine Law. McCaskill was also awarded the State Employment Advocate Award for her commitment to hiring and retaining minorities.

McCaskill attended the University of Missouri– Columbia graduating in 1975 with a B.S. in political science. She is also a graduate of the University of Missouri Law School.

In 1982, she was elected to the Missouri House of Representatives where she later chaired the House Civil and Criminal Justice Committee, along with serving on the Budget Committee and Judiciary Committee. McCaskill was also the first woman to give birth as a state lawmaker.

While serving as a county lawmaker in 1992, McCaskill was the first woman to be elected Jackson County Prosecutor, the largest prosecutor's office in the state. She was re-elected in 1996.

As a result of her work McCaskill has held a variety of national and state leadership positions including founding member and chair of the National Association of Drug Court Professionals, vice president of the National District Attorney's Association, president of Missouri's Association of Prosecuting Attorneys, and member of the White House Commission for Drug Free Communities.

In April 2002, McCaskill married St. Louis businessman Joseph Shepard. Together, they have seven children.

Deputy State Auditor

PEG GUSTAFSON
General Counsel

The state auditor's office is Missouri's independent watchdog agency, charged with auditing all state agencies, boards and commissions; the state court system; and the 89 counties in Missouri that do not have a county auditor. The state auditor may also be called on to audit local units of government by citizen petition.

The time auditors spend working for the office counts toward the mandatory experience required for licensure by the Missouri State Board of Accountancy as a certified public accountant.

Audits are performed to determine if tax dollars are being spent efficiently, economically and legally and to determine how well governmental units and agencies protect against fraud and abuse of the public funds under their control. Approximately 200 state agencies and programs, the state's 45 judicial circuits (including approximately 400 municipal divisions) and 89 counties must be regularly audited by the state auditor. Approximately 20 audits of local government entities, petitioned by local voters, are performed each year.

In addition to fulfilling the primary auditing duties of the office, the state auditor designs accounting systems for state and local governments, approves depositaries selected by the state treasurer and serves as a member of the Board of Fund Commissioners and the State Records Commission. The state auditor also examines and registers general obligation bonds issued by political subdivisions of the state to ensure that each one complies with state law and reviews all property tax rates set by local political subdivisions.

The powers of the state auditor are constitutional, derived from Article IV, Section 13 of the Missouri Constitution. Legal duties are detailed in Chapter 29 of the Revised Statutes of Missouri.

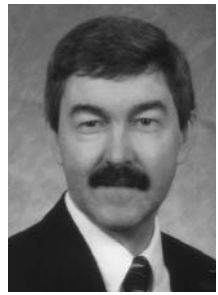
Organization

The deputy state auditor works with the state auditor in developing office policies, supervising special projects and consulting with directors concerning the day-to-day operations of the office. The deputy works with areas such as personnel recruiting, budget preparation and staff assignment. The assistant to the deputy state auditor reviews all audit reports and consults with the audit directors on all fraud-related audits. Three directors aid the state auditor and supervise the work of audit managers in charge of auditing various aspects of government operations or government agencies and units. The managers review audit reports before the audits are delivered to the state auditor for final review and approval.

In addition to coordinating audits, audit managers also track changes in policies and laws affecting the agencies or areas of government for which they are responsible, so the state auditor's office can revise audit plans or priorities as needed to review compliance.

Individual audits are supervised by an auditor-in-charge, who normally is a senior auditor. Audit fieldwork is performed by senior auditors, staff auditors and audit assistants.

Approximately 150 persons are employed by the state auditor's office. About 50 percent of the audit staff are CPAs. That figure represents a marked increase from earlier years; in 1974 only about 10 percent of the staff were CPAs.



The office hires only degreed individuals as auditors, primarily through recruiting on the campuses of Missouri colleges and universities. Most recruits are native Missourians. Audit staff members are hired on the basis of professional and academic qualifications.

Types of Audits

The state auditor's office performs financial and compliance audits, which also include reviews of management practices. Financial records of auditees are examined to determine how the funds under the auditee's control were actually recorded and spent. The systems and controls the auditee uses to protect funds and property against fraud, waste and abuse are checked. The auditee's compliance with constitutional provisions, laws, legislative appropriation levels and administrative rules is also reviewed. Management practices are reviewed for efficiency and accountability.

Audits are conducted in accordance with generally accepted government auditing standards. Completed financial audits contain a formal opinion from the state auditor regarding the fair presentation of financial statements. A management advisory report listing any management weaknesses disclosed during the audit is also included. Findings and recommendations in the management advisory report are reviewed with the auditee at an exit conference prior to the release of the audit so the responses from the auditee to the recommendations may be printed in the final report.

The state auditor performs special reviews and audits of selected programs or agencies when needed.

The state auditor works closely with other audit agencies and offices at the local, state and national level. This is done to avoid duplication of effort in the audits of programs that may receive funding from several sources.

Citizen Awareness

Information from citizens, legislators and government employees aid the state auditor when performing special reviews and audits.

Citizens are urged to contact the state auditor if they have information they feel would be useful to auditors performing the audits. All sources of information are kept confidential. Citizens can contact the state auditor's office by calling the toll-free Government Waste Hotline at (800) 347-8597, or through our web site at www.auditor.mo.gov.

Public Information

All audit reports produced by the state auditor's office are public documents after they have been signed by the state auditor. Reports dealing with state agencies are provided to the press corps covering the state Capitol and to any regional or local newspaper, radio or television station requesting a copy. Audits dealing with county or local government are delivered to the media in that area. Reports are also delivered to the Missouri State Library and are available through the state's library system. Citizens may request copies of any audit report by writing to PO Box 869, Jefferson City 65102, or calling (573) 751-4213.

"Chariot Hitchhiker"
(Missouri State Archives, Putman Collection)

Sarah Steelman

State Treasurer

Elected November 2, 2004
Term expires January 2009

SARAH STEELMAN is the first Republican woman in Missouri history to be elected to the office of state treasurer. She was administered the oath of office by her father, John Hearne, to become Missouri's 44th state treasurer on January 10, 2005.

Treasurer Steelman is responsible for the management of more than $19 billion in Missouri's annual revenue. She oversees the investment of more than $3 billion in long- and short-term investments in the state's portfolio, and is in charge of the state's efforts to return more than $300 million in cash and valuables to citizens through the unclaimed property program.

An economist, Steelman reshaped the state's financial priorities by correcting Missouri's overall investment policy from simple comparative yield to a cumulative yield strategy to increase the benefits Missouri's investments bring to all citizens. She eliminated foreign-owned investment companies from the state's preferred list of financial broker-dealers. She advocated and won passage of a comprehensive overhaul of state banking laws to bring Missouri tax dollars back to the state. She won legislative approval for changes to allow Missouri deposits to be directly invested in Missouri communities to strengthen local and state economies, create jobs and bolster Missouri farms and agricultural business.

Steelman is the first treasurer in Missouri history to win approval for a plan to make the state's treasury self-funded.

Treasurer Steelman serves as chair of the state's Higher Education Savings Board, which administers the Missouri Saving for Tuition (MO$T) program. This program helps citizens save for the college education of their children through a tax-advantaged investment program. She serves as a member on: the Missouri Housing Development Commission; the governing board of the Missouri State Employees' Retirement System; and the Board of Fund Commissioners.

In 1998 and 2002, Steelman was elected to serve as Senator for the 16th Senatorial District. While in the Senate, Steelman served as chair of the Committee on Commerce and the Environment; Committee on Aging, Families, Mental and Public Health; Committee on Education; and Committee on Governmental Accountability and Fiscal Oversight. She also served on the Missouri Consolidated Health Plan Board of Trustees; the Joint Task Force on Terrorism, Bio-Terrorism and Homeland Security; and the Joint Committee on Rules.

As a state lawmaker, Steelman passed a number of key measures, including major economic development bills, revisions to the sunshine law making it easier for citizens to get access to records and open meetings, a bill requiring hospitals to implement measures to reduce and prevent staph infections, and a charitable check-off that allows taxpayers to contribute to medical research to find cures for serious illnesses. She also introduced and placed on the ballot Constitutional Amendment No. 2, the Sanctity of Marriage Act, which was adopted by voters in August 2004.

Steelman's awards include: Missouri Watch-Defender of Patient Safety; MPS Award of Excellence for making CCW a reality; the James Kirkpatrick Award; NAMI Legislative Hero; Associated Industries Voice of Missouri Business; Disabled Citizens Alliance; the Pathways Partnership; The Eagles Forum God/Family/Country Award; Sheriff's Association Senator of the Year; Missouri Osteopathic Distinguished Health Legislative; and Outstanding Legislator Award by the Speech, Language and Hearing Association.

Previously, Steelman served as deputy director of the Missouri Department of Natural Resources–Division of Geology and Land Survey. She also worked as an economist for the Department of Revenue and as an adjunct professor in economics at Lincoln University. She served as an investment broker and as the director of the Big Brothers and Big Sisters program in Rolla, a not-for-profit organization.

Steelman holds a Bachelor of Arts degree in History and a Master of Arts degree in economics from the University of Missouri–Columbia.

She and her husband, David, make their home in Rolla with their three sons, Sam, Joe and Michael. She has a stepdaughter, Amanda.

Assistant State Treasurer

SCOTT HARPER
Assistant Deputy State Treasurer

JANE K. DUDECK
Chief of Staff

Duties

The state treasurer is Missouri state government's chief financial officer. The treasurer's office manages Missouri's $19 billion in annual state revenues; directs the state's banking services; and manages Missouri's $3.1 billion investment portfolio. The office safeguards more than $300 million in unclaimed assets that have been turned over to the state by banks, businesses, insurance companies and government agencies, and tries to locate the rightful owners. The state treasurer also serves on the management boards of a number of public entities.

The state treasurer is one of six statewide elected officials, and serves a term of four years. A person may only serve as state treasurer for two terms.

Banking Services

The state treasurer serves as Missouri government's banking director. While not a bank itself, the treasurer's office must authorize payments and balance accounts. To protect taxpayers' money, the state treasurer maintains a separate accounting system to provide a check and balance on the state accounting system, and distributes investment earnings to the proper funds.

The office contracts with Missouri banks to process the state's receipts and disbursements; handle money and security transfers; report on the state's accounts, balances and payment activities; and provide related banking services such as data processing. Bidding for state banking services contracts is open to all Missouri banks.

Investments

The state treasurer determines the amount of state funds not needed for current operating expenses and invests those funds in interest-bearing time deposits in Missouri banks, U.S. treasury and federal agency securities, repurchase agreements, banker's acceptances and top-rated commercial paper. Safety is the treasurer's number one priority in the investment of the public's funds. Staff investment specialists monitor major investment markets and work to maximize the state's return on investments without compromising safety. The office has an average of $3.1 billion invested daily, earning the state millions of dollars in interest income each year.

BIG Missouri Linked Deposit Program

A portion of the state's investable funds can be used by the treasurer to help Missouri industries create jobs, to help small businesses grow, to help farmers prosper, and to bring affordable housing within reach of more Missouri families.

Under the BIG MISSOURI program, the treasurer's office is authorized to place up to $350 million in state funds in Missouri financial institutions and accept a below-market rate of return. The institutions pass on the savings in the form of low-interest loans for agriculture, job creation, small business, drought relief, and affordable multi-family housing.

Unclaimed Property

The treasurer's office is responsible for Missouri's largest "lost and found," the state's Unclaimed Property program. State law requires financial institutions, insurance companies, public agencies and other business entities to turn over assets that belong to a customer, client, employee or other rightful owner if there have been no documented transactions or contact with the owner for five or more years. The treasurer's office operates an aggressive program to return unclaimed assets to the original owners or their legal heirs.

Most unclaimed property consists of cash from bank accounts, stocks, bonds, and contents of safe deposit boxes that have been abandoned. It also can include uncollected insurance policy proceeds, government refunds, utility deposits and wages from past jobs. The Unclaimed Property section does not handle real property such as land, houses, cars and boats.

The office currently is holding more than $220 million in unclaimed property and funds in more than 1.5 million owner accounts. All unclaimed property is held in trust by the state forever and can be claimed at any time. To recover unclaimed property, claimants must be either the original owner of the property or a legal heir. All services of the Unclaimed Property program are free of charge.

People can check to see if the treasurer's office is holding unclaimed property that may belong to them using its searchable database at www.showmemoney.com.

Dollar$ & $ense

Dollar$ & $ense, created in 1995, is a statewide bank-at-school program available to Missouri elementary schools to teach children to make informed decisions as savers, spenders, borrowers and money managers. It is a partnership program of the state treasurer's office, local Missouri financial institutions, the Missouri Council on Economic Education, the Missouri Bankers Association and the Consumer Credit Counseling Service of the Mississippi River Valley.

Participating schools are provided with program curricula and partnered with a local bank. The bankers arrange in-school banking hours to accept deposits into student accounts. They work with teachers to provide opportunities for students to learn and practice money management skills.

Missouri Saving for Tuition (MO$T)

The state treasurer chairs the Missouri Saving for Tuition, or MO$T, board. Developed by the state treasurer's office in 1999, the MO$T program encourages Missouri families to save for higher education while taking advantage of significant federal and state tax benefits. Accounts can be opened with as little as $25 or $15 through payroll deduction. Contributions of up to $8,000 annually can be deducted from Missouri income taxes and all earnings are free of state and federal income taxes. Funds from MO$T accounts can be used to pay for all eligible educational expenses at virtually any two- or four-year college or university, vocational, technical or professional school anywhere in the country.

For more information about MO$T, call toll free: 1-888-414-MOST, or visit the web site at www.missourimost.org.

Boards and Commissions

The state treasurer serves on the governing boards of three large public entities: the Missouri Housing Development Commission, which assists in the creation of affordable housing for low- and moderate-income Missourians; Missouri State Employees' Retirement System, which manages retirement funds for more than 56,000 state employees and retirees; and Board of Fund Commissioners, which issues, redeems and cancels state general obligation bonds and other debt. The state treasurer also serves on the boards of the Missouri Investment Trust and the Missouri Historical Society.

Jeremiah W. Nixon

Attorney General

Elected November 2, 2004
Term expires January 2009

JAY NIXON (Democrat) is serving his fourth term as Attorney General of Missouri. Nixon was first elected Attorney General on November 3, 1992, on a platform of fighting crime, cleaning up government corruption, and protecting consumers and the environment. Nixon is Missouri's 40th attorney general.

As attorney general, Nixon serves as the state's chief legal officer, working with law enforcement daily to fight crime and prosecute criminals. He has been a leader nationally in criminal law and victims' rights issues and successfully worked for the reform of Missouri juvenile laws to protect society and to instill more accountability in the juvenile justice system.

One of the most popular and successful programs instituted by Nixon has been the state's No Call program. More than 3.5 million Missourians are a part of the No Call list, which reduces unwanted telemarketing calls. Nixon also has recovered more than $1.2 million from telemarketers who violated the No Call law. The Missouri No Call program has been held up as a model for other states starting their own programs.

Nixon's landmark victory in the United States Supreme Court in Nixon v. Shrink reinstated Missouri's campaign contribution limits and cleared the way nationally for campaign finance reform. In two other cases of significance, Nixon's work in the Blue Cross and Blue Shield and the Health Midwest cases have resulted in the formation of the state's two largest health-care foundations, which will use more than $1.5 billion to help provide health-care services to underserved populations of the state. Litigation by Nixon against tobacco companies for illegally marketing cigarettes to young people resulted in the largest settlement in the history of the state.

Nixon has been a national leader in fighting crime on the Internet, obtaining convictions and restitution from those who have defrauded Missourians through Internet scams and establishing through court rulings that Missouri laws can be enforced on the Internet.

As attorney general, Nixon obtained almost $25 million for Missourians in 2003-2004 from companies and individuals accused of fraudulent activities, including $5.5 million returned to consumers by the Consumer Protection Division through out-of-court mediation. Nixon's actions to protect the elderly have put telemarketers in prison and fraudulent sweepstakes companies out of business.

As attorney general, Nixon created the Agriculture and Environment Division to enforce Missouri's environmental laws and protect agricultural productivity. Successful litigation by the division has resulted in the cleanup of polluted sites and millions of dollars awarded to the state. Nixon also has led the fight to protect the state's interests in the management of the Missouri River as well as to preserve some of the state's most valuable natural resources, such as Church Mountain and the waterways of the White River basin.

Prior to becoming attorney general, Nixon served as a state senator for six years where he was recognized by the Conservation Federation of Missouri for his environmental work.

Attorney General Nixon is a native of De Soto. He earned his political science and law degrees from the University of Missouri–Columbia in 1978 and 1981, respectively. He was in private practice when he was elected to the Senate in 1986. He is married to Georganne Wheeler Nixon. They have two children, Jeremiah and Will.

The attorney general is the attorney for the state, representing the legal interests of Missouri and its state agencies.

As the state's chief legal officer, the attorney general must prosecute or defend all appeals to which the state is a party, including every felony criminal case appealed to the Missouri Supreme Court and courts of appeal. The attorney general also is required to institute, in the name and on behalf of the state, all civil suits and other proceedings that are necessary to protect the state's rights, interests or claims. The attorney general may appear, interplead, answer or defend any proceedings that involve the state's interests, or appear on behalf of the state in declaratory judgment proceedings when the constitutionality of a statute is challenged.

The attorney general also renders official opinions to the executive and legislative branch and the county prosecuting attorneys on questions of law relating to their duties. The attorney general may institute quo warranto proceedings against anyone unlawfully holding office or move to oust any public official for malfeasance in office.

The attorney general's office was created in 1806 when Missouri was part of the Louisiana Territory. Missouri's first Constitution in 1820 provided for an appointed attorney general, but since the 1865 Constitution, the attorney general has been elected.

By law, the attorney general is a member of the Board of Fund Commissioners, the Board of Public Buildings, the Governor's Committee on Interstate Cooperation, the Missouri Highway Reciprocity Commission and the Missouri Housing Development Commission.

To fulfill these and other responsibilities, the attorney general's office is organized into nine divisions.

Agriculture and Environment Division

The Agriculture and Environment Division aggressively protects Missouri's natural resources and agricultural productivity. Attorneys take legal action to stop pollution of the state's air, water and soil and penalize polluters through fines, penalties and, in the most serious cases, incarceration. The division also works to protect and enhance agriculture and the quality of life for rural Missourians by enforcing the law and advocating responsible public policy.

The attorney general has taken action in recent years to protect the state's interests in management of the Missouri River and to protect some of the state's most valuable resources, such as the waterways of the White River basin and Church Mountain.

Division attorneys represent the Department of Natural Resources and its constituent boards and commissions. The division is responsible for hundreds of active enforcement cases, including administrative appeals before civil commissions. Enforcement litigation is filed primarily in state courts to seek preliminary and permanent injunctions to assure compliance with Missouri's environmental laws. The division also obtains civil penalties and recovers costs and damages for the state. Division attorneys cooperate with the U.S. attorney's office in the Environmental

Consumer Protection Division

The attorney general has the responsibility of protecting the public's interests in an open and honest marketplace. The Consumer Protection Division enforces Missouri's Consumer Protection Act and antitrust laws, and has the responsibility of representing the commissioner of securities of the secretary of state's office.

Missouri's consumer protection statutes prohibit deception, fraud, unfair practices and misrepresentation or concealment of material facts in the sale or advertisement of goods or services. These laws authorize the attorney general to take action against Internet fraud, stop the promotion of pyramid sales schemes, prevent the altering of vehicle odometers and ensure that consumers' rights are protected under laws dealing with home solicitations. The division also has an active consumer education program.

Consumers who wish to file complaints or obtain information may call the attorney general's Consumer Hotline at (800) 392-8222 or go online to www.ago.mo.gov. The division receives more than 85,000 consumer complaints and inquiries each year. Under the Missouri Antitrust Law, the attorney general has the authority to represent the state or any of its political subdivisions, public agencies, school districts or municipalities in actions to prohibit monopolies and trade restraints. The attorney general also may act under federal antitrust statutes to bring civil actions in the name of the state and on behalf of Missouri residents to recover damages for injuries caused by certain antitrust violations.

The attorney general is the state's chief prosecutor for securities fraud, and may initiate legal actions for civil injunctive relief, penalties and restitution under the Missouri Merchandising Practices Law.

Chief Counsel
Criminal Division

The No Call program to reduce telemarketing calls also is under the Consumer Protection Division. Missourians may register for No Call by calling 1-866 NO CALL 1 or by going online to www.ago.mo.gov.

Criminal Division

The attorney general represents the state in every felony case appealed to the Supreme Court of Missouri and Missouri Court of Appeals and also defends the state in all habeas corpus actions filed by prison inmates in state and federal courts. Each year, attorneys in the Criminal Division brief and argue more than 700 cases in the Missouri Court of Appeals and the Supreme Court of Missouri and litigate some 500 federal habeas corpus actions in the federal district courts, the Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals, and the U.S. Supreme Court. Division attorneys also assist with extraditions to and from Missouri of those charged in criminal cases.

Financial Services Division

The Financial Services Division protects Missourians by recouping money owed to the state or state agencies, including money owed by inmates to reimburse the state for the cost of their care. Division attorneys also take legal action to establish and maintain child support obligations.

Governmental Affairs Division

The Governmental Affairs Division protects the safety and well-being of Missourians by ensuring that regulated professionals adhere to state laws and disciplinary rules, by enforcing state ethics and campaign finance laws, and by removing caregivers who abuse or neglect vulnerable citizens. They also help mentally ill and physically challenged Missourians obtain guardians to help get care, and seek redress for claims of discrimination based on race, color, religion, national origin, ancestry, gender, disability, age and familial status.

Division attorneys provide legal advice to the Missouri Ethics Commission, the Health Facilities Review Committee and more than 30 professional licensing boards including the Board of Registration for the Healing Arts, which regulates the practice of medicine. Attorneys in the division also address questions about Missouri's open meetings and records law, commonly known as the Sunshine Law.

Governmental Entities Division

The division represents or provides legal advice to state officers, including the governor, secretary of state, treasurer and auditor, as well as several state departments and agencies, such as Agriculture, Revenue and Social Services. Division attorneys also defend constitutional challenges to state laws and ballot issues.

Attorneys in this division protect Missourians by recouping money owed to the state, state officers or state agencies and by enforcing compliance with state laws by trusts, foundations and nonprofit corporations.

Labor Division

The Labor Division provides general counsel and litigation services for the Missouri Department of Labor and Industrial Relations and its officers and agencies. The division also represents the state in prevailing wage disputes, crime victims' claims and workers' compensation cases of state employees, including claims involving the Second Injury Fund. Labor Division attorneys represent individuals before the Missouri Human Rights Commission when they have employment discrimination claims.

ANDREA SPILLARS
Chief Counsel
Public Safety Division

Litigation Division

Litigation Division attorneys handle major and complex litigation for Missouri, providing legal defense to state agencies and their employees. Cases in the division include damage claims, contract actions, classaction lawsuits, employment issues, constitutional challenges and other types of civil litigation. The division also defends the state in lawsuits brought by inmates of Missouri's correctional facilities.

Public Safety Division

The Public Safety Division is involved in a wide range of criminal prosecutions at the trial level. The division's special prosecution unit prosecutes or assists in the prosecution of cases throughout Missouri, many of them homicide cases. The meth prosecution unit specializes in handling criminal cases involving the manufacture, sale or possession of methamphetamine.

The workers' compensation fraud unit prosecutes fraud or misconduct involving workers' compensation, and the Medicaid fraud control unit prosecutes cases involving fraud of the state Medicaid program by health professionals, or abuse or neglect of Medicaid recipients by caregivers.

The division's high technology and computer crime unit assists local law enforcement with investigations and prosecutions of computer and Internet crime cases.

The sexually violent predator unit seeks the civil commitment of sexual predators who suffer from a mental abnormality making them more likely than not to commit additional predatory acts of sexual violence.

Attorneys in the division also serve as legal counsel for the Department of Public Safety, Highway Patrol, Water Patrol and other state law enforcement agencies, and represent those agencies in all civil litigation in which they are a party.

The president and the vice president of the United States are elected every four years by a majority of votes cast in the electoral college. These votes are cast by delegates from each state who vote in accordance, traditionally, with the majority of the state's voters. States have as many electoral college votes as they have congressional delegates. Missouri has 11 electoral college votes—one for each of the nine U.S. Congress districts and two for the state's two seats in the U.S. Senate.

The president is the chief executive of the United States, with powers to command the armed forces, control foreign policy, grant reprieves and pardons, make certain appointments, execute all laws passed by Congress and present the administration's budget. The president earns $400,000 annually, with an allowance for expenses.

The vice president is selected by members of each national political committee and runs on the same ticket for the same term as the president. The vice president assumes the presidency if the president dies or resigns the office, is incapacitated to the extent that he or she cannot exercise presidential duties for an extended period, or is impeached. The vice president presides over the functions of the U.S. Senate and acts as emissary of the president. The vice president earns $208,100 annually, plus an allowance for expenses.

Although not mentioned in the Constitution, the president's cabinet is the advisory arm of the office. It is made up of 15 cabinet members (or secretaries) who have the responsibility to operate each department. Secretaries are appointed by the president and serve at his pleasure. Cabinet secretaries earn $180,100 annually.

Legislative Branch

The U.S. Constitution provides for two legislative houses, known as the Congress. The Senate is composed of 100 members; two senators are elected from each state. The House of Representatives is composed of 435 members; the number of representatives are determined based on the population of each state. Missouri is allotted nine U.S. Representative seats.

Senators must be at least 30 years of age and be residents of the United States for at least nine years. They also must reside in the state they are elected to represent. Senators serve terms of six years, with one-third of the Senate membership elected every two years. Senators earn $162,100 annually, plus expenses.

Representatives must be at least 25 years of age and must have been residents of the United States for at least seven years. They also must reside in the state they represent. Representatives serve two-year terms and earn $162,100 annually, plus expenses.

Congress is in session for two years, beginning on January 3 of each year unless another date is specified. The presiding officer of the Senate is the vice president of the United States. The Senate also elects a president pro tem of the Senate to serve in the absence of the vice president. The president pro tem also represents the party in power and earns $180,100. The presiding officer of the House is called the speaker. The speaker traditionally represents the party in majority and earns $208,100.

Judicial Branch

The U.S. Supreme Court heads the nation's judicial branch of government. The Supreme Court is composed of nine justices, appointed for life. Supreme Court judges may only be removed by impeachment and trial by Congress. Justices receive $199,200 annually while the chief justice, who leads the court, earns $208,100.

The Supreme Court concerns itself with national issues or matters concerning the constitutionality of certain laws or findings. Decisions of the court are binding and overrule any other court decision.

Other Federal Courts

Immediately below the Supreme Court are the U.S. Courts of Appeals and the U.S. District Courts. The Courts of Appeals operate in 11 regions and the District of Columbia. Missouri is served by the Eighth Circuit. Appeals Court judges earn $171,800 annually.

There are 94 U.S. District Court districts with federal jurisdiction. Two of these are located in Missouri: the Eastern Missouri District and the Western Missouri District. Eastern District courts are located in St. Louis, Hannibal and Cape Girardeau while Western District courts are in Kansas City, St. Joseph, Springfield, Jefferson City and Joplin. Federal charges stemming from both civil and criminal suits generally begin in U.S. District Court. Judges in these courts earn $162,100 annually.

*Justice Sandra Day O'Connor announced her retirement on July 1, 2005, and indicated that she will serve until a replacement is confirmed. Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist died September 3, 2005. At the time of publication, President Bush nominated John G. Roberts, Jr., an appellate judge for the District of Columbia, to succeed Rehnquist as chief justice and the Senate was considering his confirmation. President Bush had originally nominated Roberts to replace Justice O'Connor, but upon the death of Rehnquist, changed his nomination. A replacement for Justice O'Connor had not been made public.

George W. Bush

United States President

GEORGE W. BUSH (Republican) is the 43rd President of the United States. He was sworn into office on January 20, 2001, re-elected on November 2, 2004, and sworn in for a second term on January 20, 2005. Prior to his Presidency, President Bush served for 6 years as the 46th Governor of the State of Texas, where he earned a reputation for bipartisanship and as a compassionate conservative who shaped public policy based on the principles of limited government, personal responsibility, strong families, and local control.

President Bush was born on July 6, 1946, in New Haven, Connecticut, and grew up in Midland and Houston, Texas. He received a bachelor's degree in history from Yale University in 1968, and then served as an F-102 fighter pilot in the Texas Air National Guard. President Bush received a Master of Business Administration from Harvard Business School in 1975. Following graduation, he moved back to Midland and began a career in the energy business. After working on his father's successful 1988 Presidential campaign, President Bush assembled the group of partners who purchased the Texas Rangers baseball franchise in 1989. On November 8, 1994, President Bush was elected Governor of Texas. He became the first Governor in Texas history to be elected to consecutive 4-year terms when he was re-elected on November 3, 1998.

Since becoming President of the United States in 2001, President Bush has worked with Congress to create an ownership society and build a future of security, prosperity and opportunity for all Americans. He signed into law tax relief that helps workers keep more of their hard-earned money, as well as the most comprehensive education reforms in a generation, the No Child Left Behind Act of 2001. This legislation is ushering in a new era of accountability, flexibility, local control, and more choices for parents, affirming our nation's fundamental belief in the promise of every child. President Bush has also worked to improve healthcare and modernize Medicare, providing the first-ever prescription drug benefit for seniors; increase homeownership, especially among minorities; conserve our environment; and increase military strength, pay and benefits. Because President Bush believes the strength of America lies in the hearts and souls of our citizens, he has supported programs that encourage individuals to help their neighbors in need.

On the morning of September 11, 2001, terrorists attacked our Nation. Since then, President Bush has taken unprecedented steps to protect our homeland and create a world free from terror. He is grateful for the service and sacrifice of our brave men and women in uniform and their families. The President is confident that by helping build free and prosperous societies, our Nation and our friends and allies will succeed in making America more secure and the world more peaceful.

President Bush is married to Laura Welch Bush, a former teacher and librarian, and they have twin daughters, Barbara and Jenna. The Bush family also includes two dogs, Barney and Miss Beazley, and a cat, Willie.

Richard B. Cheney

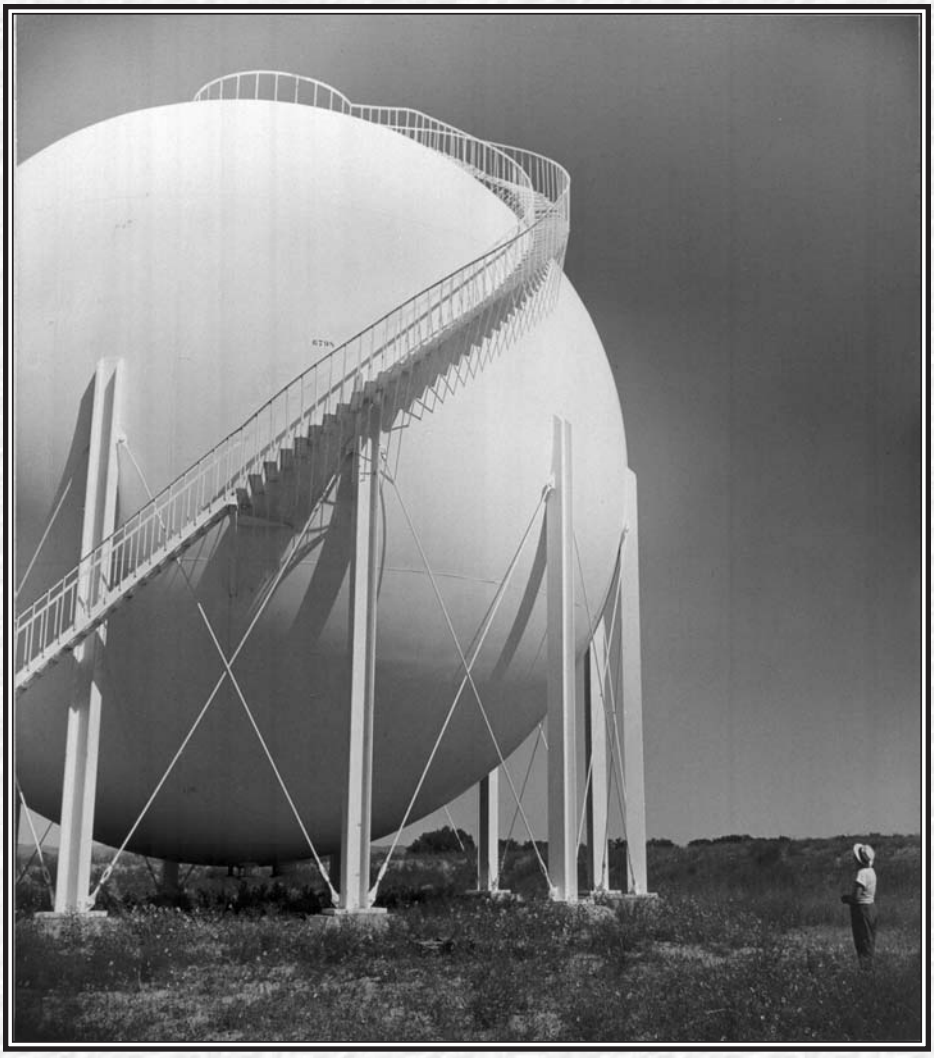
United States Vice President

RICHARD B. CHENEY (Republican) has had a distinguished career as a businessman and public servant, serving four Presidents and as an elected official. Throughout his service, Mr. Cheney served with duty, honor, and unwavering leadership, gaining him the respect of the American people during trying military times.

Mr. Cheney was born in Lincoln, Nebraska, on January 30, 1941, and grew up in Casper, Wyoming. He earned his bachelor's and master's of arts degrees from the University of Wyoming. His career in public service began in 1969 when he joined the Nixon Administration, serving in a number of positions at the Cost of Living Council, at the Office of Economic Opportunity, and within the White House.

When Gerald Ford assumed the Presidency in August 1974, Mr. Cheney served on the transition team and later as Deputy Assistant to the President. In November 1975, he was named Assistant to the President and White House Chief of Staff, a position he held throughout the remainder of the Ford Administration.

After he returned to his home state of Wyoming in 1977, Mr. Cheney was elected to serve as the state's sole Congressman in the U.S. House of Representatives. He was re-elected five times and elected by his colleagues to serve as Chairman of the Republican Policy Committee from 1981 to 1987. He was elected Chairman of the House Republican Conference in 1987 and elected House Minority Whip in 1988. During his tenure in the House, Mr. Cheney earned a reputation as a man of knowledge, character, and accessibility.



Mr. Cheney also served a crucial role when America needed him most. As Secretary of Defense from March 1989 to January 1993, Mr. Cheney directed two of the largest military campaigns in recent history - Operation Just Cause in Panama and Operation Desert Storm in the Middle East. He was responsible for shaping the future of the U.S. military in an age of profound and rapid change as the Cold War ended. For his leadership in the Gulf War, Secretary Cheney was awarded the Presidential Medal of Freedom by President George Bush on July 3, 1991.

Mr. Cheney married his high school sweetheart, Lynne Ann Vincent, in 1964, and they have grown daughters, Elizabeth and Mary, and three granddaughters.

CHRISTOPHER S. (KIT) BOND (Republican) is a sixth generation Missourian, born in St. Louis in 1939. He grew up in Mexico, MO, where he still resides and tends to several groves of trees he planted by hand.

Bond graduated from Princeton University in 1960 and received his law degree from the University of Virginia, having graduated first in his class.

After serving as a clerk to the Chief Judge of the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in Atlanta, Bond practiced law in Washington, D.C. before returning home to Missouri.

In 1969, Bond became an Assistant Attorney General under former Senator John Danforth. Before being elected State Auditor in 1970, Bond was chief counsel of Missouri's Consumer Protection Division.

At age 33, Kit Bond became the 47th Governor of the State of Missouri on January 8, 1973 - the youngest Governor the state has ever had.

Bond was re-elected to a second term as Governor in 1980. Among his greatest accomplishments as Governor was to take the Parents as Teachers program statewide.

After his second successful term as Governor, Bond continued his service to Missouri from his newly won seat in the United States Senate. In that 1986 election year, he was the only Republican to capture a seat previously held by a Democrat.

Based upon his solid ability to protect and advance Missouri's interests in the United States Senate, Bond was returned by Missouri voters to the U.S. Senate in 1992, 1998 and in 2004.

While serving in the U.S. Senate, he has built a reputation as a strong supporter of responsible budgeting and accountability in education and government programs.

Bond has fought for economic security by protecting jobs from being driven abroad by overreaching regulations, ensuring that the weapons systems defending our soldiers continue to be built by Missouri's fine engineering and production work force, and working to make Missouri the premier plant biotechnology and life sciences corridor in the country.

He has fought for the health and safety of his constituents by winning funds to expand Community Health Centers, protecting access to cancer care, improving nursing home care and providing Missouri sheriffs the resources they need to fight methamphetamine.

Bond has also fought for Missouri's fair share of money to improve roads and highways. As the chair of the subcommittee that rewrites the federal highway bill, he is using his clout to continue this battle for Missouri.

A strong supporter of law enforcement and a strong U.S. military, Bond also serves on the Senate Select Intelligence Committee. He is the chair of the Appropriations Subcommittee that funds the nation's housing and transportation needs.

Bond is married to Linda Bond. His son, Sam Bond, is a 2nd Lieutenant in the U.S. Marine Corps.

JAMES MATTHES TALENT (Republican) was elected to serve in the U.S. Senate in 2002 based on his record of experience and effectiveness on behalf of Missouri jobs, health care and the nation's national and homeland security. Previously he served eight years in the Missouri General Assembly and eight years in the U.S. Congress where he represented Missouri's 2nd Congressional District.

Talent is supporting Missouri interests on four important committees: the Senate Agriculture, Nutrition and Forestry Committee; Armed Services Committee; Energy and Natural Resources Committee; and Aging Committee. Additionally, Talent serves as chair of the Armed Services Seapower Subcommittee and as chair of the Agriculture Committee's Subcommittee on Marketing, Inspection, and Product Promotion.

In his first year in the Senate, Talent was selected to serve as a Deputy Whip and was named a member of President Bush's Export Council. He is also a co-chair of the Senate Biofuels Caucus.

In the Missouri General Assembly, Talent succeeded in passing numerous pieces of legislation and piloted legislative efforts to build roads, toughen drug laws, secure taxpayer rights and reduce taxes. At the age of 32, Talent was unanimously chosen by his colleagues as the Minority Leader, the highest ranking Republican leadership position in the Missouri House.

In 1994, as a freshman congressman, Talent introduced the Real Welfare Reform Act, which subsequently became the basis for the historic bipartisan welfare reform bill, the Personal Responsibility and Work Opportunity Act of 1996. The legislation has resulted in millions of people moving from dependency on the government to jobs and self-sufficiency.

Talent is keeping the promises he made when he ran for the Senate by becoming Missouri's health care senator and helping pass a Medicare prescription drug benefit for seniors. He introduced the Small Business Health Fairness Act to provide health insurance for millions of uninsured Americans by allowing small business people to purchase health care plans for themselves, their employees and their families through their trade associations.

He also introduced health care legislation that earned bipartisan support to help treat and expand services for Americans with Sickle Cell Disease, an inherited blood disorder.

Talent has been a leader in the fight for important transportation and infrastructure projects in Missouri. He introduced a major transportation infrastructure initiative called Build America Bonds to empower state and local governments to complete significant infrastructure projects for all modes of transportation—roads, rail, transit, aviation and water. His proposal is designed to create millions of jobs, generate billions in economic activity and save thousands of lives by improving transportation safety.

Talent was born and raised in Des Peres, Mo. He graduated from Kirkwood High School in 1973 and attended Washington University in St. Louis, receiving the Arnold J. Lien Prize as the most outstanding undergraduate in political science. He graduated with honors from the Univ. of Chicago Law School in 1981 and clerked for Judge Richard Posner of the U.S. Court of Appeals, 1982–1983.

Talent and his wife Brenda have been married since 1984. They have three children, Michael, Kate and Chrissy.

[21]Jo Ann Emerson was elected to two terms in the 1996 general election. She ran as a Republican in the special election to serve out the remainder of the term in the seat held by her late husband, U.S. Rep. Bill Emerson, who died in June of 1996. With not enough time for her name to be added to the ballot for the next full term in Congress, Jo Ann Emerson ran for the upcoming term as an Independent. She won both elections, and began her congressional service during the 104th Congress, representing Missouri's Eighth District starting in November of 1996.

Historical Note: The election of early Missouri delegates was by general statewide ticket. In 1847, the state was divided into five congressional districts, from which representatives were elected. In 1863, the districts were expanded to number nine and ten years later in 1873, Missouri was redistricted to allow for thirteen congressional districts. By acts approved in 1882 and 1885, Missouri was allowed one additional district and in 1893, the congressional districts numbered fifteen. Missouri was allowed sixteen districts in 1901; these were in place until 1933. In that year, the state was allotted thirteen representatives, while the legislature redistricted the state. Those thirteen representatives were elected at large (indicated by an asterisk (*) in the listing). The state has been redistricted at various times over the last forty years, moving from eleven districts in the 1950s, to ten districts in the 1960s, to the current number of nine congressional districts in the 1980s. Because of the redistricting, it may be necessary to check the Revised Statutes of Missouri to determine which Missouri counties were represented by a district during a particular year. Redistricting changes generally occur in the years following the taking of the federal census.

The Missouri General Assembly

Legislative power in Missouri is vested by Section 1, Article III of the 1945 Constitution in the General Assembly, composed of the Senate and the House of Representatives. Their website is www.moga.mo.gov.

The Senate consists of 34 members, elected for four-year terms. Senators from odd-numbered districts are elected in presidential election years. Senators from even-numbered districts are chosen in the "off year" elections. Each senator must be at least 30 years of age, a qualified voter of the state for three years and of the district he or she represents for one year. The lieutenant governor is president and presiding officer of the Senate. In the absence of the lieutenant governor, the president pro tem, elected by the Senate members, presides.

The House of Representatives consists of 163 members, elected at each general election for a two-year term. A representative must be at least 24 years of age, a qualified voter of the state for two years and of the district he or she represents for one year. The House is presided over by the speaker, chosen by the members, and in the absence of the speaker by the speaker pro tem.

Reapportionment of both houses of the Missouri General Assembly following each decennial U.S. census is provided for by the Missouri Constitution.

Senators and Representatives receive a salary of $31,351 per year, a weekly allowance for miles traveled going to and returning from their place of meeting and expenses for each day the General Assembly is in session.

Time of Meeting

The General Assembly convenes annually on the first Wednesday after the first Monday of January. Adjournment is midnight on May 30, with no consideration of bills after 6 p.m. on the first Friday after the second Monday in May. If the governor returns a bill with his objections on or after the fifth day before the last day upon which a session of the General Assembly may consider bills, the General Assembly is automatically reconvened on the first Wednesday following the second Monday in September for a period not to exceed 10 calendar days to consider vetoed bills.

A special session of the General Assembly may be called by petition of the General Assembly. If three-fourths of the members of the Senate and three-fourths of the members of the House sign the petition calling for a special session, the president pro tem of the Senate and the speaker of the House shall, by joint proclamation, convene the General Assembly in special session. The petition and proclamation must specifically state the subjects to be considered during the special session, and the signed petition must be filed with the secretary of state.

The General Assembly shall automatically stand adjourned sine die at 6 p.m. on the 30th calendar day after the convening of the special session unless it has adjourned sine die before the 30th day. No appropriation bill shall be considered in the special session if the General Assembly has not passed the operating budget in compliance with Article III, Section 25 of the Missouri Constitution.

The governor may convene the General Assembly in extraordinary session for a maximum of 60 calendar days at any time. Only subjects recommended by the governor in his or her call or a special message may be considered.

Organization of the General Assembly

Following the general election in November of even-numbered years, the majority and minority members of each house caucus, separately nominate candidates for the offices to be elected by each body and organize their parties for the coming session. Nominees of the majority party are, in effect, elected. Each party names its floor leader, assistant floor leader, caucus chair and secretary.

Both houses of the General Assembly convene at noon on the opening day of the session. The Senate is called to order by the lieutenant governor. Temporary officers are named and the roll of new and carryover senators is read. Newly elected senators are then sworn in, usually by a judge of the Supreme Court. The president pro tem and other permanent officers are then elected and take an oath of office administered by the president of the Senate.

The House of Representatives is called to order by the secretary of state, and the oath is administered to all members. After the swearing-in ceremony, a roll call is taken and a temporary speaker is named. He or she presides for nomination and election of permanent officers. Temporary rules, usually the rules in force for the preceding session, are adopted.

After each house notifies the other that it is duly organized, a House Resolution is adopted inviting the Senate to a joint meeting to receive the governor's message. Under the Constitution, the governor, at the beginning of each session, delivers a message concerning state government with any recommendations he or she wishes to make for the enactment of legislation. This message is commonly referred to as the State of the State Address.

Each house determines its own rules, and procedures and rules may not be dispensed with except by unanimous consent or concurrence by a constitutional majority. Both the Senate and House are required to keep a daily journal of their proceedings. At the end of the session, the journals are bound by the House and Senate. The secretary of state's office provides microform copies of the journals.

Term Limits

In November 1992 the voters approved an amendment to the Missouri Constitution to limit for the first time the amount of total service in the House and Senate to eight years in each. Total legislative service was limited to sixteen years. In November of 2002 voters approved an additional amendment to allow members elected through a special election, after the effective date, to serve the partial term and two full terms for the Senate and four full terms for the House, through a general election.

How Bills Become Laws

General Provisions

No law is passed except by bill. Bills may originate in either house and are designated as Senate Bills or House Bills, depending on the house in which they originate. No bill (except general appropriations bills) may contain more than one subject, which is to be expressed clearly in its title. No bill can be amended in its passage through either house so as to change its original purpose. No bill can be introduced in either house after the 60th legislative day of a session unless consented to by a majority of the elected members of each house. No appropriation bill shall be taken up for consideration after 6 p.m. on the first Friday following the first Monday in May of each year.

Introduction of a Bill

Legislation approved by the 1971 General Assembly (HB 156) provides for preintroduction of bills beginning December 1 preceding the opening of the assembly session and continuing up to, but not including, the first day of session. Bills filed during the preintroduction period are automatically introduced and read the first time on the opening day of session.

Bills may also be introduced by any senator or representative during session. Bills may be written by the legislator or by the staff of the Committee on Legislative Research at the request of a senator or representative. When introduced, a bill is assigned a number and read for the first time by its title. It then goes on the calendar for second reading and assignment to committee by the speaker of the House or the president pro tem of the Senate.

A public hearing before the committee to which a bill is assigned is the next step in the legislative process. Except in the case of unusually controversial, complex or lengthy bills, the bill is presented by its sponsor, and both proponents and opponents are heard in a single hearing. When hearings are concluded, the committee meets to vote and makes its recommendations. The committee may (1) report the bill with the recommendation that it "do pass;" (2) recommend passage with committee amendments, which are attached to the bill; (3) return the bill without recommendation; (4) substitute in lieu of the original bill a new bill to be known as a committee substitute; (5) report the bill with a recommendation that it "do not pass;" or (6) make no report at all.

Perfection of a Bill

If a bill is reported favorably out of committee or a substitute is recommended, it is placed on the "perfection calendar." When its term comes up for consideration, it is debated on the floor of the originating house. If a substitute is recommended by the committee or if committee amendments are attached to the bill, they are first presented, debated and voted upon. Further amendments can then be proposed by other members with their changes designated as House or Senate amendments to differentiate from the committee amendments. A House or Senate substitute bill can also be offered at this time. When all amendments and substitutes have been considered, a motion is made to declare the bill perfected. Perfection is voted on by a voice vote or, on the request of five members, by roll call. If a majority of members vote to perfect, the bill is reprinted in its original or amended form.

Final Passage of a Bill

After perfection and reprinting, the bill goes on the calendar for third reading and final passage. When the bill is reached in the order of business, any member may speak for or against its passage but no further amendments of a substantive nature can be offered. At the conclusion of debate, a recorded vote is taken. Approval of a constitutional majority of the elected members (18 in the Senate and 82 in the House) is required for final passage.

Passage of the bill is then reported to the other house where it is read a second time, referred to committee for hearing, reported by committee, read a third time and offered for final approval. If further amendments or substitutes are approved, these are reported to the originating house with a request that the changes be approved. If the originating house does not approve, a conference may be requested and members from each house are designated as a conference committee. Upon agreement by the conference committee (usually a compromise of differences), each reports to its own house on the committee's recommendation. The originating house acts first on the conference committee version of the bill. If it is approved it goes to the other house; and upon approval there, the bill is declared "truly agreed to and finally passed." If either house rejects the conference committee report, it may be returned to the same or a newly appointed committee for further conferences.

Upon final passage, a bill is ordered enrolled, printed in its final form and the bills are closely compared and proofed for errors.

Signing of the Bill

Bills truly agreed to and finally passed in their printed form are then signed in open session by the House speaker and Senate president or president pro tem. At the time of signing, any member may file written objections which are sent with the bill to the governor.

Governor's Part in Lawmaking

The governor has 15 days to act on a bill if it is sent to him during the legislative session, and 45 days if the Legislature has adjourned or has recessed for a 30-day period.

If he or she signs a bill, it is returned to its house of origin with a message of approval, then delivered to the Office of Secretary of State. The bill is delivered directly to the Office of Secretary of State if the Legislature is not in session.

If the governor vetoes a bill, it is returned to the house of origin with his or her objections. A two-thirds vote by members of both houses is required to override a governor's veto.

If any bill shall not be returned by the governor within the time limits prescribed by Article III, Section 31 of the Missouri Constitution, it shall become law in the same manner as if the governor had signed it.

Effective Date of Laws

The 1945 Constitution provides that no law passed by the General Assembly shall take effect until 90 days after the end of the session in which it was enacted, except an appropriation act or in case of an emergency, which must be expressed in the preamble or in the body of the act. Some bills specify the exact date when they are to take effect.

Duties of the Secretary of State

The secretary of state preserves and the State Archives binds and maintains the finally printed and signed copy of the law. The laws are published annually by the Committee on Legislative Research, in a volume titled Laws of Missouri, which is distributed to members of the General Assembly, state officials and other interested persons.

The general statute laws are revised, digested and promulgated by the revisor of statutes, in the Office of the Committee on Legislative Research. These are known as the Revised Statutes of Missouri. The Committee on Legislative Research also publishes annual supplements to the statutes to include changes in laws since the last revision.

Joint Legislative Committees

Joint Committee on Administrative Rules

Room B-8, State Capitol
Jefferson City 65101
www.senate.mo.gov/05info/comm/statutory/jcar.htm

The Joint Committee on Administrative Rules (JCAR) was created in 1975 and is a permanent joint committee of the General Assembly as provided in Chapter 536, Revised Statutes of Missouri. The Committee is comprised of five members of the Senate and five members of the House. In order to provide continuity in the operation of the committee, the statute authorizing the committee provides the appointment of each member shall continue during his or her term of office as a member of the General Assembly.

The Senate members are appointed by the president pro tem of the Senate, while the representatives are appointed by the House speaker. No more than three members from each chamber may be of the same political party.

Under state law, the Joint Committee on Admin-istrative Rules is to continuously monitor and review both proposed and existing rules promulgated by the various executive branch departments and divisions of state government. Citizens or interested organizations who have concerns about rules issued by state agencies can contact the committee with their concerns. In its review the committee is authorized to hold public hearings and review rules in question. The procedures allowing the committee to rescind or modify a proposed or existing state agency rule were changed in 1993. This action was taken in order to resolve constitutional concerns about the separation of powers between the Legislative Branch and the Executive Branch. Actions taken by the committee on rules and regulations of state agencies must be ratified by the full General Assembly through a concurrent resolution, which then must be signed by the governor. The goal of the Committee on Administrative Rules is to ensure a state agency does not exceed its statutory authority and that the agencies effectively accomplish their missions as mandated by the statutes.

The members of the committee are: Senator Luann Ridgeway, chair. Senators Bray; Griesheimer; Gross; and Wheeler. Representatives Cooper (151); Goodman; Page; Stevenson; and Vogt.

Joint Committee on Capital Improvements and Leases Oversight

www.senate.mo.gov/05info/comm/statutory/jcci.htm
Telephone: (573) 751-3360

The Joint Committee on Capital Improvements and Leases Oversight is a statutory committee. The duties of the committee are set forth in Sections 21.530–21.537, RSMo. The committee is composed of ten members of the General Assembly; five members from the Senate Appropriations Committee and five members from the House of Representatives Budget Committee.

The committee reviews all information concerning capital improvement budgets and appropriations and monitors all leases and proposed leases to determine if the projects are in compliance with the intent of the General Assembly.

Members are: Senator Chuck Gross, co-chair; Representative Brad Lager, co-chair. Senators Dougherty; Green; Nodler; and Ridgeway. Representatives Boykins; Icet; Lembke; and Meadows.

Joint Committee on Corrections

www.senate.mo.gov/05info/comm/statutory/jccr.htm

The Joint Committee on Corrections is a permanent, statutory committee of the General Assembly. It is composed of six members of the House of Representatives, appointed by the speaker, and six members of the Senate, appointed by the president pro tem. The duties of the committee are set forth in Section 21.455, RSMo.

Members are: Senator John Cauthorn, chair; Representative Moore, vice chair. Senators Coleman; Engler; Green; Kennedy; and Klindt. Representatives Bruns; Harris; Hubbard; Kelly (144); and Robinson.

Joint Committee on Court Automation

www.senate.mo.gov/05info/comm/statutory/jcca.htm

The Joint Committee on Court Automation is a statutory committee of the General Assembly. It is composed of three members of the House of Representatives, and three members of the Senate. The duties of the committee are set forth in Section 476.055, RSMo.

Members are: Senators Bartle; Days; and Gross. Representatives Bringer; Lager; and a vacancy.

Joint Committee on Economic Development, Policy and Planning

www.senate.mo.gov/05info/comm/statutory/jcec.htm
Telephone: (573) 751-7257

The Joint Committee on Economic Development Policy and Planning is a statutory committee. The duties of the committee are set forth in Section 620.602, RSMo. The committee is composed of ten members of the General Assembly; five members of the Senate, appointed by the president pro tem of the Senate, and five members of the house, appointed by the speaker of the house.

The committee reviews the annual report produced by the Department of Economic Development, and plan, develop and evaluate a long-term economic development policy for the state to ensure the state's competitive status with other states.

Members are: Representative Ron Richard, chair. Senators Griesheimer; Kennedy; Mayer; Wilson and a vacancy. Representatives Bowman; Dempsey; Swinger; and Wilson (130).

Jefferson City 65101
Telephone: (573) 751-4143

The Committee on Legislative Research is a permanent joint committee as provided by Section 35 of Article III of the Missouri Constitution.

The committee is composed of 20 members of the General Assembly, with 10 members appointed by the leaders of each chamber. No major party may have more than six members appointed as members from either chamber.

The committee is directed by statute to provide a variety of services for the General Assembly and its members. The committee's offices and staff are divided into two divisions, a Research Division and an Oversight Division. The committee itself is not a policy making group and formulates no legislative program. Its staff renders only such technical and professional assistance as may be requested by the General Assembly or any of its members, or as required by statute.

RUSSELL HEMBREE
Acting Director
Legislative Research

MICHAEL WILSON
Director, Oversight Division
Committee on Legislative Research

The Research Division provides bill drafting assistance, prepares concurrent and courtesy resolutions, operates a legislative reference library and publishes the Revised Statutes of Missouri and subsequent supplements, and Session Laws of Missouri.

Bills are drawn at the request of any member of the General Assembly but the fact that a bill has been drafted by a member of the staff does not carry with it the endorsement of the Committee on Legislative Research. All bill requests are treated confidentially by the bill drafter and without comment or criticism of the subject matter.

One need of state government is a modern legislative reference library. The library maintained by the Committee on Legislative Research continuously acquires books, pamphlets, periodicals and reports and the staff works closely with the staff of the Missouri State Library and the Supreme Court Library.

Through its acquisitions, exchanges and loans with other libraries, the legislative library provides much of the material requested by members of the General Assembly for the analysis of public questions and provides a research tool for bill drafting and research services.

Courtesy resolutions continue to be of great importance to members of the General Assembly. More than 600 per month are prepared by the resolution-writers for a variety of observances.

The Oversight Division is supervised by a subcommittee of the Committee on Legislative Research. The Oversight Division is responsible for preparing fiscal notes on all bills pending before the General Assembly with the exception of appropriation bills. Fiscal notes must state the cost of the proposed legislation to the state for the next two fiscal years; whether the proposal would establish a program or agency which would duplicate an existing program or agency; whether the provisions of the proposal were federally mandated; whether the proposal would have significant direct fiscal impact upon any political subdivision of the state; whether any new physical facilities would be required; and whether an impact to small businesses would be expected. The division prepares approximately 3,000 fiscal notes during a regular legislative session.

The Oversight Division is authorized to perform management and program evaluations of state agencies and is assigned work pursuant to a duly adopted concurrent resolution of the General Assembly or a resolution adopted by the Committee on Legislative Research. The division conducts the evaluations in accordance with government auditing standards set forth by the U.S. General Accounting Office. The management and program evaluations of the division provide the General Assembly with important information regarding the status of programs they have created and the expenditure of funds they have authorized.

Committee members are: Senator Gary Nodler, chair; Representative Carl Bearden, vice chair. Representatives Bringer; Cooper (120); Dempsey; Icet; Lager; Salva; Walton; Yates; and a vacancy. Senators Bartle; Callahan; Dougherty; Gibbons; Green; Gross; Scott; Shields; and Wheeler.

Chapter 5
Judicial Branch

"Trick Rider"
(Missouri State Archives, Putman Collection)

Missouri's Judicial System

From its inception in 1820, Missouri state government has been constitutionally divided into three separate branches—the legislative, executive and judicial departments. The judicial department's function is not to make the laws of the state or to administer them, but to adjudicate the controversies that arise between persons and parties, to determine fairly and justly the guilt or innocence of persons charged with criminal offenses, and to interpret the laws of the state as enacted by the legislature and carried out by the executive.

The roots of Missouri's judicial branch reach back to the days when Missouri was a part of the Missouri Territory controlled by the French and Spanish. When Missouri was officially organized as a territory in 1812, the judicial power was vested in a superior court, inferior courts and justices of the peace. The Constitution of 1820, the state's first constitution, placed the judicial power in a Supreme Court, chancery courts (later abolished by the General Assembly), and circuit and other courts to be established by the legislature.

Today, Missouri has a three-tier court system. Article V of the Constitution, as amended by Missouri voters in 1976, vests the judicial power in a Supreme Court, the state's highest court, with statewide jurisdiction; in a court of appeals consisting of districts established by the General Assembly; and in a system of circuit courts that have original jurisdiction over all cases and matters, civil and criminal.

Effective January 2, 1979, the circuit court system absorbed all former courts of limited jurisdiction and became the state's single trial court. Cases once heard in magistrate and probate courts, in the St. Louis Court of Criminal Corrections, in the Hannibal and Cape Girardeau Courts of Common Pleas, and in municipal and other local courts now are heard in appropriate divisions of the circuit courts.

All the judges of these former courts have become either circuit, associate circuit or municipal judges. They may hear and determine different classes of cases within their respective circuits. A presiding judge, elected for a two-year term, has general administrative authority over all judicial personnel in the circuit. He or she may assign other judges throughout the circuit to relieve case load and administrative backlogs. The Supreme Court and court of appeals have general superintending control over all courts and tribunals within their jurisdictions. Original remedial writs may be issued and determined at each level of the court system. Decisions of the Supreme Court are controlling in all other courts.

Selection of Judges

In the first 30 years of Missouri's statehood, the judges of the supreme, circuit and chancery courts were appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate. After much public discussion, the Constitution was amended in 1849 to provide for the popular election of judges, and this system remains in effect for most Missouri courts even today. In most circuits, the judges are elected by the voters in partisan elections.

However, in 1940 Missouri voters amended the Constitution by adopting the "Nonpartisan Selection of Judges Court Plan," which was placed on the ballot by initiative petition and which provides for the nonpartisan (non-political) appointment of certain judges, rather than having them popularly elected.

The Constitution, as amended further in 1976, provides that the Nonpartisan Court Plan is to be in effect for the Supreme Court, the court of appeals, and the circuit courts within the City of St. Louis and Jackson County. In addition, voters in St. Louis, Clay and Platte counties have elected to institute the plan, and the Kansas City Charter extends a nonpartisan selection plan to Kansas City municipal court judges. While all other judges are popularly elected, other judicial circuits may adopt the plan upon approval by a majority of the voters in the circuit.

Under the Missouri Court Plan, as it is often called, a vacancy on a court to which the plan applies is filled in the following way. A nonpartisan judicial commission of lay persons, lawyers and judges selects three persons from those who apply based on merit. The governor appoints one of the three. A judge appointed in this way must stand for retention in office at the first general election occurring after the judge has been in office for 12 months; the judge's name is placed on a separate judicial ballot, without political party designation, and the voters must vote either for or against retention in office. The judge's name is again placed on the ballot for retention vote at certain intervals. The Missouri Court Plan has served as a national model for the selection of judges and has been adopted by a number of other states.

Every supreme, appellate, circuit and associate circuit court judge must be licensed to practice law in Missouri. By constitutional amendment and statute, all judges must retire by age 70.

History and Organization

The Supreme Court has been the state's highest court since 1820, when the first Missouri Constitution was adopted. The earliest court, consisting of only three members, was required to hold sessions in four different judicial circuits in the state. At various times, the court sat in St. Louis, Jackson, Cape Girardeau, St. Charles, Boonville, Fayette, Hannibal, Lexington and other cities.

The size of the Supreme Court was increased to five judges in 1872 and to its present size—seven judges—in 1890. Because of the court's increasing caseload, commissioners were appointed for a brief period in the 1880s. In 1911, the legislature authorized the court to appoint four commissioners, and in 1927, the number was changed to six. The commissioners were required to possess the same qualifications as judges of the Supreme Court. They received the same compensation and were appointed for four-year terms. The commissioners in the past have heard cases along with the judges and their written opinions, if approved by the court, were promulgated as opinions of the court.

Under terms of the 1970 constitutional amendment of Article V, the offices of the commissioners ceased to exist when the individuals holding the offices retired, resigned, died or were removed from office.

In 1890, the Supreme Court was divided into two divisions to permit it to handle and decide more cases in a shorter time. Under the present constitution, the court may sit en banc (all seven judges together) or in as many divisions as the court determines are needed. Today, all cases are assigned to and decided by the court en banc.

Supreme Court Jurisdiction

Originally, the Supreme Court had only the traditional powers to decide cases on appeal from the lower courts (either the circuit courts or the court of appeals) and to issue and determine original remedial writs, such as habeas corpus, mandamus and prohibition. The Constitution of 1945 also authorized the court to establish rules for practice and procedure in the courts and to make temporary transfers of judicial personnel. Maintaining and updating the rules is a continuous process requiring substantial time. Each year, the Supreme Court, through the state courts administrator, transfers several hundred court personnel on a temporary basis to assist other courts. This usually is done when a judge has been disqualified by the parties in a case or when a judge's docket has become overly crowded and the judge cannot handle all the cases expeditiously.

The constitutional amendments of 1976 and 1982 defined the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court more narrowly than in the past, resulting in its receiving fewer cases on appeal and directing more appeals to the Court of Appeals. Under the amendment, the Supreme Court has exclusive appellate jurisdiction in all cases involving: the validity of a treaty or statute of the United States or of a statute or provision of the Missouri Constitution; the construction of the state's revenue laws; the title to any state office; and in all cases where the punishment imposed is death.

Cases do not have to fall within this area of exclusive jurisdiction to reach the Supreme Court, however. The court may order cases transferred to it from the court of appeals if the cases involve questions of general interest or importance, if the court thinks the existing law should be reexamined, or for other reasons provided by rule of the court. The court of appeals also may order a case transferred to the Supreme Court either by order of the court of appeals itself or by the dissent of a court of appeals judge, if that judge certifies the court of appeals opinion is contrary to previous decisions of the Supreme Court or of other districts of the court of appeals.

In addition to its decision-making powers, the Supreme Court supervises all lower courts in the state. It is assisted in this task by the Office of State Courts Administrator, established in 1970. The Supreme Court also licenses all lawyers practicing in Missouri and disciplines those found guilty of violating the legal Rules of Professional Conduct.

Qualifications and Terms

Supreme Court judges must be at least 30 years of age, U.S. citizens for 15 years and qualified Missouri voters for nine years. Supreme Court judges are retained for 12-year terms.

Chief Justice

The seven judges of the Supreme Court select one of their number to be chief justice and preside over the court. The chief justice also handles many of the administrative details for the court. The present practice of the court is to rotate the position of chief justice every two years.

The court hears oral arguments each month from September through May. Court sessions are open to the public.

Supreme Court Building

The Supreme Court Building, a three-story, red brick structure of French Renaissance architecture, was built in 1907 and stands opposite the Capitol. It houses the attorney general's offices as well as those of the Supreme Court. The building's main features are a massive marble staircase in the lobby and the two-story high library. The building has been extensively refurbished and modernized with the use of moneys appropriated by the General Assembly.

Clerk's Office

The clerk of the Supreme Court is responsible for a wide range of duties, including the supervision of the internal administrative function of the court itself as well as the planning and administrative direction of the Missouri Judicial Conference, the organization comprising all of the judges in the state.

Supreme Court Function

The day-to-day administrative duties, as they relate to the court, include handling all inquiries and procedural requests from attorneys throughout the state, arranging the docketing of cases, maintaining files in each case before the court, receiving and disposing of fees related to those cases, and printing and distributing opinions of the court. In all of these matters, the clerk reports directly to the chief justice.

Missouri Bar Responsibilities

The clerk of the Supreme Court has a number of additional duties relating to The Missouri Bar and the supervision of the admission of new attorneys.

Among the records required to be maintained by the clerk are the official and permanent roll of attorneys for the State of Missouri. The clerk's office also prepares on request certificates evidencing admission to The Missouri Bar. By Supreme Court rule, the clerk is treasurer of the state board of law examiners, which conducts bar examinations twice yearly. The clerk also supervises the semi-annual enrollment ceremonies and prepares all attorney licenses.

By Supreme Court rule, the clerk is ex officio treasurer of The Missouri Bar and the advisory committee and is responsible for collecting the annual attorney enrollment fee and distributing Missouri Bar membership cards to all attorneys licensed to practice in Missouri. He is responsible for maintaining the official records of The Missouri Bar and the bar fund and for preparing annual financial reports for publication in the Journal of The Missouri Bar. The clerk also is responsible for conducting annual elections for The Missouri Bar Board of Governors.

Security Administration

The Supreme Court's marshal is under the clerk's supervision. He is responsible for building security and the transportation of prisoners. The marshal also acts as bailiff when the court is in session. In addition, the marshal is responsible for all homeland security matters as they affect the Supreme Court.

Supreme Court Library

The Supreme Court Library, which is on the second floor of the Supreme Court Building, contains more than 110,000 volumes. These include the decisions of state and federal courts and federal administrative agencies, statutes of all states, 150 legal periodicals, legal textbooks, and many English decisions and statutes. In addition, the library contains computer research services for the use of court personnel.

The library's main responsibility is to meet the research needs of the Supreme Court, the attorney general's office, the General Assembly and the state's executive department agencies, but it also provides resources to members of the bench and bar and the general public. It maintains daily hours throughout the year.

Supreme Court Publications

There are three monthly publications available to the public on a subscription basis. Tomorrow's Opinion Monitor (T.O.M.) allows electronic exploration of all cases in the appellate system with condensed legal arguments of pending cases, summaries of opinions and official citations. Infinite possibilities for searching include subject, statute, rule, keyword, attorney and judge name. The Opinion Summary provides subscribers with a brief digest of decisions from the Supreme Court and Court of Appeals. The Pending Issues Digest provides a summary of the issues raised in legal briefs filed in the courts.

The Missouri Approved Instructions—Criminal and Missouri Approved Charges—Criminal also are published by the publications department.

Michael A. Wolff

Chief Justice of the Supreme Court

MICHAEL A. WOLFF served on the faculty of St. Louis University School of Law for 23 years before being appointed to the Supreme Court of Missouri in August, 1998. His term as chief justice is from July 1, 2005 to June 30, 2007.

During his time in St. Louis, Judge Wolff was active in trial practice and was co-author of Federal Jury Practice and Instructions, (4th edition), which is used by lawyers and judges throughout the country. As a law school teacher, he taught Civil Procedure, Trial Advocacy, Health Law, Criminal Sentencing, Constitutional Law and Administrative Law, among other courses. He was a recipient of the law school's Teaching Excellence Award. Judge Wolff was on the faculty of the University's School of Medicine and School of Public Health. He is a member of the American Law Institute. Judge Wolff is a member of the Missouri Sentencing Advisory Commission and served as its chair in 2004 and 2005.

In 1992, while on leave from the University, Judge Wolff was Transition Director for Governor-elect Mel Carnahan, served as Chief Counsel to the governor in 1993–1994, and was Special Counsel to the governor 1994–1998 after returning to the law school. As special counsel, Wolff was active in seeking solutions, including legislation that passed in 1998, for dealing with the problems of urban schools after the end of court ordered desegregation.

Wolff also served from 1993–1998 as chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Missouri Consolidated Health Care Plan, the health insurance program for public employees. Wolff was a candidate for attorney general in 1988 and 1992.

In addition to The Missouri Bar, Judge Wolff is a member of the Lawyers Association of St. Louis and the Bar Association of Metropolitan St. Louis. He also has served several charitable and educational organizations in various capacities.

In his early legal career, Wolff was a federal court law clerk in 1970–1971 and served in legal services programs in St. Paul, Minnesota, and Denver, Colorado, and was director of Black Hills Legal Services in Rapid City, South Dakota, from 1973 to 1975. He joined the St. Louis University faculty in 1975.

Judge Wolff was born April 1, 1945, in La Crosse, Wisconsin, and was educated in Catholic grade schools and Lourdes High School in Rochester, Minnesota. He graduated in 1967 from Dartmouth College, Hanover, New Hampshire, where he was editor-in-chief and chairman of the board of The Dartmouth, the student daily newspaper. He received his law degree with honors from the University of Minnesota law school in 1970. During law school, he worked as a reporter and copy editor for The Minneapolis Star. He and his wife, Patricia B. Wolff, M.D., who is a pediatrician, have been married since 1968. They have two grown sons, Andrew Barrett Wolff, born in 1974, and Benjamin Barrett Wolff, born in 1977.

Stephen N. Limbaugh Jr.

Judge of the Supreme Court

STEPHEN N. LIMBAUGH JR. was born January 25, 1952, in Cape Girardeau.

Judge Limbaugh was educated in the Cape Girardeau public schools and later graduated from Southern Methodist University (Bachelor of Arts, 1973; Juris Doctor, 1976) and the University of Virginia (Master of Laws in Judicial Process, 1998).

Judge Limbaugh was admitted to the State Bar of Texas and The Missouri Bar in 1977. He was engaged in private practice with the Cape Girardeau law firm of Limbaugh, Limbaugh and Russell from 1977–1978. In November 1978 he was elected prosecuting attorney of Cape Girardeau County and served from 1979–1982. He then returned to private practice with the Limbaugh firm from 1983 until September 1987 when he was appointed Circuit Judge, 32nd Judicial Circuit, for a portion of an unexpired term. He was elected in 1988 for the remainder of the unexpired term and re-elected in 1990 for a full six-year term. While circuit judge, he served as Presiding Judge of the 32nd Judicial Circuit and as judge of the Juvenile Court.

Judge Limbaugh has served on the Missouri Division of Youth Services Advisory Board and the governing boards of Southeast Missouri Hospital, Southeast Missouri Council and Great Rivers Council of the Boy Scouts of America, Southeast Missouri Symphony, Cape Girardeau United Way, Cape Girardeau Civic Center, Cape Girardeau and Jefferson City Community Concert Associations, Cape Girardeau Rotary Club, Cape Girardeau Jaycees, Greater Cape Girardeau Development Corporation, Centenary United Methodist Church, William Woods University, Southern Methodist University Law Alumni Association and Friends of the Missouri State Archives. He is a member, and past president, of the Cape Girardeau Rotary Club and is a Paul Harris Fellow. He is also a member of the American Bar Association and the American Judicature Society, and is a Fellow of the American Bar Foundation. He is a recipient of the University of Missouri–Columbia School of Law Distinguished Non-Alumnus Award, the Distinguished Eagle Scout Award from the National Eagle Scout Association and the honorary degree of Legum Doctorem from William Woods University.

He was married on July 21, 1973, to the former Marsha D. Moore. They have two sons, Stephen III and Christopher. His father, Stephen N. Limbaugh, is a senior United States District Judge in St. Louis.

Judge Limbaugh was appointed by Governor John Ashcroft to the Supreme Court in August 1992. He was retained at the November 8, 1994 general election for a term expiring December 31, 2006. Judge Limbaugh served as Chief Justice, July 1, 2001 to June 30, 2003.

Following her graduation from law school, Judge Stith served for one year as a law clerk to the Hon. Robert E. Seiler of the Missouri Supreme Court. In 1979, she moved to Kansas City and practiced law with the firm of Shook Hardy & Bacon, becoming a partner of the firm in 1984 and later co-founding the firm's appellate practice group.

In the fall of 1994, Governor Mel Carnahan appointed Judge Stith to the Missouri Court of Appeals, Western District. She was retained at the Nov. 1996 general election. During her time on the court of appeals, Judge Stith authored over 400 opinions in cases involving nearly every area of state law.

Governor Bob Holden appointed Judge Stith to the Supreme Court of Missouri effective March 7, 2001. She is the second woman in Missouri history to serve on the Supreme Court.

Judge Stith has been involved in many organizations in the legal community. She has served as chair of the Gender and Justice Jt. Committee of the Missouri Bar and the Missouri Supreme Court. She was a founding director of Lawyers Encouraging Academic Performance (LEAP), an inter-bar lawyers' public service organization. She has served as president and member of the board of directors of the Assn. for Women Lawyers (AWL) of Greater Kansas City; chair and vice chair of the Missouri Bar Civil Practice and Procedure Committee; chair of the Appellate Practice Committee and vice chair of the Tort Law Committee of the Kansas City Metropolitan Bar Association (KCMBA); and a member of the American Bar Association (ABA).

Judge Stith has served as a speaker on appellate practice at the annual conventions of ABA, Missouri Bar, Missouri Association of Trial Attorneys (MATA), and Missouri Organization of Defense Lawyers (MODL). She has also served as a speaker or moderator on civil procedure and evidence at Missouri Bar, KCMBA, AWL, and Univ. of Missouri–Kansas City (UMKC) Continuing Legal Education programs; and as a speaker on gender bias at the Missouri New Judges School. She has authored many CLE publications, including a law review article, Stith, A Contrast of State and Federal Court Authority to Grant Habeas Relief, 38 Valparaiso Law Rev. 421 (Spring 2004).

Judge Stith has been involved in many community activities in Kansas City; serving as a mentor and tutor to young students at St. Vincent's Operation Breakthrough; and as guest speaker at many local civic organizations, talking about the law, the role of the courts and public service.

Judge Stith is married to fellow attorney Donald G. Scott. He served as a law clerk for Judge Warren D. Welliver of the Missouri Supreme Court. He is a shareholder in McDowell, Rice , Smith and Buchanan, P.C. in Kansas City. They have three daughters.

Richard B. Teitelman

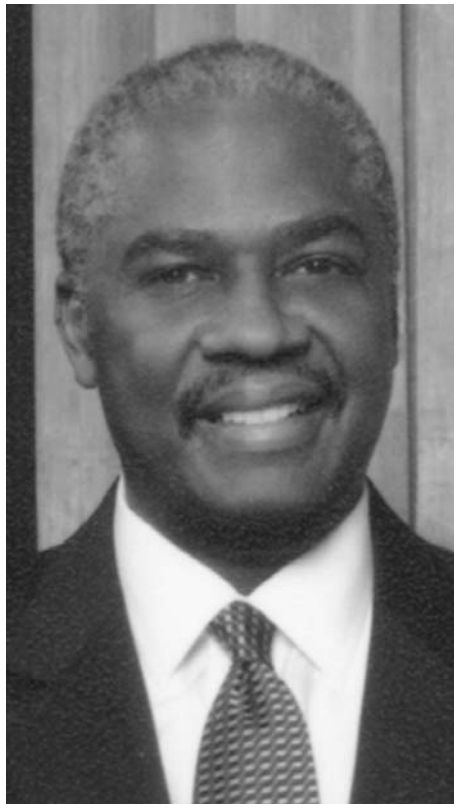
Judge of the Supreme Court

RICHARD TEITELMAN was born in Philadelphia, Pa. He received a bachelor's degree in mathematics, 1969 from the University of Pennsylvania.

After graduating from Washington University School of Law, St. Louis in 1973 he opened a solo law practice. In 1975 he joined Legal Services of Eastern Missouri, serving for 23 years, 18 of those as executive director and general counsel. His dedication to the Legal Services program, which provides a wide range of programs for Missourians unable to pay for civil legal services, earned him many honors, including the prestigious Missouri Bar President's Award, the American Council for the Blind's Durward K. McDaniel Ambassador Award, the Women's Legal Caucus Good Guy Award, the Mound City Bar Association's Legal Service Award, the Bar Association of Metropolitan St. Louis, Young Lawyers Section Award of Merit, the St. Louis Bar Foundation Award, and the American Bar Association's Make a Difference Award.

Judge Teitelman served as president of the Young Lawyers Section of the St. Louis Bar Association and as the St. Louis Bar Association's president. He served as president of the St. Louis Bar Foundation. He serves as a board member, executive committee member, and past-president of the Bar Association of Metropolitan St. Louis. He served as a member of the Board of Governors, vice president and president-elect of The Missouri Bar. He served as trustee of the National Council of Bar Foundations of the ABA and is a lifetime member of the Fellows of the ABA. He was chair of the ABA's Commission on Mental and Physical Disability Law. He is a member of the executive committee of the American Judicature Society.

Judge Teitelman serves in a variety of roles in his pursuit of equality and access to justice for all. He is a member of the African-American/Jewish Task Force. He served on the midwest board of the American Federation for the Blind, the board of Paraquad, and the United Way Government Relations Committee. He is a board member of the St. Louis Public Library and a lifetime member of the Urban League of Metropolitan St. Louis.



He has received several honors, including the Missouri Bar's Purcell Award for Professionalism; the American Jewish Congress' Democracy in Action Award; the Lawyer's Association of St. Louis Award of Honor; and the the St. Louis Society for the Blind's Lifetime Achievement Award.

He is an honorary dean of St. Louis University School of Law's DuBourg Society. He is an honorary member of the Order of the Coif of Washington University School of Law and its Eliot Society. He was honored as a Distinguished Alumnus at Washington University's 2002 Founders Day celebration and has been selected by The Council of State Governments to participate in the 2003 Toll Fellowship Program.

Judge Teitelman served on the Missouri Court of Appeals from 1998 to 2002. Richard Teitelman was appointed to the Missouri Supreme Court in 2002, becoming the first legally blind and first Jewish judge to serve on Missouri's highest court. He was retained at the 2004 general election

Ronnie L. White

RONNIE L. WHITE was born May 31, 1953, in St. Louis.

He attended elementary school in St. Louis and graduated from Beaumont High School in 1971. Judge White received an Associate of Arts degree from St. Louis Community College in 1977. Two years later he earned a Bachelor of Arts degree in political science from St. Louis University.

Judge White graduated from the University of Missouri–Kansas City Law School in 1983. During law school he served as a legal intern for the Jackson County prosecutor. He later worked as a legal assistant for the Department of Defense Mapping Agency. White served as a trial attorney for the public defender's office in both the City of St. Louis and St. Louis County. In 1987 Judge White entered private practice as a principal for the law firm of Cahill, White and Hemphill. While in private practice he was elected to serve three terms in the Missouri House of Representatives.

In 1993 Mayor Freeman Bosley Jr. appointed Judge White city counselor for the City of St. Louis. While serving as city counselor, Judge White argued his first case before the Missouri Supreme Court in April 1994. One month later, Governor Mel Carnahan appointed Judge White to the Missouri Court of Appeals, Eastern District. In September 1995 he served as a special judge for the Missouri Supreme Court. During that same year he served as an adjunct faculty member for the National Institute of Trial Advocacy.

Governor Carnahan appointed Judge White to the Missouri Supreme Court in October 1995. He was retained in the November 5, 1996 election. His term expires December 31, 2008. Judge White served as Chief Justice from July 1, 2003 through June 30, 2005.

Office of State Courts Administrator

Jefferson City 65110
Telephone: (573) 751-3585 / FAX: (573) 552-6152

Acting under the direction of the Missouri Supreme Court, the Office of State Courts Administrator (OSCA) is responsible for providing administrative and technical support to the courts of Missouri as they vigorously pursue a judicial system that is accessible, equitable and swift. The duties and responsibilities assigned to the state courts administrator are broad in scope and relate to all levels of the state court system.

Since the appointment of the first state courts administrator in 1970, the office has been responsible for providing technical assistance, management services, education and training programs, information services and systems analysis, administrative procedure evaluation, compilation of statistics, and case processing support to the courts. The office also assists courts in developing and implementing court improvement projects in such areas as child abuse and neglect, juvenile services, family preservation, criminal history reporting, debt collection and judgment enforcement, mediation services, alcohol and drug abuse treatment and prevention, and the implementation of time standards for case disposition. With the passage of SB 420 in 1994, the office has worked with the Missouri Court Automation Committee on a project with enormous potential for the people of Missouri. The Statewide Court Automation program has and will continue to automate all the courts in the state and, through the use of advanced technologies, provide Missouri citizens with the most timely and responsive judicial system possible. The office is organized into five divisions and one office: Administration and Budget, Court Services, Information Technology, Juvenile and Adult Court Programs, Judicial Department Education, and the office for project management.

DAVID COPLEN
Director of Administration and Budget

Administration and Budget

Administration and Budget staff provide administrative services essential to office management and maintain programs developed to assist the judiciary in a variety of areas. The budget section compiles and organizes the judicial branch's annual state appropriation request. It prepares fiscal notes for proposed legislation that affects the judicial system, and provides support to the Supreme Court's Circuit and Appellate Court Budget committees.

The personnel section maintains the statewide Circuit Court Personnel System as well as the Circuit Court Personnel Handbook. This section also processes the payroll for all court employees and maintains the Payroll Handbook for the payroll designees in each county. It also has primary responsibility for recruitment and personnel management for OSCA.

The fiscal section processes and accounts for all funds appropriated to the Supreme Court for judicial branch operations paid by the state. The section also handles payments for reimbursement to court personnel for incurred expenses and provides fiscal training as needed.

The contract section is responsible for administering contracts for the judiciary; the section also monitors and authorizes bill payment for all Missouri drug courts.

The sponsored programs section develops internal and external partnerships with national, state and local funding sources. The section has managed grant funds for areas such as improving child abuse/neglect case management in juvenile courts, statewide juvenile court automation, automation of criminal history dispositions, electronic filing of adult protection orders, and improvement of mediation and other alternative dispute resolutions programs.

Finally, Administration and Budget staff also provides legislative support to the judiciary, performs office management functions for OSCA, and handles a wide array of requests for information from the legislature, governor's office, other public officials and the public in general.

Court Services

The Court Services Division acts as a service bureau for all court personnel statewide by providing direct assistance to trial courts in a number of areas including: developing procedures related to case processing and financial management; preparing transcripts from sound recorded tapes submitted by the courts; developing and updating procedural handbooks on case processing for court clerks; providing onsite case processing reviews, examining administrative and financial procedures to make recommendations for improved efficiency; managing statewide debt collection efforts, and collecting criminal history dispositions data for the criminal records repository maintained by the Missouri Highway Patrol.

The advent of the Statewide Court Automation Program has created a major new responsibility within the division. Court Services staff worked closely with the software provider and court staff from around the state to "customize" the software and continually monitor changing practices and legal requirements over time so that the software is revised as necessary.

Court Services staff work with the courts prior to implementing automation by assisting the courts with preparation for computerized case management and financial accounting. OSCA staff provide on-site assistance several weeks after the court implements the automated system. After the court is automated, both financial specialists and court specialists provide help desk support and follow-up site visits.

In 2000, a statewide jury management automated system was purchased for implementation in the courts. Court Services coordinates the court training, assists the courts with forms design and procedural changes, and provides telephone and on-site support to the courts. As of July 2005, the software has been installed in 113 counties and the jury staff in these counties have received training.

The Statistics Section is responsible for compiling caseload information from the trial courts, municipal divisions, and appellate courts. The information is used to project the impact of legislative changes, to improve docket management and administration of the courts, and to identify courts that need additional judicial resources and additional court clerk staff.

Information Technology

The Information Technology (OSCA-IT) division provides information technology management support for all Missouri courts and OSCA. The division is responsible for technical analysis, design, development, implementation, maintenance, quality assurance, systems security and automation support for the systems that Missouri courts require as a business need. OSCA-IT provides this support exclusively to most courts, but also works in conjunction with the few metropolitan courts that have information technology staff on-location.

In 1994, Missouri Revised Statutes section 476.055 established a statewide court automation program and some offset funding with a $7 per-case court fee. The program oversight was given to the Missouri Court Automation Committee under the Supreme Court. OSCA-IT has been actively involved with the Court Automation Committee in this enormous and exciting project, which was recognized nationally in 2002 by the Center for Digital Government and internationally in 2003 with a Gold Medal of Achievement from the Computerworld Honors Program.

The Missouri Court Automation Program is working to build an integrated justice system by using a family of standard automated systems that allow courts to increase their efficiency and provide increased service, fair and equitable justice and increased public access to public information. The standardization of the courts will provide a modern justice system with reduced costs to the litigant and taxpayer due to the economies of scale, greater accountability, timely justice, and improved public safety due to the ability of OSCA-IT to work with other state, federal and local systems to electronically exchange pertinent court information.

One of the most relevant examples of this electronic exchange has been the ability of courts using the statewide case management system to electronically transfer ex parte orders of protection to the law enforcement system, providing knowledge for officers and rapid protection for victims of domestic violence.

OSCA-IT also provides additional support for the office in the areas of judicial transfer, fiscal notes and inventory control. The staff develops special reports to assist in workload analysis, judicial research and special legislative requests.

Juvenile and Adult Court Programs

In 1997, the 89th General Assembly approved the creation of the Division of Juvenile and Adult Court Programs within OSCA. It is within this division that administrative efforts are launched to comply with statutory mandates that apply to juvenile and adult court services.

Early division efforts centered on providing continued education and training standards for juvenile court personnel, developing a standardized assessment and classification system that recommends graduated sanctions and services aimed at reducing juvenile offender recidivism, and evaluating the effects of tighter protective custody timelines in child abuse and neglect cases.

Division projects now include expanding communication networks, better assessment of juvenile offenders, and better evaluation of offender data through automated systems. Communication is being enhanced with better hardware, software, specialized juvenile offender databases, and establishment of cooperative information-sharing agreements with other youth service agencies. Conversion of the hand-scored standardized offender assessment and classification system to a software program allows for easier collection, storage, and evaluation of juvenile offender data. A single source for juvenile related information has been incorporated into the larger court automation system that is being implemented in various circuits throughout the state.

In addition, the division is also working to establish alternative treatment programs, and work on child abuse and neglect cases, foster care and adoption, divorce education programs for parent and children and alternative dispute resolution such as mediation in child custody and visitation disputes, child abuse and neglect cases, and in juvenile victim/offender situations to improve court services to the public. The success of adult drug courts as an alternative treatment to substance abuse problems has led to the development of juvenile and family drug courts. Development is ongoing for other specialized courts such as mental health and Unified Family Courts. Federally funded pilot projects to establish permanency planning for abused and neglected children placed in foster care are in progress as well.

The division provides technical assistance in courthouse design related to security and Americans with Disabilities Act Access, personnel safety, assisting in emergency and disaster preparedness, certifying Spanish speaking interpreters for the courts, and locating and providing services for non-English speaking parties and those parties and customers covered by the Americans with Disabilities Act. The division also assists with programs that address issues of domestic violence.

The Juvenile and Adult Court Programs Division, in conjunction with the juvenile and family courts, is committed to building the foundation for a new standard of justice in Missouri. The impact of strong court programs and advanced technology will be far-reaching for the citizens of Missouri.

Judicial Department Education

The Division of Judicial Department Education is responsible for coordinating education services for almost four thousand state court employees and judges. These services are designed to ensure the courts have access to a highly skilled, professional workforce that is technologically literate, conversant with practices that aid in the internal management of the courts, oriented towards a high level of customer service, and forward thinking in improving that level of service in a rapidly changing environment.

The Coordinating Commission for Judicial Department Education provides strategic direction for a comprehensive statewide education program. Commission members are appointed by the Supreme Court and represent various levels of courts and regions of the state to ensure that the educational needs of all court personnel are fairly represented. The commission has built a comprehensive education program that affords opportunities to acquire and enhance technical knowledge and skills, and supervisory and leadership skills and abilities.

The commission relies on six education committees (Appellate Court Education Committee, Trial Judge Education Committee, Juvenile Division Education Committee, Municipal Division Education Committee, Court Clerk Education Committee, and the Court Reporter Education Committee) for program development. Each committee develops and implements a skills-based core curriculum within its assigned subject area designed to improve the knowledge base and skills of Judicial Department personnel.

The division is responsible for implementing the policies and programs established by the Coordinating Commission and its six education committees. The Education Division consists of three service delivery areas: Continuing Education, Automation Training, and Education Technology. The Continuing Education Section offers a broad range of education courses and certificate programs for court personnel. Education specialists, working in cooperation with committee members and court personnel design and coordinate the delivery of courses tailored to meet the unique needs of appellate, trial and municipal court personnel, including judges, clerks, juvenile officers and court reporters. All courses are designed to provide court personnel with the knowledge and skills essential to discharging their judicial and administrative responsibilities.

The Automation Training Section, working in conjunction with the Missouri Court Automation program, designs, coordinates and delivers a comprehensive court automation training program. This program provides court personnel the skills necessary to effectively use the computer infrastructure and electronic case management systems that are the cornerstone of Missouri court automation.

The Education Technology Section is responsible for developing, implementing and evaluating alternative delivery methods of educational programming through the use of technology. Education Technology supports the work of the Automation Training Section and the Continuing Education Section through education services including web-based learning, computer-based learning, videoconferencing and satellite broadcasts.

Missouri Court of Appeals

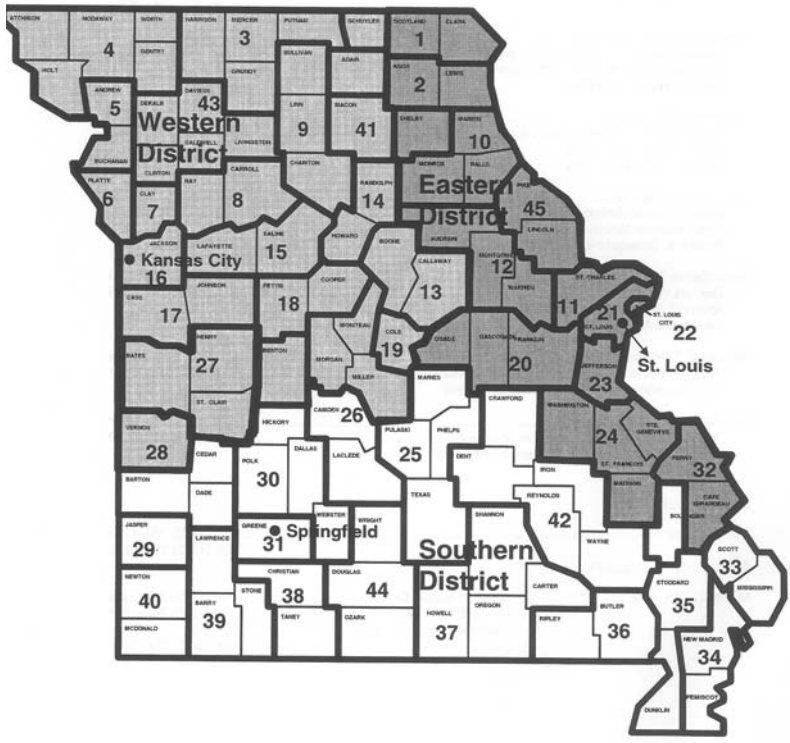
The first general intermediate courts in Missouri were provided for in the 1865 Constitution and were known as district courts. There were district courts in Jefferson City, Springfield, Cape Girardeau, Macon, St. Joseph and St. Charles. Each district was composed of three circuits. Appeals were taken from the circuit court to the district court, and then to the Supreme Court. However, the district courts were abolished in 1870 by a constitutional amendment.

Alarmed at the congested docket of the Supreme Court, the St. Louis Bar Association urged the 1875 Constitutional Convention to provide for another appellate court. Thus was created the St. Louis Court of Appeals consisting of three judges who heard appeals from St. Louis, St. Charles, Lincoln and Warren counties. Its territorial jurisdiction was expanded to include several more counties in 1884.

Another constitutional amendment in 1884 established the Kansas City Court of Appeals and authorized creation of another appellate court, when necessary, by the General Assembly.

The Springfield Court of Appeals was organized in 1909. Missouri's current appellate structure—a single Court of Appeals consisting of three districts—was established by a 1970 constitutional amendment.

The Eastern District of the Court of Appeals sits in St. Louis and consists of 14 judges. Eleven judges preside over the Western District in Kansas City, and seven judges sit on the Southern District bench meeting either in Springfield or Poplar Bluff. Trained law clerks, who are licensed attorneys, assist each appellate judge with legal research.



The Court of Appeals may issue and determine original remedial writs and has general appellate jurisdiction in all cases not within the exclusive jurisdiction of the Supreme Court. However, as previously mentioned, cases not within the Supreme Court's exclusive jurisdiction may be transferred from the Court of Appeals to the Supreme Court when it is determined that a case involves an important issue that should be decided by the state's highest court.

A chief judge is elected for the Eastern and Southern districts of the Court of Appeals by the judges in the districts, and serves for such time as the districts determine. In the Western District, the chief judge serves a two-year term by rotation according to seniority.

The courts are authorized to sit in divisions if they choose, which all three districts have elected to do.

Courts of Appeals judges must be at least 30 years old, residents of their district, U.S. citizens for at least 15 years and Missouri voters for nine years before their selection. Appeals judges serve 12-year terms.

Missouri's 45 Judicial Circuits

Missouri Circuit Courts

Missouri's first two circuit courts were established in 1815. The 1820 Constitution provided for the creation of four circuits, each containing from four to eight counties. The number of circuits has increased over the years; today 45 circuits operate in Missouri.

The first circuit judges were appointed by the governor and confirmed by the Senate. However, the life term of the judges and their method of appointment proved unpopular; in 1849, the Constitution was amended to provide for popular election. Most circuit judges are elected today, although judges in some circuits are selected under provisions of the Nonpartisan Court Plan.

Constitutional amendments approved by Missouri voters in 1976 provide that the circuit courts shall be courts of original civil and criminal jurisdiction. All trials start at this level. Former courts of limited jurisdiction became divisions of the circuit court on January 2, 1979.

Within the divisions of the Circuit Court there are three levels of jurisdiction: circuit, associate and municipal. Circuit judges may act within all circuit jurisdictions.

The number of circuit judges is determined by the General Assembly. The Constitution requires at least one circuit judge in each of Missouri's 45 judicial circuits.

Associate circuit judges may hear matters pending in the Circuit Court or assigned by the Supreme Court. Associate circuit judges hear all cases pursuant to Chapter 517, RSMo, and have concurrent jurisdiction over all cases pending in the Circuit Court.

The Constitution requires at least one resident associate circuit judge in each county. The statutes authorize additional associate circuit judges depending on county populations. Presently, 187 associate circuit judges are required by statute.

Municipalities with 400,000 or more people must establish a municipal division over which a municipal judge presides. Communities of less than 400,000 may establish municipal divisions to hear ordinance violations, or the municipality may request that these matters be heard in the associate division of the Circuit Court. Municipal judges are paid locally.

By statute each circuit judge appoints a court reporter and the court in each circuit appoints a juvenile officer. A circuit clerk in each county is selected according to law and salaries are set by statute.

Circuit court judges must be at least 30 years old, residents of their circuit, U.S. citizens for 10 years and Missouri voters for three years. Circuit judges serve six-year terms. Associate judges must be at least 25 years old, Missouri voters and residents of the counties they serve. Associate judges serve four-year terms.

Circuit court judges each earn $108,000 annually; associate circuit court judges earn $96,000. Compensation is determined by statute (RSMo 476.405).

The Fine Collection Center

The Missouri Supreme Court established the Fine Collection Center (FCC) pursuant to Section 476.385, RSMo. The Fine Collection Center is a central bureau authorized by statute to process certain traffic, conservation and watercraft violations for the courts of counties that voluntarily join the center's program. The center began operation on July 1, 1999 and 79 Missouri counties were members of the program as of August 1, 2005. Offenders who receive citations in participating counties have the option of pleading guilty by paying their fine and costs directly to the FCC or pleading not guilty and having their citations sent to the county prosecutor for processing in the court system.

The Supreme Court appoints the Director of the Fine Collection Center. Since April of 2004, the ACS Corporation has performed most fine collection citation processing services under a contract with the state courts. The director of the center oversees the operation of the center by ACS. The Supreme Court also appoints a Fine Collection Center Committee of at least seven associate circuit court judges. This committee provides oversight and policy guidance for the FCC program and establishes and maintains a uniform fine schedule to be used by the FCC. Counties that voluntarily join the program must agree to use the uniform fine schedule. This fine schedule contains all traffic, conservation and watercraft offenses that the FCC is authorized to process.

The FCC fine schedule sets uniform fines for the same offenses in all counties participating in the FCC, resulting in a more equitable system for offenders. Benefits of participating in the FCC include better accountability, improved collection rates and a reduction in clerical workload associated with processing citations that allows court staff to redirect their efforts to other areas. The FCC also provides user-friendly customer service at a toll free number (1-877-866-3926) that offenders can call from anywhere within the United States. The FCC accepts payment by check, money order or credit cards, making payment more convenient for offenders. The FCC also has an automated system that allows payment 24 hours a day by phone at a toll free number or over the internet.

When an offender pays a citation to the FCC, the center is legally authorized to issue a record of conviction. Records of conviction for traffic offenses are prepared the same business day that the FCC receives the offender's guilty plea and payment of the fine and costs. The FCC electronically transmits these records of conviction each day to the Missouri Department of Revenue for entry on the offender's driving records and to the Missouri State Highway Patrol.

The FCC sends payments of fines and court costs to member county treasurers at the first of each month. The FCC keeps no part of the fine or costs. The county where the offenses occurred receives all the fine money and the entire county's share of court costs on each case. The FCC sends courts costs and fees designated for state agencies directly to those agencies.

Commission on Retirement, Removal and Discipline of Judges

The Commission on Retirement, Removal and Discipline of Judges was created by a constitutional amendment in 1970. It began operating on January 1, 1972, and is governed by Supreme Court Rule 12.

The commission is responsible for receiving and investigating all requests and suggestions for the retirement of judges because of disability and all complaints concerning the alleged misconduct of judges and members of judicial commissions. It is composed of six members who serve six-year terms. Two non-lawyers are appointed by the governor, two lawyers are appointed by the Missouri Bar's governing body, one Court of Appeals judge is selected by Court of Appeals judges and one circuit judge is selected by the state's circuit judges.

The members as of July 1, 2005, were: Gary M. Gaertner, appellate judge, Eastern District, Court of Appeals, chair; Thomas J. Plunkert, attorney, St. Louis, secretary; Barbara Bennett, St. Louis; Richard P. Bruening, attorney, Kansas City; Robert M. Clayton II, circuit judge, Hannibal; Adrienne B. Morgan, St. Louis.

Upon receiving a proper complaint against a judge or other judicial officer, the commission conducts an informal investigation. If at least four members of the commission find there is probable cause to believe the person may be guilty of misconduct, incompetency or other action constituting grounds for discipline as listed in Rule 12.08, a formal investigation is conducted. If at least four members find the person investigated should be disciplined, a report containing findings of fact and conclusions of law is made to the Supreme Court, with recommendations for discipline (removal from office, suspension or other discipline). The court then makes a final ruling based on the commission's record and transcript.

A similar procedure is followed in cases involving retirements because of disability.

In order to protect the public from persons unqualified or unauthorized to practice law, the Missouri Supreme Court has established an attorney discipline system. A chief disciplinary counsel is appointed by the Supreme Court to investigate allegations of professional misconduct, incompetence and incapacity of lawyers. Regional Disciplinary Committees throughout the state, composed of at least four lawyers and two lay persons, may investigate complaints referred to them by the Chief Disciplinary Counsel or the Advisory Committee. The Chief Disciplinary Counsel and the Regional Disciplinary Committees are empowered to institute formal proceedings against lawyers accused of misconduct. If the Chief Disciplinary Counsel or a majority of a Regional Disciplinary Committee finds that there is probable cause to believe that a lawyer is guilty of professional misconduct, they prepare information making specific allegations of violations of the Rules of Professional Conduct. The lawyer may request a hearing to be held before a Disciplinary Hearing Panel selected by the Advisory Committee from a panel of disciplinary hearings officers appointed by the Supreme Court. The panel is made up of two lawyers and one lay person. If the Disciplinary Hearing Panel finds, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the lawyer is guilty of misconduct, it makes findings of fact, conclusions of law and recommendations for discipline, which are then filed in the Supreme Court. It is the responsibility of the Supreme Court to impose any discipline found to be warranted. The Chief Disciplinary Counsel is also charged with the duty of investigating the unauthorized practice of law and instituting suits and other actions to stop such practices. The Chief Disciplinary Counsel conducts investigations of applications made by lawyers seeking reinstatement after they have been suspended or disbarred. The Chief Disciplinary Counsel is Maridee Farnquist Edwards.

The Advisory Committee may give formal opinions and the Legal Ethics Counsel may give nonbinding informal advisory opinions, interpreting Supreme Court Rules 4, 5 and 6, to members of the Bar. The Advisory Committee also oversees the hearing process and reviews complaint files that have been closed after investigation, at the request of the complainant. The Legal Ethics Counsel serves as counsel and staff for the Advisory Committee. Members of the Advisory Committee, appointed by the Supreme Court are: John C. Dods, chair, Kansas City; Jennifer Gille Bacon, Kansas City; Al Brooks, Kansas City; Doreen D. Dodson, St. Louis; Hon. John C. Holstein, Springfield; David P. Macoubrie, Chillicothe; Christina R. Neff, Jefferson City; Luther J. Rollins, Jr., St. Louis; Sherry A. Rozell, Springfield; James E. Spain, Poplar Bluff. The Legal Ethics Counsel is Sara Rittman.

Standards for admission to the bar, set out in Supreme Court Rule 8, are administered by the State Board of Law Examiners. Its six lawyer members are appointed by the Supreme Court for one six-year term. It conducts bar examinations for new lawyers each year on subject matters of the law of general application. The two-day exam is given in February and July in Jefferson City. One day of the examination consists of essay questions and the second day is devoted to the multistate bar examination, a multiple choice test that is administered in 48 other states.

Admission information and application forms are available on the web at www.mble.org.

The Missouri Bar

326 Monroe St., P.O. Box 119
Jefferson City 65102
Telephone: (573) 635-4128 / FAX: (573) 635-2811
E-mail: mobar@mobar.org

The Missouri Bar is the official organization of all Missouri lawyers and judges. Established by rule of the Supreme Court of Missouri in 1944, it is the successor of the original Missouri Bar Association, a voluntary organization of lawyers founded in 1880.

Membership in The Missouri Bar is required of every lawyer who practices in Missouri and of every judge of a state court. To qualify for membership, a person must have completed at least six years of study in college and an approved law school leading to a bachelor of law or a Juris Doctor degree. Those seeking membership in The Missouri Bar must also pass a comprehensive bar examination and character fitness investigation and make application for admission to the bar with the Supreme Court of Missouri.

Committees

There are numerous standing committees of The Missouri Bar plus a number of special project committees. Committees of The Missouri Bar meet at least twice each year to discuss particular areas of the law and, in some cases, draft potential legislation in those areas. Committee members, as well as officers and other members of The Missouri Bar, are available to testify before the General Assembly in support of those bills. In addition, the bar's board of governors often votes to support or oppose other bills pending before the legislature and the bar's legislative services are directed accordingly. Because of its status as a mandatory organization for those practicing law in Missouri, the bar's legislative efforts are confined to bills affecting the administration of justice.

Education

The Missouri Bar's Continuing Legal Education Department (MoBarCLE) has taken the lead in keeping bar members informed of the latest developments in the law. Each year, the CLE Department organizes and presents a number of programs - live, videotaped, and by telephone - to keep lawyers abreast of changes in state and federal laws. These sessions are regularly accompanied by detailed course materials designed to supplement the programs themselves. In addition, the department's renowned deskbook series (the "black books") and supplements provide attorneys with valuable reference materials they can make use of in their own law libraries.

Publications/Public Information

The Journal of The Missouri Bar, offering valuable perspectives on the law from its lawyer-authors, is published six times per year as the official publication of the legal profession in Missouri. Also available to members are the Legislative Digest, published during and after each year's session of the General Assembly; the Missouri Bar Bulletin, a newsletter for bar members; and The Courts Bulletin, a monthly update on recent court decisions in pertinent areas of the law.

For more than 50 years The Missouri Bar has carried on a broad program of public information and education. Thousands of informative pamphlets and other educational materials on the law are distributed annually, including materials from an extensive law-related education audio-visual lending library. Copies of the bar's brochures are also available on the Internet at www.mobar.org. The growth of the bar's public information programs has been aided by cooperative ventures with the Extension Division of the University of Missouri, the Missouri Department and Elementary and Secondary Education, the Missouri Press Association, the Missouri Broadcasters Association, various state colleges, and other groups and associations.

Other Activities

Other prominent programs and services offered by The Missouri Bar include: a Client Security Fund that considers partial financial reimbursement to eligible clients who have been harmed by the unethical conduct of a lawyer; a Lawyer Referral Service that links attorneys with Missourians in need of legal assistance; a Lawyers Assistance Program that offers help to lawyers hindered by impairment issues; a mentoring program that matches older, more experienced attorneys with younger colleagues; a complaint resolution program that offers an alternative to the formal lawyer disciplinary system for matters considered to be less serious in nature; a fee dispute resolution that works to resolve disputes between a lawyer and a client over fees charged for services; and many more.

Through the years, The Missouri Bar has gained recognition on the national and international level. It has been cited many times by the American Bar Association as the outstanding bar organization in the nation. Its programs have won Freedom Foundation awards, the American Bar Association Award of Merit, and the American Judicature Society's Justice Award. Similarly, staff members and officers serve on many important national committees and work with various national groups on problems of national scope.

Judicial Conference of Missouri

Supreme Court Bldg.
PO Box 150
Jefferson City 65102
Telephone: (573) 751-4144

In 1943, the General Assembly established the Judicial Conference of Missouri, which is composed of all state judges. The conference is charged by statute (Section 476.350) with studying the organization and administration of the state's judicial system, compiling data on the work of various courts and making biennial reports to the General Assembly, including any recommendations the conference may have for improving the laws. Since 1974, the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, who is the conference's presiding officer, has presented an annual State of the Judiciary address to a joint session of the General Assembly, reviewing the problems, needs and goals of the judicial department.

The statute also requires the conference to hold an annual meeting to be attended by all judges. At this meeting, the judges discuss the problems of court administration and invite experts in various fields to speak on matters of particular concern.

The clerk of the Supreme Court provides administrative and staff assistance and also serves as secretary to the executive council and the conference.

Nonpartisan Judicial Nominating Commissions

Under provisions of the Missouri Constitution, Article V, any vacancy occurring in the office of judge of the Supreme Court, the court of appeals or the circuit courts within St. Louis City or Jackson County is filled by the governor, who appoints one of three qualified persons nominated by a nonpartisan judicial commission. This method of selecting circuit judges was adopted by the voters of the 21st Judicial Circuit, St. Louis County, at the general election in 1970, and by the voters of the Sixth Judicial Circuit, Platte County and the Seventh Judicial Circuit, Clay County, in 1972. This method of selecting judges was extended to associate circuit judges in these jurisdictions in 1979.

Appellate Judicial Commission

Nominations for judges of the Supreme Court and the court of appeals are made by a seven-member Appellate Judicial Commission. It consists of a judge of the Supreme Court selected by the members of the Court and two resident citizens from each of the three court of appeals districts. One lawyer is elected from each district by members of The Missouri Bar residing in that district, and one non-lawyer is appointed from each district by the governor.

Members: Michael A. Wolff, Chief Justice, Supreme Court, chair.

From Eastern District, Missouri Court of Appeals: Gerald T. Carmody, lawyer member, term expires December 31, 2005; Mildred Cohn, lay member, term expires December 31, 2006.

From Western District, Missouri Court of Appeals: Richard E. McLeod, lawyer member, term expires December 31, 2009; Jill Shurin, lay member, term expires December 31, 2010.

From Southern District, Missouri Court of Appeals: Steve Garner, lawyer member, term expires December 31, 2007; Bill Burch, lay member, term expires December 31, 2008.

Circuit Judicial Commissions

Nominations for judges of circuit courts are made by a five-member Circuit Judicial Commission consisting of the chief judge of the district of the Court of Appeals within which the circuit or the major portion of its population lies, two lawyers elected from their number by the members of The Missouri Bar residing in the judicial circuit and two non-lawyer residents of the circuit appointed by the governor.

Sixth Circuit (Platte County) Judicial Commission: Chair: Edwin H. Smith, chief judge, Missouri Court of appeals, Western District. Members: Gary W. Collins, Kansas City, lawyer member; Victor B. Peters, Kansas City, lawyer member; Diane Pepper, Kansas City, lay member; Pauli A. Kendrick, Weatherby Lake, lay member.

Seventh Circuit (Clay County) Judicial Commission: Chair: Edwin H. Smith, chief judge, Missouri Court of Appeals, Western District. Members: F.A. (Al) White Jr., Kansas City, lawyer member; Jon Michael Krebbs, Liberty, lawyer member; Susan Rose, lay member; Mary B. Jacobi, Kansas City, lay member.

Sixteenth Circuit (Jackson County) Judicial Commission: Chair: Edwin H. Smith, chief judge, Missouri Court of Appeals, Western District. Members: Cindy Reams Martin, Lee's Summit, lawyer member; John Kurtz, Kansas City, lawyer

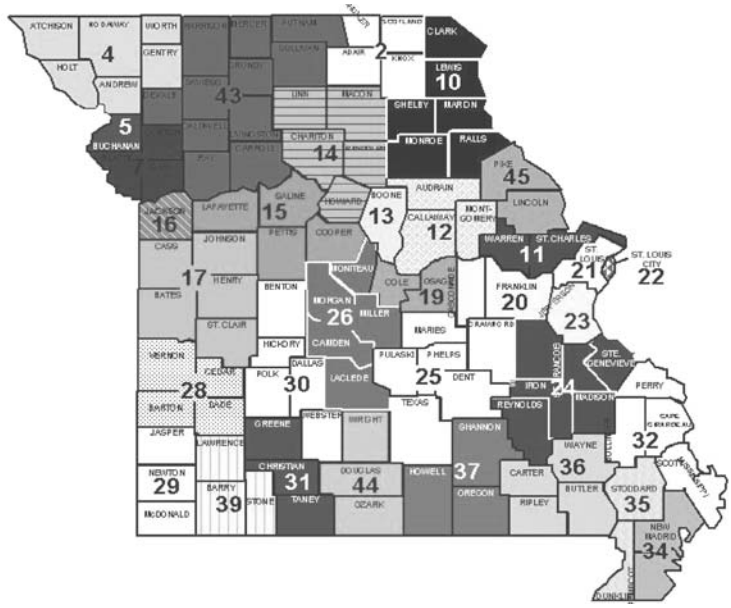
RSMo 600.019.1. creates the "Office of State Public Defender" as an independent department within the judicial branch of state government.

The Missouri Public Defender System (MSPD) is the organization responsible for providing legal representation to all indigent citizens accused of or convicted of.state crimes in Missouri.



DANIEL J. GRALIKE
Deputy Director
Public Defender Commission

Public Defender Commission

State law (Chapter 600, RSMo) provides for a seven-member Public Defender Commission to oversee the State Public Defender System. The members of the commission are appointed by the governor with consent of the Senate and serve without compensation for six-year terms. Four members must be lawyers, and no more than four members may be of the same political party.

Missouri State Public Defender Trial Division District Map

MSPD is a statewide department primarily comprised of three legal service divisions: the Trial Division, the Capital Division, and the Appellate/Post-Conviction Division. Attorneys in district offices within each division provide direct representation to indigent clients.

Attorneys are directly responsible for the representation of their clients. Their practice includes: meeting with clients, investigating cases, drafting motions, briefs, and memoranda, trying cases before both judges and juries in jurisdictions throughout Missouri, litigating cases before Missouri Appellate Courts, the Missouri Supreme Court, and the United States Supreme Court.

Trial Division

The Trial Division employs 300 full-time attorneys who represent indigent clients charged with crimes at the State Trial Court level throughout Missouri. The Trial Division has 36 district offices throughout the state.

The Youth Advocacy Unit within the Trial Division has attorneys in the St. Louis and Kansas City areas to ensure effective representation of juveniles. Attorneys in the unit litigate certification proceedings and jury trials in the adult court system, if the child is certified to stand trial as an adult. This specialized unit provides assistance to the other Trial Offices in juvenile matters.

The unit also employs investigators to examine the circumstances surrounding the criminal charge. Staff disposition specialists conduct social investigations and locate available resources to help the client with treatment needs. They act as experts for court, testifying about treatment needs and alternatives on behalf of our clients.

The Commitment Defense Unit represents indigent people throughout the State of Missouri against whom the government has initiated civil commitment proceedings based on the allegation that the citizen is a "sexually violent predator" (SVP). The unit was created in 1999 in response to Missouri's sexually violent predator legislation. This legislation enables the state to incarcerate individuals after they have completed their sentences for eligible sex offenses, and allows for indefinite civil commitment upon a jury finding that an individual meets the legislative criteria of a SVP.

The Alternative Sentencing Unit, also within the Trial Division, utilizes social workers as Alternative Sentencing Specialists. Staff in the Alternative Sentencing Program investigate and recommend resourceful, restorative alternatives to incarceration. These alternatives are specifically designed to meet the unique needs of the individual client in order to reduce recidivism. They also address the sentencing goals of punishment, deterrence, public safety, restitution, and rehabilitation.

Capital Division

The Capital Division of MSPD was established in 1989 to address the unique challenges that arise when the state seeks the death penalty. The purpose of this division is to provide the highest-quality representation to individuals against whom the State of Missouri is seeking the death penalty in the State Trial Court, the State Supreme Court, and the United States Supreme Court.

The division employs experienced attorneys who excel as litigators to handle the initial trial of the case. The division also employs experienced attorneys with exceptional appellate advocacy skills to handle the direct appeal of cases following a trial and sentence of death.

There are three Capital Division district offices within the state, located in St. Louis, Kansas City and Columbia. Trial attorneys in the division have the opportunity to try cases in both the urban and rural areas of Missouri.

Division of Appellate/Post-Conviction Relief

This division is to ensure that the constitutional rights of citizens are preserved and protected, and that the trial or guilty-plea process was fair and legal. In essence, the division monitors and provides quality control for the criminal judicial process.

There are six district offices in this division. The offices are located in St. Louis, Kansas City and Columbia in close proximity to most of Missouri's appellate courts.

Attorneys in this division provide representation to indigent citizens who have been convicted of felony offenses, after either a trial or a guilty plea. These attorneys handle direct appeals from non-capital felony convictions, post-conviction trial court challenges and appeals from post-conviction proceedings. The post-conviction practice includes providing aggressive representation to death-row clients at the trial-court level, and in the Supreme Courts of Missouri and the United States.

Chapter 6
Executive Departments

"The Hay Baler"
(Missouri State Archives, Putman Collection)

Executive Departments

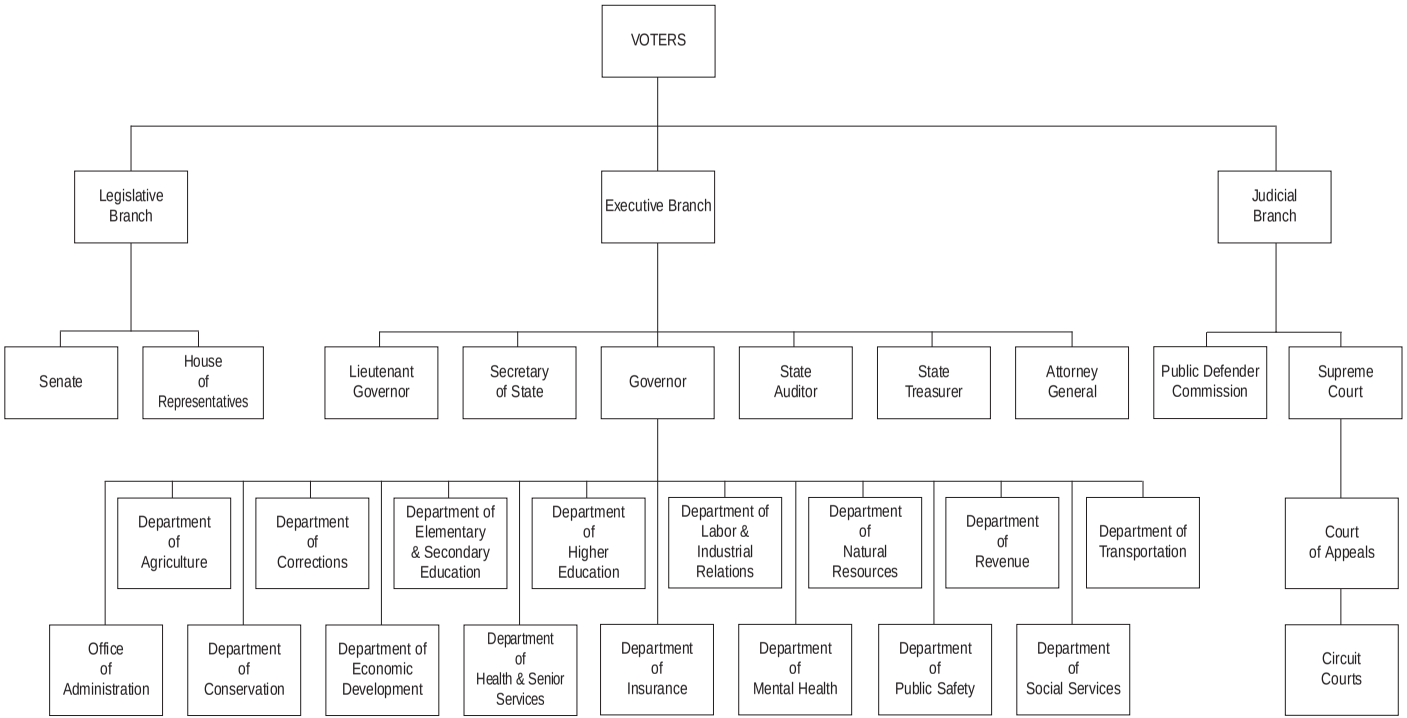
Government exists to serve, and a broad network of government organizations has been created to accomplish the purpose. The Missouri Constitution (Article II, Section 1) states: "The powers of government shall be divided into three distinct departments—the legislative, executive and judicial." This section also prohibits persons within each branch from exercising powers of the other branches. From these three branches spring the variety of organizations which deliver services of state government.

The many different names used by these groups—departments, divisions, agencies, boards, commissions, bureaus, units, sections, programs and others—can make it difficult to determine which area of government is responsible for certain services, and sorting out responsibilities or relationships within the governmental framework.

It is through the executive branch that the greatest proportion of state services are delivered. The Constitution (Article IV, Section 12) and the Reorganization Act of 1974 have established a number of "executive departments" to deal with specific areas of interest. A chart showing the present state departments is shown on the following page.

The Missouri Constitution provides for 16 specific departments: the Office of Administration and the departments of Agriculture, Conservation, Corrections, Economic Development, Elementary and Secondary Education, Health and Senior Services, Higher Education, Insurance, Labor and Industrial Relations, Mental Health, Natural Resources, Public Safety, Revenue, Social Services and Transportation.

Within each executive department exists a variety of offices of varying size and scope which deal with specific services. Traditionally, "divisions" are the next-largest organizations within departments and function to bring together smaller-sized groups, such as "bureaus," "sections" or "units." Divisions may be governed by a "board" or "commission" composed of members who are either appointed by the governor, made members by law or appointed by a department official. State agencies may administer certain sections of state law as defined by the Revised Statutes of Missouri, may develop their own rules and regulations as promulgated in the Missouri Register and Code of State Regulations or may institute programs and policies which address the needs of their areas of service.



Generally speaking, the legislative and judicial branches rely on committees or other small, appointed groups to perform research, develop policy, provide advocacy services or handle administrative duties. In these two branches services are delivered through the offices of the elected officials themselves and not by related agencies.

The Missouri Constitution

Since achieving statehood and joining the union on August 10, 1821, Missouri has operated under four Constitutions. The first was adopted in 1820 and was presented to Congress before Missouri was allowed to enter the union of states. The state's second Constitution, born in the bitterness and strife of the civil war, was drafted and adopted in 1865. It was replaced by a third Constitution only ten years later, in 1875. Missourians approved their current Constitution in 1945 and has been amended a number of times in order to meet the changing needs of our state and its people.

The Constitution of the State of Missouri is published by the Office of Secretary of State pursuant to the Revised Statutes of Missouri (RSMo 2.110). Copies of the Missouri Constitution, which also includes the text of the U.S. Constitution, are available without charge by contacting:

Office of Administration

State Capitol, Room 125
PO Box 809, Jefferson City 65102
Telephone: (573) 751-1851 / FAX: (573) 751-1212

The Office of Administration is the state's service and administrative control agency. Created by the general assembly on January 15, 1973, it combines and coordinates the central management functions of state government. Its responsibilities were clarified and amended by the Omnibus State Reorganization Act of 1974.

The chief administrative officer is the Commissioner of Administration who is appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate. The commissioner appoints the assistant commissioner, chief counsel, and the directors of the divisions who report directly to him. The divisions are: Accounting; Budget and Planning; Facilities Management, Design and Construction; General Services; Information Technology Services; Personnel; and Purchasing and Materials Management.

The Office of Equal Opportunity (OEO) assists and monitors state agencies in promoting and ensuring equal opportunity within state government through employment, provision of services and operation of facilities. The director of OEO reports to the assistant commissioner.

Division of Accounting

Truman State Office Bldg., Room 570
Telephone: (573) 751-2971 / FAX: (573) 751-7579

The Division of Accounting (ACCT) provides central accounting and central payroll system services for state government, producing checks and electronic payments for state vendors and state employees. ACCT publishes annual financial reports, administers bond sales for the Board of Fund Commissioners, Board of Public Buildings, and Board of Unemployment Fund Financing and administers the social security coverage for all employees of the state and its political subdivisions.

Division of Budget and Planning

Telephone: (573) 751-2345
FAX: (573) 751-9347 / (573) 526-4811

The Division of Budget and Planning (B&P) analyzes state government programs and provides recommendations and information to the commissioner of administration, governor, general assembly, and state agencies regarding fiscal and other policies. B&P prepares the budget instructions, reviews agency budget requests, prepares the annual executive budget, analyzes economic and demographic conditions, forecasts state revenues, and conducts technical policy and program analyses. To assist in state government management, B&P controls appropriation allotments, manages the automated state budget system, prepares legislative fiscal notes, reviews legislation, tracks agency performance measures, analyzes and develops policy options, and reviews federal issues and their impact on Missouri. B&P prepares population estimates and projections required by state and local agencies and is Missouri's liaison to the United States Bureau of the Census.

Division of Facilities Management, Design and Construction

Truman State Office Bldg., Rooms 730, 740, 780 and 840
Telephone: (573) 751-3339 / FAX: (573) 751-7277

The Division of Facilities Management, Design and Construction (FMDC) operates, maintains and manages state-owned office buildings and other structures at the seat of government and at other locations within the state. FMDC oversees leased property for agencies statewide. FMDC is also responsible for design, construction, renovation and repair of state facilities, and also reviews all requests for appropriations for capital improvements.

The division's Facilities Operations unit provides work environments for agencies that are tenants in state-owned office buildings. The division manages 22 structures in Jefferson City with approximately 1.75 million square feet of usable space, including the State Capitol and the Executive Mansion. In addition, the unit operates buildings in St. Joseph, Kansas City, Springfield and St. Louis. These facilities contain approximately 535,000 square feet of usable office space.

The division's Leasing Operations unit procures leased space for state agencies throughout Missouri. The lease program consists of approximately 500 separate contracts providing about 4 million square feet of workspace for approximately 14,000 tenants.

The division's Design and Construction unit is responsible for construction projects at state facilities other than institutions of higher education, state roads and highways and conservation facilities. The unit develops and reviews plans and specifications for state construction, selects consulting architects and engineers, oversees

Division of General Services

Truman State Office Bldg., Room 760
Telephone: (573) 751-0929 / FAX: (573) 751-7819

The Division of General Services (GS) provides essential support services to state departments and to the office of administration.

The Risk Management section administers the Legal Expense Fund and workers' compensation programs covering state employees, purchases insurance when required and monitors claims and exposures to loss. This section also sponsors the State Safety Steering Committee and advises state agencies on risk management issues.

The Missouri Public Entity Risk Management Fund (MoPERM) is a shared-risk pool offering tort liability, property and other coverages for participating political subdivisions of the state.

The State Printing Center provides agencies with a full range of printing and quick copy services.

The Vehicle Maintenance unit operates a central maintenance facility to provide mechanical repairs for state vehicles in the Jefferson City area.

The Flight Operations unit provides air transportation services to state agencies and officials to facilitate the conduct of state business.

The Fleet Management Program establishes statewide policies governing state vehicle operations and management; coordinates a centralized fleet information system and serves as a resource for fleet management issues.

The Governor's Council on Physical Fitness and Health promotes wellness to all Missourians through such programs as the Show-Me State Games, the Senior Games, the Shape-Up Missouri Fitness Challenge, Body Walk, and the Governor's Fitness and Health Leadership Awards.

The Missouri State Employee Charitable Campaign provides an annual opportunity for state employees to donate to any of over 1,200 charities.

The Mail Services unit provides interagency mail delivery services within Jefferson City and comprehensive mail services for the Office of Administration.

Information Technology Services Division

Truman State Office Bldg., Room 280
Telephone: (573) 751-3290 / FAX: (573) 751-3299

The mission of the Information Technology Services Division (ITS) is to provide technology services and solutions to the state's departments and agencies so that they can efficiently and effectively serve the citizens of Missouri.

This new division is an amalgamation of the former Office of Information Technology, charged with facilitating state-wide information technology (IT) direction and standards, and the former Division of Information Services that provides network, data center and telecommunication services for most of Missouri State Government.

By combining these two functions within the Office of Administration under the direction of the Chief Information Officer, it sets a foundation for a unified IT office that delivers superior quality at a reduced cost.

Guided by the vision of a consolidated IT workforce and collective direction, ITS aims to deliver available, reliable, and accessible IT systems and services in an environment striving for optimization and cost savings.

The Division of Personnel is responsible for the state's human resource management system and oversees the state's Uniform Classification and Pay System, as established in the State Personnel Law (Chapter 36 RSMo).

The Missouri Human Resource Management System is based on the principles of merit and fitness as determined by competitive examinations for employment, as well as objective and consistent human resource management policies and procedures. The system also grants employees the ability to appeal disciplinary actions. Approximately 36,000 state employees in six state departments (Office of Administration, Corrections, Health and Senior Services, Mental Health, Natural Resources and Social Services) and sections of three other departments (Economic Development, Labor and Industrial Relations and Public Safety) comprise the Missouri Merit System.

The Uniform Classification and Pay (UCP) system is designed to promote equity in pay among state employees in most executive branch agencies and to provide coordinated compensation policies. The UCP system covers approximately 40,000 employees of merit system agencies and employees from the departments of Agriculture, Economic Development, Higher Education (excluding colleges and universities), Insurance, Labor and Industrial Relations, Public Safety and Revenue.

The Division of Personnel is comprised of four sections:

Employee Services reviews applications for employment, ensures employees are assigned to appropriate job classes and develops and administers position classifications for agencies covered by the UCP.

Labor Relations provides negotiation and administration of formal agreements between employee elected unions and agency management.

Pay, Leave and Reporting provides information on the UCP; interprets policies on pay, leave, and hours of work, provides workforce reports and assistance with the SAM II HR/Payroll System, maintains list of individuals from whom agencies can select for Merit System jobs and ensures personnel transactions are in compliance with state personnel law.

Planning and Development provides management development training, performance management, process improvement strategies, employee suggestion program and employee recognition programs.

Division of Purchasing and Materials Management

Truman State Office Bldg., Room 630
Telephone: (573) 751-2387 / FAX: (573) 526-9815

The Division of Purchasing and Materials Management (PMM) is responsible for the procurement of all state-required supplies, materials, equipment and professional or general services. Certain agencies (e.g. MODOT) are considered exempt in some areas. The division executes procurement functions in accordance with applicable statutes by maximizing competition in the procurement process, conducting evaluations and negotiations as appropriate, and awarding contracts to the "lowest and best" bidders.

The materials management section, the State Agency for Surplus Property (SASP), is responsible for transfers and disposal of state surplus property to obtain the maximum return on investment. SASP acquires property declared excess by federal government agencies to distribute to eligible Missouri entities. SASP is also responsible for the statewide in-house recycling program.

Administrative Hearing Commission

Truman State Office Bldg., Room 640
PO Box 1557
www.oa.mo.gov/ahc

The Administrative Hearing Commission (AHC) is a neutral, independent administrative tribunal that decides disputes involving state agencies and another party, usually a private person or corporation. The AHC typically decides the cases after a trial-type hearing. It hears evidence and arguments from the state agency and from the other party. Any party, including the state agency, may seek review of the AHC decision from the judicial branch.

The statutes authorize jurisdiction for the AHC to resolve disputes over decisions of more than 100 state agencies. Chief among them are the director of the Department of Revenue's tax decisions, professional licensing decisions of many boards of the Department of Economic Development and other departments, the Department of Social Services' decisions on payments to Medicaid service providers and the Missouri Health Facilities Committee's decisions on certificates of need. The statutes commit other specific matters to AHC also. AHC resolves about 2,000 cases per year.

AHC consists of not more than three members, appointed by the governor and confirmed by the Senate, who serve six-year terms.

Board of Fund Commissioners

The Board of Fund Commissioners issues, redeems and cancels state general obligation bonds and performs other administrative activities related to state general obligation debt as assigned by law.

The board is composed of the governor, lieutenant governor, attorney general, state auditor, state treasurer and commissioner of administration. The governor is president of the board, and the state treasurer is secretary. An executive secretary performs staff functions for the board.

Board of Public Buildings

The Board of Public Buildings (BPB) is composed of the governor, lieutenant governor and attorney general. The governor serves as the chair, and the lieutenant governor is the secretary. The speaker of the house of representatives and the president pro tempore of the Senate serve as ex officio members of the BPB but do not have the power to vote.

Missouri law provides that the BPB has general supervision and charge of state facilities at the seat of government. The BPB also has the authority to issue revenue bonds for the construction of state office buildings and certain other facilities.

The board works with the Division of Facilities Management, Design and Construction and the Division of Accounting in carrying out its responsibilities.

Board of Unemployment Fund Financing

The Board of Unemployment Fund Financing is composed of the governor, lieutenant governor, attorney general, director of the Department of Labor and Industrial Relations and the commissioner of administration. The governor serves as chair, the lieutenant governor serves as vice chair and the commissioner of administration serves as secretary. Staff support is provided by the commissioner of administration.

The board is authorized to issue debt or credit instruments to provide funds for the payment of unemployment benefits or maintaining an adequate fund balance in the unemployment fund, and as an alternative to borrowing or obtaining advances from the federal unemployment trust fund or for refinancing these loans or advances.

The Children's Trust Fund (CTF) works to establish programs for the prevention of child abuse and neglect.

CTF is a public/private partnership located within state government, governed by citizens representative of the state and linked with other agencies at all levels (state and local, public and private). Funding comes from voluntary contributions from taxpayer refunds designated on state income tax returns, sale of CTF license plates, fees on marriage licenses, fees on vital records, a Federal Prevention Grant and other voluntary contributions.

Citizens' Commission on Compensation for Elected Officials

State Capitol, Room 125
Telephone: (573) 751-1851 / FAX: (573) 751-1212

In 1994 Missouri voters approved the creation of the "Missouri Citizens' Commission on Compensation for Elected Officials." This commission was established to ensure that the power to control the rate of compensation of elected officials of this state is retained and exercised by tax-paying citizens of the state.

Beginning in 1996 and every two years thereafter the commission will review the relationship of compensation to the duties of all elected state officials. The commission's recommendation of a salary schedule shall become effective unless disapproved by the General Assembly. The 22-member commission serves four-year terms.

The Governor's Council on Disability (GCD) serves as the voice and advocate for 949,000 Missourians with disabilities in state policy making. GCD works to make persons with disabilities aware of their rights and opportunities; increase employment opportunities for job seekers with disabilities; expand access to equal and full participation for all individuals with disabilities in their communities at the local, state and federal levels; and change the delivery system for assistive technology devices and services.

In 1947, President Harry S Truman issued an executive order establishing the President's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped. This federal agency was created to assist disabled World War II veterans with re-entry into the civilian workforce. Following President Truman's lead, Missouri established the Governor's Committee in 1949 after it became obvious that a local network was needed to disseminate information about work-related problems facing people with disabilities.

In 1988, the names of both the President's Committee and the Governor's Committee were changed to Committees on Employment of People with Disabilities, placing the appropriate emphasis on the individual workers and not their impairments.

The mission of GCD has naturally evolved from strictly promoting employment to addressing all of the barriers to employment and full participation in community life. To more accurately reflect the mission, the 1994 General Assembly renamed this agency the Governor's Council on Disability. GCD was transferred by executive order in 2004 from the Department of Labor and Industrial Relations (DOLIR) to the Office of Administration (OA) to better meet its mission.

Organization

The GCD consists of 21 council members, including the chair and one member from each state congressional district, as well as the executive director. The majority of GCD is comprised of people with disabilities representing various disability groups. Family members of people with disabilities, persons who represent other disability-related groups and other advocates fill the remaining positions.

The governor appoints the chair with the advice and consent of the Senate. The governor also appoints the 21 members-at-large. GCD meets at least quarterly to act as an advisory body to its staff and to discuss and suggest ways to address current issues affecting persons with disabilities in Missouri.

In the administration of its duties, GCD also offers assistance to help the various departments, divisions and branches of government to comply with all laws regarding persons with disabilities. To further that goal, the director of each state department designates at least one employee to act as a liaison with the council. The assistance offered includes educational programming and consultation on the rights of persons with disabilities.

The Missouri Assistive Technology Advisory Council (MoAT) was established by state statute in 1993 with a mission of increasing access to assistive technology for all Missourians with disabilities (Section 191.850–859 RSMo). MoAT members are appointed by the governor and include 12 consumer representatives (individuals with disabilities or their family members), two state legislators, two non-designated agency or organization representatives, and seven designated representatives from agencies that are a primary funding source for assistive technology. MoAT serves as the state grantee for the federal Assistive Technology Act, PL 108-364 and is responsible for administration of the state telecommunications equipment distribution program (Section 209.251-259 RSMo) and the state assistive technology loan program (Section 191.865-867 RSMo).

MoAT provides a variety of programs and services that enable individuals with disabilities to obtain and use assistive technology including a telecommunications access program that distributes adaptive telephones and adaptive computer equipment to Missourians with disabilities who are unable to use traditional telecommunications devices; an equipment loan program that allows schools and other agencies to borrow devices to try before they buy and to meet other short-term needs; an equipment exchange and recycling program that allows consumers to buy pre-owned adaptive devices at a price much less than new; a financial loan program that offers low interest, favorable term financial loans to enable the purchase of assistive technology and home modifications for individuals who would not qualify for traditional bank loans; and device demonstrations, training and technical assistance for consumers, disability service providers, state agency personnel and others to support appropriate and cost-effective assistive technology decision making.

Missouri Minority Business Advocacy Commission

State Capitol, Room 125
Telephone: (573) 751-1851 / FAX: (573) 751-1212

The Missouri Minority Business Advocacy Commission (MBAC) identifies and assesses the needs of minority businesses throughout the state; initiates aggressive programs to assist minority businesses in obtaining state and federal procurement; makes recommendations regarding state policies, programs and procedures; and provides a focal point to assist and counsel minority small businesses in their dealing with federal, state and local governments. MBAC also initiates and encourages minority business education programs, analyzes current legislation and regulations as they affect minority businesses; and receives complaints and recommendations concerning policies and activities of federal, state and local governmental agencies which affect minority small businesses.

MBAC Mission Statement: The purpose of MBAC is to increase economic opportunity for minority businesses so that we can improve the overall climate of the state of Missouri; and to develop and establish the inclusionary process for state departments so that they can meet or exceed the goals and objectives of the legislation and executive order designed to increase minority participation in state procurement.

The bipartisan Authority consists of five commissioners who are qualified voters of the State of Missouri and residents of Jackson County. The Jackson County Legislature submits a list of candidates to the governor to replace members of the Authority whose terms have expired. The governor then appoints the succeeding members from that list of candidates. The commissioners serve staggered terms of five years and hold office until a successor has been appointed and qualified. No more than three members may be of the same political party. The Authority is empowered to issue bonds.

The Jackson County Sports Complex Authority is authorized under the constitution and laws of the State of Missouri to plan, construct, operate and maintain a sports stadium fieldhouse, indoor and outdoor recreational facilities center, playing fields, parking facilities and other concessions within Jackson County; to negotiate and perform its obligations as landlord under lease agreements with the Kansas City Royals Baseball Corporation and the Kansas City Chiefs Football Club, Inc.; to oversee the maintenance and operation of the Harry S Truman Sports Complex in a fiscally responsible manner which will allow it to maintain its stature as a premier sports facility in the nation; to administer funds received from the State of Missouri, Jackson County, and the City of Kansas City, Missouri, or any other sources which are to be used for furtherance of its statutory duties; to develop a land use plan for potential development of the Sports Complex and to recommend to the county appropriate long-term leasing arrangements for the Sports Complex facilities; and to work with other political subdivisions, agencies and commissions for the furtherance of all types of sports, either professional or amateur, commercial or private, within Jackson County.

Established in 1985, the Missouri Commission on Intergovernmental Cooperation (MCIC) seeks to develop closer partnerships between state and local governments. The MCIC serves as a vehicle of communication through which state and local governments can meet to develop strategies to resolve shared, existing and potential problems on such issues as promoting economic and community prosperity, improving e-government access, linking state resources to local planning, and greater self-determination for cities and counties.

The MCIC functions as a clearinghouse of information relevant to intergovernmental issues and develops publications and reports on state-local issues.

The MCIC consists of 28 members. The governor appoints five members from the private sector and six from state government, the speaker of the house appoints two state representatives, the Senate president pro tem appoints two senators and various local government associations appoint the remaining 13 members.

The Missouri Ethics Commission (MEC) was created by the Missouri Ethics Law of 1991 (Section 105.955, RSMo). The commission is charged with enforcement of conflicts of interest and lobbying laws (Section 105.450-498, RSMo) and campaign finance disclosure laws (Chapter 130, RSMo).

The MEC is composed of six members, not more than three of whom may be the same political party. These members must be from different congressional districts, and no more than three can be from an odd- or even-numbered congressional district. The governor appoints the members of the commission with the advice and consent of the Senate. The commission elects a biennial chair and is assigned to the office of administration for budgeting purposes only.

The MEC receives and reviews complaints alleging violations of the conflict of interest and lobbying statutes and the campaign finance disclosure statute. After investigation of these complaints, the commission refers the complaints to the appropriate prosecuting authority or disciplinary authority along with recommendations for sanctions. The commission may also initiate judicial proceedings on its own.

The MEC reviews and audits reports required by the campaign finance disclosure law, the financial interest disclosure laws and the lobbying registration and reporting laws. The MEC acts as the public repository for such reports. The MEC provides information and assistance to lobbyists, elected and appointed officials, employees of the state and political subdivisions and the general public.

The Missouri General Assembly enacted legislation in 1974 (Section 105.900, RSMo) that created a deferred compensation plan for state employees. Employees are encouraged to contribute part of their compensation to the plan to be withdrawn upon retirement.

Under the act, the program is administered by a five-member commission, which includes one member of the House, one member of the Senate and three members appointed by the governor, with the consent of the Senate. The governor's appointees serve three-year terms.

The commission also administers a plan for contributions by the state, subject to annual appropriation, to qualified participants. The Office of Administration provides staff support to the commission for administration of the program.

The 87th Missouri General Assembly enacted legislation (Section 105.1000, RSMo) to create the Voluntary Life Insurance Commission. The commission administers a voluntary life insurance plan for state employees. The plan allows state employees to authorize voluntary payroll deductions for the purchase of life insurance products that have been procured through competitive bids. The Office of Administration provides staff support to the commission for administration of the program.

The five-member commission includes one member of the House, one member of the Senate and three members appointed by the governor with the consent of the Senate. The governor's appointees serve three-year terms.

The Missouri State Penitentiary Redevelopment Commission (MSPRC) was established in 2000, by authority of House Bill 621 of the 91st General Assembly.

MSPRC is composed of 10 members. Three commissioners, no more than two of whom shall belong to the same political party, are residents of Jefferson City and are appointed by the mayor, with the advice and consent of the governing body of that city; three commissioners, no more than two of whom shall belong to the same political party, are residents of Cole County but not of Jefferson City and are appointed by the county commission; and four commissioners, no more than three of whom shall belong to the same political party, none of whom shall be residents of Cole County or of Jefferson City, are appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate. The governor appoints one of the commissioners who is not a resident of Cole County or Jefferson City as chair of the commission. No elected official of the state of Missouri or of any city or county in this state is appointed to the Commission.

The Division of Facilities Management, Design and Construction provide staff for this commission. MSPRC may also employ staff or secure the services of consultants through contract for the purpose of conducting its business.

The purpose of MSPRC is to redevelop the real property which encompassed the grounds of the Missouri State Penitentiary for over 150 years, so as to maintain its historic value for present and future generations of Missourians, and to provide new uses for the property which will benefit the citizens of the City of Jefferson, the County of Cole and the State of Missouri as a whole.

The Second State Capitol Commission (SSCC) was established by the 91st General Assembly in 2001 by Senate Bill 470.

The purpose of the SSCC is to assure the future preservation and integrity of the capitol, and to preserve its historical significance. The Commission evaluates and recommends courses of action on the restoration and preservation of the capitol and the history of the capitol, as well as evaluates and recommends courses of action to ensure accessibility to the capitol.

The Commission works with the Office of Administration, the Archives Division of the Office of the Secretary of State, the historic program within the Department of Natural Resources, the Division of Tourism within the Department of Economic Development, and the Historical Society of Missouri.

Department of Agriculture

1616 Missouri Blvd., PO Box 630

Mission Statement:

"To serve, promote and protect the agricultural producers, processors and consumers of Missouri's food, fuel and fiber products."

Like Missouri's agricultural industry, the duties of the Missouri Department of Agriculture are diverse. Created by the General Assembly in 1933, the department enforces the state laws that regulate and market the agricultural industry in Missouri. The Department of Agriculture administers programs that protect Missouri's producers, processors, distributors and consumers of food, fuel and fiber, while marketing Missouri agricultural products at home and abroad.

Office of Director

The Missouri Department of Agriculture is managed by a director who is appointed by the governor and confirmed by the Senate. The director determines department policy, oversees the department's five divisions and serves as a liaison to the governor, state legislators, the agriculture community and the public.

The director's office serves a variety of constituencies and provides a representative voice on a broad range of public issues affecting Missouri farmers, ranchers, agribusinesses and agriculture policy makers. The director is responsible for enforcing state agricultural statutes and monitoring the success of the department's regulatory and promotional programs.

Housed in the director's office is the department's administrative and support functions: fiscal, human resources, public information, budget, grants management, information technology and policy and planning.

The director is a standing member of the State Milk Board, the State Fair Commission, the Missouri Soil and Water Districts Commission, the Missouri Development Finance Board, the Missouri Petroleum Storage Tank Insurance Fund and the Missouri Agricultural and Small Business Development Authority and a member of the Governor's Council for Plant Biotechnology.

Missouri Agricultural Statistic Service

The Missouri Agricultural Statistics Service is a federal-state cooperative agency. The service compiles and disseminates state, district and county agricultural information and conducts Missouri's portion of the National Census of Agriculture every five years. The service publishes state, district and county agricultural data, the weekly Crop and Weather Report and the monthly Crop and Livestock Reporter.

The Missouri Agricultural Statistics Service cooperates with the Missouri Department of Agriculture, University of Missouri and the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA).

Missouri State Fair

2503 W. 16th St.
Sedalia 65301
www.mostatefair.com

The Missouri State Fair is one of the state's largest agricultural events, with exhibits showcasing livestock, row crops, horticulture and floriculture. It also features agribusiness exhibits and displays of Missouri-produced commodities.

Established in 1899, the Missouri State Fair is one of the oldest in the nation. The fairgrounds, which cover 396 acres in Sedalia (Pettis County), are open year round, providing facilities for horse and livestock shows, art and craft festivals, camping, rallies and other events.

During the annual August fair, visitors enjoy educational and recreational activities, a carnival midway and musical entertainment.

The Missouri State Fair plays an important role in shaping Missouri agriculture, contributing to the state's economy and educating the public about the importance and necessity of agriculture.

State Milk Board

911-D Leslie Blvd.
Jefferson City 65101
Telephone: (573) 751-3830

The State Milk Board consists of 12 members, 10 of whom are nominated by the director of agriculture, appointed by the governor and confirmed by the Senate. The two remaining members of the board are from the state Department of Health and Senior Services and the Department of Agriculture.

Four of the appointed members of the board must be Grade A dairy farmers representing recognized producer organizations. Four appointees are active members of local health departments in the state. The two remaining appointees represent processor and consumer interests. No more than six of the 12 board members can be from the same political party.

The board administers milk inspection in relation to Grade A milk and milk supplies to assure uniformity of procedures and interpretation of milk inspection regulations. The Grade A or fluid milk activities of the state are supported by revenue from inspection fees.

The manufacturing grade dairy program enforces sanitation and quality standards for manufactured dairy products and provides market testing of all milk at the first point of sale. Milk procurers, manufacturing plants, field superintendents, testers, graders, samplers, bulk milk truck operators and market testing laboratories are licensed by the State Milk Board.

Agriculture Business Development Division

The Agriculture Business Development Division helps create opportunities for success for Missouri's farmers and agribusinesses. Division staff help facilitate growth in Missouri's agriculture-based businesses by providing business counseling, information and training on a sector-by-sector basis.

TERRY LONG
State Milk Board

TONY STAFFORD
Director, Agriculture Business Development Division

Areas of specialization include capitalization, business planning, marketing, industry development, product and brand development and organizational structures. Staff also helps facilitate growth in Missouri's agriculture-based industries by working with key players such as universities, associations, private sector partners and federal and state agencies to aid in the growth of each sector.

The division plays a key role in growing the demand for products raised and processed in Missouri by increasing consumer awareness and sales. The AgriMissouri marketing program serves as the overall brand for promotions, including retail, restaurant, foodservice, farmers' markets and agritourism promotions.

The division's International Marketing Program works worldwide to sell Missouri agricultural products. The program has an international office in Taiwan and works with the Department of Economic Development's offices across the world.

The Market Information and Outreach Program, another entity of the Agriculture Business Development Division, works to position the department as a state and national leader in providing information and outreach to both agriculture and non-agriculture audiences. The program also provides resources and market information needed to improve the economic environment for Missouri producers and increase public knowledge and appreciation of agriculture in Missouri.

The division is also home to the Missouri Agricultural and Small Business Development Authority (MASBDA).

AgriMissouri

AgriMissouri is a branded program designed to grow the demand for agricultural products raised and processed in Missouri. The program represents farmers, agribusinesses and farmers' markets statewide and plays a key role in increasing consumer recognition of Missouri's agricultural products through retail, restaurant and foodservice channels.

Domestic Marketing Program

The Domestic Marketing Program is comprised of specialists working with livestock, grain, forage, horticulture, agritourism, farmers' markets, specialty crops, aquaculture, dairy and natural and organic producers. Each specialist works with specific industry representatives or groups to establish marketing opportunities and promote commodities.

The primary objective is to enhance farm profitability in Missouri through innovations in technology, marketing and economic organizations. In addition to providing one-on-one assistance to producers interested in production, marketing or processing their commodities in new ways, the domestic marketing personnel work with a wide variety of professionals involved in value-added agriculture.

International Marketing Program

The International Marketing Program is a valuable link between Missouri producers, agribusinesses, the forest products industry and foreign agricultural buyers. Specialists work to facilitate contacts between buyers and sellers and assist Missouri suppliers in responding to international marketing opportunities.

The program provides potential exporters with services to:

- analyze specific market opportunities.
- establish contacts with foreign buyers.
- provide data on tariffs, health regulations, labeling requirements, export documentation, transportation, international financing and payment terms, insurance, etc.
- plan, arrange and participate in outgoing sales and incoming buying missions.
- assist and participate in domestic and international trade shows and other exhibitions.

The International Marketing Program works with USDA's Foreign Agricultural Service to provide export sales leads, international advertising and export assistance from agricultural attachés.

The program manages an agricultural trade office in Taipei, Taiwan. The program is also supported by state offices and representatives in Korea, China and Japan.

Market News

Producers need an unbiased, reliable, accurate and timely source for livestock and grain market news to remain competitive and assist them in making wise and profitable marketing decisions. Market News guides producers in production planning and provides a more even playing field in the marketplace.

Market News staff report prices from 22 livestock auctions and 15 grain markets in Missouri. Timber prices are reported monthly. Reports are also generated from direct sales and voluntary producer participation. To reach more customers with up-to-date market information, daily market figures are published on the Internet and through the Weekly Market Summary.

Outreach

Outreach provides targeted information about agriculture and departmental programs and services to educate, inform and engage the public. The program works to increase Missourians' knowledge of the economic, historical and social value of agriculture.

Outreach staff work with Missouri youth, encouraging them to pursue agricultural degrees and careers through the Missouri Agribusiness Academy, the Missouri Livestock Grading and Judging Contest, Building Our American Communities grants and educational scholarships. The program also helps youth build marketing and communications skills by participating in the Marketing AgriMissouri Products Contest.

Serving as a liaison with Missouri agricultural commodity associations, the program publishes current contact information for agriculture commodity groups, coordinates commodity merchandising council elections and prepares official proclamations.

The program also works to help producers identify ways to improve overall quality and market value of livestock in Missouri. Producers have the opportunity to participate in the Show-Me Select Heifer program and value-added calf programs.

Missouri Agricultural and Small Business Development Authority

Through its Beginning Farmer Loan Program, the Missouri Agricultural and Small Business Development Authority (MASBDA) issues tax-free bonds to lenders who make low-interest loans to farmers and small businesses. Up to $250,000 may be loaned to first-time farmers to purchase land or make improvements.

Through the Animal Waste Treatment System Loan program, the authority makes loans for animal waste treatment systems for up to 10 years at terms below conventional interest rates. Loans can be used to buy land for lagoons, build animal waste facilities or purchase waste-handling equipment—all of which work to prevent potential surface and ground water contamination.

The authority also administers the Single-Purpose Animal Facilities Loan Guarantee program, which provides banks with a 25 percent first-loss guarantee on loans up to $250,000 for as long as 10 years. Independent livestock producers may use the loans to finance breeding or feeder livestock, land, buildings, facilities, equipment, machinery and animal waste systems for producing poultry, swine, beef or dairy cattle.

The Missouri Value-Added Grant program provides grants of up to $200,000 to projects that add value to agricultural products and aid the economy of a rural community. Grants are for activities prior to start-up or expansion, such as feasibility studies, marketing studies or business plans.

The Missouri Value-Added Loan Guarantee program provides lenders with a 25 percent first loss guarantee on loans up to $250,000 for projects that add value to agricultural products.

Loans that finance land, improvements and equipment associated with a value-added enterprise may be guaranteed, as well as loans for the purchase of stock in a start-up cooperative that processes an agricultural product. Loans for plant stock for grapes that will be processed into wine are also eligible for loan guarantee.

The New Generation Cooperative Incentive Tax Credit program provides tax credits to induce farmer-investment in new generation cooperatives that process Missouri agricultural products into value-added goods, provide substantial benefits to Missouri's agricultural producers and create jobs for Missourians.

The Agricultural Products Utilization Contributor Tax Credit program allows the authority to grant tax credits in an amount of up to 100 percent of a contribution made by an individual, partnership, corporation, trust, Limited Liability Company or other donor. The contribution must be made to the authority to be used for financial or technical assistance for rural agricultural business concepts.

The authority is administered by a seven-member commission, which is appointed by the governor and confirmed by the Senate. The director of agriculture serves as an ex officio member.

Agriculture Development Fund

The Agriculture Development Fund provides loans and grants to rural Missouri residents. The following guarantees, loans and grants are available from the Missouri Department of Agriculture:

- Crop and Livestock Loan Guarantee Program–The guarantee program provides financial benefits to Missouri youth who undertake crop or livestock production projects.
- Building Our American Communities (BOAC) Grant Program–The BOAC Grant Program gives $18,000 annually to Missouri 4-H clubs and FFA chapters for aid in developing and advancing Missouri's rural communities.
- Missouri Agribusiness Academy–Thirty selected high school sophomores are given an opportunity to explore the state's vast agribusiness resources by viewing the various facets of agriculture, visiting agribusinesses and meeting leaders in agriculture, government and education. Academy students are selected through a competitive written application and oral interview process.

- Missouri Alternative Loan Program–This loan program is available for use by Missouri farmers and youth to finance the production, processing and marketing needs of an alternative enterprise.

Grape and Wine Program

The Grape and Wine Program is responsible for researching, developing and promoting Missouri grapes, juices and wine. The program is funded by tax on all wine sold in Missouri. These funds support the program's three sections: enology and viticulture advisory services, research and promotion and marketing. Program expenditures provide:

- professional advice to Missouri grape growers and wine makers.
- applied research for developing grape varieties and cold hardiness studies.
- consumer education to increase awareness of Missouri grapes and wine industry.

The program also administers the Missouri wine and juice competition and awards ceremony and hosts the Midwest Regional Grape and Wine Conference.

The Missouri Grape and Wine Program works closely with and supports the State Fruit Experiment Station in Mountain Grove. The program also receives counsel from the Missouri Wine and Grape Advisory Board.

Animal Health Division

The Division of Animal Health, under the direction of the state veterinarian, promotes and protects Missouri's diverse and dynamic livestock industry. The assistance and oversight provided by the division's programs ensure greater market access for Missouri's livestock and companion animal industries.

Animal agriculture accounts for about half of Missouri's annual agriculture cash receipts. The division administers laws and programs designed to control and eradicate livestock disease and to maintain and enhance the integrity of the state's animal industries. This includes both mandatory and voluntary regulatory programs for beef and dairy cattle, horses, swine, poultry, sheep, goats, exotic and companion animals.

The state's progress in national disease control and eradication is due to the cooperative efforts of livestock producers, markets, practicing veterinarians, other agencies and animal health staff. Through these cooperative efforts, Missouri has achieved bovine Tuberculosis and Brucellosis Free status, swine Pseudorabies stage V status and avian Pullorum-Typhoid Clean status.

The division also offers informative programs and publications on livestock quality assurance, food safety, environmental issues and disease control programs. In addition, the division operates two state-of-the-art diagnostic laboratories in Jefferson City and Springfield.

The Animal Health Division works to:

- safeguard the livestock industry against the threat of bioterrorist attacks.
- identify and add value to Missouri livestock through an electronic animal identification system.
- inform cattle producers about quality assurance, targeted breeding and cow herd management.
- increase awareness and understanding of environmental issues that affect production agriculture.
- present informative programs on marketing and food safety to small poultry producers.
- inspect Missouri meat processors to supplement existing USDA inspections.

Grain Inspection and Warehousing Division

The Grain Inspection and Warehousing Division is comprised of two programs that administer the Missouri Grain Warehouse Law, the Missouri Grain Dealer Law and the United States Grain Standards Act. These laws promote and protect commerce in the interest of grain producers, merchandisers, warehousemen, processors and consumers. They also promote a uniform official inspection system for the orderly marketing of grain.

This division collects and disburses funds for nine commodity merchandising programs.

Grain Inspection Services Program

The Grain Inspection Services Program is designated to officially inspect, grade and weigh all grains that have standards established under the United States Grain Standards. The program provides four primary services:

1. Official sampling is used to take a representative sample of grain from a particular lot;
2. Official inspection is used to determine and certify the type, class, quality or condition of grain;
3. Weighing certification is used to supervise the loading, unloading and weighing containers of grain; and
4. Chemical analysis is used to determine the protein or oil content of grain and to determine the existence of mycotoxins in grain.

Services are provided at inspection offices in Kansas City, Laddonia, Marshall, New Madrid and St. Joseph. The program is self-supporting and operates entirely on fees charged for inspection services performed.

Grain Regulatory Services Program

The Grain Regulatory Services Program protects public interest by auditing grain warehouses and grain dealers to determine grain obligations and financial solvency.

The program enforces Missouri's Grain Warehouse and Grain Dealer laws so producers are assured of storing or merchandising their grain with licensed, bonded, reputable and financially stable grain businesses. The program annually licenses approximately 200 warehouses and 400 grain dealers and conducts more than 900 audits and investigations.

Plant Industries Division

The Plant Industries Division is comprised of four bureaus and two programs, which together administer 14 separate state laws and cooperate in the administration of four federal laws. These laws facilitate agricultural production and marketing and provide consumer and environmental protection for Missouri citizens by regulating animal feeds and seeds, providing necessary certifications for interstate and international shipment of agricultural and forest products, ensuring plant pest protection for crops and forests, establishing grades and standards for fresh fruits and vegetables and regulating the use of pesticides.

Bureau of Feed and Seed

The bureau administers the Missouri Commercial Feed Law and the Missouri Seed Law. The feed law regulates the manufacture, distribution and labeling of commercial feed products in the state. Random inspections, sample analysis and label review of feed products and feed ingredients ensure that livestock producers and pet owners receive the feed product guaranteed on the label.

The bureau, in partnership with the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, provides the inspection reports and regulation involved with preventing Bovine Spongiform Encephalopathy (BSE), commonly called mad cow disease, in Missouri. The bureau also provides labeling assistance and investigates complaints related to animal feed.

The bureau regulates seed products offered for sale in the state. Seed is inspected, sampled, tested and labels are reviewed to ensure the product meets the labeled guarantees as to test date, origin, purity, germination and other claims that are made. The bureau cooperates with the United States Department of Agriculture's (USDA) seed regulatory and testing branch in regulating the interstate movement of seed.

Bureau of Pesticide Control

The bureau administers laws for registration, distribution and use of pesticides. All pesticides sold and used in Missouri are regulated by the Missouri Pesticide Registration Act. Bureau personnel inspect pesticides for proper labeling and registration and investigate misuse. The Missouri Pesticide Use Act allows the bureau to certify commercial, noncommercial and private applicators and public operators. The act also provides for licensing pesticide dealers and pesticide technicians.

Bureau of Plant Pest Control

The bureau administers laws to control insects, plant pests and plant diseases and administers the Missouri Plant Law, which mandates controlling harmful insects, plant pests and plant diseases through surveys, quarantines, nursery and greenhouse inspections and certification. The law also enables interstate and international shipments of Missouri plants and plant products.

As a service to Missouri beekeepers, the bureau works under the Missouri Apiculture Law to inspect and certify honey-bee colonies. These procedures are required for interstate shipment of honey-bees.

Bureau of Integrated Pest Management

The Integrated Pest Management Bureau administers the Boll Weevil Eradication Program.

In 2000, Missouri cotton growers voted to join the national effort to eradicate the boll weevil, a damaging cotton pest. The Missouri Cotton Growers Organization is working with the Southwest Boll Weevil Eradication Foundation to implement eradication efforts in Missouri with oversight from the Missouri Department of Agriculture. This is a grower-funded program paid through assessments on cotton production. The Integrated Pest Management (IPM) program is designed to help farmers in an integrated approach to pest control. IPM encompasses all techniques available to reduce reliance on nonrenewable resources, including pesticides.

Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Inspection Service

The inspection service consists of two programs:

1. Shipping-point inspections assure fruit and vegetable producers that their products meet quality grades.
2. Terminal market inspections assist wholesalers in gaining restitution for products that fail to meet purchase agreement quality standards.

Forest Resources Program

This program administers the Missouri Treated Timber Law to help ensure that consumers are purchasing quality treated wood products. Companies that produce or sell treated wood products are required to be licensed. Routine inspections and sampling are conducted at these facilities to verify state requirements are met.

The program also helps conduct the annual gypsy moth survey, a cooperative program between state and federal agencies to monitor for this exotic forest pest. The Missouri Department of Agriculture is the lead agency in this effort and annually places about 6,000 traps throughout the state to monitor for the gypsy moth's presence.

The forest resources program also administers laws associated with noxious weed control and eradication. The Missouri Weed Statutes identify the responsibilities for preventing the spread of 11 noxious weeds species and provide for counties to work cooperatively with the director of agriculture to help control noxious weeds.

Laboratory Support

Laboratories are maintained for analytical support to the seed, treated timber and commercial feed programs and other programs.

Weights and Measures Division

The Weights and Measures Division maintains surveillance of commercial weighing and measuring devices. The program is administered by the division and protects buyers and sellers when goods and services are exchanged.

The division's programs are operated in accordance with the National Institute of Standards and Technology. The division also is a member of the National Conference on Weights and Measures and the National Fire Protection Association.

Device and Commodity Inspection Program

As required by Missouri statutes, device and commodity field personnel inspect large and small scales, grain hopper scales, taxicab meters, odometers, timing devices, fabric measuring devices, milk for quantity determination, prepackaged merchandise and method of sale of commodities. The program enforces the Missouri Egg Law and the Missouri Unfair Milk Sales Practices Law.

Petroleum/Propane/Anhydrous Ammonia Program

The program combines a variety of services. Under the program, petroleum dispensers, petroleum terminal meters and metered fuel delivery trucks are tested for accuracy; service station pumps are inspected for accuracy and safety; LPG installations in public institutions and bulk and manufacturing plants are inspected; LPG carburetion in passenger vehicles, school buses and trucks are inspected; metered LPG delivery trucks are checked; and storage and handling of anhydrous ammonia are monitored.

Metrology Program

The Metrology Program conducts tests and calibrates and certifies field standards for state agencies and private institutions. The state metrologist is the official keeper of Missouri's primary standards of mass, volume and length.

Laboratory Support

Petroleum samples are collected by field personnel and submitted for testing. The petroleum laboratory analyzes gasoline, kerosene, heating oils and diesel fuel to make certain they meet state quality and safety standards.

The Moisture Meter Laboratory ensures the accuracy of grain moisture measuring devices and other equipment.

Department of Conservation

2901 W. Truman Blvd.
Jefferson City 65109
Telephone: (573) 751-4115 / FAX: (573) 751-4467

Brought into being by public demand for better management of the state's fish, wildlife and forest resources, the Department of Conservation was created in 1937 by an initiative process and statewide vote to amend the Missouri Constitution. It is headed by the Conservation Commission, whose four members, no more than two of whom may belong to the same political party, are appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate. They serve without compensation for staggered six-year terms. The Commission appoints the department director, who in turn appoints the staff. The staff is selected on the basis of training, experience, ability and character.

Four assistant directors assist, supervise and coordinate programs and activities carried out by divisions of fisheries, wildlife, forestry, protection, private land services, outreach and education, resource science, administrative services and human resources. They provide leadership for projects and initiatives assigned by the director, legislative liaison, partnerships and a policy coordination unit—which investigates issues. They also coordinate with major federal and state agencies, programs and projects, and lead strategic planning, environmental compliance, public input and human dimension studies.

The department's principal sources of revenue are receipts from the sale of hunting and fishing permits and the one-eighth of one percent conservation sales tax. Funds are also received from contracts and grants, primarily on a matching basis from federal aid provisions of the Wildlife Restoration, Sport Fish Restoration and Cooperative Forestry Assistance Acts.

Department funding was increased in 1976 when voters by initiative process proposed and approved a constitutional amendment for an addition to the state sales tax, earmarked for conservation use. Since then the department has acquired public land and expanded many programs–notably conservation education, law enforcement, forestry, fisheries, wildlife and assistance to private land owners and activities dealing with endangered species, non-game wildlife and natural areas.

The department's goals are communicated to the public and staff in this mission statement:

Administrative Services Division

The administrative services division is made up of three sections responsible for information technology, business and support services and design and development. In addition, the division administers maintenance personnel serving many department field offices, federal aid coordination and real property negotiations in support of conservation.

The information technology section provides strategic direction for the department's information technology assets which include all computer hardware and software systems, telephone systems, two-way radio and other telecommunications systems, and the coordination of those systems with other state agencies. It is responsible for managing and supporting those assets, and defining technology solutions to meet business needs.

The business and support services section is responsible for the business administration activities of the department. It maintains liaison with the State Treasurer, State Auditor, Office of Administration and Department of Revenue in the performance of these activities. It is responsible for revenue collection, accounts payable, accounting, purchasing, budget, payroll, data processing, inventory control and reimbursement documentation for federal aid programs. It is also responsible for distribution of hunting and fishing permits statewide to retail businesses for sale to the public. Revenue from the conservation sales tax, hunting and fishing permits, federal reimbursement, public use areas, sale of timber, publications and surplus property is received and deposited in the state treasury for department programs.

This section is also responsible for procurement, repair and disposition of vehicles, marine and other mechanical equipment; management of aircraft operations; operation of a distribution center and warehouse for publications, products and media loan services; operation of offset printing, mailing and sign production services; coordination of the department's earthquake/emergency preparedness plans; and administration of the employee uniform/clothing policy.

The design and development section administers the department's construction and development program and is responsible for development and maintenance of areas, buildings and grounds managed by the department. The section consists of two units: engineering and construction. The staff consists of professional engineering, architecture, land surveying, construction and support staff in the areas of drafting and computer applications. All work is highly specialized to meet the needs of the department's resource programs. Typical capital improvements projects are the development of wetlands, reservoirs, hatcheries, buildings, nature centers, river and lake public use access areas, stream corridor improvements and hunter safety training facilities.

The engineering unit handles all aspects of design and development of capital improvement projects including performing investigations, feasibility studies and environmental assessments; preparing design drawings and contract specifications and administering construction contracts. Boundary, construction and topographic surveys of all land acquisition and development projects are performed under the direction of the division's registered surveyors. Support staff provide technical assistance in the areas of computer applications; state-of-the-art AutoCAD drafting applications; and construction quality control. The cartography unit archives all lands acquired and produces various area maps. The construction unit maintains department facilities, and its skilled construction crews construct countless special projects throughout the state.

To effectively design and develop the department's diverse projects, staff combines experience in the fields of survey, soil mechanics, hydrology, river hydraulics, structural, architectural, mechanical, electrical, environmental, computer, CAD, drafting, construction, quality control and maintenance. This unique combination of engineering expertise and biological understanding allows creation of outdoor recreational developments that blend with the surrounding environment and enhance and expand resource habitat.

Creative thinking and innovative solutions by staff are the norm in coming up with original designs and new applications of existing techniques, such as covered floating docks at reservoirs to provide disabled user fishing access; automated control systems at river pump stations; ingenious wetland water control structures; rock-lined levee sections to work with instead of against flood waters; special light switch sensors in office buildings to lower utility costs; and disabled user accessible boat loading platforms at stream and river access ramps.

Fisheries Division

Missouri has about 1,163,000 surface acres of water comprised of nearly 900 public lakes (24% of surface acres), 486 miles of Mississippi River and 553 miles of Missouri River (22% combined), almost 16,000 miles of other permanent streams (8%), over 39,000 miles of intermittent streams (3%) and about 500,000 private lakes (43%). These waters support rich and diverse aquatic communities that are used, enjoyed and appreciated by millions of people each year. Fishing is one of the most popular and economically important uses of these waters. Each year, Missouri's 1.2 million sport anglers (16 years of age and older) make about 11.8 million fishing trips and generate more than 1.6 billion dollars in economic activity.

The Fisheries Division's mission is "to professionally manage the fish and associated aquatic plants and animals of Missouri for the use and enjoyment of the people." Its goals are to: maintain biodiversity and reduce the effects of aquatic nuisance species; provide enjoyable fishing trips; protect aquatic habitat; and inform and educate the public about Missouri's aquatic resources.

To carry out this mission and pursue these goals, the division has fisheries management staff in the department's eight regions. Management efforts are supported by five coldwater fish hatcheries, five warmwater fish hatcheries, a Stream Unit and central office staff. The division has 170 permanent and term employees and varying numbers of temporary employees.

Regional fisheries management staff (with headquarters in Cape Girardeau, Columbia, Kansas City, Kirksville, St. Joseph, St. Louis, Springfield and West Plains, and other staff in the California, Camdenton, Chillicothe, El Dorado Springs, Hannibal, Hartell Conservation Area, Lebanon, Liberty, Neosho, Sullivan, Clinton and Sedalia offices) are responsible for monitoring and maintaining the quality of the aquatic resources, managing the public fisheries resources for quality fishing, providing technical stream and lake management advice to private landowners and other public agencies, providing and assisting with public information and education programs, assisting with other department programs and representing the division and department on matters pertaining to the aquatic resources in their region.

The five warmwater hatcheries (Blind Pony, Chesapeake, Hunnewell, Indian Trail and Lost Valley) rear and coordinate the stocking of about 2.9 million fish in public waters, suitable private lakes, waters used for special fishing events and aquatic resources education. Their staff also develops methods of rearing endangered species. The five coldwater hatcheries (Bennett Spring, Maramec Spring, Montauk, Roaring River and Shepherd of the Hills) rear and coordinate the stocking of about 1.7 million trout in public waters. Their staff is also responsible for stocking and managing the popular Bennett Spring, Maramec Spring, Montauk and Roaring River trout parks.

The Stream Unit is responsible for working cooperatively with the Missouri Department of Natural Resources on administering the work of 2,730 Stream Teams, producing and distributing Stash Your Trash litter bags to canoe liveries, and providing stream training and technical services to regional division and department staff and other agencies.

The division's central office staff directs and administers division programs, develops and refines regulations, works on the acquisition and development of public fishing and boat access areas, administers the Community Assistance Program and Corporate and Agency Partnership Program, administers Federal Aid grants, coordinates angler recognition programs, develops and revises technical and popular written materials, distributes a weekly fishing report during the fishing season, and provides administrative support for division and department staff.

Forestry Division

The forestry division is responsible for management and protection of the state's forest resources. Major program objectives are to urge and aid forest landowners and forest industries to adopt practices designed to ensure sustainable forests; ensure the proper management and sustainability of public forest lands; cooperate with public and private agencies in the control and abatement of major attacks of forest insects and diseases; work with communities to develop sustainable urban forestry programs; and to improve rural fire protection throughout the state.

Some forestry facts: About 13.4 million acres or 30 percent of the land area of Missouri is covered by commercial forest land. Eighty-four percent of the commercial land is owned by about 200,000 owners. Approximately three-fourths of this forest land is oak-hickory type, five percent is shortleaf pine and oak-pine types and the remainder is in cedar and bottomland hardwoods. Missouri's forests support a large forest products industry with about 1,000 manufacturing plants producing lumber, railroad ties, cooperage, cedar and walnut items (including gunstocks and veneer), charcoal and other products. Over $3.5 billion per year is generated from processing forest products. Missouri leads the nation in the production of charcoal, cedar novelties, gunstocks, walnut bowls and walnut nutmeats.

Division personnel and volunteer rural fire departments annually suppress approximately 3,000 wildfires which burn 60,000 acres of forest and grassland. Although fire control efforts are concentrated in the more heavily forested counties in southern Missouri, protection is provided statewide.

Technical assistance, training and federal excess equipment are available at no cost to cooperating rural fire organizations. Federal legislation provides some funding to qualifying fire organizations on a matching basis. A rural forest fire equipment center is located in Lebanon. The center acquires and distributes federal excess property to rural fire departments for use in fire suppression activities.

"Operation Forest Arson" is a program to combat the high number of arson-caused wildfires. This program is combined with the Smokey Bear fire prevention campaign to educate school children.

Through a cooperative program with the U.S. Forest Service, technical and cost share assistance is provided to private woodland owners. This service is available statewide and includes tree selection and planting advice, forest management recommendations, forest products utilization and marketing assistance and wildlife management recommendations. In excess of 1,500 Missouri landowners are assisted each year by division foresters.

The forest health protection program ensures the continuing health of the forest resources through survey and detection, pest and control evaluations and public information. Pests are monitored and infestations reported through a network of trained citizen "forest keepers." Impact and control evaluations are accomplished through formal damage surveys using both ground and aerial mapping techniques. Public information includes diagnostic clinics, pest workshops, monthly status reports and handouts on common pests.

Tree Resource Improvement and Management (T.R.I.M.) is a cost share program that provides seed money for establishment or extension of community forestry programs including tree establishment and tree maintenance and care. The department provides 60 percent of total costs of projects up to a maximum of $10,000 for activities such as tree inventory, pruning, hazard tree removal, tree research care and tree planting.

Assistance is provided to forest landowners on resource availability, market information, new technology and training. Individual businesses are encouraged to improve utilization of forest resources and reduce output of residues through efficient environmentally acceptable manufacturing methods.

Since the department was established, over 580,000 acres of forest land have been acquired and are managed as sustainable forest ecosystems. Forest management results include biodiversity, watershed protection, wildlife habitat, forest products and recreational opportunities.

To encourage forest and wildlife plantings, five to seven million seedlings of 70 different tree and shrub species are produced at the George O. White State Forest Nursery to fill over 13,000 orders from Missourians. Every fourth grade student in the state receives an Arbor Day seedling produced at the nursery. Residents can order planting stock after November 1, for delivery the following spring at planting time.

The State Forestry Law was passed by the General Assembly in 1946 to encourage stable and permanent management of privately-owned forest lands. It strengthened department efforts to protect woodlands from fire and timber theft and to assist in forest management, as well as providing partial tax deferment on lands classified as forest crop land.

To be eligible for classification, forest land must conform to the following: market value of the land must not exceed $400 per acre; tract size must be 20 acres or larger; and the owner must agree to follow basic forest management requirements designed to keep the land in permanent forest production.

Land classified as forest crop land through 1974 is assessed for taxation purposes on a valuation of $1 per acre; subsequent classification at $3 per acre. Classification continues for a period of 25 years. To offset the loss of county taxes, the law provides for the department to reimburse counties based on a payment of 75 cents per acre per year on state-owned classified lands and 50 cents per acre per year on privately-owned classified lands. When timber products are cut for sale from classified forest crop land a yield tax on the amount sold is paid by the owner to the department.

Human Resources Division

Human Resources Division provides a full range of services that help the department attract and retain a diversified, dynamic workforce. Staff assist with recruitment and selection activities; administer salary and fringe benefits programs; oversee a comprehensive group life, medical, accidental death and dismemberment and dependent life insurance program; maintain official employee documents and records; and manage a safety program (including workers' compensation).

Equally important to the department are other Human Resources Division activities which include monitoring the department's compliance with employment practices relating to Affirmative Action, ADA and drug testing; providing employee training and development programs; administering employee assistance and wellness activities; and facilitating the disciplinary and grievance processes.

Outreach and Education Division

The Outreach and Education Division is dedicated to helping Missourians connect with nature in our state in a variety of ways. The goal is to educate young and old about how to sustain a healthy environment, make good use of fish, forest and wildlife resources and also enjoy nature-based outdoor recreation.

One of the division's most popular works is the Missouri Conservationist magazine, a source of conservation ideas that has been free to adult Missourians since 1938. More than 450,000 people now receive the magazine directly. A newer quarterly section in the magazine aimed at youth, Outside/In, is also produced in special bundles for school children throughout the state.

The website at www.missouriconservation.org has grown tremendously in the past several years as a handy source of conservation information. Highlights include maps and tips for conservation areas to visit, the Missouri Conservationist online, a calendar of events for each region of the state, seasonal hunting and fishing reports, and links to special programs such as Grow Native! and No MOre Trash! A weekly news release, All Outdoors, provides outdoor information on a statewide basis, while a more local perspective is provided through media specialists working directly with news media in each region.

Television viewers can catch Missouri Outdoors, the department's Emmy Award-winning TV show on channels throughout the state. The TV story collections, along with many other conservation videos, are also available free to schools and public libraries. Missourians can also learn about subjects as diverse as how to fish, create excellent wildlife habitat, follow hunting regulations and identify snakes through the division's many free brochures and booklets. In addition, the popular Natural Events Calendar, conservation books and videos are also available at low cost at our conservation offices and nature centers, nature shop catalog or online website.

An outstanding network of conservation learning centers helps bring people and nature together across the state. Nature centers in Blue Springs, Jefferson City, Kirkwood, Springfield, and Cape Girardeau, and visitor centers in Andrew, Taney, St. Charles and St. Louis counties offer unique nature exploration programs. Staff also teach at the WOW museum in Springfield. The Discovery Center, located in the heart of Kansas City, offers a new approach to learning by featuring six workshops that offer hands-on instruction to school groups and individuals in a building that highlights energy-efficient design.

Conservation education staff also work with teachers and administrators at public, private and parochial schools, colleges and universities, other governmental education agencies, as well as youth leaders and community leaders to ensure that Missouri's natural resources can be sustained in a healthy environment for generations to come. Services include: developing and distributing a variety of teaching materials correlated with testing needs; assisting with teacher workshops and courses; and providing demonstration teaching and outdoor learning opportunities. Staff work with school leaders who want to use their own outdoor classrooms, which enable students to learn in an "outdoor laboratory" based on natural habitats.

Conservation materials available to teachers and students include a preschool publication, Conservation Seeds, a series for K-2 students in a quarterly print format, and Habitat Packs for 3rd and 4th grade classes that focus on streams, forests, prairies and wetlands. A quarterly conservation education newsletter for teachers, The Resource, is sent to more than 12,000 educators throughout the state.

Another important part of the outreach and education effort focuses on teaching people the skills to enjoy Missouri's outdoors safely and responsibly. As more Missourians grow up in urban landscapes, they have less contact with the natural world. The division's outdoor skills specialists work to give Missourians of all ages direct experience in nature-based activities such as camping, fishing, hunting, birding, canoeing, trapping and orienteering. By working with other conservation education staff, the outdoor skills staff teaches not only the hands-on skills, but also an understanding of what it takes to create the healthy habitat on which that skill depends. Outdoor skills staff work with teachers and youth leaders to provide hands-on conservation skills for students. They also create special classes for adults.

The outdoor skills staff also work with conservation agents to coordinate the many volunteers who provide hunter education training. In 1988, that training became mandatory for all persons born on or after January 1, 1967, as a prerequisite to purchase any firearms hunting permit. Since 1988, more than 430,000 people (about 30,000 per year) have been certified to hunt in a safe and ethical way.

Learning to safely handle firearms is part of the training, but hunters also need places to practice. In response to demand, the department in 1972 began to develop shooting ranges that meet or exceed national safety standards for shooting range design. Five staffed training center ranges and numerous unstaffed conservation shooting ranges have been created to provide Missourians with opportunities to practice their skills using firearms and archery equipment. The training centers also provide classroom opportunities for other conservation education.

Private Land Services Division

The mission of the Private Land Services Division is "to help landowners achieve long term conservation of natural resources and meet their land use objectives in ways that enhance land stewardship." The health of much of our state's natural resources is dependent on the land stewardship of private landowners, as approximately 93 percent of Missouri's landscape is in private ownership. Providing sound natural resource information and technical assistance to these private landowners is critical to long-term sustainability of our forest, fish and wildlife resources. The Private Land Services Division includes a staff of resource professionals dedicated to working with private landowners to improve forest, fish and wildlife conditions on their property.

We promote the wise use of fish, forest, wildlife and natural communities through voluntary participation, information, education and financial assistance. Private Land Service's personnel strive to provide prompt, professional assistance to landowners in the evaluation of natural resource conditions and recommend appropriate management and improvement techniques. Private land conservationists provide one-on-one assistance, tailoring management recommendations to the land use goals of the landowner and cite specific natural resource needs. Teams of resource professionals from all department divisions work collectively and independently with landowners and other resource partners to address important resource issues. Community conservationists provide assistance to urban developers, homeowners, city and county planners and others to address natural resource protection and management during and after development. Wildlife damage control biologists provide assistance to landowners experiencing damage to their property by wildlife, including beaver, coyote, otter, Canada geese, deer and others. Wetland wildlife biologists provide specialized technical assistance to landowners to restore and manage wetland habitats. Wildlife Services Biologists work closely with the USDA Natural Resource Conservation Service to interpret and apply the forest, fish and wildlife conservation programs available to landowners through the USDA Farm Bill.

Establishment of partnerships with state and federal agencies, commodity groups, agribusinesses and conservation organizations help achieve shared natural resource goals. The department has established effective working partnerships with the Natural Resources Conservation Service and Farm Service Agency to integrate fish, forest, and wildlife considerations into implementation of Farm Bill programs that include the Conservation Reserve Program (CRP), Wetlands Reserve Program (WRP), Environmental Quality Incentive Program (EQIP) and Wildlife Habitat Improvement Program (WHIP). To complement funding available through Farm Bill programs, the department offers a multi-faceted cost share program which provides cost-share payments to landowners for implementation of selected natural resources management practices. In addition, liaison efforts with agriculture agencies and groups have fostered communication and understanding of fish, forest, and wildlife issues within the agriculture and conservation communities. These efforts are enhanced through serving on Farm Bill committees, task force groups and agricultural advisory councils.

The Private Land Services Division promotes the development of alternative economic opportunities that benefit Missouri landowners and our natural resources. For example, native warm season grass planting and management assistance is provided through the grassland biologists on thousands of acres each year. The Missouri Ecotype Program is a complementary native plant program that encourages the use of native plant materials in backyard landscaping and for larger native community restoration projects. This program works to increase the supply of true Missouri native plant materials through the production and sale of native plant materials providing potential alternative economic opportunities for Missouri landowners.

We encourage a land stewardship ethic among landowners, strive to increase community involvement, build trust, and heighten understanding of the department's overall mission. Our staff of private land conservationists, wetland wildlife biologists, wildlife services biologists, community conservationists and wildlife damage biologists are strategically located throughout the state to provide routine contact with landowners, communities, civil clubs, churches, schools and others. This interaction with Missouri's citizens provides the foundation for building understanding between different interest groups and ensures a well informed approach to conservation of our natural resources.

Protection Division

The Protection Division is composed of uniformed conservation agents and support staff. Conservation agents, by official designation, serve as department representatives in their assigned areas and must be well versed on all department programs. They have responsibility for enforcing all statutory enactments related to fish, wildlife and forestry, and rules and regulations promulgated by the Conservation Commission. Conservation agents are certified as peace officers to enforce all state laws on lands owned, managed or leased by the department. Many agents are also commissioned by the U.S. Department of the Interior to enforce federal conservation laws.

Resource law enforcement is very important in managing Missouri's fish, forestry and wildlife resources. Conservation agents are assigned to each county in the state and are responsible for carrying out a wide range of wildlife-related law enforcement duties. Patrols by vehicle, boat and foot are routine. Agents depend heavily on help from local citizens to report violations.

Although law enforcement is the division's primary function, only about half of an agent's time is devoted to that activity. Other duties include hunter education, resource management assistance to landowners, media contacts, and educational and informational programs to youth and adult groups. Numerous surveys, censuses and special field studies are conducted for state and federal fish and wildlife research personnel.

Many special programs require personal contact with individual landowners. Preparation of land-use plans, delivery of seed and wildlife plantings, inspection of developments and periodic progress reports are involved in wildlife habitat improvement and fish stocking programs.

Preliminary contacts with landowners and arrangements for wildlife management projects, lake development and other large-scale department projects are delegated to agents. Frequently, community interest and participation in department projects designed to provide or increase local recreational opportunities result from encouragement or initiation by agents.

In addition to fish, wildlife and forestry program duties, many agents present regularly scheduled informational or educational programs on radio and television. A number of newspapers in the state carry weekly outdoor columns prepared by conservation agents.

Although hunter education and shooting ranges are administered by the Outreach and Education Division, conservation agents work closely with outdoor skills supervisors to ensure that these important programs reach as many citizens as possible in an efficient manner. Agents help to recruit, train and supervise hunter education volunteers. They also personally instruct many of the hunter education courses held in their assigned districts.

Two important programs administered by the division in cooperation with the Conservation Federation of Missouri are Share the Harvest and Operation Game Thief.

Share the Harvest provides Missouri deer hunters opportunities to donate all or part of their harvest to needy Missourians. Meat processors, charitable agencies and sponsors work with hunters, the Conservation Federation, Missouri Department of Conservation and corporate sponsors including Shield of Shelter Insurance, Bass Pro Shops and others to distribute much needed meat to hungry families. Over 275,000 pounds of venison were donated by 5,161 deer hunters during the 2004 firearms deer season.

Operation Game Thief provides an avenue for concerned citizens to report poaching through a centralized toll-free hotline. Rewards for information leading to the arrest of violators are available. Since the inception of this program in 1982, over 4,500 arrests have been made with information supplied by concerned citizens. Although rewards are offered for information leading to arrests, less than two thirds of citizens supplying information resulting in arrests actually request rewards. This program has been shown to be an effective means of public awareness and involvement in protecting the natural resources of Missouri.

Resource Science Division

The mission of the Resource Science Division is to provide the science-based information needed to conserve, appreciate and effectively manage the living resources of Missouri. Natural resource management is based on sound biological, geographical and sociological information. Conserving Missouri's natural heritage will require development of new management and research techniques and an emphasis on management evaluation, surveys, monitoring and long-term research.

An integrated focus in the Resource Science Division is organized around six systems and functions rather than traditional disciplines and also is dedicated to delivery of management assistance through five field stations. Functions and services centralized at the Resource Science Center in Columbia and the Department's Central Office in Jefferson City include a Terrestrial Systems group and an Aquatic and Wetland Systems group as well as units delivering services for Science and Policy Support, Geographic Information Systems (GIS), Environmental Health and Management Evaluation and Support. Field stations are dedicated to Grasslands Systems (Clinton), Forest Systems (West Plains), Big Rivers / Wetlands Systems (Cape Girardeau), Agricultural Systems (Kirksville) and the Missouri River (Chillicothe). Field station studies are actively integrated with projects from the Resource Science Center; all division staff have statewide or cross-regional responsibility.

Terrestrial Systems staff strives to understand plant and animal habitat relationships, monitor population status and develop harvest and species management recommendations. Staff are regularly involved with specialized projects to monitor wildlife diversity. Projects such as the Flora of Missouri, in cooperation with the Missouri Botanical Garden, are documenting the range and status of the over 3,000 plants found in Missouri. Annual population surveys of reptiles and amphibians, songbirds, mourning doves, wild turkey, whitetailed deer and bats secure the knowledge necessary for regulations and habitat conservation.

Aquatic and Wetland Systems scientists conduct research and surveys that center on issues involving fisheries management, wetland and waterfowl management, fish communities, watersheds, stream-riparian-floodplain systems, interactions among predators and prey and species of concern. Primary focus is on translating new knowledge about natural habitat processes into habitat management and restoration techniques that benefit people and aquatic resources. An integrated approach, encompassing aquatic and wetland species and communities of concern, is being used to investigate stream, river, wetland and floodplain systems and their associated species. Additionally, a specific focus on water quantity studies includes instream flow, stream bank stabilization and watershed influences. Harvest management recommendations for statewide fish populations, waterfowl and other migratory birds are developed by the Aquatic and Wetland Systems staff.

Science and Policy Support staff work to link and improve access to databases documenting Missouri's rich biodiversity. A web-based archival and retrieval system allows all employees to enter data, and a centralized data warehouse provides advanced querying techniques on data for species and communities of interest. Work on data standards and protocols facilitate information sharing and data transfer. Database managers and systems analysts provide custom database and web programming support to assist staff in entry, manipulation, analysis, transfer and presentation of data.

Post season harvest surveys, attitude surveys and public-use surveys are conducted to better understand the opinions and attitudes of Missourians and to ensure that human dimensions information is integrated with biological information to inform natural resource management decisions. Natural resource economics data is collected in conjunction with the public use and attitude information.

Biometricians ensure statistically sound study designs and the use of appropriate statistical techniques to analyze and interpret complex natural resources questions and are a key link in the application of adaptive resources management to field projects.

Geographic Information Systems (GIS) will continue to play an ever increasing role in the natural resources management, planning and evaluation. The goal of the GIS program is to fully utilize geospatial technology and products to support natural resource decisions, archive the processes and evaluate the results.

At the core of the GIS program is a team of Resource Science professionals that support over 300 ArcInfo and ArcView users. Central to the program is a GIS center that provides user access to ArcGIS software as well as the ERDAS Imagine GIS suite. An ArcIMS server provides on-line mapping capability to department staff as well as the Missouri citizenry. Monthly training courses are conducted to help train new ArcView users as well as improve the skills of existing users.

The Environmental Health unit primarily provides the services that ensure monitoring and protection of Missouri's forest, fish and wildlife resources. Primary functions include protecting aquatic biodiversity, forest health, fish health and providing responsive service to agency staff, the public and other agencies and entities. The Environmental Services staff coordinates pollution and fish kill investigations (in cooperation with Dept. of Natural Resources), monitors contaminants in fish (in cooperation with Dept. of Health & Sen. Svcs.), coordinates a variety of intra- and interagency projects and provides expertise and guidance on water quality issues. The Forest Health program ensures the continuing health of forest resources through survey and evaluation of forest pests, detection of invasive species and public information on forest pest management. Public information includes diagnostic clinics, pest workshops, regular status reports and handouts on common disease and insect pests. The veterinary fish pathologist certifies disease-free fish from hatcheries and diagnoses and treats diseases and parasites in public and private waters and fish hatcheries. The mussel program works to conserve, manage and restore Missouri's native freshwater mussels through research and monitoring, education and advocacy programs. The program works with hatchery staff, other state and federal agencies and universities to conduct research, develop rearing techniques for species of concern (including endangered species) and monitor mussels statewide. The genetics program supports biodiversity by documenting genetic diversity of species for management and restoration programs and providing information regarding the use of animal and plant resources. The program assists agency hatcheries and nurseries with production and post-release success through various genetic identification and marking techniques and maintains an archive of DNA from native animals and plants.

The Management Evaluation and Support group provides the specific focus on research and monitoring to support field staff. This involves coordinating, designing and conducting surveys, monitoring efforts and applied research aimed at understanding the impacts of management actions on Missouri's natural resources on public and private lands. Staff are involved in increasing the understanding of how local habitat manipulations fit into watershed level conservation strategies.

The Resource Science Division manages Missouri's Natural Heritage Program, which tracks the status and occurrence of 1,111 species of conservation concern and high quality natural communities and ensures that they are carefully documented, mapped and updated. In 2004–2005, more than 2,300 new records of endangered resources and natural communities were mapped and documented, and updates and corrections were made on approximately 300 of the 17,000 total records. Resource Science staff regularly conduct specialized inventories and surveys related to threatened and endangered species and natural communities within Missouri. Information generated from these efforts are recorded, mapped and documented in the Natural Heritage Database and the Missouri Fish and Wildlife Information System (MoFWIS), a searchable database of habitat, management and distribution data on more than 700 species. Both databases are available on the department's website.

Wildlife Division

The Wildlife Division's mission is to conserve for long term public benefit Missouri's wildlife resources and the landscapes on which wildlife depend, and to manage public lands to conserve and enhance their natural resources, provide vital ecosystem services, and invite public use and enjoyment. The Wildlife Division uses the best possible information, expertise, and judgment to manage game and furbearer species and to conserve all native plants, animals and natural communities. While this commitment is statewide, there is a special responsibility for exemplary management on public conservation lands. The division manages nearly 500,000 acres of land on roughly 400 conservation areas, considering both the needs of wildlife and the needs of citizens to use and enjoy public lands. Hiking, hunting, birding, fishing, mushroom gathering, camping, wildflower viewing and canoeing are examples of activities on conservation lands. In recent years the division has made a special effort to increase hunting opportunities and to introduce youth and other new hunters to dove, deer, turkey and other types of hunting. Another initiative has been to acquaint more people with the opportunities for nature viewing, especially birding, on conservation areas.

Good conservation management of public lands provides general environmental benefits to all citizens by maintaining the ecological health of our forests, prairies, glades, wetlands and streams. Healthy ecosystems produce fish, forest and wildlife resources. They also contribute to high water quality, groundwater recharge, air quality, soil erosion control and watershed protection. The division also provides technical advice on resource management to other agencies, organizations, industry, private landowners and other citizens.

In addition to wildlife and biodiversity conservation planning and implementation, the division administers the department's Natural Areas, Endangered Species, and Landowner Incentive Programs. It provides department-wide coordination of hiking, biking and equestrian trails, invasive species control, the national Northern Bobwhite Quail Initiative, wetland conservation, biodiversity conservation and the Missouri Comprehensive Wildlife Conservation Strategy. The Conservation Strategy enlists partner agencies, organizations and individuals to create shared visions for partner-driven implementation. Another example of conservation partnerships is the Missouri Bird Conservation Initiative, a consortium of over 30 organizations working together for all bird species.

The division helps develop regulations for the management of wildlife, and assists with research and monitoring to adjust regulations and to improve conservation practices and public outdoor recreation opportunity. It works to restore healthy populations of wildlife and plant species, and diverse natural communities that have declined or disappeared from the Missouri landscape. Past successes include wild turkey, white-tailed deer, bald eagle, peregrine falcon, osprey and river otter. Wetlands, glades, woodlands, prairies and savannas are natural communities that will continue to receive special restoration emphasis.

General Counsel

The General Counsel provides legal advice and opinions to the commission and department staff. All contracts and litigation in which the department, commission or a staff member is a party are handled by the General Counsel. Other functions include contract review, donor program support, employee training and review of administrative regulations.

Internal Auditor

The internal audit function provides an independent review and evaluation of designated department activities. It assists the commission and director by furnishing analyses, appraisals, recommendations and pertinent information concerning the activities reviewed.

DAVID ROST
Deputy Director

The Department of Corrections is an agency dedicated to public safety through the successful management and supervision of offenders on probation, in prison and on parole. The department's responsibility is to administer the sentence set by the court in ways that promote public safety at the lowest cost to taxpayers. Offenders assigned to the department are successfully managed by ensuring they are supervised at the correct custody or supervision level. A cadre of over 11,500 well-trained correctional professionals committed to the vision, mission, values and professional principles of the department, assess each offender's criminal history, evaluates community and institutional conduct and enforces court orders and department rules. This mixture of on-going assessment, classification, referral to supervision strategies and assignment to basic habilitation interventions are several of the key methods used to promote sober, responsible, productive and law-abiding behavior. When offenders are held accountable for their behavior and responsible for their actions, the public's safety is enhanced.

In all, the department is responsible for the care, custody and supervision of approximately 95,000 adult offenders in Missouri. There are currently more than 31,000 adult felons confined in Missouri's 20 correctional facilities and two community release centers. The department also supervises 15,000 parolees and 49,000 probationers across the state.

There are four divisions within the department. The management of felons and selected misdemeanants committed by the court are divided between the Division of Probation and Parole and the Division of Adult Institutions. The Division of Offender Rehabilitative Services provides program services to felons assigned to probation, parole or prison. All staff related activities and special program services are provided through the Division of Human Services.

The department utilizes strategic planning to promote continuous improvement and excellent customer service at all levels of the organization. This commitment to continuous improvement ensures that offenders under the supervision of the Department of Corrections are assigned to the correct custody classification and receive those services that reduce criminal behavior and promote the longest lasting public safety through a measurable reduction in recidivism and revocation.

The strength of the Department of Corrections is found in the women and men who serve around the clock to ensure that offenders are supervised at the most appropriate level with the greatest care for public safety. To assist our staff in their challenging work, the department has developed policies and procedures based on statutes, case law and the best practices in the field.

To ensure that policy and procedure are representative of the needs of staff and adhere to legal obligations, the department assigns task forces and work teams to research different operations to review and rewrite policy. This practice allows the department to not only examine its operations, but receive input from those who are required to implement the policies and procedures prior to approval by administrators and the executive staff.

Training is essential to building and maintaining a professional staff. The department has established a Training Academy with its headquarters in Jefferson City and Regional Training Centers in Farmington, Jefferson City and St. Joseph. A full-time professional training staff works at each center to ensure that training is delivered consistently, accurately and completely across the state. Staff outside the training centers is also enlisted to assist and conduct training in specialized topics. This brings the professional expertise of our working staff to newly hired employees.

Sometimes overlooked are the line staff and supervisors dedicated to providing quality correctional supervision to offenders. Working together these units of probation and parole officers, correctional officers, clerical, cooks, substance abuse counselors, caseworkers, maintenance, teachers, treatment staff and others blend into a team that holds offenders accountable for their behavior and responsible for their actions. Through a combination of supervision strategies and classification criteria, offenders are supervised in ways that address public safety concerns while meeting the needs of the offender. Supervision levels in the community range from intensive to minimum supervision, and community corrections programs such as electronic monitoring and residential facilities. In the prisons there are five custody levels that range from minimum (C-1) to maximum (C-5). Using objective criteria to establish supervision and custody levels ensures offenders of corresponding need and disposition are supervised and confined safely and securely with appropriate programming.

The employees of the Missouri Department of Corrections are among the finest in the field of corrections. They are active in their local communities both in developing professional relationships with citizen groups and maintaining their role as citizens building strong communities. We take our jobs seriously and are committed to making Missouri a safe and secure place for its citizens and visitors.

Offender Management

Risk management is the process of classifying offenders according to the risk they currently present to the public so as to assign them to the institutional custody or community supervision level that best monitors their conduct. Department staff assesses, evaluates and intervenes as necessary to ensure offenders are managed in ways that best promote public safety in accordance with the sentence of the court.

Risk management is accomplished in a variety of ways. Pre-sentence investigations assist the court in determining sentencing options. Individualized institutional treatment programs for substance abusers, sex offenders and others that experience mental health or other special problems provide offenders with the necessary skills for successful reintegration into society. Supervision strategies such as intensive supervision, electronic monitoring, day reporting centers and residential facilities provide offenders with a structured environment for increased supervision. Restorative justice programming in institutions and field offices allow offenders an opportunity to repair the harm their crimes have caused individual victims and their communities. The institutional classification system ensures felons in prison are confined at custody levels that maintain facility security and public safety.

Office of the Director

The director of the Missouri Department of Corrections is charged with shaping legislation, formulating policies and procedures, and informing the public to effectively and efficiently guide and implement objectives and goals that increase the public's safety. Included in the Office of the Director are units that participate in these endeavors, notably Victim Services, Constituent Services, Information Systems, Inspector General, Legal Services, Restorative Justice, Legislative Affairs and Public Information.

Restorative Justice

In Missouri, offenders perform restorative justice initiatives that assists victims and victimized communities as part of their sentence to prison. For example, over 195,000 pounds of produce were grown and harvested in Missouri correctional facilities during calendar year 2004 and were delivered to organizations such as shelters, food banks and senior citizen homes around the state. In addition, approximately 21,000 offenders volunteered over 236,000 hours on reparative activities. Examples of reparative activities include offenders at Moberly Correctional Center assembling personal transportation vehicles for individuals who have become incapacitated due to disease, crime or landmines throughout the world, and offenders at correctional facilities in Boonville, Farmington and St. Joseph refur-

Probation and parole offices sponsor a variety of restorative justice programs for offenders under their supervision living in the community. Reparative boards are comprised of citizens from the community specially trained by department staff to meet with offenders concerning their behavior while under supervision. They provide the court with an assessment of offender needs and how the offender may best repair the harm they have caused their victim or the community.

Offenders volunteer, or in some cases are mandated, to attend Impact of Crime on Victims Classes (ICVC) in correctional facilities and probation and parole offices. In these classes, offenders come face to face with victims of all types of crime who share their stories and explain to offenders how crime has affected their lives. In calendar year 2004, over 4,500 offenders participated in ICVC classes in correctional facilities with over 56,000 hours recorded.

Information Systems

The Office of Information Systems has the responsibility of managing and operating all data processing activity in the department. Several mid-range computers, in conjunction with a statewide telecommunications network, service more than 11,500 employees at 109 locations containing approximately 6,000 workstations while also providing online access to approximately another 1,500 users throughout several additional criminal justice agencies. The department's offender databases are integrated with other state agency information to comprise a criminal justice support capability throughout the state. Additional responsibilities include coordination of all telecommunications and radio resources in the department.

Inspector General

The Office of the Inspector General is charged with objectively examining department operations to ensure they are in compliance with established policy and procedure. This is accomplished through the Internal Affairs Unit and the Compliance Unit. Internal Affairs is the investigative arm of the department and conducts investigations in response to reports of suspected violation of statute and department policy and procedure. The Compliance Unit recommends and coordinates department policy and procedure revision.

Legislative and Constituent Services, Public Information and Victim Services

These three sections of the Office of the Director provide and coordinate information to specific audiences concerning the department and its divisions.

Legislative and Constituent Services is comprised of the Legislative Liaison and the Constituent Services Unit. The Legislative Liaison is responsible for planning, organizing, tracking and coordinating state and federal legislative matters relating to the department's programs. The liaison works closely with the department director and other involved administrative staff to establish legislative priorities. The liaison specifically coordinates activities relating to legislative affairs. The liaison also responds to inquiries from legislators and other interested parties about the department's operations and the potential impact new legislation may have on departmental operations. The Constituent Services Office, which falls under the purview of the Legislative Liaison, processes offender-related inquiries from legislative offices, offender families and the public. Through a customer-focused approach, the office provides information about specific offenders and education about the department's policies, procedures and practices. Both offices provide regular feedback to department administrators and others so they may remain informed about issues that generate contact from constituents.

The Public Information Office addresses inquiries from the news media, the general public and other interested parties. This office also generates department publications, videos, promotes department activities and oversees the Internet web page. Within the organization, public information coordinates and develops organizational plans to improve internal communication.

The department's Office of Victim Services (OVS) was established to ensure core services and accurate, timely information are provided to Missouri's crime victims. The OVS ensures victims are notified of changes in an offender's status in accordance with RSMo 595.209. The OVS enhances accessibility to department operations including parole hearings, victim impact statements for pre-sentence investigations, reasonable protection from offenders or others acting on behalf of the offender. The OVS provides services including notification, crisis intervention, support and referrals to approximately 15,000 victims of crime. During Fiscal Year 2004 the office sent 12,850 notification letters and assisted approximately 6,000 victims by telephone.

Division of Human Services

The Division of Human Services consists of Human Resource Management, Training and Employee Development, Employee Health/Wellness/Safety, Religious/Spiritual Services, Volunteer/Intern Programs, Budget/Planning, Research and Evaluation, Planning, Fiscal Management, and General Services. This division provides support to the other divisions of the department. A professionally trained workforce, where safety and wellness is practiced as a part of the job is essential to carrying out the vision, mission, values and professional principals of the department. The Division of Human Services is tasked with recruiting a diverse professional workforce, maintaining that qualified workforce, improving the work environment of employees and communication between management and staff. Oversight of the budget process, strategic planning and fiscal management is essential to support the operation of the department. Additionally, the division has oversight of the institutional food operations, major new construction and maintenance projects, the management of the vehicle fleet, and central office business office and warehouse functions.

Fiscal Management Unit

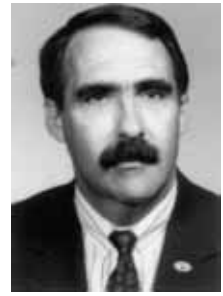
The Fiscal Management Unit is responsible for all financial activities of the department and coordinates these activities with other state agencies. The unit is responsible for management of the department's fiscal resources through the activities of procurement, property control, accounts payable, internal auditing, revenue accounting and contract management and coordination. The unit also assists the offender population through the management of the offender canteens and offender banking system. The unit serves as the department liaison with the Office of Administration, the State Auditor's Office, the State Treasurer's Office, and the Department of Revenue. This unit oversees implementation and maintenance of a variety of complex accounting systems while providing fiscal oversight, support and assistance to correctional institutions, field Probation and Parole districts, Missouri Vocational Enterprises and other regional business offices throughout the state.

Budget, Research and Evaluation

The Budget Unit is responsible for developing, preparing and presenting the department's annual budget request. Budget staff coordinate with the department's operating divisions to determine the resources required to implement agency programs and strategies. The unit then develops funding requests that accurately reflect the department's strategic planning goals and objectives.

Through analysis of research data on program outcomes and population trends, the unit provides guidance on ways to use department resources more effectively and efficiently. The Budget Unit presents the budget request to the Governor's Office and then works closely with the General Assembly to provide information during the appropriations process. This unit also coordinates fiscal note responses for the department.

The Federal Grants Unit is responsible for obtaining, monitoring, managing and disbursing all federal funds obtained through grants to the department. This section pays all bills and salaries for federal programs in which the department participates. The Federal Grants section prepares financial and progress reports for all department grants.



The Research and Evaluation Unit is responsible for providing research data and analysis to support the entire Department of Corrections. The unit tracks population growth of all offenders and maintains statistical data required for the evaluation of department programs and trends. The unit provides research information required to support the strategic planning process and all departmental decision-making. They analyze data and develop scenarios to respond to requests for fiscal note information. The unit also provides research and survey data to agencies within and outside state government and reviews outside research requests.

Planning Section

The Planning Section provides organizational development assistance in the preparation of the department's strategic plan. The Planning Section oversees the monitoring of implementation plans and performance measures associated with the strategic plan to ensure success. The Planning Section also facilitates departmental teams that work on process improvement, problem solving and customer satisfaction projects. The Planning Section provides support to the Corrections Officer Certification Commission.

Training and Employee Development

The Training Academy develops, coordinates and delivers pre-service, in-service and management/supervisory training to staff in each of the department's divisions. The academy consists of 54 full-time staff and a cadre of part-time volunteer trainers who perform their duties in one of the department's three regions: Central, Eastern and Western. The academy promotes the personal growth, professional development and imparts the departmental vision to all staff members to help them achieve the short and long term goals of the agency. To this end, the regions conduct pre-service basic training courses for all new corrections officers, non-custody staff, and probation and parole officers. In addition, more than 500 in-service and management courses are presented annually. The academy is also responsible for probation and parole safety training and a variety of other certification programs. The academy designs and develops all departmental curricula.

Employee Health and Wellness

Employee Health/Wellness/Safety

This section addresses job-related health and safety concerns with focus on control of infectious diseases. It also oversees and implements occupational safety concerns, coordinates the department's Early Return to Work Program and coordinates and promotes employee wellness activities. The Workforce Violence Coordinator is also part of this unit and provides staff with assistance following a traumatic workplace incident.

A 1997 study by the U.S. Department of Justice found that correctional officers had the fourth highest incidence of violent incidents per 1,000 workers during a recent five-year period. Correctional personnel also have higher levels of work-related stress than other occupations. The department established a Workplace Violence Prevention Unit as part of the Employee Health/Wellness/Safety Section to develop and implement department-wide programs to respond to staff's needs as they relate to violence in the workplace.

Human Resource Management

The Human Resource Management Section provides technical assistance on all human relations functions. This section is responsible for the timely and accurate processing of payroll, maintenance and updating of personnel records, reviewing and coordinating classification actions, ensuring the department recruits a qualified and diverse workforce and ensuring that all merit guidelines are followed. The Human Resource Management Section also assists employees in their career development as well as manages employee-related disputes. The Human Resource Management Section also engages in labor relations discussions to ensure that the department is in compliance with union agreements.

Religious and Spiritual Services

Religious programming opportunities and pastoral care services are provided for inmates in correctional centers. Department chaplains assigned to every institution work with volunteers from various denominations to ensure that constitutional rights of inmates to practice the religion of their choice is facilitated within the limitations of a secured setting. Religious and spiritual services are used as a restorative and transforming tool for inmate change, growth and social reintegration.

The impact of religious and spiritual services for inmates has been shown to decrease conduct violations and promote inmate institutional adjustment. Inmates attending religious and spiritual programming are more likely to engage in activities that promote positive attitudes and behaviors needed to take advantage of other inmate programs.

Volunteers/Interns - Special Events

Volunteers serve throughout the department and are recognized as non-salaried employees. They receive an orientation to the department and supervision by department staff. Volunteers provide a variety of services and programs in areas such as substance abuse, twelve step programs, literacy, tutoring, parenting skills, anger management and religion. Volunteers provide access to community programs including NAACP, Vietnam Veterans, Kiwanis, Toastmasters, American Legion and other such organizations. Volunteer members of these organizations bring the programs to the institutions.

This section also coordinates student internships from a variety of educational institutions and colleges around the state. The Volunteer Unit also coordinates, implements and monitors special events and programs involving the department, other state agencies and community partners.

General Services

General Services is responsible for the purchasing, storage and distribution of commodity food items to the department's institutions statewide from two regional warehouses. This section also oversees the operations of institutional food service including regional cook-chill facilities, major new construction and maintenance projects within the department, and management of the statewide departmental vehicle fleet. The General Services Unit also oversees the central office business office and warehouse functions.

Division of Offender Rehabilitative Services

The Division of Offender Rehabilitative Services is responsible for developing and delivering interventions and services necessary for offenders to correct their criminal behavior at each point in the department's supervision continuum. These services and interventions include: academic and vocational education, medical services, mental health, Missouri Sexual Offender Program, Missouri Vocational Enterprises and Substance Abuse Services. These program services allow corrections professionals throughout the department to fully utilize the supervision continuum to better resolve offender issues such as literacy, sobriety and employability. Without remediation these factors would impede their return to the community as law abiding and productive citizens. The public's safety is best served by creating increased offender accountability.

Adult Basic Education

A basic education is an integral part of the rehabilitative process. In order to prepare inmates for successful reintegration to society and to reduce recidivism, offenders without a high school diploma or equivalent (General Educational Diploma Certificate [GED]) are required by statute to participate in Adult Basic Education classes. The mandatory academic educational program provides offenders an opportunity to obtain the GED certificate and make positive and measurable progress in academic education. It also provides a correctional environment in which inmates are constructive while confined and productive when released. The individually prescribed curriculum utilizes both computer programs and text based materials. Classes range from basic literacy and English as a second language through post-secondary education. The academic education section offers the following programs for the offenders to prepare themselves for release:

Assessment: Staff at intake centers screen and properly diagnose all offenders prior to school assignments.

Adult Education: Classes that assist the offender in working toward the GED certificate.

Literacy: Classes providing specific materials and instruction for those with limited English proficiency and reading skills.

Title I: Provides supplemental instructional services for educationally disadvantaged students under age 21.

Special Education: Provides appropriate education for offenders with disabilities through the age of 21.

Youthful Offender Program: Eligible offenders receive life and job skills through the pursuit of post-secondary education while incarcerated and continue through pre-release and parole.

The Missouri Department of Elementary and Secondary Education certifies all department teachers and administrators.

The Mandatory Academic Education Statute, Section 207.690.10 Revised Statutes State of Missouri establishes that offenders must earn their GED certificate or exhibit a continuous honest, good faith effort toward academic success to be eligible for parole. With this added emphasis on education and academic progress, the goal is that 80 percent of students served will show success in one or more areas of reading, math or language during a three-month period.

Currently, academic education can serve over 8,200 eligible offenders daily and during the past two fiscal years over 2,900 inmates have earned their GED certificates. Eighty percent of the inmates who take the GED test pass. This rate exceeds both the state and national average.

School based programs include a number of vocational training programs throughout the prison system. These programs include computer repair, automotive repair, business technology, electrical wiring, residential carpentry and plumbing, diesel mechanics and industrial technology, culinary arts and cosmetology, horticulture and certified nurse assistant among others. Additionally, school based programs include training for offenders in computer refurbishing and repair and technical literacy. This specialized program is delivered in partnership with local community colleges. To help ensure that offenders are prepared to work, employability and life skills classes are available. This program is designed to provide skills vital to success in the work world such as communication, cultural diversity, conflict resolution, personal finance management and knowing how to find and keep a job.

Work based programs are delivered via apprenticeships and on-the-job training delivered by the Missouri Vocational Enterprises (MVE) and through institutional jobs. MVE also provides skilled training programs such as computer-aided drafting and similar software to assist the offender to secure and retain meaningful employment upon release.

Community based connecting activities are designed to establish partnerships with state and community agencies. These activities provide access to services available that may help offenders and their families in the process of social reintegration in a free society. Additionally, these initiatives bring the department in contact with individuals from within the community to discuss offender reintegration strategies.

Missouri Vocational Enterprises

Missouri Vocational Enterprises (MVE) is responsible for 25 different industries in 13 correctional institutions throughout the state. At any one time MVE employs approximately 1,500 inmates who provide a variety of products and services for sale to state agencies, city and county governments, political subdivisions, state employees and not-for-profit organizations. MVE's goal is to increase work and training opportunities for inmates. Profits generated by MVE sales are used to develop new products and create expanded vocational training opportunities. More than 30 MVE jobs now qualify as federally certified apprenticeships by the U.S. Department of Labor.

One of MVE's most unique industries is the award winning Waste Tire to Energy program. Waste Tire to Energy involves Department of Corrections inmates cleaning up illegal tire dumps around the state as identified by the Department of Natural Resources. The tires are then shredded by inmates into rubber tire chips, which are then mixed with coal to power the University of Missouri–Columbia's power plant. The clearing of the dumps reduces health hazards and prevents fires associated with illegal dumps. The mixture of chips and coal recycles waste, burns hotter and cleaner than coal alone thus reducing air pollution and saving the state fuel costs.

Medical Services

By law the department is responsible for the health care of offenders in its custody. The Health Services Unit oversees medical care, which has been provided on a contractual basis since December 1, 1992. This managed-care system stresses health care education, primary prevention, immediate identification of health problems and early intervention to prevent more debilitating chronic health problems. Medical units are located in every correctional center. Depending upon institutional size, the level of care ranges from daily, routine medical and dental sick call services to 24-hour care infirmaries. Chronic care clinics ensure those with chronic conditions are regularly assessed and provided continuous medical care by licensed nurses and physicians.

Mental Health

When inmates are sentenced to prison mental health needs are accessed during the intake process at the reception and diagnostic centers. This consists of a mental health screening and psychological testing to determine if intervention is needed and, if so, what measures should be taken to stabilize the offender's mental illness and assist with institutional adjustment.

The department works closely with the Department of Mental Health in three key programs designed for treating individuals with severe and persistent mental illness. There are 42 psychiatric hospital beds available at the Biggs Forensic Center at the Fulton State Hospital. This unit is occupied by individuals who are experiencing acute exacerbation of their mental illness. In addition, two specialized programs are available at the Farmington Correctional Center. The Social Rehabilitative Unit is comprised of 200 beds and is designed to provide a long-term structured environment. The Correctional Treatment Center provides intermediate to long-term psychiatric treatment to chronic mentally ill offenders within a secure setting.

An additional mental health program is available at the Special Needs Unit located within the Potosi Correctional Center. This program is designed to serve offenders with developmental disabilities and prepare them for return to general population in prison.

Psychological services are available in all institutions, ranging from individual and group therapy services to special programs for the chronically mentally ill.

Missouri Sexual Offender Program (MOSOP)

The director of the Department of Corrections is mandated by Statute (RSMo 589.040) to develop a program of treatment, education and rehabilitation for sexual assault offenders. By department policy, the successful completion of MOSOP is mandatory for a release prior to an inmate's sentence completion date. The MOSOP program, consisting of approximately 9-12 months of therapy, is provided at the Farmington Correctional Center for men and the Women's Eastern Reception, Diagnostic and Correctional Center in Vandalia for females. The group for handicapped offenders is housed at ERDCC in Bonne Terre.

During the calendar years of 2000 through 2004, 1,273 offenders attended MOSOP and 521 graduated from the program. Those who failed to successfully complete were required to complete their entire sentence and were not released prior to that date. The department has also instituted MOSOP treatment in its field services to probationers and parolees.

The Sex Offenders Assessment Unit (SOAU), a 120-day pre-sentencing residential program, was established in Fiscal Year 1994. It is designed to assess community risks and sex offender treatment needs. Information is then shared with the court for sentencing considerations. During calendar years 2000 through 2004, 461 offenders were assessed for the courts at the SOAU.

Regional Sex Offender Specialists, employed by the department, monitor a panel of private practitioners that provide treatment to offenders while on probation or parole. The courts or the parole board mandate outpatient treatment for these offenders.

In the six years (1999–2004) since the inception of the sexual predator statute, the Department of Corrections has released 3,252 sex offenders into the community who were evaluated to potentially qualify for civil commitment as sexually violent predators (RSMo 632.480). After careful examination by highly specialized staff, 164 (5%) were referred on for the next level of scrutiny, the "Probable Cause" hearing. If probable cause for commitment was obtained, the offenders were transferred to the Missouri Department of Mental Health for a complete forensic evaluation, and ultimately, a full trial for full commitment to the Department of Mental Health.

Substance Abuse Services

Substance abuse is a well-documented criminogenic factor with direct impact on offender recidivism. Substance abuse disorders are progressive and the need for treatment usually reoccurs throughout an offender's life span. Substance abuse screening and assessments conducted on offenders indicate that at least 80 percent of the offender population has a significant difficulty with substance abuse. In Fiscal Year 2004 approximately 40 percent of new admissions to prison were for offenders with alcohol and drug offenses. Therefore, the Department of Corrections addresses substance abuse services of offenders both within correctional institutions and Missouri communities. Services are provided, according to available state and federal resource allocations, through Department of Corrections provided programs, contracts and partnerships with service providers and state and community agencies.

An array of substance abuse services is provided to offenders incarcerated in Missouri's prisons who have been sentenced by the courts or stipulated by the Board of Probation and Parole for substance abuse treatment. The U.S. Department of Justice has established a target completion rate of 75 percent for correctional substance abuse treatment programs. In Fiscal Year 2004, the Department of Corrections designated approximately 3,000 beds for institutional treatment. In the same year approximately 78 percent of offenders who were discharged from institutional treatment successfully completed their programs, thereby meeting and exceeding national requirements.

Several statutes direct the provision of substance abuse services for incarcerated offenders. RSMo 559.115 enables the sentencing of offenders to 120 days of substance abuse treatment. RSMo 217.362 includes the provision of long-term institutional treatment for offenders with severe chronic substance abuse problems. RSMo 217.364 establishes an Offenders Under Treatment Program for first-time offenders. Missouri Post-Conviction Treatment Program is designed for probationers who have failed to complete treatment within the community.

The Department of Corrections anticipates availability of the following services in correctional institutions in Fiscal Year 2006:

- Substance Abuse Assessment Services at Fulton Reception and Diagnostic Center, Eastern Reception Diagnostic and Correctional Center in Bonne Terre, Women's Eastern Reception Diagnostic and Correctional Center in Vandalia and the Western Reception Diagnostic and Correctional Center in St. Joseph.
- Long-Term Therapeutic Community Treatment for males at Ozark Correctional Center in Fordland and for females at Women's Eastern Treatment Center in Vandalia.

- Offenders Under Treatment Program (180 days) for males at Western Regional Treatment Center in St. Joseph and Maryville Treatment Center and for females at Women's Eastern Treatment Center.
- Substance Abuse Program (180 days) for board-ordered offenders at Western Regional Treatment Center.
- Partial Day Treatment Services for males at Tipton Correctional Center and Western Reception Diagnostic and Correctional Center.
- Short-Term (84 days) Substance Abuse Treatment for males at Boonville Treatment Center, Cremer Therapeutic Community Center in Fulton, Mineral Area Treatment Center in Mineral Point, Farmington Treatment Center, and Western Regional Treatment Center.
- Short-Term (84 day) Treatment for women at Women's Eastern Treatment Center.
- Parole Return Relapse Program for males at Fulton Reception and Diagnostic Center.

Toxicology services are a critical aspect of the drug interdiction approach of the Department of Corrections. On a monthly basis the department conducts both random and targeted urinalysis at every correctional institution. In Fiscal Year 2004, 35,611 offenders received random testing and 34,398 target tests were conducted for offenders in institutions. In the same year, 67,076 test samples were screened for probation and parole field offices.

Institutional treatment centers are effective in deterring the possession and use of drugs. In Fiscal Year 2004, 3,746 random tests and 3,463 target tests were conducted from samples of offenders participating in institutional treatment. 99.9 percent of all targeted and random drug tests were negative for offenders in institutional treatment centers.

Males and females returning to St. Louis and Kansas City are referred to intensive outpatient treatment for follow-up after institutional treatment. Free and Clean assists male offenders with treatment and aftercare. Alt-Care provides assistance to women offenders in St. Louis and Kansas City. Both programs offer an array of services geared toward continued recovery and to strengthen success in the community. Offenders returning to other rural and urban areas receive services from a variety of providers with contracts with the Department of Corrections and the Department of Mental Health.

Reentry and Women's Programs

The Reentry and Women's Program Unit is responsible for all reentry activities and women's issues within the Department of Corrections. Missouri is one of two states chosen to adopt the National Institute of Corrections' model-the Transition from Prison to Community Initiative (TPCI). The department also received a grant from the Office of Justice Programs to create a reentry program-the Serious and Violent Offender Reentry Initiative (SVORI). Due to several reentry programs taking place, all were combined in the Missouri Reentry Process (MRP). This unit focuses on effective and efficient ways to transition offenders from prison to communities with goals such as increased percentages of offenders with high school diplomas or GEDs; decreased rates of unemployment; reduced victimization; treatment for substance abuse and mental health; stable family relationships; and also to encourage pro-social relationships and ties within the community. The Missouri Reentry Process is a collaborative initiative involving other state agencies and community organizations. With these goals, this unit is tasked with ensuring that offenders leave the criminal justice system with the tools to become successful, tax paying, productive citizens of Missouri.

The Department of Corrections is committed to providing gender responsive environments to women in the Division of Adult Institutions and under supervision of the Board of Probation and Parole. The Women's Program section of this unit was established to ensure accountability, reliability and continuous improvement in meeting this commitment. Our goal is to ensure that gender responsive programs are available to women offenders that provide health, mental health, self-esteem, parenting, education, substance abuse and life skills to enhance their opportunities for a successful transition back to their community.

STEVE LONG
Acting Director
Division of Adult Institutions

Division of Adult Institutions

The Division of Adult Institutions is responsible for supervision and management of the state's 20 adult correctional institutions. The division operates safe, secure and humane institutions for the confinement of individuals committed by the courts to serve a prison sentence. By Missouri law, a felon must be 17 years of age or older or certified as an adult by the Circuit Court and have a sentence of not less than one year to be committed to the division.

Incarcerated inmates are accountable for civil conduct and compliance with institutional rules. Inmates are also required to make payments from their individual inmate accounts for court ordered fines or judgments to the Crime Victims Compensation Fund. In addition, each inmate is required to engage in work, school or treatment on a full-time basis throughout their period of confinement in order to prepare them to be productive, law-abiding citizens upon their release. Inmates are encouraged to make positive contributions to society and to take responsibility for repairing the harm caused by their past criminal actions by participating in community service, restorative justice activities and impact of crime on victims programs. Over 97 percent of all offenders committed to the division to serve a sentence are released at some point. Preparing inmates to transition successfully from prison to the community is an investment in public safety and reduces future victimization.

Citizens Advisory Committee

The department utilizes a Citizens Advisory Committee (CAC) comprised of 12 private citizens appointed by the governor to evaluate grievances filed by inmates and referred to the director of the department. The CAC makes recommendations to the director for the resolution of those grievances as specified in the department Inmate Grievance Procedure. The CAC meets on a monthly basis at different correctional institutions and also makes on-site inspections.

Offenders assigned to JCCC are enrolled in basic pre-release prevention programs notably academic education, substance abuse prevention and job training.

Maryville Treatment Center

The Maryville Treatment Center (MTC) is a minimum custody level institution located in Maryville. The institution opened in 1996 after its conversion from the Mt. Alverno Convent and currently maintains a capacity of 525 offenders. The institution provides an Intensive Substance Abuse Treatment Program based on the therapeutic community model. Offenders assigned to MTC are enrolled in basic pre-release preparation programs notably academic education, substance abuse prevention and life skills training.

Missouri Eastern Correctional Center

The Missouri Eastern Correctional Center (MECC) is a medium custody level institution located in Pacific. The institution opened in 1981 and currently maintains a capacity of 1,100 offenders. Offenders assigned to MECC are enrolled in basic pre-release preparation programs notably academic education, substance abuse prevention and job training.

Moberly Correctional Center

The Moberly Correctional Center (MCC) is a medium custody level institution located in Moberly. The institution opened in 1963 and currently maintains a capacity of 1,800 offenders. Offenders assigned to MCC are enrolled in basic pre-release programs notably academic education, substance abuse prevention and job training. MCC hosts the male dialysis center for those with special medical needs.

Northeast Correctional Center

The Northeast Correctional Center (NECC) is a high-medium custody level institution located in Bowling Green. The institution opened in 1998 and currently maintains a capacity of 1,935 offenders. juvenile unit. These certified juveniles are required by statute to be separated from adult offenders.

Ozark Correctional Center

The Ozark Correctional Center (OCC) is a minimum custody level institution located in Fordland. The institution opened in 1963 after its conversion from a former military base and currently maintains a capacity of 695 offenders. The institution provides an Intensive Substance Abuse Treatment Program through a therapeutic community. Offenders assigned to OCC are enrolled in basic pre-release preparation programs notably academic education, substance abuse prevention and life skills training.

Potosi Correctional Center

The Potosi Correctional Center (PCC) is a maximum custody level institution located in Mineral Point. The institution opened in 1989 and currently maintains a capacity of 892 offenders. Offenders assigned to PCC are enrolled in basic pre-release preparation programs notably academic education, substance abuse prevention and job training. PCC also houses male offenders sentenced to death.

South Central Correctional Center

The South Central Correctional Center (SCCC) is a high custody level institution located in Licking. The institution opened in 2000 and currently maintains a capacity of 1,546 offenders. Offenders assigned to SCCC are enrolled in basic pre-release preparation programs notably academic education, substance abuse prevention and job training.

Southeast Correctional Center

The Southeast Correctional Center (SECC) is a high custody level institution located in Charleston. The institution opened in 2001 and currently maintains a capacity of 1,546 offenders. Offenders assigned to SECC are enrolled in basic pre-release preparation programs notably academic education, substance abuse prevention and job training.

The Tipton Correctional Center (TCC) is a minimum custody level institution located in Tipton. Prior to the acquisition by the Department of Corrections in 1960, the facility was an industrial school. The capacity of TCC remained 288 until an 800-bed addition was completed in 1996. The institution currently maintains a capacity of 1,088 offenders. Offenders assigned to TCC are enrolled in basic pre-release preparation programs notably academic education, substance abuse prevention and job training.

Western Missouri Correctional Center

The Western Missouri Correctional Center (WMCC) is a medium custody level institution located in Cameron. The institution opened in 1988 and currently maintains a capacity of 1,925 offenders. Offenders assigned to WMCC are enrolled in basic pre-release preparation programs notably academic education, substance abuse prevention and job training. During the past several years WMCC has operated an institutional recycling program which has significantly reduced landfill costs and saved taxpayers over $100,000.

Western Reception Diagnostic and Correctional Center

The Western Reception Diagnostic and Correctional Center (WRDCC) located in St. Joseph serves two distinctive populations. A 554-bed unit is designated as high custody to accommodate the regional diagnostic center for offenders. The diagnostic center is responsible for receiving male offenders from counties located in the western region of the state and providing diagnostic testing in reference to medical, mental health, public risk, institutional risk and education. The general population includes 1,380 minimum security offenders. The institution opened in 1994 and currently has an overall capacity of 1,934 offenders and includes an Institutional Treatment Center.

Women's Eastern Reception Diagnostic and Correctional Center

The Women's Eastern Reception Diagnostic and Correctional Center (WERDCC) is a multi-custody level institution located in Vandalia. The institution opened in 1998 with a capacity of 1,460 offenders. The current capacity is listed at 1,776 and houses general population and diagnostic offenders. WERDCC hosts the certified juvenile unit for females. These certified juveniles are required by statute to be separated from adult offenders. The diagnostic center is responsible for receiving female offenders from counties located throughout the state and providing diagnostic testing in reference to medical , mental health, public risk, institutional risk and education. Offenders assigned to WERDCC are enrolled in basic pre-release preparation programs notably academic education, substance abuse prevention and job training. WERDCC also hosts an Institutional Treatment Center and various vocational training programs.

Board of Probation and Parole

The Board of Probation and Parole is comprised of seven full-time members appointed by the governor, subject to the advice and consent of the Senate. During their six-year terms, members determine the release of individuals from confinement in the Division of Adult Institutions through parole or conditional release. Parole hearings are held at each correctional center monthly. If a release date is set, the board determines whether placement in release strategies, such as electronic monitoring, residential facilities and community release centers is appropriate. The board stipulates special conditions in order to address specific offender needs and improve the opportunity for success under supervision. They also monitor the supervision of offenders in the community and return those offenders to prison that are a risk to the community. The board also investigates and reports to the governor on all applications for pardons, commutations of sentence, reprieves or restorations of citizenship. The board may include information relating to the applicant along with appropriate recommendations.

CYNDI PRUDDEN
Acting Superintendent, Women's Eastern Reception Diagnostic and Correctional Center

The chair of the board is designated by the governor and is the chief administrative officer in charge of operations, expenditures, Interstate Compact Services for supervision of parolees and probationers and chief spokesperson for the board. The members of the board are:

Thompson, Dana D., (R), acting chair, Columbia.
Card, Ansel, (R), Jefferson City;
Crump, Wayne, (D), Jefferson City;
Gaw, Fannie, (D), Moberly;
Hubbard, Penny V., (D), St. Louis;

Division of Probation and Parole

The Division of Probation and Parole supports the operations of the Board of Probation and Parole and is responsible for field and institutional services for probationers, parolees and conditional releases, as well as community corrections programming, two community release centers and seven community supervision centers currently being developed. The Division of Probation and Parole assesses and supervises criminal offenders assigned to the division by the Circuit Courts of Missouri, the Parole Board or under the terms of the Interstate Compact.

The division is divided statewide into two zones, each with three geographic regions for the effective management of the offenders assigned to it. Regions are made up of a network of local district offices, and in some instances are supported by satellite offices. The Chief State Supervisor reports directly to the chair of the parole board and oversees the daily operations of the division. Two assistant division directors are designated the Eastern and Western Zone Directors and oversee both field and institutional probation and parole operations. A third assistant division director is responsible for managing the division's support staff, including the Community Corrections Unit and the Command Center. The three assistant division directors report directly to the chief state supervisor.

The institutional probation and parole officers are responsible for the assessment of incarcerated offenders and the tracking of their progress for the board or the court. The institutional parole officers report their findings to the parole board, prior to an offender's parole hearing and to the court, when the offender is being considered for release to probation supervision. The institutional parole staff and parole analyst assist the parole board as they conduct hearings. The officers work with the offenders to develop supervision plans as they prepare for their release from confinement.

Institutional Parole Offices are located at the following correctional centers: Algoa, Boonville, Chillicothe, Crossroads, Farmington (satellite at Potosi), Jefferson City, Maryville, Missouri Eastern, Moberly, Northeast, Western, Ozark, South Central, Southeast, Tipton and at Diagnostic and Reception Centers in Bonne Terre, St. Joseph, Vandalia and Fulton (satellite at Cremer Therapeutic Community Center).

The operations of the division are divided statewide into the Eastern Zone, which includes the Eastern, Southeast and Central regions, along with the St. Louis Community Release Center and the Western Zone, which includes the Western, Northwest, Southwest regions and the Kansas City Community Release Center.

The Western Region encompasses eight district field offices in Kansas City, Independence and Belton.

The Northwest Region has district field offices in St. Joseph (2), Maryville, Chillicothe, Trenton (satellite in Brookfield), Liberty, Warrensburg, Camdenton, Eldon and Sedalia (satellite in Marshall). Additionally, the institutional parole offices in Chillicothe, Maryville, Cameron (2) and St. Joseph are in the Northwest Region.

The Southwest Region consists of two field offices in Springfield (satellite in Aurora) and other district offices in Joplin, Neosho, Nevada, Branson (satellite in Nixa), West Plains and Lebanon.

The Central Region also oversees the institutional parole operations in Fulton, Jefferson City (2), Ozark, Licking, Vandalia, Boonville, Moberly, Tipton and Bowling Green.

The Southeast Region consists of district field offices in Rolla (satellite in Steelville), Hillsboro, Cape Girardeau (satellite in Perryville), Farmington, Sikeston, Kennett (satellites in Charleston and New Madrid), Caruthersville, Potosi, Dexter and Poplar Bluff. Additionally, the institutional parole offices in Bonne Terre, Farmington, Charleston and Pacific are in the Southeast Region.

The Eastern Region consists of ten field offices in St. Louis City and St. Louis County.

The Field Services Section supervises probationers in the community assigned to the division by the courts, offenders released under supervision by the parole board and offenders from other states through the Interstate Compact. There were over 66,000 offenders under the supervision of the division in the community at the end of Fiscal Year 2004, including more than 14,500 parolees and 48,800 probationers.

In order to reduce recidivism, field probation and parole officers continuously assess and evaluate the offenders assigned to them, and supervise at a level consistent with their risk to reoffend. The probation and parole officer effectively balances treatment and supervision strategies necessary to manage offender risk with the needs and interests of victims and communities. This supervision process consists of a number of critical activities including:

- Accurate and ongoing assessment of offender risk and need

- Development of effective supervision and treatment plans
- Restorative justice practices
- Use of appropriate sanctions and strategies to minimize risk and maximize the potential for successful outcomes

Reparation Boards have been developed in partnership with the courts to help offenders gain insight into the impact of crime on the community. They recommend specific reparative activities to be completed by offenders to restore or repair the community.

Offenders are ordered to perform community service hours by the court as part of their reparation to the community. Other offenders are required to compensate victims of crime, pay court costs and make restitution to individual victims.

Across the state Citizen Advisory Boards provide valuable assistance to their communities. CABs, comprised of citizens who live and work in their communities, promote an environment for offenders to gain the skills they need to be productive and law-abiding citizens. CABs fund special programs such as financial management courses, alcohol awareness programs, prison tours, Adopt-A-Highway clean-up projects, Alcohol Related Traffic Offender Programs and community service projects. Some CABs sponsor scholarships to high school and college students or have established endowments at local universities and colleges. Still other CABs provide transportation and interest-free loans to offenders for treatment, education and employment needs.

Community Corrections

The Community Corrections Unit coordinates a number of community-based correctional programs that supervise and manage offenders in the community. These facilities, programs and services assist with the supervision of probationers assigned by the courts and with the reintegration of parolees upon release from prison. The following programs are designed to provide additional treatment, intervention, sanctions and structure for offenders:

- Local sentencing initiatives
- Electronic monitoring
- Intensive supervision
- Contract residential facilities
- Targeted outpatient substance abuse treatment
- Targeted employment services
- Cognitive skills and case management services

The combination of local assessment, treatment, supervision and short-term confinement enhances the department's ability to improve the success of supervision while involving the local community to a much greater degree.

The department's Command Center is a 24-hour a day, seven days a week communication center whose staff tracks offenders in the community on electronic monitoring, and in community release centers and residential centers. This unit was established to ensure that offenders assigned to community corrections programs maintain their curfews and adhere to other restrictions as required around the clock. Command Center staff conduct investigations for every serious rule violation. They issue arrest warrants should offenders fail to return to their assigned residence at the appointed time. Command Center staff also maintain regular contact with state and local law enforcement to develop leads and to ensure absconders are apprehended and returned to department custody without delay.

Community Release Centers in Kansas City and St. Louis are department facilities under the auspices of the Community Corrections Unit. These facilities offer community-based programs and provide the department with transitional centers to manage and assist offenders requiring a supervised transition from confinement to community supervision. The parole board stipulates parolees for assignment to the centers based on their need for substance abuse treatment or a structured setting in which to develop work release programming as part of the release process.

Kansas City Community Release Center

The Kansas City Community Release Center (KCCRC) is a minimum security (C-1) facility located in the downtown area of Kansas City and has a capacity to house 350 offenders.

St. Louis Community Release Center

The St. Louis Community Release Center (SLCRC) is located just north of downtown St. Louis and has been in operation since April 1978. SLCRC has a capacity for 550 offenders.

Offenders assigned to the Community Release Centers are required to accept increased personal responsibility in finding and maintaining employment, obtaining medical care and obtaining educational or vocational opportunities through the Work Release Program. To offset the state's expense for these residential services, all offenders assigned to the community release centers contribute a nominal per diem charge to the Inmate Revolving Fund. The programs are structured to parallel the offenders' responsibilities after release to supervision in their local communities. Assessment and treatment sessions are scheduled to coincide with the offenders' off-hours from work.

The centers also serve as a secure location to assess offenders in St. Louis City and Jackson County who are at risk for revocation, especially those avoiding supervision. Temporary placement at the centers allows the board to consider other supervision strategies with a reduced risk to the community.

In addition to the existing Community Release Centers in St. Louis and Kansas City, the division is constructing seven community supervision centers to serve the other areas of the state that contribute significant numbers of annual prison admissions and revocations. Each center will include an administrative area to accommodate the existing probation and parole district offices located in that area as well as sufficient program/classroom areas and dormitory-housing space for 30 offenders in need of structured residential supervision. Each center will provide short-term residential services for low risk/high need offenders, who otherwise would have to be housed within the department's correctional centers or local jails. To demonstrate the effectiveness of this local alternative to incarceration, the department is using available federal funds to offset 90 percent of the construction costs. Centers in St. Joseph and Farmington will open in 2005. Additional centers are expected to open in 2006 and 2007 in Troy, Hannibal, Kennett, Poplar Bluff and Springfield.

The Department of Economic Development administers a wide array of services designed to enhance Missouri's economic growth in the 21st century. These services focus on workers, businesses and communities. The department is composed of agencies that administer statutory requirements and department policy in the areas of community, economic and workforce development, as well as the regulation of financial institutions, utility companies and various licensed professionals.

The department was established September 7, 1984, after voters granted approval to rename the existing Department of Consumer Affairs, Regulation and Licensing which was created in 1974 during a reorganization of state government.

The department consists of two distinct groups: development agencies and regulatory agencies.

The development divisions and groups include: Business Development and Trade; Community Development; Division of Workforce Development; Division of Tourism; Missouri Development Finance Board; Missouri Housing Development Commission; Missouri Arts Council; Missouri Community Service Commission; and Missouri Women's Council.

The regulatory agencies are: Division of Credit Unions; Division of Finance; Office of the Public Counsel; Missouri Public Service Commission; and Division of Professional Registration, including its 38 regulatory agencies.

Administrative Services

The department is administered by a director, appointed by the governor and confirmed by the Senate. The director appoints the central management staff and division directors and is assisted in department administration by a deputy director. The general counsel's office provides comprehensive legal advice regarding issues affecting divisions, within the department, and provides staff support for the Small Business Regulatory Fairness Board. The director of economic policy development assists the director by developing, formulating and coordinating economic policy and legislation.

Several support sections assist in department administration. Communications promotes the department's programs and activities throughout the state and nation by means of news releases, advertisement and other public relations tools.

Financial Systems analyzes monthly financial statements and works with the state treasurer, state auditor and the Office of Administration to perform cash management activities.

Budget and Planning develops and monitors the budget, reviews expenditures, provides strategic planning assistance and researches grants.

Human Resources assists the divisions by advertising for and recruiting new employees, administering the wage and salary program, preparing payrolls and maintaining personnel policies and procedures.

Management Information Systems provides automated information services and systems to the divisions and boards within the department. MIS services include planning and coordinating department data processing activities, as well as development, maintenance and operation of the department's web site and computer systems.

General Services provides essential support services within the department in the areas of administration, facility leasing and maintenance, telecommunications, fleet management and mailroom operations.

The Missouri Economic Research and Information Center (MERIC) provides comprehensive analysis of Missouri's socioeconomic environment at the local, regional and state levels. To achieve this, MERIC employs a wide array of tools, which include econometric models, geographic information systems and advanced statistical methods. On-going projects at MERIC include targeted development, economic and social impact assessments, industry and occupational analyses, career seeker products and information on Missouri's demographic and economic trends.

Coupled with its analysis capability, MERIC maintains a comprehensive labor market database produced in cooperation with the U.S. Department of Labor. Data on employment/unemployment, wages, layoffs, labor availability and a variety of other information designed to help understand the state's labor market conditions are regularly reported.

Ultimately, MERIC's mission is to provide accurate, relevant and timely information to decision makers and the public in order to facilitate a better understanding of Missouri's socioeconomic environment.

Economic Development Groups

The economic development agencies – Business Development and Trade, Community Development, Workforce Development and Tourism – work with local communities to help firms create jobs, increase sales, find and retain qualified workers, identify sites and obtain financial support to locate or expand in Missouri. The agencies also work with local and regional partners to stimulate greater economic growth by increasing capital investment, promoting tourism and the arts, creating greater access to affordable housing and enhancing self-sufficiency within the state's diverse communities.

The Business Development and Trade Division serves as the primary state agency to facilitate the attraction of new businesses and expansion of existing businesses within the state, as well as the promotion of international trade. The division's mission is to continue bringing high-quality, high-paying, family-supporting jobs to the state. The division works closely with local and regional economic development agencies, utility companies, universities, other state agencies, growth partners and other organizations to foster a business-friendly environment, create and retain jobs, increase private capital investment, increase the state and local tax base and increase export sales by Missouri companies.

The division administers a wide array of programs that can be customized to meet each community's unique needs, and works with growth partners and trade associations to strategically market the state's business friendly environment to national and international businesses. The division also collaborates with innovation centers, Missouri Enterprise and other affiliated organizations to assist in technology promotion, target industries and cluster development.

The division is divided into teams that are responsible for the recruitment of new businesses and helping current businesses succeed, promoting international trade and providing financing services for new and existing businesses in the state: Business Development, International Trade and Investment, and Business Finance. In addition, the Research and Marketing Team provides support to in-house staff and key community partners for essential research materials as well as promotional and marketing efforts.

Division staff also provides support to the Missouri Film Commission. The nine-member commission advises the department on various matters related to promoting the state as a location for filmmaking. The Director of Economic Development appoints five at-large members, the President Pro Tem appoints two Senate members of differing party affiliation and the Speaker appoints two members from different parties from the House of Representatives.

Business Development

The Business Development Team works aggressively to market Missouri's business friendly environment, both domestically and internationally. The team focuses its efforts on increasing awareness of Missouri and within the national business community, identifying and pursuing business leads in an effort to bring new businesses and more family supporting jobs to the state.

The professional staff partners with existing Missouri companies and their communities on efforts to retain and expand job opportunities and investment. Project Management staff provides a comprehensive array of services including programs and assistance to meet the expansion needs of Missouri businesses. The professional staff works with community leaders to develop vital communication links with local industry.

Marketing efforts include advertising, promotions, trade shows, marketing trips to major industrial and business centers, and other publicity programs designed to target specific business sectors.

Project managers, along with the assistance of other division staff, prepare and present proposals to companies considering Missouri for location. Specific requirements are studied and all qualifying communities in Missouri are recommended to these companies. Project managers accompany corporate officials on community visits to further identify the strategic location advantages of the community and Missouri. Project managers concentrate on geographical regions within the state, as well as specific industry sectors in an effort to help Missouri's business climate grow.

International Trade and Investment

The International Trade and Investment Office works to facilitate business opportunities for Missouri companies in the global marketplace. A team of international trade managers, with geographic and cultural business expertise, assists companies by providing general trade counseling and assistance, developing marketing strategies, conducting market research, and most importantly by locating foreign buyers for Missouri goods and services.

International Trade and Investment Office staff also assists with the development of foreign trade missions by providing staff and logistical support in order for Missouri companies to gain first hand understanding of a prospective international market. The professional staff also participates in and assists local communities and companies with international trade shows, which are a key marketing tool for selling Missouri goods abroad.

A major focus of the office is to aid in the development of international sales contracts through the assistance of Missouri's foreign contract offices and partner networks. Missouri contract agents are currently located in Mexico, Japan and China.

The office also concentrates efforts toward increasing foreign investment in Missouri by monitoring international companies of interest and their investment trends. The professional staff can also assist with trade finance issues including Export-Import Bank loans, guarantees and insurance.

Business Finance

The Business Finance Team provides financing and tax credit incentives to businesses that locate or expand in Missouri. These incentives, which include the governor's new Missouri Quality Jobs Program, enable Missouri to compete effectively with other states for new jobs and investment.

The Business Finance Team works closely with the Business Development and Trade teams, as well as the Missouri Development Finance Board, local communities and other DED divisions to create attractive financing and incentive packages for new development in the state. A variety of public-sector financing programs, in conjunction with financing from private institutions, can provide funds for land acquisition, construction, renovation, machinery, equipment and working capital at favorable rates and terms.

The professional staff reviews tax credit, loan and grant applications and determines eligibility in accordance with laws, regulations and program guidelines. The Business Finance Team provides technical information and assistance to applicants and educates local communities and tax professionals on available programs. In addition, the team monitors its incentive programs to ensure efficiency and compliance. The professional staff also strives to ensure that the stated purpose of each program is being achieved.

Research and Marketing

The Research and Marketing Team blends marketing, creative design and research skills with information technology to construct customized communications and marketing tools that add value to Missouri's business attraction and expansion efforts.

The professional staff is responsible for providing direct support as required to business expansion and site selection projects by delivering social, economic and demographic information on the state and the project's location. The Research and Marketing Team provides a variety of analytical reports on prospects to enhance decision-making and customer service.

The team is also responsible for development of a variety of customized marketing materials to support the business attraction process. Within the team's scope of work is direct management of content for the Business Development and Trade web site including the LocationOne Information System, which is a repository of information on various commercial and industrial sites and buildings around the state.

Missouri Technology Corporation

www.missouritechnology.com/

Chartered by an act of the General Assembly in 1994 (Section 348.251, RSMo), the Missouri Technology Corporation is a private, not-for-profit corporation led by a fifteen-member board of directors, eleven of whom are appointed by the governor from the fields of science and technology and representatives of public and private universities, businesses and the public. The other four members include the director or director's designee of the Department of Economic Development, the president or president's designee of the University of Missouri System, a member of the Senate and a member of the House of Representatives.

The Missouri Technology Corporation is charged by law with being a focal point for creating better ways Missouri businesses can interface with universities in order to solve technical and productivity issues; for bringing more research funding and emphasis to Missouri universities, especially involving the life sciences, information technology and advanced manufacturing; and for creating and managing a system to transfer new discoveries into the marketplace in order to create companies and jobs.

The corporation is embarking on an effort to raise the level of awareness among policymakers and the public as to the connections between a strong economy and key investments in developing new technologies that can be used by Missouri businesses and entrepreneurs.

Research Alliance of Missouri

www.missouritechnology.com/ram/

The Research Alliance of Missouri, or "RAM," was founded on January 15, 2003, as a "new alliance between business and universities…to coordinate research and provide more access to technology for Missouri businesses." The Missouri Technology Corporation, whose charter calls for the establishment of a research alliance, and the Missouri Department of Economic Development convened the senior research officers in Missouri's universities that sponsor active research and development programs. Since that time, the members of RAM have adopted a strategic plan and have built new collaborative research initiatives among the institutions; initiated a process to streamline technology transfer from inventions in member university laboratories to commercial products; and assisted Missouri businesses in addressing technological problems through collaborative research projects.

FRANK STOKES
Chair, Missouri Technology Corporation

The Research Alliance provides expertise and guidance in linking education and business, working together to coordinate research, pool resources, boost commercialization opportunities and provide Missouri businesses with greater access to technology.

The Research Alliance of Missouri is comprised of the chief research officers from universities and research institutions throughout the state, as well as leaders from organizations such as the Missouri Technology Corporation, Department of Economic Development and the Department of Higher Education.

Seed Capital Investment Board

The Missouri Seed Capital Investment Board was established by Section 620.641, RSMo, also referred to as the New Enterprise Creation Act. The board is composed of thirteen members, eight of whom are appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate, including one representing a major private research university, one representing a major public research university, and six members with backgrounds in technology, banking, labor or small business development. The remaining five members include the director or director's designee of the Department of Economic Development and a member from each of the four innovation centers.

The New Enterprise Creation Act authorized the issuance of $20 million in state tax credits to attract funding for early-stage, technology-based enterprises in Missouri. It is the board's responsibility to approve the professional fund manager, monitor the seed capital program's activities and verify compliance with the New Enterprise Creation Act.

The mission of the Community Development Division is to increase the economic self-sufficiency and prosperity of Missouri communities and neighborhoods. Members of the group achieve this result by offering programs to promote community investment, redevelopment activities, planning and leadership development, infrastructure development and support to local governments and not-for-profit organizations.

Community Development Programs

The Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) Program administers grants to cities with fewer than 50,000 population and counties with less than 200,000 population. The program is designed to improve local communities by providing funds to develop suitable living environments and expand economic opportunities, principally for low-and moderate-income persons. The grant process is open to all non-entitlement local governments and provides assistance in areas such as public facilities, housing, economic development and downtown revitalization. Funds are provided through the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The Neighborhood Assistance Tax Credit Program (NAP) administers a tax credit program designated for the betterment of communities and neighborhoods. The Neighborhood Assistance Act provides a tax credit incentive to encourage business participation in community development projects operated by not-for-profit organizations in areas such as crime prevention, community services, physical revitalization, job training, economic development, new generation cooperatives and education.

The Youth Opportunities and Violence Prevention Program (YOP) administers a tax credit program specifically directed toward programs which are designed to prevent youth from engaging in violent behavior and enable youth to improve themselves through education, job training and apprenticeship activities. The tax credits are given to businesses and individuals contributing to an approved project undertaken by either a public or private organization.

The Family Development Account Program (FDA) administers a state tax credit program that enables contributors to make donations to organizations that establish and run a Family Development or Individual Development Account project. The funds contributed are used to match low-income participants' savings accounts, enabling them to save funds to further their education, purchase or renovate a home or start a new business.

The Historic Preservation Tax Credit Program aids in the redevelopment of Missouri's commercial and residential historic structures. The tax credit is equal to 25 percent of the total costs and expenses incurred during the rehabilitation of a nationally designated historic property or a property located in a historic district.

The Community Development Corporation Program assists in the development of CDCs — nonprofit organizations that promote the industrial, economic, entrepreneurial, commercial and civic development of a community. The CDC program also offers a tax credit and grant program to encourage workforce development, housing development and many other CDC services.

The Neighborhood Preservation Program assists homeowners and developers that wish to renovate or construct residences for homeownership by providing state tax credits for housing renovation and or new construction. State statutes require that the program operate in certain qualifying and eligible areas of the state.

The Brownfield Redevelopment Program provides tax credits and grants for remediation of contaminated sites throughout Missouri. The program provides opportunities to redevelop once vibrant business and community sites that are currently underutilized or are vacant, thus bringing jobs and investment back into the area.

The Enhanced Enterprise Zone Program provides tax credits to new or expanding businesses in a Missouri Enhanced Enterprise Zone. The zones are specific geographic areas designated by local governments and certified by the Department of Economic Development. Zone designation is based on certain demographic criteria, the potential to create sustainable jobs in a targeted industry and a demonstrated impact on local industry cluster development.

The Missouri Downtown Economic Stimulus Act (MODESA) helps facilitate redevelopment of downtown areas and the creation of jobs by providing essential public infrastructure. A portion of the new state and local taxes created by the redevelopment can be diverted to fund eligible public infrastructure and related costs for a period of up to 25 years.

The Missouri Rural Economic Stimulus Act (MORESA) provides financial incentives for public infrastructure for the development of renewable fuel production facilities or eligible new generation processing entities creating new jobs and agricultural markets in rural Missouri. A portion of the new state and local taxes created by the production facility or processing entity can be diverted to fund eligible public infrastructure and related costs for a period of up to 25 years.

The State Supplemental Tax Increment Financing Program facilitates the redevelopment of blighted areas by providing essential public infrastructure. Municipalities may apply for a portion of the new sate tax revenues created by the project to be disbursed to cover a financing gap for eligible redevelopment costs on eligible projects.

The Delta Regional Authority (DRA) is a federal-state partnership serving a 240-county/parish area in an eight-state region. Led by a Federal Co-Chairman and the governors of each participating state, the DRA is designed to remedy severe and chronic economic distress by stimulating economic development and fostering partnerships that will have a positive impact on the region's economy. The DRA focuses on basic infrastructure development and transportation improvements, business development and job training services. It serves the southeast portion of Missouri.

The Missouri Community Assessment and Planning Process (MOCAPP) is a comprehensive local planning tool designed to be self-driven. The tool assesses 37 subcategories of development and incorporates local participation in the process. Communities successfully completing phases of MOCAPP may gain recognition as a Missouri Star City, 5-Star City, or All Missouri Certified City.

Missouri Community Service Commission

The Missouri Community Service Commission (MCSC) is dedicated to creating opportunities for all citizens to serve their communities. The MCSC's mission is to nurture such volunteer efforts by fostering an atmosphere to enable citizen service to prosper in communities across Missouri. By collaborating with volunteer organizations and state agencies, and by continuing to effectively administer National Service initiatives, the MCSC makes it possible for Missourians to serve their communities.

The MCSC was established by an act of the Missouri Legislature in 1994 as a direct response to the National and Community Service Trust Act of 1993. Its fifteen to twenty-five members are appointed by the governor and meet quarterly. The Missouri Legislature passed a measure in 1998 allowing the commission to raise private contributions to assist in its work, thus enabling the commission to broaden its impact on the service and volunteer communities. The MCSC receives federal funding from the Corporation for National and Community Service (CNCS) to administer the AmeriCorps State and Education Awards programs in Missouri, making federal funds more responsive to state and local needs and providing greater assistance to secular and faith-based community organizations.

Overseeing the AmeriCorps program is the MCSC's primary responsibility. AmeriCorps is a national service network supported by the Corporation for National and Community Service (CNCS) of Washington, D.C. AmeriCorps members may serve full-time or less than full-time. The participants are often referred to as "Members." These members, through the MCSC and CNCS, are provided opportunities to serve their communities and build capacity to meet local needs.

AmeriCorps, the domestic Peace Corps, engages citizens of all ages in projects ranging from tutoring, youth mentoring, public safety, housing rehabilitation, health care, environmental issues, and disaster relief. It gives communities and neighborhoods valuable human resources for addressing their most pressing civic issues, and gives the individual a way to serve their country by reaching out to others. Through AmeriCorps, over 100,000 Americans have been given the opportunity to increase their skills and earn money for college. In many cases, AmeriCorps has provided educational resources to individuals who would not have otherwise been able to obtain them. More than 3,200 Missourians have served their communities through AmeriCorps since the program's inception in 1994. Among their accomplishments, Missouri Members have tutored nearly 25,000 elementary and secondary students with 80 percent improving at least one grade level, and contributed to significant reductions in urban crime rates through conflict resolution and other public safety programs. 133 AmeriCorps Members served a total of 230,633 hours at 12 programs in Missouri in 2003–2004. The 4,397 volunteers recruited by AmeriCorps Members served a total of 46,846 hours.

Most not-for-profit organizations, local or state government, school districts, or institutions of higher education may sponsor an AmeriCorps program. An AmeriCorps Members' term of service for one year on a full-time basis is 1,700 hours. Part-time can be 900, 675, 450 or 300 hours. Members may serve a maximum of two terms of service in AmeriCorps. At the completion of their service commitment they receive a $4,725 education award (less for part-time service) that may be redeemed at a Title IV university, college or trade school. Most AmeriCorps Members receive a living allowance while serving, although it varies with the type of program. In 2005–2006, a full-time living allowance will equal $10,600. The living allowance is optional for part-time Members.

The Missouri Housing Development Commission, created by the 75th General Assembly, has invested almost $4 billion for rental housing developments, preservation of affordable rental housing, home mortgages, home improvement loans, grants to neighborhood housing groups, and other housing programs. MHDC functions as a bank, providing financing directly to borrowers or through a network of private lending institutions.

The commission makes loans to non-profit and limited-dividend sponsors of residential housing to provide affordable housing for underserved Missourians. The commission also makes funds available for the purchase of homes for first-time buyers at below-market interest rates. The funds for mortgage financing are provided through the sale of tax-exempt notes and bonds that the commission is authorized to issue.

Additionally, the commission is authorized to establish a revolving fund to make non-interest bearing loans to non-profit organizations to defray development costs of housing for low- and moderate-income persons. The commission provides advisory, consultative, training and educational services to non-profit housing organizations.

The commission also administers the federal Low Income Housing Tax Credit, Missouri Low Income Housing Tax Credit and the Affordable Housing Assistance Tax Credit; and operates a housing trust fund for very low-income Missourians to help prevent homelessness and provide emergency housing assistance.

The commission participates with the Department of Economic Development in preparing the state's Consolidated Plan for the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The commission includes the governor, lieutenant governor, attorney general, treasurer and six persons appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate.

The Missouri Arts Council (MAC) – as public leader, partner and catalyst – is dedicated to broadening the appreciation and availability of the arts in the state and fostering the diversity, vitality and excellence of Missouri's communities, economy and cultural heritage.

Created by an act of the 73rd General Assembly, the Missouri Arts Council acts as the state's arts grant-making division providing financial assistance to nonprofit organizations across the state to encourage and stimulate economic and community growth and development through the arts. A division of the Missouri Department of Economic Development, MAC is the second oldest state-funded arts agency in the country, providing vital support and leadership to bring the arts to all the people of Missouri. The Missouri Arts Council board consists of 15 volunteer citizens from across the state who are appointed by the Department of Economic Development. The Governor designates a chair and vice chair. The board meets regularly to provide direction in policy making and programmatic oversight.

Through funds from the Missouri General Assembly and the National Endowment for the Arts, MAC provides funding for quality arts programming in both large and small communities. Funding areas include: discipline program assistance (music, dance, theater, literature, electronic media, visual arts, multidiscipline, festivals), community arts, folk arts, arts education, minority arts, touring, mini grants, technical assistance, endowment building and renovation/construction.

Applicants must demonstrate that they have sound administration and financial management skills and are capable of promoting the state-local partnership in arts activities to assure broad participation by both the applicant and the audience. Applicants include but are not limited to: community arts agencies, performing organizations, elementary and high schools, colleges, universities, museums, libraries, chambers of commerce, Community Betterment and Main Street Program organizations, and other civic and tourism organizations that present art to their communities.

MAC allocates every program dollar based on the recommendations of Missouri citizens who serve on advisory panels that meet annually to review applications from organizations seeking grants. The panel's recommendations are based on established criteria, including artistic excellence, education and outreach, community support, administrative ability and diversity of audience served.

The Missouri Cultural Trust Fund is an invested endowment fund created by the state legislature in 1993. Income from the trust is dedicated to supporting the arts in Missouri. A portion of the revenue generated by Missouri's nonresident professional athletes is the funding source for the Cultural Trust Fund.

The trust is administered by a board of trustees, consisting of the state treasurer, two members of the Senate appointed by the President Pro Tem of the Senate, two members of the House of Representatives appointed by the speaker of the House, and the members of the Missouri Arts Council.

The Division of Workforce Development has two primary areas of focus for its employment, training and educational activities. The first focus is serving the needs of the business community. These workforce services help businesses be more competitive by having an available, well-trained workforce. The second area of focus is providing employment and training opportunities for Missouri citizens to improve their individual skill level and earning potential thereby improving the workforce in Missouri.

First, the Division of Workforce Development provides workforce-related services to businesses in the state. Services include assisting businesses with hiring needs through its federally funded labor exchange program "Greathires." In addition, the division administers federal tax credit programs offering businesses tax credits for hiring targeted individuals. The division also administers three state funded industry-training programs, which provide funding to help eligible companies train their workers for the purpose of creating or retaining jobs in Missouri.

Second, the division administers several federal programs designed to help people seeking jobs or training opportunities. The division works through the multitude of programs to find the right mix of programs and funding resources to allow an individual to obtain the services he/she needs. These programs include core services available to everyone, plus intensive training services, which are available to those in specific targeted groups. In addition, any individual searching for employment can register in the division's labor matching system, "Greathires."

The division oversees the implementation of the federal Workforce Investment Act. Workforce Investment Act funds are allocated to 14 Workforce Investment Regions to establish a flexible but coordinated workforce system. Local Workforce Development Boards and chief local elected officials in each region are responsible for the local development of workforce policy and oversight of delivery of services. At the state level, the division monitors, evaluates and provides technical assistance to the regions.

The division provides staff to the governor-appointed Missouri Training and Employment Council. The council develops policy and guidance for the workforce system of Missouri and makes recommendations to the governor as to the effectiveness of the system. It serves as the State Workforce Investment Board.

Missouri Career Center System

The Missouri Career Center System refers to the network of agencies brought together to deliver workforce services in Missouri. The Missouri Career Center System coordinates the delivery of services for businesses and workers at various locations throughout the state, making access to services easier for customers. Customers include businesses that may use the career centers to seek or interview potential employees, test applicants' occupational skills or gain access to labor market information. Job seekers can use the career centers to learn about job openings, create a resume, conduct a job search, sign up for training or education or register for unemployment compensation.

The Missouri Women's Council was established in 1985 by the state's 83rd General Assembly and is the only state agency mandated to represent the needs of wage-earning women in the public policy process. For 20 years, the council has been meeting its mandate to identify and address the issues affecting the economic and employment status of Missouri women. The mission of the council is "providing Missouri women the information necessary to obtain economic, social and political parity."

The council serves as a resource and referral center connecting women to information on all aspects of women and work, civic issues and family life. The Women's Council provides free resources for Missouri citizens, including:

Missouri Development Finance Board

Governor Office Building

For over two decades, the Missouri Development Finance Board has provided development financing to assist infrastructure and economic development projects throughout Missouri. These projects have a high probability of success, but would not be feasible without the board's assistance.

Originally created by state statute in 1982, the board previously operated as the Missouri Industrial Development Board and the Missouri Economic Development Commission. In 1985, legislation was enacted which merged the commission into the board. In 1989, the board's name was changed to the Missouri Economic Development, Export and Infrastructure Board. Four years later, the legislature authorized the board's third and current name change.

The legislature, however, was not just making changes to the board's name, it also was progressively expanding the board's authority. These changes increased the board's ability to not only finance small businesses, but also to help fund public infrastructure improvements, cultural facilities and larger-scale business locations and expansions.

The board has welcomed these additional responsibilities and now administers several programs to facilitate economic development and to assist in business expansion and attraction in Missouri.

Bond Financing

The Missouri Development Finance Board is authorized to issue taxable or tax-exempt private activity industrial revenue bonds for the acquisition or renovation of fixed assets owned by businesses involved in manufacturing or the production of tangible products. Currently the board is focusing primarily on redevelopment projects, particularly those that eliminate blight.

The board can issue tax-exempt cultural facility bonds to qualified charitable organizations for acquisition, construction, renovation and equipping cultural projects such as museums or recreational facilities.

The board can issue tax-exempt public purpose infrastructure bonds to local governments that have projects that serve a public purpose, such as public buildings, jails, police and fire stations and public infrastructure.

Missouri Tax Credit for Contributions

The Tax Credit for Contributions Program is a significant fundraising tool that uses private contributions to fund public purpose projects. The board is authorized to grant state tax credits equal to 50 percent of any monies contributed to the board by a taxpayer, in which the proceeds assist in offsetting the costs of qualified projects that benefit the general public.

Downtown Revitalization Program

Through the Downtown Revitalization Program, the board is authorized to grant state tax credits equal to 50 percent of any monies contributed to the board by a taxpayer. These funds are then used for public-purpose infrastructure improvements necessary to redevelop downtown areas in communities with populations under 50,000 individuals.

Missouri Infrastructure Loan Program

Through the Missouri Infrastructure Loan Program, the board can offer long-term, low-interest loans to local political subdivisions or rural public sewer and water districts to fund infrastructure improvements.

Business Use Incentives for Large-Scale Development (BUILD)

The board is authorized to issue and monitor BUILD Missouri Revenue Bonds, which provide a tool for the Department of Economic Development and MDFB to finance a portion of the eligible costs for businesses that seek to locate or expand in Missouri. Eligible projects must meet substantial new job, capital investment and general company eligibility requirements.

City/State Partners Program

The City/State Partners Program is a joint effort between the Export Import (Ex-Im) Bank of the United States and state and local entities around the country. The program aims to provide financing services to small- and medium-sized U.S. companies that are in need of financing to start exporting their products and services.

Membership on the board is composed of nine private Missouri residents who are appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate to four-year terms, the lieutenant governor and directors of the departments of Economic Development and Agriculture. Seven members constitute a quorum. Not more than five appointed members may be of the same political party. Appointed members serve staggered terms to provide continuity and enhance program development.

Tourism continues to rank as one of the most important revenue- and job-producing industries in Missouri, creating more than 245,000 jobs in fiscal year 2004. With an economic impact of approximately $13.4 billion and $627 million in state tax revenue, tourism is a dynamic component of economic development, providing one of every 14 Missouri jobs. There were 37.7 million visitors to the Show-Me State in the last fiscal year—an all-time record!

The 74th General Assembly recognized the importance of tourism 38 years ago with the creation of the Missouri Tourism Commission in 1967. In 1997, the Division of Tourism unveiled a new direction for tourism by creating a new state logo and slogan promoting Missouri's river heritage. Now in its ninth year, the division of tourism's advertising slogan, "Where the rivers run," continues as a theme in Missouri's marketing efforts. Print and broadcast advertising focus on the experiences that Missouri offers and tourists' perceptions of Missouri as a scenic destination with cultural, historical and family activities.

In 1993, HB 188 was signed into law as Section 620.467, RSMo. This legislation included a performance-based funding formula for the Missouri Division of Tourism.

Tourism Commission

The commission consists of 10 members: the lieutenant governor; two members of the Senate of different political parties appointed by the president pro tem of the Senate; two members of the House of Representatives of different political parties appointed by the speaker of the House; and five other persons appointed by the governor, which may include, but are not limited to, persons engaged in tourist-oriented operations. No more than three of the governor's appointees shall be of the same political party.

Commission members appointed by the governor serve staggered four-year terms and may be reappointed at the end of their terms. All serve without compensation, but are reimbursed for necessary expenses incurred in the performance of their duties.

The commission elects a chairman and meets at least four times in a calendar year at the call of the chairman to determine all matters relating to the tourism policies of the State of Missouri and the administration of the Division of Tourism.

The commission reports to each regular session of the General Assembly the results of its marketing program and any recommendations for legislation in the field of tourism promotion.

The budget of the Division of Tourism is contained within the annual submittal of the Department of Economic Development to the Missouri General Assembly for approval.

The Tourism Commission employs a director of the Division of Tourism, qualified by education and experience in public administration with a background in the use of the various news media. The director employs a staff of professional, technical and clerical personnel.

Activities and Plans

Division activities focus on five research-based, strategically planned areas:

- Communications efforts include public and media relations, www.VisitMO.com, photographic services and publications;
- Cooperative marketing matches state funds with private-sector tourism dollars for destination promotion;
- Domestic marketing includes advertising, trade shows, meetings/convention marketing and sports marketing, special promotions and events;
- International efforts are targeted in Canada and the United Kingdom in the areas of trade relations, public relations, product development and advertising; and
- Special markets efforts focus on reaching niche audiences, such as African-American tourists; agritourism, cultural tourists; and tour and travel, which includes group tour and group leader familiarization tours, advertising and marketplaces.

Research plays a vital role in the effectiveness of the division's efforts to increase tourism spending and stimulate economic and market-share growth at the state and local level. It not only measures past efforts, but also can give important insight to how and where, when and to whom the state should direct promotional efforts to increase its market share of visitors and expenditures. Research projects are conducted on a continual basis to determine the size, growth and impact of these marketing efforts.

Annually, the division works with research firms to assess subjects, including the effect of travel spending on the state's economy, tax revenue derived from travel spending and employment generated through tourism.

Most activities are in the area of advertising and promotion. Among the promotional tools are brochures, highlighted by the annual Missouri Vacation Planner. This publication is distributed free to the public. News releases and a monthly newsletter, The Tourism Monitor, also are prepared for the news media and others interested in Missouri tourism. The division has an Internet presence through its web site, which includes destination and attraction information, as well as news and other promotional programs.

Through a paid advertising program, the division promotes Missouri's vacation opportunities. The advertising has the goal of creating a positive image of Missouri and generating travel to the state. Mailing of state information in response to requests is another major part of the division's responsibilities.

Division of Tourism

In 1993, the Missouri Division of Tourism initiated the Cooperative Marketing Program, a 50/50 matching funds reimbursement program, designed to extend the division's marketing resources through participation in strategic marketing partnerships, support local performance-driven projects designed to increase tourism, and to provide incentive and opportunity for marketing growth and improvement at the destination level. Qualified professional, nonprofit, destination-marketing organizations throughout Missouri participate regularly in this program. The first year, Fiscal Year 1995, the program received a budget of $1 million and funded more than 50 marketing organizations. Each year the division consistently dedicates a significant portion of its marketing budget to the Cooperative Marketing Program. The Fiscal Year 2004 program awarded just over $3 million in matching funds for 64 projects resulting in total project expenditures of more than $6.6 million, and gross impressions of $1.1 billion.

Much of the division's work is designed to meet the changing trends in the travel/tourism industry. For the seventh fiscal year, the Division of Tourism will have specifically targeted Missouri's tourism message to audiences in the African-American market. The division, through its marketing partners, has expanded its marketing campaign to help our tourism industry grow in new areas. This initiative also includes encouraging close-to-home travel for the estimated 80 million Americans who live within a day's drive of Missouri. The division cooperates with tour packagers and group travel promoters to develop efficient, cost-saving travel opportunities for those who prefer pre-planned vacations.

For travelers entering Missouri, the division operates six Official State Welcome Centers. The six welcome centers are located at key entry points to the state at the following locations:

- Joplin Welcome Center—Interstate 44 west of Joplin
- St. Louis Welcome Center—Interstate 270 and Riverview Drive in St. Louis
- New Madrid Welcome Center—Interstate 55 south of New Madrid
- The Hardin C. Cox Welcome Center at Rock Port—Interstate 29 near Rock Port
- Hannibal Welcome Center—Highway 61 at Hannibal
- Kansas City Welcome Center—Interstate 70 entering Kansas City

Close relationships with others in the travel-promotion field are vital. The division maintains these relationships through memberships, including the Travel Industry Association of America, International Visit USA Committees, National Tour Association, American Bus Association and other travel associations.

The division has won awards in its campaigns to reach international markets, including Canada and the United Kingdom. Much of this effort is through regional marketing organizations, such as Mississippi River Country USA. The division has a market representative in the United Kingdom to oversee the growth of this important market. Further promotional efforts are coordinated with the Department of Economic Development's international offices.

The division works closely with Missouri communities, area promotion groups and federal agencies, including the Missouri Travel Council, Missouri Association of Convention and Visitors Bureaus, Missouri Arts Council, state and national parks, the Missouri Department of Conservation, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, National Forest Service and U.S. Department of Commerce.

Regulatory Groups

Through its regulatory agencies, the Department of Economic Development works to safeguard the public interest by ensuring safe and sound financial institutions, just and reasonable utility rates and ethical services by licensed professionals. These agencies include the Division of Credit Unions, Division of Finance, Office of the Public Counsel, Missouri Public Service Commission and Division of Professional Registration.

The original statute governing credit unions was passed by the state legislature in 1927. This enactment gave the secretary of state chartering authority and required that all amendments to the bylaws be approved by that office. Effective August 13, 1972, these powers were transferred to the commissioner of finance.

The Omnibus State Reorganization Act of 1974 removed credit unions from the jurisdiction of the Division of Finance. On July 1, 1974, the Division of Credit Unions was created and all powers, duties and functions were transferred from the commissioner of finance to the director of the Division of Credit Unions. This agency is under the Department of Economic Development and has a director who is nominated by the department director and appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate.

The Credit Union Commission was created in 1998. The commission determines appeals from certain decisions of the director of the Division of Credit Unions, approves or disapproves regulations proposed by the director, and consults with and advises the director on matters pertaining to the organization, operation and supervision of credit unions. The bipartisan commission is comprised of seven members; four must have certain credit union experience, two must be individuals not involved in the administration of a financial institution and one must be an attorney.

The Division of Credit Unions is the regulatory agency responsible for the examination, supervision, chartering, merger and liquidation of all state-chartered credit unions. The division also responds to consumer requests or complaints in regard to credit union services or operations.

A director, deputy director, chief examiner, 10 examiners and three administrative personnel staff the division. Examiners are located in Kansas City, St. Louis and Jefferson City. The entire cost of the agency is reimbursed to the state through fees and assessments paid by the credit unions.

The division is an accredited agency through the National Association of State Credit Union Supervisors.

The National Credit Union Administration, an agency of the federal government, insures all member deposits.

As of December 31, 2004, Missouri ranked eighth in the nation in the number of state-chartered credit unions. The Division of Credit Unions currently regulates 158 credit unions with assets exceeding $8.1 billion. There are approximately 1.2 million members of Missouri credit unions.

The Division of Finance is responsible for the incorporation and regulation of state-chartered banks, trust companies, savings banks and for the regulation of savings and loan associations. The division is headed by the commissioner of finance, who is nominated by the department director and appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate. The commissioner must approve actions such as the relocation of such chartered financial institution's offices, establishment of branches or changes in levels of capital. The statutes require that Missouri state-chartered banks, trust companies, savings banks and savings and loan associations be examined for safety and soundness at least once each 18 months. The division also licenses and examines consumer credit companies, credit services organizations and money order companies.

State-chartered banks were under the jurisdiction of the secretary of state from 1895 until 1907 when the General Assembly created the State Banking Department. Over the years, the agency was renamed the Division of Finance and is now an agency within the Department of Economic Development.

The State Banking Board, a quasi-judicial body, was created in 1955 to handle appeals from certain decisions and orders of the commissioner of finance. The bipartisan board is comprised of five members: two must be non-bankers, one must be a lawyer and two must be experienced bankers. The Savings and Loan Commission, created in 1957, serves a similar function for state-chartered thrift associations. This bipartisan commission is also comprised of five members, one of whom must be a lawyer.

The Division of Finance has 25 administrative and clerical employees in the Jefferson City office and a total of 71 field examiners – 57 bank examiners, 10 consumer credit examiners and four trust examiners. Field offices are maintained in Kansas City, St. Louis, Columbia, Springfield and Sikeston.

The entire cost of the division's operations is funded through assessments paid by state-chartered banks, trust companies, savings banks and savings and loan associations and fees paid by licensees.

Banking in Missouri

Missouri ranks fifth in the nation in the number of state-chartered commercial banks. As of December 31, 2004, the Division of Finance (pursuant to Chapters 361 and 362, RSMo) supervised 309 state-chartered banks and trust companies with combined total assets of $55.6 billion. During the 2003–2004 biennium, the division approved charters for five new banks, two trust companies, converted one national bank to a state charter, converted one federal savings bank to a state-chartered bank, and converted one Missouri state-chartered savings bank to a state-chartered bank. The number of state-chartered banks decreased by 14 during the period as a result of two mergers into Missouri national banks, five mergers into other state banks, six mergers into out-of-state banks and one non-deposit trust company merger into a Missouri national non-deposit trust company. The deposits in all Missouri state-chartered banks and trust companies are insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation; savings banks and savings and loan associations are also federally insured.

Branching and Interstate Banking

For most of the 20th century, Missouri was a unitary banking state and branching developed gradually as laws were changed over the last 45 years. Interstate barriers have also fallen and since June 1, 1997, banks in Missouri have been able to merge with banks in other states. The Division of Finance has entered into arrangements with other regulators to examine banks with interstate branches.

Savings and Loan Supervision

The Division of Savings and Loan Supervision, created in 1895, was merged into the Division of Finance effective July 6, 1994, in accordance with the provisions of House Bill 1165. This bill transferred the supervision of state chartered savings and loan associations as well as the licensing of mortgage brokers to the Division of Finance. As of December 31, 2004, there were six savings and loan associations with total assets of $423,666.

The mortgage broker law, Section 443.800 et seq., was substantially amended in 1995; currently there are 591 active licensees. Brokers are subject to surety bond and net worth requirements. A five-member Residential Mortgage Board approves regulations and hears appeals from the commissioner's decisions.

Consumer Credit

The consumer credit section supervises institutions licensed pursuant to state law (Chapters 364, 365, 367 and 408, RSMo) to engage in consumer lending, payday lending (making unsecured loans of $500 or less), automobile title lending, retail credit financing of motor vehicles and other goods and the financing of insurance premiums. The statutes give the commissioner authority to issue necessary regulations and examine for compliance with consumer protection laws. This unit also enforces the Sale of Checks Law (Section 361.700 et seq.), which provides for the licensing of companies that issue money orders or electronically transmit funds. The consumer credit section also licenses financial services organizations (credit repair companies) per Sections 407.635–644.

The consumer credit section handles consumer complaints in the areas of usury, disclosures, notices, refunding, credit insurance, billing disputes and collection harassment. This section also coordinates enforcement of the Missouri residential real estate anti-discrimination (redlining) laws, per Sections 408.570–408.600.

The Office of the Public Counsel is Missouri's consumer advocate in the area of utility regulation. The Public Counsel must be an attorney licensed to practice in Missouri and is appointed by the director of the Department of Economic Development.

The Office of the Public Counsel was established in 1974 as an independent agency to represent the interests of utility customers in proceedings before and appeals from the Missouri Public Service Commission (PSC) and the courts. The PSC regulates the rates and services of investor-owned electric, natural gas, telephone, water, sewer and steam heat utilities, and also regulates manufactured housing. The Public Counsel's participation in PSC cases and its power to appeal PSC decisions has resulted in important victories for utility consumers.

While keeping abreast of the rapid changes that are currently occurring in the utility sector, the Office of the Public Counsel advocates for high quality utility services at affordable rates. When large industrial and commercial utility customers retain counsel to represent their particular interests before the PSC, the Office of the Public Counsel focuses its representation on residential and small business customers who otherwise would not have their point of view presented or their interests protected. Public Counsel's representation gives these consumers an essential voice in the regulation of life sustaining public utility services.

LEWIS R. MILLS, JR.
Public Counsel, Office of the Public Counsel

Dramatic changes in federal and state policy have introduced some competition into the local telephone market, and may significantly impact Missouri's electric industry. The Office of the Public Counsel advocates for such changes only when it appears that consumers would benefit. If such changes occur, the Office of the Public Counsel will continue its traditional role in the remaining monopoly utility markets, but will also focus its efforts on the emerging competitive areas to advocate regulatory structures that would facilitate a transition to truly effective competition. Public Counsel educates and communicates with consumers about their rights and responsibilities. These efforts are especially important to guard against consumer fraud.

The office consists of attorneys, technical experts and an administrative staff. The attorneys represent the public interest in proceedings before the PSC, the state and federal courts, as well as before the Federal Communications Commission and Federal Energy Regulatory Commission. Accountants, economists, financial analysts and engineers are the backbone of the technical staff. These experts offer the Public Counsel's testimony on the reasonableness, feasibility, and affordability of utility proposals and practices.

The Public Counsel attempts to focus on the most significant cases for utility consumers and cases, which have broad public policy effects. The office also consults and works with other public utility consumer advocates in the other states to keep current on issues vital to the consumer and to address national and regional issues of interest to Missouri consumers.

The Missouri Public Service Commission is charged with the statutory responsibility of ensuring that public utility consumers receive safe and adequate services at just and reasonable rates that will provide the utility companies' shareholders the opportunity to earn a reasonable return on their investment.

The commission consists of five commissioners who are appointed by the governor to six-year terms with the advice and consent of the Senate. The terms are staggered so that no more than two terms expire in any one year. The governor designates one member as chair who serves in that capacity at the pleasure of the governor.

The commission regulates utility rates, service and safety for investor-owned electric, gas, telecommunications, sewer and water companies. The commission also monitors the construction of manufactured homes to ensure compliance with state and federal law. While the rates charged by rural electric cooperatives and municipally owned utilities are determined by their respective governing bodies, the commission has jurisdiction regarding matters of safety over rural electric cooperatives and municipally-operated electric and natural gas systems. Similarly, the commission does not have jurisdiction over the basic service rates for telephone cooperatives, but regulates other aspects of their operations. The commission also oversees service territory issues involving investor-owned electric utilities, rural electric cooperatives and municipally owned electric utilities as well as those involving privately owned water and sewer utilities and public water supply districts.

The commission has a staff of professional accountants, engineers, economists, attorneys, financial analysts and management specialists that evaluate utility requests for commission approval. These requests deal with matters such as tariff changes regarding rates and business operations, financing proposals, business reorganizations, asset transfers and mergers. The staff will provide the results of its evaluation and recommend actions that satisfy the agency's statutory requirements.

The staff conducts routine and special investigations to ensure compliance with commission statutes, rules and orders, including standards for safety and quality of service. Staff will initiate or implement actions to enforce these laws when necessary. Enforcement actions for injunctive relief or monetary penalties are prosecuted in state court by the commission's general counsel.

The traditional rate case is the process through which the commission ultimately determines what customers will pay for their utility services. The process is commenced in one of two ways: a utility company files a tariff for authority to change its rates; or a complaint is filed by the commission, the PSC staff, the Office of Public Counsel or others challenging the reasonableness of the utility's rates. Generally, a tariff filing seeks a rate increase while a complaint filing seeks a rate reduction.

The general public is formally represented before the commission by the Office of the Public Counsel, which is a separate state agency under the Department of Economic Development.

Under both the tariff method and the complaint case method, the commission normally will conduct hearings for the purpose of addressing the reasonableness of the proposed tariff or the reasonableness of the rates being challenged. In most tariff filing cases, by law, the commission has up to 11 months from the time a tariff is filed to reach its decision, or the rates will go into effect as filed. Many of these cases are resolved in accord with a settlement between the parties and processed in a shorter timeframe.

The commission staff conducts an independent, on-site investigation of the company's books and records to provide the commission with a recommendation as to what increase or decrease, if any, should be ordered. This investigation can take from two weeks to several months and results in the pre-filing of written testimony. Other parties such as the Office of the Public Counsel, consumer groups, commercial and industrial interests and municipalities are given an opportunity to provide written testimony.

In addition to holding formal evidentiary hearings, the commission may hold local public hearings, which allow customers to express their views on the proposed increase or the utility's service.

Once the formal hearing is completed, the commission reviews the evidence submitted, deliberates and then issues a decision. That decision is subject to appeal to the courts.

The commission is also engaged in a variety of activities reflecting changes in state and federal law regarding the telecommunications and energy sectors of the utility industry. As federal regulators make decisions that directly affect Missouri utility consumers, the commission participates in proceedings before the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) and the Federal Communications Commission (FCC). Commissioners and staff members have testified on numerous occasions before these agencies and the commission has taken appeals from decisions adverse to Missouri ratepayers to the federal courts.

Director, Utility Operations, Missouri Public Service Commission

Regular meetings of the commission start at 9:30 a.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays. As with other state agencies, commission meetings are subject to the state's open meetings law.

The Data Center keeps a record of all filings and proceedings of the commission. These records are available for public inspection from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday, except legal holidays. Many of these records are also available electronically at www.psc.mo.gov.

A consumer who has questions about specific matters relating to utility service should first call the utility company. If the consumer is not satisfied with the company response, he or she may call the commission's consumer services department. Consumers may also file formal written complaints. The commission's main consumer services office is located in Jefferson City, and there is also a branch office located in the St. Louis area. The commission's toll-free hotline number for complaints is 1-800-392-4211.

Under the commission's procedure, each informal complaint is assigned a specialist who acts as an intermediary between the consumer and the utility in an attempt to resolve the complaint. Through investigations of consumer complaints, the consumer services department works to ensure that utilities comply with their approved tariffs and commission regulations.

The Missouri Public Service Commission was established in 1913 by the 47th General Assembly. The 1974 State Reorganization Act placed the commission within the Department of Consumer Affairs, Regulation and Licensing, which in 1984 was renamed the Department of Economic Development.

The Missouri State Board of Accountancy was created in 1909 and consists of six certified public accountants and one public member who are nominated by the director of the Division of Professional Registration and appointed by the governor with the consent of the Senate for terms of five years. The board meets at least six times each year. Officers are elected in June of each year.

The Missouri accountancy law protects the interests of the citizens of Missouri through the examination, licensure and regulation of individuals, limited liability companies, partnerships and professional corporations engaged in the practice of public accounting; assures the users of financial and economic data of an independent, objective and uniform product based upon generally accepted accounting principles and auditing standards; and ensures that the services are provided by competent and ethical practitioners. Only individuals, partnerships, limited liability companies, professional corporations and sole proprietorships qualified and registered as prescribed in Chapter 326, RSMo, may practice public accounting in the state.

Examinations for licensure are computerized and administered in three month testing windows throughout the year.

The board is entirely self-sustaining by means of fees derived from issuance of new licensees and permits to practice and the biennial renewal of licenses and annual renewal of permits to practice.

The board is a member of the National Association of State Boards of Accountancy and participates in the Federation of Regulatory Boards (FARV) and the Clearinghouse on Licensure, Enforcement and Regulation (CLEAR).

The responsibilities of the committee are to adopt and revise rules, review and issue licenses, review all complaints and/or investigations, and advise the State Board of Chiropractic Examiners on all matters pertaining to the licensing of acupuncturists.

The committee is composed of three acupuncturists, one member shall be a chiropractic physician duly licensed by the Missouri State Board of Chiropractic Examiners and a member of the board, and one public member. Nominations are made to the governor by the director of the Division of Professional Registration and appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate.

The committee is a member of Acupuncture and Oriental Medicine Alliance and participates in the Clearinghouse on Licensure, Enforcement and Regulation (CLEAR).

The Missouri Board for Architects, Professional Engineers, Professional Land Surveyors and Landscape Architects was established in 1941 to protect the health, safety and welfare of the citizens of Missouri against the danger of collapse of structures erected for public use. The board also exists to safeguard Missouri residents and their property from damages that might result from illegal and incompetent architectural, engineering, land surveying and landscape architectural practices.

The board consists of 14 members, including one voting public member. Each board member is nominated by the director of the Division of Professional Registration and appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate. Terms are four years in length.

Members of the board - except for the public member - must be licensed under Missouri law, resident of Missouri for at least five years and have been actively engaged in the practice of their profession for 10 consecutive years prior to their appointment.

Under the law, no individual may practice architecture, engineering, land surveying or landscape architecture in Missouri without first securing a license from the board; nor may corporations render or offer architectural, engineering, land surveying or landscape architectural services in Missouri without the board's authorization.

The State Board of Barber Examiners was created by the 40th General Assembly in 1866. The board is composed of three barbers who have been licensed and practicing barbers for five years preceding their initial appointments and one voting public member. Members are nominated by the director of the Division of Professional Registration and appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate for four-year terms. The board is self-sustaining by means of fees derived from the issuance of new licenses, the renewal of licenses, student registrations and other fees paid by approximately 5,500 licensees.

Board meetings are held six times a year in conjunction with the examination for licensure as a barber or instructor. Its members elect officers of the board annually.

While working with the Division of Professional Registration on budget and legislative matters, the board is responsible for enforcing Chapter 328, RSMo, responding to consumer complaints and bringing formal complaints against licensees who violate the barber law or rules and regulations of the board.

It is the objective of the board to protect the public by ensuring that only qualified persons are examined and licensed to practice barbering in sanitary barber shops and schools/colleges, and that the curriculum in barber schools/colleges adequately prepares individuals to practice barbering.

The board is a member of National Association of State Barber Boards of America and participates in the Clearinghouse on Licensure, Enforcement and Regulation (CLEAR).

The State Board of Chiropractic Examiners, created in 1927, consists of six members submitted by the director of the Division of Professional Registration and appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate. The members, five licensed chiropractic physicians and one public member, serve terms of four years.

It is the duty of the board to administer and enforce the chiropractic practice act and issue licenses to persons entitled to practice chiropractic under the provisions of the law. Board meetings are usually held four times annually.

The board is funded by fees derived from new and renewed licenses. There are over 1,800 chiropractic physicians currently licensed by the board.

To qualify for license renewal, chiropractic physicians must earn 24 hours of board-approved continuing education, four hours of which must be in x-ray, four hours in differential or physical diagnosis and four hours in emergency procedures, boundary training, training in HIV or other infectious diseases.

The State Board of Cosmetology was established in 1945 to examine, license and register qualified persons engaged in the practice of hairdressing, cosmetology and manicuring and, effective August 1995, esthetics. The board also licenses cosmetology schools and shops and inspects them for compliance with sanitary regulations.

The board is composed of seven members, including one public member. All members, except the public member, shall be registered cosmetologists actively engaged in the lawful practice of cosmetology, hairdressing, esthetics and manicuring, one of which must be a school owner, for at least five years. All members are nominated by the director of the Department of Economic Development and appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate for four-year terms.

The board meets regularly six times each year as well as holds any special meetings that are deemed necessary. Officers are elected annually at the January board meeting. The board is self-sustaining. It generates the necessary funds through the collection of fees for the issuance of new licenses, renewal of licenses and other fees paid by the 70,000 licensees.

The Missouri Dental Board was created by the General Assembly in 1897. The Omnibus State Reorganization Act of 1974 transferred the board to the Division of Professional Registration.

The Missouri Dental Board consists of five dentists, one public member and one dental hygiene member appointed for five-year terms. Members are nominated by the director of the Division of Professional Registration and appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate. The board is self-sustaining through original license, renewal and other fees paid by dentists, specialists and dental hygienists.

One of the primary functions of the board is examination for competency of candidates who wish to become licensed as dentists, dental specialists or dental hygienists. The Missouri Dental Board is a participating member of the Central Region Dental Testing Service (CRTDS). CRDTS gives a clinical examination, which is accepted, by each member state. Applicants for original licensure who wish to practice in Missouri must pass the CRDTS regional examination or a state or regional entry-level competency examination as well as apply to the Missouri Dental Board. The board also issues licenses by credential verification to qualified applicants who have been licensed in another jurisdiction.

The board is responsible for the enforcement of Chapter 332, RSMo; responds to consumer complaints; and investigates and brings formal complaints against licensees who violate the dental law or rules and regulations of the board. The board also brings actions against persons practicing dentistry or dental hygiene without a license and may promulgate rules and regulations necessary to enforce Chapter 332, RSMo.

The 91st General Assembly created the Advisory Commission for Dental Hygienists. Members of this commission, appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate, are responsible for advising the board on the licensure and regulation of dental hygienists.

The board is a member of American Association of Dental Examiners (AADE) and the Central Regional Dental Testing Service, Inc., and participates in the Clearinghouse on Licensure, Enforcement and Regulation (CLEAR).

The State Board of Embalming was created in 1895 by an act of the Missouri General Assembly. In 1965, the legislature passed a bill licensing funeral directors as well as embalmers and changed the name of the board to the State Board of Embalmers and Funeral Directors. In 1977, Senate Bill 6 required all applicants for a funeral director's license to pass an examination prior to licensure. In 1993, legislation established an apprenticeship program and an additional examination for funeral directors.

The board consists of six members, including one voting public member. Members of the board are nominated by the director of the Division of Professional Registration and appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate for five-year terms. No more than three members of the board may belong to the same political party.

The board is self-sustaining by means of fees, derived from new licenses issued and through renewal of licenses of embalmers, funeral directors and funeral establishments and registration of embalming students.

Meetings are held at least four times per year. Examinations are given throughout the year on dates designated by the board.

The board is a member of International Conference of Funeral Service Examining Boards and the Federation of Association of Regulatory Boards (FARB). The board participates in the National Funeral Directors Association (NFDA), Missouri Funeral Directors Association (MFDA) and the Clearinghouse on Licensure, Enforcement and Regulation (CLEAR).

The Office of Endowed Care Cemeteries was created in 1990 by an act of the 85th General Assembly and is funded from fees associated with licensure and fees derived from the issuance of vital records.

The office establishes the rules for the qualifications and expectations of endowed care cemeteries; develops and enforces standards for endowed care cemeteries; establishes fees to cover the cost of administering the Endowed Care Cemetery Act; audits cemetery trust funds; investigates complaints; and recommends prosecution for cemeteries found in violation of the standards, rules or the Endowed Care Cemetery Act.

An endowed care cemetery is defined as a cemetery or section of a cemetery, which represents itself as offering endowed care and which complies with the provisions of sections 214.270 to 214.410, RSMo.

The office is a member of North American Cemetery Regulators Association (NCRA) and participates in the Clearinghouse on Licensure, Enforcement and Regulation (CLEAR).

The State Board of Registration for the Healing Arts was created in 1939 by the General Assembly in an act codified as Chapter 334, RSMo. This act established a bipartisan board of nine members. The members are nominated by the director of the Division of Professional Registration and appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate. Five members of the board are doctors of medicine, three are doctors of osteopathy and one is a public member. Each is appointed for a term of four years.

Among its duties, the board is responsible for the examination and licensure of individuals to practice as physicians and surgeons and to annually register each person who is licensed. The board has the authority to investigate complaints, revoke licenses and make investigations concerning the unauthorized practice of medicine. It is the duty of this agency to strive to protect the health and welfare of the people of Missouri where the practice of medicine is concerned.

Professional physical therapists, physical therapist assistants, speech-language pathologists, audiologists, speech-language pathology aides, speech-language pathology assistants, audiology aides, physician assistants, athletic trainers and clinical perfusionists are health professionals who are also licensed and regulated by the board.

The 81st General Assembly created the Athletic Trainers Advisory Committee in 1983. Members of this committee, appointed by the board, are responsible for advising the board on the registration and regulation of athletic trainers.

The 83rd General Assembly created the Advisory Commission for Speech-Language Pathologists and Audiologists in 1973. Members of this commission, appointed by the board, are responsible for advising the board on the licensure and regulation of those engaged in these professions.

The 85th General Assembly created the Advisory Commission for Professional Physical Therapists in 1969. Members of this commission, appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate, are responsible for advising the board on the licensure and regulation of physical therapists.

The 89th General Assembly created the Advisory Commission for Physician Assistants in 1989. Members of this commission, appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate, are responsible for advising the board on the licensure and regulation of physician assistants.

The 89th General Assembly created the Advisory Commission for Clinical Perfusionists in 1997. Members of this commission, appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate, are responsible for advising the board on the licensure and regulation of clinical perfusionists.

The 90th General Assembly created the Advisory Commission for Anesthesiologist Assistants in 2001. Members of this commission, appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate, are responsible for advising the board on the licensure and regulation of anesthesiologist assistants.

The board is a member of the Federation of State Medical Boards, Federation of State Boards of Physical Therapy, Administrators in Medicine, and the National Council of State Boards of Speech and Language Pathology and Audiology, and participates in the Clearinghouse on Licensure, Enforcement and Regulation (CLEAR).

The Board of Examiners for Hearing Instrument Specialists was created by an act of the 88th General Assembly and approved by the governor on August 28, 1995. The act provides that all persons engaging in the practice of fitting or selling hearing instruments must be licensed by the state of Missouri.

The board is charged with the responsibility of guiding, advising and making recommendations to the division on all matters pertaining to licensure and regulation.

The board is composed of eight members: five hearing instrument specialists, one otolaryngologist, one voting public member and one audiologist holding a certificate of clinical competence and licensed pursuant to Chapter 345, RSMo. Members are nominated by the director of the Division of Professional Registration and appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate. The term of office of each member is four years.

The board participates in the Clearinghouse on Licensure, Enforcement and Regulation (CLEAR).

The State Board of Pharmacy was established by the General Assembly in 1909. The board consists of seven members, six of whom must be licensed pharmacists in good standing and actively engaged in the practice of pharmacy within the state and one public member. Board members are nominated by the director of the Division of Professional Registration and appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate. Appointments are for five years.

The pharmacy law has been amended at various times to meet the needs and requirements of the profession. During the 66th General Assembly, a drug store or pharmacy law was enacted granting the board power to license all drug stores, pharmacies, apothecary shops and chemist shops in the state. Seven inspectors assist in enforcing the law with their salaries and travel expenses set by the board.

Organization of the board is held annually with the election of a president and vice president, both of whom must be board members.

The board annually issues 7,300 renewals to registered pharmacists and permits to some 1,300 pharmacies in the state. In addition, the board annually issues 300 renewals to non-resident pharmacies as well as 1,200 renewals to drug distributors.

The board also licenses intern pharmacists and renews approximately 800 intern pharmacist licenses annually. The board issues temporary licenses to pharmacists who are licensed in another state and who are completing a residency program in Missouri. This type of license restricts the pharmacist to specific sites approved by the board.

The initial registration of approximately 7,000 pharmacy technicians occurred in 1999. The board annually issues 13,000 renewals to pharmacy technicians.

The Missouri State Board of Podiatry was created in 1945 by an act of the General Assembly. The board is composed of five members, including one voting public member. Members are nominated by the director of the Division of Professional Registration and appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate for four-year terms.

The board administers and enforces the Podiatry Act, conducts examination of applicants and grants certificates of registration to persons who comply with the provisions of the law.

In 1993, legislation was passed requiring all newly licensed podiatrists to complete a twelve-month residency program.

Since 1995, after meeting additional requirements, a podiatrist may perform surgery of the ankle. That legislation also changed the name of the board to the State Board of Podiatric Medicine.

As of January 1, 2005, all podiatrists who desire to perform ankle surgery will have to meet additional residency and CME requirements.

The board is funded through fees derived from new and renewed licenses. Renewal fees are due biennially by March 1. To qualify for renewal, licensees must certify they have earned at least twenty-four hours of approved continuing medical education credit during the two-year period preceding renewal.

The board is a member of Federation of Podiatric Medical Examiners and participates in the Clearinghouse on Licensure, Enforcement and Regulation (CLEAR).

The Missouri Real Estate Commission was created by an act of the 61st General Assembly and approved by the governor on July 31, 1941.

Board members are nominated by the director of the Division of Professional Registration and appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate. The commission consists of seven voting members. Six of those members must have at least 10 years experience as real estate brokers. A public member serves as the seventh member. Each commissioner is appointed for a five-year term.

Under the provisions of the Real Estate Act, no real estate broker or salesperson may act as such without first procuring a license from the commission. Other responsibilities include investigating complaints generated by consumers against the acts of a real estate licensee and auditing real estate escrow accounts to verify proper handling of buyers' earnest money. The commission also approves all real estate pre-licensing and continuing education courses.

State Board of Education

Under the Missouri Constitution (Article IX), the State Board of Education has general authority for "supervision of instruction in the public schools." Today, this responsibility includes the oversight of educational programs and services that serve Missourians from preschool through the adult levels.

The State Board of Education is composed of eight lay citizens, appointed by the governor and confirmed by the Senate to serve eight-year terms. The terms are staggered so that one term expires each year. No more than four members may belong to the same political party. No more than one member of the board may live in the same county or congressional district.

The board appoints the commissioner of education to serve as its chief executive officer and as director of the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education. The board is required by law to meet at least twice a year in Jefferson City. Generally, though, the board meets for two days each month.

The primary role of the board is to provide leadership and advocacy for the improvement of Missouri's public education system. The board also establishes policies and regulations needed to carry out state and federal laws related to public education. The board's major duties include:

- Setting accreditation standards for local school districts through the Missouri School Improvement Program (MSIP). The accreditation standards define basic requirements for curriculum, student performance, staffing, high school graduation and other areas of school operations.
- Establishing "academic performance standards" for the public schools and designing an assessment system to measure students' learning, as required by state law.
- Setting education and certification requirements for all professional personnel (teachers, administrators, librarians, counselors, etc.) in public schools.
- Approving educator-preparation programs in the state's community colleges and four-year institutions, both public and private.
- Establishing regulations and administrative requirements for the distribution of state and federal funds to school districts and other agencies.
- Monitoring school districts' compliance with state and federal laws and regulations. This includes the administration of federally supported programs in the areas of special education, career-technical education and child nutrition (the school lunch and breakfast programs).
- Administering the Missouri School for the Blind (St. Louis), the Missouri School for the Deaf (Fulton) and the system of State Schools for Severely Handicapped.
- Administering vocational rehabilitation services for adult citizens with disabilities. (See Division of Vocational Rehabilitation.)

elected state superintendent, in 1839. The office went through several transformations until the current constitution, adopted in 1945, established the State Board of Education in its present form and created a Department of Education, headed by an appointed commissioner of education.

The Department of Elementary and Secondary Education (DESE) was reorganized and established in its present form by the Omnibus State Reorganization Act of 1974.

The department is primarily a service agency that works with educators, legislators, government agencies, community leaders and citizens to maintain a strong public education system. Through its statewide school-improvement initiatives and its regulatory functions, the department strives to assure that all citizens have access to high-quality public education.

The Department of Elementary and Secondary Education is the administrative arm of the State Board of Education. In addition to the commissioner of education, the senior staff of the department consists of one deputy commissioner, one associate commissioner and five assistant commissioners. The associate and assistant commissioners each head one of the department's six main divisions.

The commissioner is appointed by, and serves at the pleasure of the State Board of Education.

Deputy Commissioner

Telephone: (573) 751-3503 / FAX: (573) 751-1179

The deputy commissioner serves as chief of staff for the agency, maintains liaison with the legislature and other agencies, and oversees all of the department's activities related to school improvement.

Division of Administrative and Financial Services

Telephone: (573) 751-2587 / FAX: (573) 751-1179

The associate commissioner heads this division. It is responsible for distributing all federal and state funds to local school districts and other agencies that provide education-related services. The school finance section assists local school officials with budgeting, audits and the reporting of financial statistics. This division also manages the department's internal business operations, such as accounting, budget, human resources, information technology and planning and research.

Division of School Improvement

Telephone: (573) 751-4234 / FAX: (573) 751-9434

A primary function of this division is to manage the Missouri School Improvement Program (MSIP), the state's accreditation system for public school districts. It also assists local educators with curriculum development and student testing. The Curriculum Services Section provides

State Schools for the Severely Handicapped

Jefferson City 65102
Telephone: (573) 751-4427 / FAX: (573) 751-0276

The State Schools for Severely Handicapped operate day-school programs for students with severe disabilities (ages 5–21) in 37 facilities across the state. The comprehensive educational program consists of developmental and therapeutic services, functional academics and vocational preparation.

Division of Teacher Quality and Urban Education

This division is responsible for evaluating teacher-training programs offered by Missouri's higher education institutions and for issuing certificates (licenses) to all professional personnel who work in the state's public school system. Personnel in this division also conduct background checks on applicants for teaching certificates and investigate certificate-holders who are charged with misconduct.

Other sections in this division award grants for innovative professional development programs; administer the state-funded "career ladder" program; and manage state-funded scholarship programs for prospective teachers.

Division of Career Education

This division is responsible for a wide range of programs that serve the career and technical training needs of high school students, postsecondary students (community college), adults, and industry. Personnel in the division provide professional leadership and administer state and federal funds to support programs in local high schools, area career-technical schools and community colleges.

The division's programs and services provide students and adults with the knowledge and skills needed for employment in current or emerging fields, to continue their education, or to be retrained for new business and industry practices. This division also administers statewide adult education services, including adult education and literacy, the high school equivalency-testing program (GED), and workforce development (job training).

"VR" provides specialized services to adult citizens with disabilities to help them achieve employment and independence. The division maintains offices across the state to provide convenient services to clients. Vocational Rehabilitation personnel provide individualized counseling, training and other services to help clients achieve gainful employment or independent living. The VR program is supported primarily with federal funds.

The division currently funds 21 Independent Living Centers across the state. These centers provide counseling, advocacy, personal care, and training in independent living skills for adults with disabilities.

The Disability Determinations program is part of this division and operates under regulations of the Social Security Administration. Located in offices across the state, Disability Determinations personnel adjudicate claims from Missouri residents seeking federal disability benefits.

Education Commission of the States

The interstate compact for education is an agreement entered into by a number of states to provide an Education Commission of the States. The commission is charged with collecting and analyzing data concerning educational needs and resources, coordinating research and developing proposals for adequate financing of education as a whole and formulating policies and plans for the improvement of public education.

The Missouri Commission for the Deaf and Hard of Hearing was created in 1988 to improve the quality of life for all deaf and hard of hearing Missourians. It advocates for public policies, regulations and programs to improve the quality and coordination of existing services for people with hearing loss and promotes new services whenever necessary.

The commission promotes deaf awareness in the general public and serves as a consultant to any public agency needing information concerning deafness; administers the Missouri Interpreter Certification System; conducts and maintains a census of the deaf population in Missouri; advocates for improved physical and mental health services for deaf Missourians; promotes the development of services for deaf adults such as shelter homes, independent living skills training, and postsecondary educational programs; facilitates a communication network among deaf adults; and promotes improvements in telephone relay services (TRS).

The Department of Health and Senior Services was created by the passage of House Bill 603 in May 2001. The bill transferred the roles and responsibilities of the Division of Aging in the Department of Social Services to the Department of Health creating the Department of Health and Senior Services. This change has resulted in better integration, closer coordination and communication regarding health, public health, regulation and senior services for all Missourians.

State Board of Health

The State Board of Health serves as an advisory body for activities of the Department of Health and Senior Services. It consists of seven members appointed by the governor with advice and consent of the Missouri Senate. Members serve four-year terms and may serve a maximum of two terms. Missouri law (RSMo 191.400) specifies that three members shall be licensed physicians; one member shall be a licensed dentist; one member shall be a licensed chiropractic physician; and the other two members shall be persons other than those licensed by the State Board of Registration for the Healing Arts, the Missouri Dental Board, or the Missouri State Board of Chiropractic Examiners and shall be representative of those persons, professions, and businesses which are regulated and supervised by the Department of Health and Senior Services and the State Board of Health.

The State Board of Health advises the director of the department in planning for and operating the department, and acts in an advisory capacity regarding rules promulgated by the department.

State Board of Senior Services

The State Board of Senior Services serves as an advisory body for activities of the Department of Health and Senior Services. It consists of seven members appointed by the governor with advice and consent of the Missouri Senate. Members serve four-year terms and may serve a maximum of two terms. Missouri law (RSMo 660.062) specifies that board members shall currently be working in the field of gerontology, geriatrics, mental health issues, nutrition and rehabilitation services of persons with disabilities. Four of the seven members appointed must belong to the Governor's Advisory Council on Aging.

The State Board of Senior Services advises the director in planning for and operating the department, and acts in an advisory capacity regarding rules promulgated by the department.

The director is the chief liaison officer of the Department of Health and Senior Services for joint efforts with other governmental agencies and with private organizations that conduct or sponsor programs that relate to health and senior services in Missouri. A deputy director responsible for management of the department and administration of its programs and services assists the director.

The director's office also oversees the Center for Emergency Response and Terrorism; State Public Health Laboratory; and the offices of public information; personnel; planning and development; general counsel; special investigations; and governmental policy and regulation.

The Center for Emergency Response and Terrorism is responsible for coordinating regional and state planning for public health emergencies and disasters, including biological, chemical and nuclear terrorism. Through partnerships with hospitals and other health care organizations, local entities including government and law enforcement agencies, and other partners, the Center works to assure systems are in place to protect the health of Missourians during a public health emergency.

The Department Situation Room (DSR) serves as the coordination point for all Department of Health and Senior Services' responses to emergencies, both natural and deliberate. It operates at a non-threat level 24 hours a day, 7 days a week and can be staffed and function as a command and control center in the event of an emergency. The DSR monitors the day-to-day emergency preparedness of the public health system and allied systems. The DSR also serves as part of the Health Alert Network to rapidly receive and disperse communications among public health and healthcare partners at the local, regional, state and federal levels, and assign and track follow-up activities. The DSR hotline is the contact point for the general public and public health partners. The number is 1-800-392-0272.

Missouri is taking steps at the state and local level to increase preparedness for and response to bioterrorism, outbreaks of infectious disease, and public health threats and emergencies. These efforts focus on: assessment and planning; education and training; disease reporting; hospital and laboratory surveillance; laboratory capacity; communications technology; public

Local public health agencies and regional response planners are working to develop integrated emergency regional response/terrorism plans that will coordinate with the state's emergency response plan. The Center is working closely with hospitals to assess their needs and complete preparedness planning on the regional level.

The State Public Health Laboratory each year receives approximately a half million samples through the central laboratory, its branch laboratory in Poplar Bluff, and the State Tuberculosis Laboratory in Mt. Vernon. The laboratory provides testing services in the fields of chemistry, environmental bacteriology, microbiology, serology and virology. The laboratory also approves breath alcohol testing equipment used in Missouri; issues permits to persons qualified to supervise and operate these devices and periodically inspects breath-testing instruments used in the state.

In addition to programs of the department, the laboratory performs tests in support of activities of the state departments of Corrections, Mental Health, Natural Resources, Agriculture and law enforcement agencies.

The chemistry unit conducts chemical analyses of water and other environmental samples to determine the presence of toxic chemicals or substances. It also performs blood lead testing and provides analyses to support investigations of suspected acts of terrorism where poisons or other toxic substances may have been used.

The environmental bacteriology unit tests public and private water supplies for the presence of coliform bacteria, and milk for the bacterial counts and food suspected of causing disease outbreaks (food poisoning).

The metabolic disease unit examines blood samples from newborn babies to find those who need treatment for metabolic diseases such as phenylketonuria (PKU), hypothyroidism, galactosemia and sickle cell disease.

The microbiology unit provides reference services for the identification of bacteria and parasitic organisms especially those which pose a threat to public health, i.e., toxigenic E. coli, salmonella and shigella, such as the causative agents of whooping cough, tularemia, plague, anthrax, and dysentery. This unit provides the laboratory support to law enforcement and public health in the investigation of suspected acts of bioterrorism.

The serology unit performs tests to help diagnose syphilis and AIDS; performs blood tests for measles, rubella and hepatitis and conducts testing for gonorrhea and chlamydia.

The virology unit examines clinical specimens to detect influenza, West Nile virus, SARS, and other viral diseases that threaten public health and examines animals for rabies. This unit, along with the microbiology unit, also provides the laboratory support for the investigation of suspected acts of bioterrorism.

The State Tuberculosis Laboratory conducts diagnostic tests on clinical specimens for the presence of the causative agent of tuberculosis in support of the state's TB prevention program. It also serves as a reference center for the state and region for identifying other mycobacterial infections.

Working in conjunction with the scientific units of the laboratory are two support units — administrative services and central services. The administrative services unit supports the fiscal management and budget preparation for the SPHL, collects fees paid for laboratory services, completes the administrative part of the procurement process and performs the administrative activities related to personnel management. The central services unit prepares glassware, culture media and reagents for use in the various scientific units, oversees the state-wide courier contract, and performs all shipping and receiving functions for the laboratory including the mailing of reports.

The SPHL also has an office for Emergency Response and Outreach that is responsible for coordinating statewide laboratory response to emergencies, including acts of bioterrorism, and to assure that the SPHL's response is coordinated with state and national responses to those acts.

The Division of Administration provides administrative and technical services that assist department programs to achieve their goals. The division's business support services include budget; grant and contract administration; accounting; procurement; general office services; and internal auditing.

The Division of Community and Public Health encompasses all public and community health programs. This division is supported by units focusing on women's health; minority health; epidemiology and health information management and evaluation.

The Office of Minority Health established by statute to eliminate minority health disparities through monitoring departmental policies and programs, providing technical assistance, and promoting constituency development and developing culturally sensitive health education initiatives. The office also works collaboratively with community-based organizations and leaders to identify and implement specialized strategies that address the unique health needs of African-American, Native American, Hispanic/Latino, and Asian American populations in Missouri.

The Office of Epidemiology provides epidemiological consultation to all divisions, centers and offices to develop and implement research projects that assist in needs assessment, policy development, planning and implementation of programs. The office also provides consultation to local agencies in response to threats to their population and participates in training courses and presentations regarding various aspects of epidemiology. The office publishes prevention research in peer-reviewed journals and departmental publications.

The Section for Local Public Health Services strengthens the public health system by supporting the continued development of a population-based approach to health issues in Missouri communities. The section promotes a strong local public health system by defining and supporting the implementation of core public health functions throughout the state. The section facilitates development of professional standards and continuous learning opportunities for the local public health workforce. It provides leadership and technical assistance to local public health agencies and their community partners to improve their services through strategic planning, continuous quality improvement and other initiatives. The section works closely with multiple partners and stakeholders to develop and communicate a common vision and direction for public health in Missouri. The section works with policymakers and the public to improve understanding of the importance of public health and the responsibility of government to assure that a strong public health system is in place.

The Section for Community Health focuses on primary prevention strategies to address optimum health across the lifespan. Parallel to these primary prevention strategies, are services and programs to assist individuals who have already developed a disease or disability, as well as promotion of screenings and early intervention strategies to lessen the impact of disease and disability. The section provides leadership and coordination for efforts to combat the major causes of illness, disability and premature death in Missouri across the lifespan, including the major chronic diseases, genetic disorders, causes of infant mortality and prevention of unintentional and intentional injuries.

The section helps Missouri communities enhance the quality of life and health of their residents by building local capacity to develop, implement and maintain effective community health initiatives, programs and systems with a focus on primary and secondary preventive care. The section offers training, technical assistance and financial resources to assist communities with assessing needs; identifying resources; planning, implementing, and evaluating interventions; and promoting collaborative agreements.

Primary prevention programs promote healthy lifestyle choices among youths and adults. Programs and initiatives focus on increasing physical activity and reducing tobacco use and unhealthy eating-the primary risk factors for chronic diseases, including obesity. The section conducts and promotes early screening and intervention to include newborn metabolic and hearing screening. The section supports primary prevention strategies for injury prevention. The section supports local programs through contracts, training and technical assistance in implementing evidence-based strategies to reduce the risk factors.

The Physical Activity Initiatives include working with schools to assess school policies, programs and environmental supports, and identifying areas for improvement, such as implementing an evidence-based curriculum, adopting a policy to reduce students' access to unhealthy snacks, or increasing the amount of physical education students receive. The program also helps communities identify barriers to physical inactivity and prepare a plan to overcome the barriers, such as by increasing access to affordable facilities for physical activity and distributing information and resources for conducting community physical activity campaigns.

The Tobacco Use Prevention Program works to educate the public about the dangers of tobacco use and secondhand smoke. It also works with youth groups and community coalitions to advocate for policies to ban tobacco and smoking on school property and in public places; encourages worksites to implement policies to ban smoking; encourages health care professionals to assess patients' risk for chronic diseases and counsels those who use tobacco products to quit. The program advocates for employers to include effective cessation services in employee health insurance coverage; and provides information about tobacco use, secondhand smoke, and tobacco cessation.

The 5-A-Day for Better Health Program is designed to increase the consumption of fruits and vegetables in the Missouri population. Scientific research shows that people who consume about five servings of fruits and vegetables daily are half as likely to develop cancer of the digestive and respiratory tracts, as well as other chronic diseases, than those who consume fewer than two servings a day. A variety of other community interventions promote healthy eating. The Health Community Nutrition Education Initiative provides funding to local coalitions to coordinate, conduct and evaluate nutrition education initiatives that are designed to increase the likelihood of healthy food choices by food stamp eligible families with children. Three programs operate within schools and preschools, Changing the Scene: Improving the Nutrition Environment Program and School Nutrition Education and Team Nutrition, to develop lifelong eating behaviors that promote appropriate growth and development, decrease overweight and obesity, improve test scores, decrease behavior problems and improve attendance as a result of good nutrition. These programs provide training, resources and technical assistance, as well as promoting policies that promote a healthy nutritional environment. Additionally, Nutrition for Children with Special Health Care Needs Program improves nutrition services for children with special health care needs in Missouri. It is estimated that 60 percent of children with special health care needs have a need for nutrition services. The Folic Acid Program works to increase the number of Missourians who are aware of the importance of folic acid intake in helping to prevent certain birth defects, diseases and health conditions. The Lactation Education Training Project is designed to inform health care providers and students on the best practices related to breastfeeding that are linked to decreased rates of obesity in adulthood and increased health for infants and children.

The Newborn Metabolic Program provides early identification and follow-up of phenylketonuria (PKU), galactosemia, congenital hypothyroidism, congenital adrenal hyperplasia and hemoglobinopathies that suggest the presence of disease in affected but asymptomatic infants. Follow-up is done to ensure that either a repeat newborn screen or a confirmatory test is done. In addition, infants found to be positive are referred to a system of health care.

The Newborn Hearing Screening Program seeks to screen all babies before three months of age, and for those with hearing loss, refer them to the First Steps Program for appropriate services by six months of age. Since 2002, Missouri state law requires all babies born in Missouri to have their hearing tested before discharge from the hospital.

The Sickle Cell Anemia Program provides information to the public and health professionals about sickle cell disease and sickle cell trait; and promotes and provides screening, testing, referral, education, counseling and follow-up services for Missouri citizens at risk for sickle cell disease.

The Injury Prevention Program collaborates with other agencies addressing injury causes, and supports the collection and analysis of injury data. It also contracts with each of the nine local Safe Kids Coalitions located throughout the state to conduct primary injury prevention interventions in communities. The nine coalitions are in Jefferson City, Columbia, Hannibal, St. Louis, St. Charles, Springfield, Joplin, Cape Girardeau and Kansas City. The injury prevention program also contracts with the University of Missouri to conduct the Think First Missouri Educational Program that provides primary prevention activities addressing the prevention of head and spinal cord injury.

Secondary prevention and treatment services focus on preventing and detecting chronic and genetic diseases that reduce the quality of life and shorten life expectancy. The programs address numerous chronic diseases including asthma, cardiovascular disease, stroke, diabetes, arthritis, osteoporosis and lupus, as well as genetic disorders such as cystic fibrosis, sickle cell and hemophilia. Major disparities exist in the health status and disease and death rates experienced by minorities and low socioeconomic groups when compared with all other Missourians.

The Comprehensive Cancer Control Program provides professional training in the area of cancer control as well as promoting and assisting providers in the implementation of cancer control. It also maintains and disseminates information on cancer prevention and control resources in Missouri; and develops and assists regional cancer control coalitions. This includes the Show Me Healthy Women Program which provides funding and program resources for screening and diagnostic services for breast and cervical cancers. It also provides cardiovascular health screenings and life-style interventions through more than 90 provider networks statewide and the Cancer Inquiry Program responds to public and professional inquiries about cancer, as well as public concerns about cancer and the environment.

The Missouri Arthritis and Osteoporosis Program promotes optimal health and quality of life for all Missourians affected by arthritis, rheumatic disease and musculoskeletal conditions including, osteoporosis, lupus, fibromyalgia, and gout. The program's focus is on prevention, early intervention, education, service and collaboration. The program collaborates with a variety of local, state and federal partners to address and support key issues related to arthritis and osteoporosis and works with a network of seven Regional Arthritis Centers located throughout the state.

The Missouri Heart Disease and Stroke Program seeks to decrease the risks that contribute to heart disease and stroke by promoting policy and environmental change programs to improve heart disease and stroke prevention in the community, schools and worksites. The program also plans activities and promotions advocating smoking cessation, physical activity and good nutrition.

The Missouri Diabetes Prevention and Control Program creates awareness of risk factors for diabetes and control of diabetes to reduce and prevent complications of the disease. The program works to improve the lives of people with diabetes through community awareness and interventions; National Diabetes Education Program; improvement of health care systems through continuing education for health care professionals; and professional education, including a resource guide for school personnel. This is accomplished through partnerships with a variety of state, local and national organizations.

The Missouri Asthma Prevention and Control Program works to improve the capacity of Missouri's public health system to define and reduce the burden of asthma for people with the disease through effective linkages and comprehensive surveillance and evaluation. The program works to raise asthma awareness within schools, worksites and communities and among health care providers statewide. The program's advisory board plays a key role in areas including the development of a statewide focus on asthma surveillance, prevention and control; providing advice regarding asthma-related issues; assisting in the development of a state plan and serving as an outside partner to gain support for the program and its services.

The Organ Donor Program maintains a statewide confidential registry of potential donors. The program is funded by donations of one dollar received by the driver's license offices throughout the state at the time an individual makes application for a driver's license or identification card.

A number of Section of Community Health programs focus on ensuring access to and availability of primary health care services for all of Missouri's populations, including residents in the rural areas of the state. This effort involves work to reduce the shortage of medical professionals throughout Missouri. In addition, the state's oral health program provides a broad range of core public health activities for oral health.

The Health Care Workforce Development Program works to reduce the shortage of health care professionals and to increase access to health care for Missouri citizens. The program provides health professional student loans to medical, dental, dental hygienist and nursing students. The loans are "forgiven" when the recipient graduates and works in a Health Professional Shortage Area in Missouri. This program also provides assistance in the recruitment of foreign medical graduates into underserved areas to assure the staffing of that health care delivery system. The initiatives include:

- The Health Professional Loan Repayment Program provides financial incentives for licensed primary care physicians (family or general practice, pediatrics or general internal medicine), general practice dentists and primary care nurse practitioners. Participants agree to accept Medicare and Medicaid patients, as well as provide a discounted fee schedule, based on family size and income, for all uninsured individuals.
- J-1 Visa/State 30 Waiver Program and National Interest Waiver Program helps foreign medical graduates to remain in Missouri after completion of their advanced medical training in exchange for service in underserved communities. Practitioners are recruited and sponsored by a Missouri health care facility or organization to serve the specific needs of that community. The National Interest Waiver programs allow participants to pursue U.S. citizenship.
- PRIMO Health Professional Recruitment and Loan Programs assist in the development and implementation of early recruitment (high school) programs for health professional students, emphasizing recruitment of individuals from rural and inner city, underserved communities in Missouri. In addition, educational loans are provided to health professional students in exchange for an obligation to provide health care services in underserved areas, upon completion of training. Disciplines eligible include primary medical, dental, dental hygiene and advanced practice nursing.
- The Professional and Practical Nursing Student Loan and Loan Repayment Program provides support for nursing students and nursing professionals, in exchange for service in Missouri's underserved communities. Student loans are provided for up to 70 nursing students annually in return for an obligation to provide service in public and non-profit health care agencies in underserved Missouri communities. An additional 15 to 20 professional nurses are provided loan repayments in exchange for service in public and non-profit health care agencies in underserved Missouri communities.

The Primary Care Systems Program works through public/private partnerships to ensure access to and availability of primary health care services for all of Missouri's populations. Efforts to increase access include evaluating availability and accessibility of medical, psychiatric, and dental health professionals (Health Professional Shortage Areas); developing resources to enhance and expand community-based health care delivery systems; working with state and federal partners in the recruitment and retention of health care professionals in health professional shortage areas; development of a population-based workforce model for primary medical, dental and mental health services and assessing the extent, impact and characteristics of the lack of insurance on the health care delivery systems, communities and individuals in Missouri. The initiatives include:

- Health Professional Placement Services provide an internet-based program to match health care practitioners to communities in areas of need around the state. Service is provided at no cost.
- The Primary Care Resource Initiative for Missouri provides funds to communities in underserved areas to develop community-based health care delivery systems, develops clinical training sites in rural and underserved area clinics, and develops recruitment programs for primary care physicians, dentists and nurse practitioners.

The Rural Health Systems Program works to assure the availability of and access to essential health care services for all rural Missouri residents through private/public partnerships. Efforts include those to support the health care delivery system infrastructure in rural areas (particularly small rural hospitals) through resources for initiatives to reduce medical errors and support quality improvement, comply with new regulations, and implement technology enhancements in order to improve services and health outcomes. The initiatives under this program include:

- The Medicare Rural Hospital Flexibility Program provides support to critical access hospitals to implement or expand quality improvement programs and to develop rural health networks among these hospitals and their community/health system partners. The program also coordinates activities with the Missouri Hospital Association and the Missouri Quality Improvement Office to evaluate the quality improvement programs in the critical access hospitals and develop a model program for all. Other program activities are under development to expand training opportunities for integrating local Emergency Medical Services systems to improve health outcomes in rural Missouri.

- The Rural Access to Emergency Devices Program provides automatic external defibrillators to first responders in selected rural areas of Missouri. In addition to purchasing and placing the devices, the program provides training on the equipment use and standards of care in order to improve outcomes from out-of-hospital cardiac arrests for residents of rural Missouri.
- The Small Rural Hospital Improvement Program provides financial and technical assistance to small rural hospitals to implement the Prospective Payment System; become compliant with provisions of the Health Insurance Protection and Accountability Act; reduce medical errors; and support quality improvement.

The Oral Health Program provides a broad range of core public health activities for oral health. Activities include access to oral health care, oral health education and technical assistance on fluoride mouth rinse program and community water fluoridation. It also serves as a resource on oral health issues for other states and federal agencies, the dental profession and the public. The initiatives include:

- The Elks Mobile Dental Program provides mobile dental units in a public/private partnership with the Elks' Benevolent Trust of Missouri to offer oral health care for children with special health care needs and children who are mentally retarded or developmentally disabled in a community-based setting.
- The Fluoride Mouth Rinse Program provides supplies and technical assistance to public schools in Missouri to conduct a school-based fluoride mouth rinse program.
- The Water Fluoridation Program provides technical assistance on best practices, health outcomes and state and national resources to assist communities to fluoridate the public water supply.

The Section of Community Health administers several programs that provide supplemental nutrition assistance to vulnerable populations to improve health status; contribute to optimum growth and development; and decrease the risk of chronic diseases later in life. The assistance includes meal subsidies to eligible organizations that feed infants, children and youth and food packages for low-income elderly persons, women, infants and children.

The Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants and Children (WIC) prescribes and pays for nutritious foods to supplement the diets of pregnant women, new mothers, infants and children up to their fifth birthday, who qualify as "nutritionally at-risk," based on a medical and nutrition assessment, and who meet state income guidelines (185 percent of federal poverty guidelines or eligible for Medicaid TANF or Food Stamps in Missouri). Program participants are reassessed periodically to determine eligibility status. These services are provided at the local level through contracts with county and city health departments, community health centers, community action agencies and hospitals. WIC contracts with retail grocers and pharmacies where participants purchase the prescribed supplemental foods. The WIC program provides nutrition education to program participants to change eating patterns in a positive way to improve their health status; breastfeeding counseling and support to pregnant women and new mothers; conducts immunization screenings and referrals to assure children are age-appropriately immunized; and provides appropriate referrals to address the WIC participant's need.

The Child and Adult Care Food Program provides reimbursement for nutritious meals and snacks served to eligible participants in child care centers, family day care homes, homeless shelters, outside-school-hours programs, and adult day care centers. The program's goal is to see that well-balanced meals are served and good eating habits are taught in child and adult care settings. The program serves children under the age of 13, children of migrant workers age 15 and under, physically and mentally handicapped persons receiving care in a center where most children are 18 years and under and adults who are functionally impaired or over 60 years old. CACFP provides training and technical assistance on nutrition, food-service operations, program management and record keeping.

The Summer Food Service Program helps assure that eligible populations have access to nutritious meals during the summer months by providing reimbursement to community agencies that can offer the required continuum of meals. Eligible participants include children 0-18 years of age whose family incomes are less than or equal to 185 percent of the federal poverty guidelines. Income-eligible adults over 18 years of age who have been determined by a state educational agency to have a disability and who participate in a school-based program for the disabled during the school year also are able to participate in the program. The program contracts with schools and other community-based organizations to sponsor the local programs and provide the meals that must meet established guidelines. These guidelines increase the nutrient intake of program participants, thereby reducing their risk for health problems and enhancing their learning capacities.

The Commodity Supplemental Food Program works to improve the health of low income pregnant and breastfeeding women, other new mothers up to one year postpartum, infants, children up to their sixth birthday, and older persons at least 60 years of age by supplementing their diets with nutritious U.S. Department of Agriculture commodity foods. The program also provides health referral services and nutrition education. Eligible women, infants, and children must meet income eligibility requirements (currently 185 percent of the federal poverty guidelines), while older persons must have income at or below 130 percent of the federal poverty guidelines. Women, infants, children, and the elderly must reside in the state of Missouri and cannot be eligible for the WIC Program.

The Section of Community Health provides leadership to both the public and private sectors in assessing the health care needs of families and communities and in assuring that the health system responds appropriately. The section also develops policy; plans systems of care; and designs, implements and evaluates programs to meet the health care needs of families in Missouri, including specific at risk populations such as children with special health care needs and individuals with genetic disorders.

The Maternal and Child Health Coordinated Systems distribute federal block grant funds to local public health agencies to maintain and improve the health status of maternal and child populations in Missouri. This is done by establishing and maintaining an integrated multitiered service coordination system capable of addressing targeted maternal and child health issues. Each contractor has a contractual obligation to utilize evidence-based interventions and address identified maternal and child health risk indicators which are the most disparate from the state rates.

The School Health Program provides contracts to public school districts and local public health agencies to establish or expand population-based health services for school-age children in defined geographic areas. The program focus is on increasing access to primary and preventive health care. An effort is made to assure an adequate nurse to student ratio. Technical assistance and consultation are available. The program is a collaborative effort of Missouri's departments of Health and Senior Services, Elementary and Secondary Education and Social Services.

The Adolescent Health Program contracts for adolescent medicine consultation and educational programs for adolescents, parents, professionals and communities to improve the overall health status of adolescents. The statewide Council for Adolescent and School Health advises the Missouri Department of Health and Senior Services in assessing adolescent health needs and in planning effective strategies to promote protective factors and reduce risks to the health of adolescents. In addition, Title V funding is used to promote abstinence-only education through schools and community-based organizations. The purpose of the program is to educate adolescents to delay involvement in sexual activity until marriage, and to decrease out-of-wedlock pregnancies, adolescent pregnancy and birth rates, and sexually transmitted diseases.

The Building Blocks Program is an evidence-based prenatal and early childhood nurse home visiting program. Participants in the program are low income, first time mothers who enter the program prior to the 28th week of pregnancy. In the program, nurse home visitors work with the women and their families in their homes during pregnancy and the first two years of the child's life to improve pregnancy outcomes; improve child health and development; and improve family's economic self-sufficiency.

The Missouri Community-Based Home Visiting Program utilizes the Families at Risk model developed by the University of Missouri/Sinclair School of Nursing in collaboration with the Missouri Department of Health and Senior Services. The model utilizes nurses and paraprofessionals and provides intensive sustained visits and community services over a long period (two to three years), with a small number of families. The goals of this program are to increase healthy pregnancies and positive birth outcomes and decrease child abuse and neglect through home-based services.

The Missouri Fetal Alcohol Syndrome Rural Awareness and Prevention Project is a collaborative effort between state government, academic researchers, service providers and medical professionals that are working together to reduce the number of pregnancies exposed to alcohol and ultimately reduce the number of children diagnosed with Fetal Alcohol Syndrome.

The SAFE-CARE Network is composed of physicians and nurse practitioners who are trained to provide comprehensive, state-of-the art medical evaluations to alleged victims of child sexual assault. The program responds to the need for a coordinated, effective response to child sexual assault and utilizes electronic linkages between SAFE-CARE Network providers to improve medical consultation in rural and underserved areas.

The Rape Prevention and Services to Victims Program contracts with rape crisis centers and other community-based counseling agencies to provide services for community and professional education, counseling for victims and families and crisis hotline services.

The Medical Examination for Victims of Rape Program provides reimbursement for medical examinations for victims of rape when performed for the purpose of gathering evidence for prosecution and when the cost is not covered by other sources (insurance, Medicaid or Medicare) with the following conditions:

- Victim consents in writing to the examination.
- Report is made on a form approved by the attorney general.
- Report is filed with the prosecuting attorney in the county where the rape occurred.

The Hope Service Program provides assistance for children under the age of 21 who meet financial and medical eligibility guidelines. This service focuses on early identification of children with special needs; funding for preventive, diagnostic and treatment services; and provision of service coordination activities for families. Service coordination is provided through 13 regional contracts and by unit staff located in eight area offices throughout the state.

Healthy Children and Youth-Administrative Case Management provides preventive health services to children under the age of 21 who are enrolled in Medicaid. The objectives of this program are improved access to health services; increased frequency of health screenings; improved provider participation in Medicaid; and expansion of diagnostic and treatment services.

The Physical Disabilities Waiver Program provides home and community-based services to individuals with serious and complex medical needs who have reached the age of 21 and are no longer eligible for home care services available through the Healthy Children and Youth program in Missouri. This waiver is designed to provide a cost-effective alternative to placement in an intermediate care facility for the mentally retarded/developmentally delayed.

The Adult Genetics Program provides limited assistance with health care costs for Missouri adults (21 years of age and older) with cystic fibrosis, hemophilia and sickle cell disease. The program provides applicants meeting financial and medical guidelines with limited financial assistance for inpatient and outpatient services, medication and blood factor products, emergency care and home equipment. Service coordination is provided for those meeting the medical eligibility.

The Metabolic Formula Distribution Program provides prescribed dietary formula to individuals with covered metabolic disorders such as Phenylketonuria (PKU) or Maple Syrup Urine Disease. Use of the dietary formula combined with a medically supervised diet eliminates or reduces the adverse consequences of the disorders.

Service Coordination is a collaborative process that assists an individual/family to assess their needs and resources, and develop a plan to address those needs, including assessment for home-based services. This program facilitates, implements, coordinates, monitors and evaluates services and outcomes, and encourages an individual/family to develop the skills needed to function at their maximum level of independence. Service coordinators continue to monitor and evaluate individual services as long as the participant remains in the service.

The Adult Head Injury Service provides assistance in locating, coordinating and purchasing rehabilitation and psychological services for individuals 21 years of age and older who have survived a traumatic brain injury, which is defined as "a sudden insult or damage to the brain or its coverings, not of a degenerative nature." Service coordination is available free of charge, regardless of financial status of the individual. Rehabilitation funding is available statewide to survivors whose income is 185 percent of poverty or lower. The Head Injury Advisory Council provides information, advice and expertise to the department on head injuries and rehabilitation of people affected by traumatic head injuries. The council also studies current prevention, treatment and rehabilitation technologies; advises the department on appropriate distribution of resources to provide specialized services to people with traumatic head injuries; and recommends methods to improve the state's delivery of service.

The Section of Community Health is also responsible for communicating with the general public about health issues and providing information about programs available to prevent and address a multitude of health concerns. Public education programs help link people with the health services they need.

TEL-LINK, the Department of Health and Senior Services' toll-free telephone line for maternal, child and family health services, provides information and referrals to Missouri residents about a wide range of health services. All callers are given referral telephone numbers and then are transferred immediately to the appropriate agency or treatment center. TEL-LINK can connect callers to services for: family planning, prenatal care, prenatal drug abuse, immunizations, adoption, non-emergency medical transportation (Medicaid only), alcohol and drug abuse, WIC, Medicaid, children with special health care needs, sexual assault or rape, family violence, etc. Calls, which are confidential, are answered 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday. Recorded messages are taken after 5 p.m. on weekdays and throughout the day and night on weekends and holidays.

The division also works to improve health outcomes in Missouri through statistical and information systems activities and surveillance and epidemiology research related to maternal, infant, child and general adult health status; chronic disease risk factors and behaviors; environmental influences; and access and utilization of public health and health services. Surveillance activities include tracking selected indicators, disseminating data reports, analyzing, and interpreting the health data to develop interventions to improve the health of all Missourians.

The Bureau of Vital Records serves as the state archives for vital records. All births and deaths in Missouri are registered with the bureau that, in turn, issues copies of birth and death certificates to eligible persons. In 2004, the bureau issued nearly 75,000 copies of vital records on file. Other records on file are for marriages and marriage dissolutions in Missouri. Approximately 210,000 records of births, deaths, fetal deaths, marriages, divorces, and abortions were filed with the Bureau of Vital Records in 2004. Missouri's files for resident births and deaths date from 1910 and the files for marriage dissolutions date from 1948.

The Health Statistics units collect, analyze and distribute information which promotes better understanding of problems and needs in Missouri, as well as spotlighting progress achieved in the general health status of Missourians. Data generated by the section aid and guide the planning, development and evaluation of programs and services of the department as well as the related activities of other agencies, institutions and organizations.

While the data collected by these units are primarily valuable to help solve Missouri problems, much of the activity is coordinated with the National Center for Health Statistics. This allows comparable data to be collected at the state level that can be added with data from other states to form a picture of the health status of the nation. The data are made accessible through the department's web site.

The Health Data Analysis unit analyzes and reports data related to births, deaths, marriages, marriage dissolutions, abortions, and other health statistics. These vital statistics are published in a monthly news bulletin, an annual report and periodic special reports. The unit also prepares annual population estimates. Births and death data and special surveys are used to evaluate the effectiveness of maternal and child health programs in Missouri.

The Health Services Statistics unit analyzes data related to injuries in Missouri. These data sets include ambulance trip ticket data, Head and Spinal Cord Injury Registry data, mortality data, hospital inpatient and outpatient data, motor vehicle crash data and data related to the sexual abuse of children. The unit also assists other programs in designing, conducting and analyzing surveys. The unit collects and analyzes patient abstract data filed by hospitals and ambulatory surgical centers. The unit publishes the Managed Care Consumer's Guides on commercial, Medicare, and MC+ managed care plans on the quality of care and access to care of Missouri's HMO and POS products and their members' reports of satisfaction.

The Behavioral Risk Factor Surveillance System Program tracks the prevalence of chronic-disease related characteristics and monitors progress toward national health objectives related to decreasing high-risk behaviors, increasing awareness of medical conditions, and increasing the use of preventive health services of individuals age 18 years and older.

The Missouri Cancer Registry Program tracks the incidence (new cases) of cancer, the types of cancers that occur, their locations within the body, the disease stage of the cancer at the time of diagnosis, and the kinds of treatment that patients receive.

The Fetal Alcohol Syndrome Surveillance Network monitors the incidence of fetal alcohol syndrome in children.

The Pediatric Nutrition Surveillance System analyzes the growth, anemia, and breastfeeding status and trends of children in federally funded child health and nutrition programs such as the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC) to monitor progress toward national health objectives and to evaluate interventions to improve the nutritional health of children.

The Pregnancy Nutrition Surveillance System analyzes behavioral and nutritional risk factors among pregnant and postpartum women in the state enrolled in public health programs to monitor progress toward national health objectives and to evaluate interventions designed to improve the nutritional health of the women of childbearing age.

Through the Nutrition Screening Program, students in participating schools are weighed and measured using U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention guidelines. From this information, a Body Mass Index-for-age is calculated and compared to age and sex-specific national norms. School nurses make appropriate referrals of students who are identified as at nutritional risk.

The Oral Health Screening and Surveillance Program establishes a state-based oral health surveillance system to evaluate the oral health of Missouri populations, beginning with selected school-aged children and to evaluate access to dental services for those children and provide technical assistance to schools conducting dental screens.

The Fetal and Infant Mortality Review analyzes infant and fetal death records to develop recommendations for community change, if appropriate, to reduce fetal and infant mortality. The communities then determine and implement interventions based upon recommendations received that may improve outcomes for future families.

The Pregnancy Associated Mortality Review monitors death certificates, relevant birth or fetal death certifications and medical records for data abstraction to determine if the deaths were preventable. Data is analyzed for association of variables and trends.

The Missouri Pregnancy Related Assessment and Monitoring System expands Missouri's reproductive health surveillance and survey infrastructure by carrying out a pilot survey that collects state-specific, population-based data on maternal attitudes and experiences prior to, during and immediately following pregnancy, with the overall goal to improve maternal and infant health and for future comparison with other states.

The Section of Environmental Health and Communicable Disease Prevention is the principal unit involved in the investigation of the cause, origin, and method of transmission of communicable diseases and diseases caused by environmental hazards. These diseases and conditions are major public health concerns in Missouri.

The interrelated services of this section focus on disease surveillance, prevention and control. Included are specific responsibilities related to communicable diseases, immunizations, tuberculosis, zoonoses, sexually transmitted diseases, AIDS, community sanitation, environmentally related health hazards and hazardous substance control.

The section is integral to the Department of Health and Senior Services' emergency responses to public health emergencies and natural disasters, including biological, chemical and radiological terrorism. The section assures rapid detection through a comprehensive surveillance system operated by public health staff prepared through expertise and training to detect diseases/conditions that may indicate an emergency/bioterrorism event. Rapid response is assured through emergency response planning by public health staff deployed strategically and prepared through expertise and training to respond to a possible emergency/bioterrorism event.

The Environmental Public Health Unit is involved in the investigation and prevention of diseases related to the environment and administration of environmental sanitation programs in accordance with Missouri statutes. The unit's efforts focus on diseases associated with exposure to chemical, bacteriological and physical agents in our environment and in the food and water we consume.

Services include: conducting epidemiological studies of environmentally-related outbreaks of disease; performing health assessments and quantitative risk assessments of hazardous waste sites; providing public health consultation and toxicological consultation for emergencies involving chemicals; providing technical advice related to pesticides and other hazardous substances; implementing the state Childhood Lead Poisoning Prevention Program and administering lead grants from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention and the Environmental Protection Agency; assuring safe lead abatement activities by accrediting lead abatement training programs and licensing lead abatement personnel; providing health physics consultation to those involved with radiation-producing devices and materials; reviewing and evaluating plans for radiation facilities; keeping a register that includes all owners and possessors of radiation machines and radioactive materials used in a nonmedical setting; evaluating radiological health risks associated with various work environments; responding to all radiological emergencies; responding to emergencies affecting food safety, lodging safety, and private water supplies; providing professional and public information on radon; providing technical advice related to indoor air quality issues; providing technical assistance to local public health agencies on environmental public health issues; assuring inspection of food establishments for compliance with sanitation codes and standards; providing food sanitation training for local health agency personnel, personnel of food establishments and public education; providing technical assistance to other state agencies relating to food sanitation activities; administering food protection licensure programs as required by statute; certifying food sources located in Missouri for interstate and international transport; assuring that salvage operations do not allow food products potentially harmful to human health to enter commerce; conducting sanitation ratings of all grade A milk supplies and certifying them for sale in accordance with the Interstate Milk Shippers Agreement; providing technical assistance to local and state officials on matters relating to food and drug sanitation; working in partnership with the U.S. Food and Drug Administration to assure food products are manufactured, stored and distributed in a safe, wholesome manner; providing technical assistance for general sanitation; providing consultation, technical assistance and inspection services related to private water supplies; providing consultation on recreational water supplies, including swimming pools; assuring sanitation and safety inspections of commercial lodging establishments; license commercial lodging establishments; assuring all new and repaired on-site sewage treatment facilities are constructed/repaired in compliance with state standards through a permit and inspection program; providing training courses for onsite sewage installers, inspectors/evaluators and local regulatory authorities; and registering onsite sewage installers.

The Communicable Disease Prevention Unit is dedicated to the prevention and control of communicable diseases. The unit includes the following: the Disease Investigation program; and the Prevention and Care program.

Services include: establishing rules and policies pertaining to the control and prevention of communicable diseases; consulting with local health officers, practicing physicians and others regarding diagnosis and control measures for specific communicable diseases; consulting with local public health agencies on coordination of disease outbreak investigations, disease investigation control activities and analysis of data; collecting and analyzing disease case reports and providing feedback reports; working with physicians and laboratories to encourage complete reporting of communicable diseases; assuring rapid response to public health emergencies and natural disasters, including bioterrorism events; collaborating with community members throughout the state who serve on the HIV/STD Prevention Community Planning Group; coordinating comprehensive services to individuals with HIV/AIDS through a statewide system of community-based organizations, local, district and state health departments; administering the Missouri Medicaid AIDS Waiver service to eligible individuals in lieu of inpatient nursing or hospital facilities; providing consultation, education, and guidelines/recommendations on zoonotic disease outbreak investigations, human prophylaxis and management of animals with diseases capable of transmission to humans; acting as liaison with other agencies such as the Missouri Department of Agriculture to maintain current knowledge of diseases and environmental conditions occurring in animal populations that may affect humans; acting as liaison between the Department of Health and Senior Services and the federal Centers for Disease Control and Prevention and other federal and state agencies concerned with communicable disease control; collaborating with community groups to affect action plans for preventing and controlling diseases of high prevalence within the community; providing, without charge, prescribed drugs for the treatment of TB disease or infection; providing tuberculin skin testing materials for use in contact testing programs; maintaining a registry of known tuberculosis cases and tuberculosis infection in Missouri; disseminating guidelines for TB control in Missouri; coordinating case management for TB on a statewide basis; providing assistance to local health officials in the screening and treatment of public health conditions in newly arriving refugees; administering the federal Vaccines for Children program, which provides immunizations for Medicaid, uninsured, underinsured, Native American, Alaskan Native and Pacific Islander children; coordinating the perinatal hepatitis B program, in which pregnant women carrying hepatitis B are followed through delivery so newborns are treated to prevent transmission of the disease to them; providing education and information to the public, as well as to private and public health care providers, about appropriate administration, storage and handling of vaccines for children, adolescents and adults; conducting surveys with all school and daycare providers to assure compliance with state immunization requirements; and collaborating with other programs within the Missouri Department of Health and Senior Services, other state and federal agencies and community-based organizations in emergency event planning and response.

The Office of Surveillance tracks and documents occurrence and distribution of communicable, vaccine preventable, sexually transmitted, and environmentally induced diseases in Missouri, as well as potential intentional introduction of disease by terrorist agents, through development and improvement of the statewide surveillance system.

Services include: identifying surveillance data needs, designing data collection processes/systems, developing and maintaining data systems and datasets, analyzing and interpreting data and producing reports; analyzing surveillance data at regular intervals to track trends and providing regular reports on these analyses; establishing and/or modifying rules pertaining to the reporting of communicable disease and environmentally-induced illnesses/conditions; working with hospitals, physicians, laboratories and others to report diseases and environmental conditions; performing epidemiological analyses to answer inquiries and help target disease intervention activities; providing consultation to programs regarding application of surveillance data to program policy/practice; developing and coordinating ongoing quality assurance processes on data gathered in surveillance databases; working in partnership with the Agency for Toxic Substances Disease Registry on hazardous substances emergency events surveillance; working in partnership with Tulane University, the Department of Natural Resources, the City of St. Louis, and other agencies and organizations on childhood blood lead and environmental hazard identification and reduction; conducting bioterrorism surveillance by obtaining syndromic surveillance data from hospitals, physicians and others and analyzing the results to ensure prompt response to incidences and unusual trends of diseases or syndromes of public health importance; and providing heightened surveillance when national and/or state threat levels are raised or in response to known or suspected disease outbreak.

The Division of Regulation and Licensure oversees the health care regulatory programs of the department, and assures the safety, health, welfare and rights of persons residing in long term care facilities.

The Family Care Safety Registry serves as a resource for background screening information maintained by various state agencies. Those wishing to hire a child-care, elder-care or personal-care worker may contact the registry using a toll-free access line and obtain background information about a caregiver. The registry became operational January 1, 2001, and utilizes a computer interface to streamline the process to obtain background information from various state agencies.

Information accessed by the registry includes: criminal history, Sex Offender Registry, substantiated claims of child abuse/neglect, the DHSS Employee Disqualification List, the DMH Employee Disqualification Registry, child care license revocations and foster parent license denials, revocations and suspensions. In addition to the needs of families selecting an individual for a private employment arrangement, many employers of child-care, elder-care and personal-care workers are required to obtain background screening information for staff in order to obtain or maintain licensure or to be in compliance with state regulations. Employers, such as child-care centers and nursing homes, often have difficulty in recruiting and maintaining skilled staff. The delays they currently experience in obtaining background screening results can impact their ability to hire and retain staff. These employers are required to contact several state agencies in order to comply with statutes or regulations for background screening. The registry offers these employers an alternative to their current method of obtaining background screening information.

The registry maintains a toll-free access line to respond to requested information and allows the requestor to receive an immediate response as often as they like at no cost. The access line is staffed from 7:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m., Monday through Friday and an Internet site is also maintained for easy access.

The Missouri Board of Nursing Home Administrators was established in 1970. The board is responsible for adopting, amending and repealing rules necessary to carry out the provisions of Chapter 344, RSMo; establishing minimum standards for licensing nursing home administrators; providing testing opportunities for qualified applicants; approving and monitoring continuing education programs designed for nursing home administrators; auditing license renewal applications and renewing the licenses of qualified licensees; and conducting hearings affording due process of law, upon charges calling for discipline of a licensee.

The board, appointed by the director of the department, consists of 10 members who serve three-year staggered terms. Membership of the board consists of one licensed physician, two licensed health professionals, one person from the field of health care education, four people who have been in general administrative charge of a licensed nursing home for at least five years immediately preceding their appointment and two public members.

The Section for Health Standards and Licensure oversees the health care and child care regulatory programs of the department. Supervision is provided for hospital licensure and certification activities, hospice and home health licensure and certification activities, emergency medical services, registration of handlers of controlled substances, child care provider licensure activities, and inspection of license-exempt child care providers.

The Bureau of Healthcare Oversight is responsible for health facility licensing and certification services, home health agencies, hospices, outpatient physical therapy/speech rehabilitation agencies and comprehensive outpatient rehabilitation facilities licensing and certification services, emergency medical services and trauma services and related programs administered by the Department of Health and Senior Services. The bureau consists of three units: the Unit of Health Facility Regulation, the Unit of Home Care and Rehabilitative Standards and the Unit of Emergency Medical Services.

The Unit of Health Facility Regulation is responsible for the regulation and licensing of Missouri's hospitals, ambulatory surgical centers and abortion facilities that are required to renew their licenses annually in accordance with current statutes. License renewals are based upon compliance with state regulations in the areas of fire safety, environment, organization and administration, and all aspects of patient care. The unit also contracts with the Center for Medicare/Medicaid Services to survey and recommend certification of providers and suppliers of services as participants under Title XVIII (Medicare) of the Social Security Act. Providers include hospitals, independent laboratories, end-stage renal disease facilities, portable x-ray providers, ambulatory surgical centers, rural health clinics, and long-term care units in hospitals.

The unit also registers medical sources of ionizing radiation throughout the state, including x-ray machines. The unit contracts with the Federal Drug Administration to perform surveys of mammography screening providers.

The Unit of Home Care and Rehabilitative Standards is responsible for regulating and licensing Missouri's home health agencies and hospices. Home health agencies and hospices are required to renew their state licenses annually, in accordance with current statutes.

Additionally, through contracts with the Centers for Medicare/Medicaid Services, surveys are conducted for certifying home health agencies, hospice organizations, outpatient rehabilitation facilities, and comprehensive outpatient rehabilitation facilities as providers under Title XVIII (Medicare) of the Social Security Act. Consultation is provided regarding licensing requirements and compliance with Medicare Conditions and Participation.

The Unit of Emergency Medical Services administers the laws relating to emergency medical technicians-basic, emergency medical technicians-paramedic, air ambulance services, ground ambulance services, emergency medical response agencies, emergency medical service training entities, and trauma centers.

Currently, Missouri's ground ambulance services, air ambulance services and fixed-wing air ambulance services make approximately 700,000 runs per year. These ambulance services are inspected for licensure every five years. At least one paramedic, nurse or physician with the capability of providing an advanced level of care to the patient staffs ninety percent of the emergency ambulance transports of a patient to a hospital. This is one of the highest rates in the nation.

The trauma program was formally established by state law in 1987 and revised in 1998. Regulations that specify the criteria for trauma center designation went into effect in January 1990 and September 1998. A network of trauma centers designated according to capability serves Missouri. Missouri's trauma center hospitals see over 12,000 severely injured patients per year.

This unit administers the ambulance reporting system, head and spinal cord injury registry, and trauma registry. These are among the most comprehensive reporting systems of their type in the United States.

The governor-appointed State Advisory Council on EMS provides advice to the department on EMS regulatory issues.

The Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs (BNDD) is responsible for ensuring the proper management and distribution of controlled substances for legitimate medical and manufacturing purposes. Controlled substances include medications and chemicals used in the manufacture of these medications that have been determined to be abusable or addictive.

All individuals and firms who manufacture, distribute, prescribe, dispense or handle controlled substances in the state of Missouri must register with the BNDD every two years. Those required to register with the BNDD include physicians, hospitals, pharmacies, dentists, ambulance services, veterinarians, optometrists, podiatrists, manufacturers, distributors, labs and importers and exporters who desire authority to possess or perform functions with controlled substances.

The BNDD is active in the education of health professionals who handle controlled substances. The records of all registrants are subject to inspections, audits, or investigations (if needed). Violations of controlled substance laws can lead to administrative sanctions. Criminal violations are referred to appropriate law enforcement agencies.

The bureau's surveillance helps prevent the diversion of drugs or chemicals from their proper channels of distribution. This helps protect against the misuse or abuse of these substances.

The Bureau of Child Care is responsible for the regulation and licensing of child care facilities. The bureau is also responsible for the annual safety, health and sanitation inspections of child care facilities operated by religious organizations.

Child care staff conduct on-site inspections service of child care facilities and provide technical and consultative assistance. The bureau's mission is to ensure that all facilities provide a healthy, safe and developmentally-appropriate environment for Missouri's children.

The goal for the bureau is to have a positive impact on the overall health, safety and well being of children in child care programs. The bureau works to meet this goal through health promotion and education, facilitating immunizations, improved meals and nutrition education, communicable disease prevention, improved cleanliness and sanitation, injury reduction, prevention of child abuse and neglect, and serving children with special needs. Training for child care providers is partially provided through contracts with training organizations. Consultation and technical assistance for child care providers is provided by local community health nurses through a contracted program. In addition, referral services, consultation and technical services are provided to families of special needs children and the providers who serve those families.

The Section for Long Term Care Regulation, in accordance with the Omnibus Nursing Home Act, is responsible for assuring the safety, health, welfare and rights of persons residing in nursing homes (long term care facilities). The section has the legal authority to intervene in cases of abuse, neglect or exploitation among elderly or disabled persons who reside in nursing homes. The section:

- inspects and licenses adult day care centers, adult residential care, intermediate care and skilled nursing facilities;
- investigates complaints of abuse or neglect at long term care facilities;
- reviews and approves plans for proposed long term care facilities;
- investigates complaints for any allegation of failure to comply with all rules and regulations;
- investigates complaints of misuse of resident funds in long term care facilities;
- reviews applications for licenses to operate a long term care facility;
- inspects, conducts utilization reviews, and determines client eligibility for intermediate care facilities for persons with mental retardation (ICF/MR); and
- implements appropriate rules and regulations in accordance with the Omnibus Nursing Home Act; and with the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, determines Medicaid/Medicare certification of intermediate care and skilled facilities.

The Division of Senior and Disability Services serves as the State Unit on Aging and carries out the mandates of the state of Missouri regarding programs and services for seniors and adults with disabilities. Mandates for the division include oversight and implementation of programs designed to maximize independence and safety for adults who choose to remain independent in the community by administering state and federal community-based programs.

The Elder Abuse and Neglect Hotline or Central Registry Unit (CRU) was established in 1980 and responds to reports of alleged abuse, neglect or financial exploitation of persons 60 years of age or older and other eligible adults between age 18 and 59. Calls are received at this centralized registry, summarized into a report, and sent to the appropriate investigative authority. A trained Social Services Worker will respond within a specified time period depending on the severity of the case: within 24 hours for the most dangerous situations and within seven days for most others.

The DHSS Section for Long Term Care Regulation staff conduct investigations of reported abuse, neglect and exploitation of individuals residing in long term care facilities. Complaint investigations are handled in accordance with state statute, and all information obtained during investigations is handled in a confidential manner. Reports or complaints are generally initiated within 24 hours. The hotline 1-800-392-0210 operates 24 hours per day, 365 days per year and is staffed by 12 Social Service Workers.

The Bureau of Program Integrity is responsible for the interpretation, development, implementation and maintenance of Missouri protective services and case management policies. Staff interpret and promulgate state regulations, coordinate and develop protocols and operating procedures to maximize efficiency and effectiveness in the provision of adult protective and home and community based services. The bureau provides oversight, support and program evaluation in the administration of the Aged and Disabled Medicaid Waiver in coordination with the Department of Social Services/Division of Medical Services. The bureau also oversees the development, improvement and training of the information systems used for tracking statistical information, authorization and reimbursement for care authorized by Social Service Workers. Policies are developed in compliance with applicable Code of State Regulations, state and federal statutes, guidelines and rules.

The Bureau of Quality Assurance conducts formal reviews, provides technical assistance, and conducts complaint investigations of contracted in-home services providers that deliver services to clients of the division. The bureau is responsible to:

- conduct on-site quality assurance reviews of provider's files, primarily client and employee files.
- conduct on-site technical assistance visits with new providers to answer questions the provider may have about the program.
- conduct on-site complaint investigations upon receipt of provider complaints.
- provide education and the required certified manager quarterly training for the in-home services providers and their staff, and participate in quarterly regional in-home services provider meetings.

The Bureau of Home and Community Services is responsible for services and programs directly administered by the division for eligible persons 60 years of age or older and adults with disabilities between the ages of 18 and 59. Generally, to be eligible for services, adults must meet specific guidelines pertaining to protective, economic, social, and care needs. Through a comprehensive investigative or assessment process, the bureau determines the intervention and/or services necessary to meet the needs of each eligible adult. Professionally trained social service workers, and long-term care specialists carry out state mandates for direct services to adults in Missouri. Field staff are responsible to:

- investigate reports of elder abuse, neglect and exploitation of non-institutionalized elderly;
- intervene on behalf of eligible adults believed to be at risk of injury or harm including preparing cases for litigation based on investigative findings;
- screen individuals considering long term care to ensure individuals have the ability to make an informed decision about care and care settings;
- provide case management services to individuals requiring assistance to remain in their homes, including intake and screening, assessment, service planning and authorization, care monitoring, eligibility reassessment, adjustments to care plans and discharge;
- authorize in-home services in the home or community under the Missouri Care Options (MCO) program through state and federal funding to include basic and advanced personal care, homemaker, chore, nursing services, counseling, basic and advanced respite, and adult day health care;
- oversee care plans developed in conjunction with seniors and persons with disabilities in community based settings who are screened and determined to be medically eligible for nursing facility care and Medicaid eligible (or potentially Medicaid eligible); and
- coordinate with other organizations involved in care planning to include state (SSBG/GR) and Medicaid funded in-home services, home health, and local community resource providers on behalf of clients to strengthen the support system necessary to maintain independence and ensure the highest available quality of service delivery.

The Bureau of Senior Programs is responsible for activities on behalf of the division and ensures the effective and efficient management of state and local activities associated with the Older Americans Act. As a result of the 1973 amendments to the Older Americans Act, states must designate planning and service areas to develop and implement programs and services for older persons at the local level. Missouri has ten Area Agencies on Aging (AAAs), each responsible for providing services and overseeing programs within specifically defined geographic boundaries. Within the mandates of the Act, priority is given to serving older adults in the greatest social and economic need with a focus on serving low-income and minority elderly. Staff primarily:

- conduct periodic monitoring reviews of the local programs to verify compliance with state and federal guidelines and to validate program and service effectiveness.
- provide training and technical assistance to AAA staff and their boards as requested, keeping them apprised of new developments in the aging field, and federal and state policies and procedures.

Each AAA is allowed flexibility in providing the services most needed within their planning and service area. Each AAA:

- is required to submit an area plan for review and approval in order to receive funding to carry out various provisions of the Older Americans Act at the local level.

- administers the nutrition program - both congregate and home-delivered meals, including nutrition education activities.
- provides funding for access services, legal services and in-home services. Access services include transportation and Information and Assistance, and general outreach and advocacy activities. (In-home services include, homemaker chore, personal care and respite.)
- provides disease prevention and health promotion activities or services to encourage the employment of older workers, services to support family caregivers, ombudsman services, and information about the prevention of abuse, neglect and exploitation of seniors.
- AAAs may also provide one or more of the following services: minor home modification, counseling, adult day care, telephone reassurance, friendly visiting, case management, and volunteer recruitment.

Certificate of Need Program

The primary cost containment agency for Missouri is the Certificate of Need Program (CONP). CONP, designated in 1976 as a statewide health planning agency, has been an administrative unit of the department since 1981.

CONP functions in three categories: planning, review and support activities. The agency conducts some of the health planning activities of the state and determines the needs of Missouri for substantial health capital expenditures and major medical equipment. It prepares, reviews and revises health models for Missouri for use in the CONP.

The Missouri Health Facilities Review Committee carries out its function as the administrator of the Missouri CON law with the support of CONP staff.

The agency assists with program planning, development and analysis of health data, policy planning, identification of program needs, graphics development, strategic assessments and other special projects in cooperation with the director of the department and other state departments.

During the 2001 Special Legislative Session, the Missouri General Assembly passed House Bill 3 and Senate Bill 4, which created the Missouri SenioRx Program to help defray the cost of prescription drugs for seniors. The program is designed to aid those individual seniors with incomes less than $17,000 and married couples with income less than $23,000. In addition to the income requirements of the program, a senior must meet the following eligibility criteria to qualify: be 65 years of age; be a resident of the state of Missouri for 12 months; not be a recipient of Veterans Administration pharmacy benefits or Medicaid; and not have adequate prescription drug coverage.

Applications for enrollment are accepted during the annual enrollment period of January 1 through February 28 with benefits beginning July 1. Applications may be obtained from the program's website (www.missouriseniorx.com), or by contacting Missouri SenioRx Customer Service toll-free at 1-866-556-9316 (available 24 hours a day, 7 days a week).

The Coordinating Board for Higher Education (CBHE) was authorized by an amendment to the Missouri Constitution in 1972, and established by statute in the Omnibus State Reorganization Act of 1974. The nine board members, one from each congressional district, are appointed by the governor and confirmed by the Senate. The term of appointment is six years. No more than five of the nine members may be affiliated with the same political party, and all members serve without compensation. The CBHE has statutory responsibilities relating to higher education programs and policies and oversees the activities of the Missouri Department of Higher Education (MDHE), which serves as the administrative arm of the CBHE.

The CBHE appoints the commissioner of higher education to head the MDHE and carry out administrative responsibilities to achieve the CBHE's desired goals for the state system of higher education, which serves more than 394,000 students through 13 public four-year colleges and universities, 19 public two-year colleges, one public two-year technical college, 25 independent colleges and universities and 140 proprietary and private career schools.

The MDHE's primary responsibilities include identification of statewide planning for higher education (including independent institutions), evaluation of student and institutional performance, review of institutional missions, development of specialization among institutions, submission of a unified budget request for public higher education to the governor and the Missouri General Assembly, administration of a statewide postsecondary technical education program, establishment of guidelines to promote student transfer among institutions, approval of new degree programs offered by public colleges and universities, administration of the Proprietary School Certification Program, and policy setting for and administration of student financial assistance programs.

The MDHE administers seven state student financial assistance programs, including: Charles Gallagher Student Financial Assistance Program; Missouri Higher Education Academic "Bright Flight" Scholarship Program; Missouri College Guarantee Program; Advantage Missouri Program; Marguerite Ross Barnett Memorial Scholarship Program; Vietnam Veteran's Survivor Grant Program; and Public Service Officer or Employee's Child Survivor Grant Program.

As the state's designated student loan guaranty agency, the MDHE also administers the Missouri DHE Student Loan Program, which is part of the Federal Family Education Loan (FFEL) Program. Through this program, the MDHE guarantees low-interest loans that are provided by eligible lending institutions to students attending approved postsecondary institutions.

During state fiscal year 2004, the MDHE administered approximately $41 million in state-based student financial assistance to more than 25,000 students, and guaranteed approximately $882 million in student loans for more than 95,000 students to help them achieve their educational goals.

In addition, the MDHE conducts outreach activities to increase awareness among Missourians regarding opportunities for postsecondary education and student financial assistance in the state. The MDHE administers the Federal GEAR UP (Gaining Early Awareness and Readiness for Undergraduate Program). GEAR UP enables low-income students to succeed in middle and secondary school and be prepared for admission to college. Through its student loan default prevention initiatives, MDHE strives to help students avoid defaulting on their educational loans and accumulating credit card debt.

The MDHE also has administrative responsibility for several grants as well as organizational responsibility for the Missouri State Anatomical Board.

Established in 1887, the Missouri State Anatomical Board functions to receive "unclaimed" human bodies requiring burial at public expense and to distribute them for scientific study to certain qualified schools. The board, which operates under state law (RSMo 194.120–180), was transferred to the Department of Higher Education by the State Omnibus Reorganization Act in 1974.

In 1955, the anatomical board also was authorized to receive bodies by will and codicil (RSMo 474.310). In 1969, the board was designated a recipient for bodies donated under the Uniform Anatomical Gift Act (RSMo 194.230).

The day-to-day business of the anatomical board is handled through local anatomical boards or secretaries in Columbia, Kansas City, Kirksville and St. Louis. The annual meeting of the entire board is in May in Columbia. Officers are elected for two-year terms.

Each qualified school that is a member of the board pays an assessment in proportion to the number of students in attendance. The state board secretary/treasurer receives 16 cents per student enrolled in the state, and each local board secretary receives 24 cents per registered student in the local anatomical district. The secretary to the state secretary/treasurer receives eight cents per registered student. The president and vice president serve without pay. Management of the board rests on its secretary/treasurer, whose office is located at the University of Missouri–Columbia School of Medicine.

The University of Missouri has provided teaching, research and service to Missouri and the nation since 1839. With campuses in Columbia, Kansas City, St. Louis and Rolla, plus a statewide Extension program, the university serves more than 62,000 students from throughout the state and the nation.

The mission of the University of Missouri, as a land-grant university and Missouri's only public research and doctoral-level institution, is to discover, disseminate, preserve and apply knowledge. The university promotes learning by its students and lifelong learning by Missouri's citizens, fosters innovation to support economic development and advances the health, cultural, and social interests of the people of Missouri, the nation and the world.

The University of Missouri awards more than 12,000 degrees annually. The university offers 121 doctoral degrees as well as professional degrees in law, medicine, optometry, pharmacy, dentistry and veterinary medicine.

The university receives approximately $172 million annually in federal grants and contracts for research in areas ranging from agriculture to aerospace.

The University of Missouri is governed by a Board of Curators composed of nine persons appointed by the governor and confirmed by the Senate. The board also has a non-voting position for a student representative.

The university's chief administrative officer is the president. Each campus is directed by a chancellor.

Authorized only 18 years after the Missouri Territory became a state, the University of Missouri–Columbia is the oldest state university west of the Mississippi River and the oldest in the Louisiana Purchase Territory. The university, created by the Geyer Act of the 10th General Assembly of 1839, was designed according to Thomas Jefferson's pattern for the University of Virginia.

The first president of the University of Missouri, John Hiram Lathrop, took office in 1841. Columbia College, a private institution purchased by the university, housed classes until July 1843 when they were moved to Academic Hall, the first building constructed for the university.

Federal troops' occupation of the university forced its closing for a time in 1862. The signing into law of the land-grant college act, commonly known as the Morrill Act, gave the university 330,000 acres of land with proceeds used for the development of instruction and instructional facilities in agriculture and the mechanic arts.

Through this assistance, both the College of Agriculture in Columbia and the School of Mines and Metallurgy in Rolla were established. The Morrill Act brought great encouragement to the university because until 1867 no state funds had been appropriated for its operation.

In 1892, fire destroyed Academic Hall, leaving only its six stately columns, the best-known symbol of the university today. The present administration building, Jesse Hall, was completed in 1895.

Currently, MU has the following schools and colleges: the College of Agriculture, Food and Natural Resources, with a School of Natural Resources; College of Arts and Science with a School of Fine Arts and a School of Music; College of Business, with a School of Accountancy; College of Education, with a School of Information Science and Learning Technologies; College of Engineering; Graduate School, with the Harry S Truman School of Public Affairs; College of Human and Environmental Sciences with a School of Social Work; School of Health Professions; School of Journalism; School of Law; School of Medicine; School of Nursing; and College of Veterinary Medicine. The enrollment of the University of Missouri–Columbia is more than 27,000 students.

College of Agriculture, Food and Natural Resources

Established as a division of the University of Missouri in 1870 under provisions of the first Morrill Act of 1862, the College of Agriculture, Food and Natural Resources offers the degree of bachelor of science. Specializations are offered in agriculture economics, agri-business management, agriculture education, biological engineering, agricultural journalism, agricultural systems management, animal sciences, biochemistry, food science, general agriculture, hotel and restaurant management and plant science. Advanced degrees are offered through the Graduate School.

The School of Natural Resources, within the College of Agriculture, Food and Natural Resources, offers four undergraduate curricular programs: forestry; fisheries and wildlife; parks, recreation and tourism; and soils and atmospheric sciences. Advanced degrees are offered through the Graduate School.

The college's research is conducted in Columbia through the agricultural experiment station authorized in 1887 by the Hatch Act, and at area centers throughout the state that fit unique localized situations. Research strengths include life sciences, agricultural biotechnology, genomics and bioinformatics, phytonutrients, mineral nutrition, animal reproductive biology, animal nutrition, agroforestry and environmental sciences.

DR. BRADY J. DEATON
Chancellor, University of Missouri–Columbia

Through University of Missouri Extension the College of Agriculture, Food and Natural Resources conducts educational and outreach activities related to agriculture and natural resources throughout Missouri. Focused interdisciplinary programs are organized around the themes of agribusiness management, integrated crop management, livestock production systems, horticulture and forestry and environmental quality.

College of Arts and Science

The College of Arts and Science, the oldest and largest division of the university, provides liberal education programs in the basic humanities, social sciences and natural sciences. Within the School of Fine Arts are the School of Music and the departments of art and theatre.

The college offers the following baccalaureate degrees: bachelor of arts, bachelor of sciences, bachelor of music and bachelor of general studies. Students pursuing advanced degrees of master of arts, master of fine arts, master of science and doctor of philosophy enroll in the graduate school.

MU's General Education Program is recognized as a model for undergraduate education at major public research universities—Mizzou is one of only eight universities and the only one in the Big 12, to be honored with the Hesburgh Award. Faculty across campus are deeply involved in enterprise and working across academic disciplines to deliver a unique educational experience to MU students. One aspect of the program that has drawn national attention is the incorporation of writing across the undergraduate curriculum—two writing intensive courses. Nearly 120 sections of writing intensive courses are offered each semester at MU, representing every department in every undergraduate division at the institution.

Among the many special programs that enhance the curriculum are the Undergraduate Research Mentorship, which encourages undergraduate students to collaborate on research with respected faculty members; the Summer Repertory Program in theatre; a summer field camp in Wyoming for students of geology; and the Center for the Literary Arts, uniting creative writing in the English department, literary writing in journalism and writing for the stage and screen in theatre. Two showcase programs in the performing arts position students on national stages: Mizzou on Tour rewards outstanding music students with performances at such prestigious venues as Carnegie Hall, and Mizzou on Broadway offers theatre students a chance to perform original plays and serve internships at the York Theatre in New York.

College of Business

The College of Business at the University of Missouri–Columbia was founded in 1914, starting out with 15 students and nine professors. Today, the college enrolls more than 3,700 undergraduate students and over 300 graduate students. The college has 42 full-time faculty and four academic units—Accountancy, Finance, Management and Marketing.

The college offers an undergraduate degree in business administration, a MBA degree, a 150-hour program that confers both undergraduate and master's degrees in accountancy upon completion of the entire curriculum, and doctoral degrees in both accountancy and business administration. These programs are fully accredited by the International Association for Management Education.

For 90 years, the College of Business has maintained a proud tradition of outstanding instruction and meaningful research. Over the past five-years, the college's faculty has earned more than 25 university wide teaching and advising awards. The college has nationally and internationally known scholars in every academic unit. In addition, several faculty hold editorial positions with academic journals, and others serve as officers of professional associations.

Three outreach programs affiliated with the College of Business—the Financial Research Institute, the Missouri Training Institute and the Small Business Development Center—serve companies, government agencies and other organizations as well as faculty, staff and students. The college's Career Services Office provides placement assistance to graduating students and prospective employers.

The College of Business takes great pride in its graduates. Over 29,000 alumni are contributing their expertise to the public and private sectors in every state in the United States and in a host of foreign countries.

College of Education

The programs of the College of Education and its School of Information Science and Learning Technologies provide pre-service preparation and advanced specialization in teaching, administration, and special service personnel. Advanced study at the graduate level is also available in the fields of library science, educational technology, higher education, policy studies and mental health counseling.

Two baccalaureate degrees are offered: the bachelor of science in education, which leads to certification to teach at the elementary, middle or secondary level, and the bachelor of educational studies, which provides an opportunity for those interested in non-public school education to prepare for jobs tailored to their education-related aspirations. Graduate programs lead to master of arts, master of education, specialist, doctor of education and doctor of philosophy degrees.

Among its special facilities contributing to service and research are: Center for Technology Innovations in Education; National Center for Middle Level Mathematics; Middle Leadership Center; Assessment and Consultation Clinic; Assessment Resource Center; Center for Innovations in Special Education; Instructional Materials Laboratory; microcomputer laboratories; and Reflector and Career Services.

College of Engineering

The College of Engineering, one of the oldest engineering schools in the nation, offers bachelor of science, master of science and Ph.D. degrees. Its departments and programs include: Biological Engineering, Chemical Engineering, Civil and Environmental Engineering, Computer Engineering and Computer Science, Electrical and Computer Engineering, Industrial and Manufacturing Systems Engineering and Mechanical and Aerospace Engineering.

In addition to its teaching responsibilities, the College of Engineering also has important responsibilities in fundamental and applied research involving faculty members from all engineering departments. A number of research centers have also been established.

Graduate School

MU is one of the most comprehensive and diverse universities in the United States and a member of the Association of American Universities, the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges, the Association of Graduate Schools and the Council of Graduate Schools, among other affiliations.

MU is classified as a doctoral/research extensive institution by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, the designation for the nation's top research institutions. Various schools, colleges and departments also are accredited by their own professional associations and accrediting agencies.

The scope and quality of MU's graduate programs distinguish it from other public institutions in Missouri and across the country. MU's Graduate School enrolls more than 5,000 graduate students in more than 90 graduate degree programs. In its history, the school has awarded more than 55,000 master's degrees; 1,100 educational specialist degrees; and 10,500 doctoral degrees.

Graduate programs are designed by MU's graduate faculty to meet both societal needs and the career and intellectual objectives of the individual graduate student. MU's federal funding for research projects has increased 66 percent since 1997, and the knowledge and skills gained from this student and faculty research contribute significantly to today's knowledge-based economy.

Harry S Truman School of Public Affairs

Established by the Board of Curators in May 2001, the mission of the Harry S Truman School of Public Affairs is to advance the knowledge and practice of governance in Missouri, the nation and beyond by informing public policy, educating for ethical leadership in public service and fostering democratic discourse among citizens, policymakers and scholars. The Truman School grew out of MU's well-regarded Department of Public Administration and builds on its 40-year history of professional education for public service careers.

The Truman School offers the MPA degree as well as a joint MPA/JD with the MU Law School. Through affiliated centers and institutes, faculty conduct cutting-edge research, provide consulting services to public and nonprofit organizations, deliver leadership training to public officials and bring academic expertise directly to policy makers. Policy forums, roundtables with policy makers, lectures by distinguished visiting scholars and research symposia make for an exciting and highly relevant learning environment.

College of Human and Environmental Sciences

The college's mission touches the heart of humanity: to improve the quality of life for individuals and families where they live and work. Beginning with the basics—food, clothing, shelter, finances, family and community—HES concentrates on providing scientific solutions for contemporary challenges in human lives. Rooted in the university since 1900 and established as a separate division in 1973, the college offers bachelor's and master's degrees in five departments: Human Development and Family Studies, focusing on child development and education, family studies, child life and human development; Textile and Apparel Management, focusing on apparel marketing and merchandising, international studies, product development and management; Personal Financial Planning, with options in personal financial management services and personal financial planning; Architectural Studies, including interior design and architectural studies; and Nutritional Sciences, with emphases in dietetics, nutrition and fitness and nutritional sciences. A doctor of philosophy degree in human environmental sciences is offered with specialization in the five departments.

The MU School of Social Work educates leaders who meet challenges facing individuals and society in the areas of child welfare, community organization, criminal justice, domestic violence, employee assistance, family and children services, gerontology, homeless, hospice, juvenile justice, mental health, physical health, public welfare, schools, substance abuse and victim assistance. Social workers are also responsible for administration, analysis, budgeting, funding, management, policy planning, program development, research and advocating for social justice. The School of Social Work joined the College of Human Environmental Sciences in 1988. Bachelor of social work, master of social work and a doctorate of philosophy in social work are offered in the School of Social Work. The doctoral program focuses on public policy for services administered and/or funded by state government; rigorous research training; and interdisciplinary orientation. MU's School of Social Work provides the only doctoral program at a public institution in Missouri. Through University of Missouri Extension, educational activities are transmitted to citizens of the state. Research is conducted throughout the departments and at the Agricultural Experiment Station, with state and federal support from agencies and the private sector.

Human Environmental Sciences programs prepare students for professional positions in business, industry, government, education, human services and research. Accreditation has been earned within specializations. Recognized as a leading human sciences program in the United States, Human Environmental Sciences is unique among professional peers in its comprehensive use of advisory boards for each department and the School of Social Work. Experts in the employment community provide guidance and support fields to students and faculty as well as perspectives from their specialized fields to enrich curriculum development.

Missouri School of Journalism

The first school of its type in the world, the Missouri School of Journalism educates students for careers in journalism, advertising, public relations and other media fields by combining a strong liberal arts education with unique hands-on training in professional media. The school offers the Bachelor of Journalism degree in six areas of emphasis. Advanced graduate studies lead to the Master of Arts degree and the Doctor of Philosophy degree in journalism.

Real-world media experience is offered at the Columbia Missourian, a daily community newspaper; KOMU-TV8, the only university-owned commercial television station in the United States that uses its newsroom as a working lab for students; KBIA, the number two most-listened-to public radio station in the nation; Vox, a weekly city magazine; Global Journalist, the magazine of the International Press Institute in Vienna; Adelante!, a monthly bilingual publication for Spanish-speaking people of mid-Missouri; and Missouri Digital News, a compilation of news produced by students working in the State Government Reporting program in Jefferson City.

School of Law

The School of Law, established in 1872, has a distinguished and diverse faculty, all of whom are experienced in the practice of law. The juris doctor degree is conferred upon students who complete three years of study. All graduates are prepared for licensing exams as attorneys in all of the United States. In 1999, the school started its LL.M. in Dispute Resolution degree program.

The school provides both a traditional legal curriculum and practical education in such areas as trial practice and advocacy, clinical education involving representation of clients in a variety of settings, negotiation, client interviewing, counseling and computerized legal research. The school is also a national leader in alternative dispute resolution practice. MU law students publish the highly regarded Missouri Law Review, the Journal of Dispute Resolution, and the Missouri Environmental Law and Policy Review. They also operate the Board of Advocates, which conducts a wide variety of advocacy competitions.

University of Missouri Health Care

The health-care needs of rural Missourians comprise the central mission of University of Missouri Health Care, which provides education, research and clinical services through its schools, hospitals and clinics.

Hospitals and Clinics

Patients come from every county in the state to receive primary, acute and rehabilitative care at University Hospital, Children's Hospital, Ellis Fischel Cancer Center, Columbia Regional Hospital and Rusk Rehabilitation Center. The health-care system also includes Missouri Rehabilitation Center in Mount Vernon and associated clinics in Columbia and other mid-Missouri communities. Physicians from University of Missouri Health Care also travel on a regular basis to communities throughout the state to hold outreach clinics.

School of Medicine

The origin of health-care education at MU can be traced to 1841 when the university affiliated with Kemper College in St. Louis. After offering a two-year preclinical sciences degree for many years, the School of Medicine expanded to a comprehensive four-year medical program in 1955. Today, the School of Medicine and its Department of Family and Community Medicine consistently are ranked highly by U.S. News and World Report for their leadership in primary-care education.

Through the Rural Scholars Program and other admission initiatives, more than half of new medical students come from rural Missouri communities. The medical school's problem-based curriculum offers case-based learning in small-group settings and provides a number of opportunities for students to gain practical experience at rural clinics and hospitals.

MU biomedical scientists have gained national attention for their research in arthritis rehabilitation, cardiovascular medicine, kidney dialysis, diabetes, cystic fibrosis, nuclear medicine, cancer and children's psychiatric disorders.

The School of Medicine, in conjunction with the hospitals, offers 35 fully accredited residency training programs and advanced degrees in the basic medical sciences. As part of the School of Medicine, a program in Health Management and Informatics is offered to educate both traditional students and experienced health-care administrators through its master's degree programs.

MU Sinclair School of Nursing

The MU Sinclair School of Nursing offers educational programs at the baccalaureate, master's and doctoral levels. It is committed to promoting, maintaining and improving health and health care delivery in Missouri and worldwide through nursing education, research, practice and service. The school is nationally accredited by the Commission of Collegiate Nursing Education and approved by the Missouri State Board of Nursing.

The undergraduate program, offering preparation for professional nursing, leads to the degree of bachelor of science in nursing and prepares our graduates to practice as generalists in a variety of health-care settings. For the BSN program, students apply to the clinical nursing major during their sophomore year. MU also offers a web-based RN-BSN degree option and an accelerated option for individuals with a baccalaureate degree in another area.

At the master's level, advanced practice nurses are prepared as nurse practitioners and clinical nurse specialists in mental health, public health and case management, pediatric, family or gerontological nursing. Nursing education, nursing administration and school-health nursing may also be studied.

The doctoral nursing program, the first cooperative Ph.D. in nursing to be offered at a public university in Missouri, prepares nurse scholars to assume leadership positions in service and educational settings, advancing the discipline, conducting research and contributing to the development of social and health policy. The school's activities are purposefully designed to prepare our nurses on all levels for a variety of leadership and scientific roles, and to meet the knowledge and technology requirements of today—and the future.

Gerontology, women's health, health behavior change and oncology comprise the school's major research interest areas. The School of Nursing is deeply committed to the principle of multidisciplinary and inter-disciplinary collaboration as a means of solving some of our most important health-care dilemmas.

By focusing a major research effort on Missouri's elderly, the School of Nursing is working to improve the quality of their lives and is helping them live independently and with dignity in their own homes. MU's nursing researchers are exploring new and innovative ways to help nursing homes everywhere improve the quality of care they offer. For fiscal year 2004, the school's grant expenditures again exceeded the $4 million threshold. The surge has kept the school ranked 15th nationally in nursing schools funded by the National Institutes of Health.

School of Health Professions

The School of Health Prefessions educates highly qualified health care professionals committed to fulfilling our mission of improving society through education, service and discovery in health and rehabilitation sciences. The school is credited with establishing the nation's first baccalaureate degree program in respiratory therapy and currently has the nation's only master's-level program in diagnostic medical ultrasound. In addition, it is the nation's only school of health professions to sponsor an adult day-healthcare facility. The School of Health Professions offers Missouri's only doctoral program in speech-language pathology and is the sole provider of publicly supported programs in occupational therapy, radiography and baccalaureate-level respiratory therapy. The school's five departments and eight accredited academic programs have a long and distinguished history and continue to produce many well-respected internationally and nationally recognized professionals.

The departments of Cardiopulmonary and Diagnostic Sciences, Communication Science and Disorders, Health Psychology, Occupational Therapy and Physical Therapy fulfill critical roles in health care. The school offers undergraduate degrees in communication science and disorders, diagnostic medical ultrasound, occupational therapy, nuclear medicine, radiography and respiratory therapy. In addition, the school offers graduate degrees in communication science and disorders, diagnostic medical ultrasound, and physical therapy and post-doctoral training in health psychology.

Students gain valuable experience in the school's service and outreach centers, including the Edlercare Center, The Health Connection, Speech and Hearing Clinic, Robert G. Comb's Language Preschool, Missouri Mobile Health, and more than 800 fieldwork sites.

College of Veterinary Medicine

One of 27 schools of veterinary medicine in the United States, the College of Veterinary Medicine includes three departments and, in addition to the regular curriculum, provides graduate instruction to students in other divisions. Students admitted to the college must have completed a minimum of two years of preprofessional study at the college level. A four-year course of study leads to the doctor of veterinary medicine degree.

Each department conducts a graduate and research program as well as advanced training for board certification in many specialties. The college's teaching hospital provides diagnosis and treatment of animals, while the veterinary medical diagnostic laboratory offers assistance in disease diagnosis. This laboratory provides a steady flow of teaching and research material for the college.

Libraries

The MU Libraries include the Elmer Ellis Library, the main library on campus and specialized branch libraries for engineering, geological sciences, health sciences, journalism, mathematics and veterinary medicine. The University Archives and the Columbia Missourian Newspaper Library also are part of the library system. The MU Libraries, housing more than 3 million volumes, 16,000 current periodicals, more than 1.7 million government documents and 6.8 million microforms, provide outstanding facilities for course preparation and scholarly work.

Many volumes of important older research materials are housed in the UM Libraries Depository, a four-campus storage facility that contains more than 1 million volumes from all of the University of Missouri campus libraries. That facility is located near the MU campus in Columbia.

Ellis Library includes principle resources for research in the social sciences, humanities, agriculture and the basic sciences. Ellis Library also has a department of special collections (rare books and microforms) and a current periodicals reading room. The libraries have many automated research tools. The libraries' main web page, http://web.missouri.edu/~elliswww, provides a gateway to the MERLIN Online Catalog. In addition, over 150 electronic databases in all academic disciplines are accessible at the web page for current students, staff and faculty. The libraries also provide access to over 17,049 electronic journals.

The university collections are frequently reinforced by gifts of friends and alumni. Outstanding gifts include an unpublished manuscript of Charlotte Bronte; the library and manuscripts of John G. Neihardt; the library and manuscripts of Mary Lago; the V.T. Hamlin "Alley Oop" collection; and the libraries of the late Dr. Frank Luther Mott (dean and professor of journalism), Judge Laurance M. Hyde of the Missouri Supreme Court, Methodist Bishop Ivan Lee Holt, and former Governor Henry S. Caulfield.

Two other libraries, the Western Historical Manuscripts Collection and the library of the State Historical Society of Missouri, are open to faculty, students and the public for study and research. Most of the papers in the Western Historical Manuscripts Collection relate to the area of the Missouri River and Great Plains and include interesting correspondence, account books and diaries representing early and recent business, professional, political and social life. The library of the State Historical Society of Missouri has an extensive collection of Missouriana and the early West and a painting collection including the works of George Caleb Bingham.

The law library, housed in Hulston Hall, the School of Law, holds over 330,000 volumes, including a small collection of law-related government documents. The law library is open to members of the public who need to do legal research.

MU Research Reactor

The University of Missouri Research Reactor Center (MURR) is a unique national resource that brings together the most powerful (10 megawatt) and productive university research reactor in the world and the resources of a major teaching hospital, a respected cancer center, a leading college of veterinary medicine, and distinguished university programs in the biosciences, chemistry and engineering. Since 1966, MURR has served as a unique resource for researchers, faculty and students from universities, government agencies and private companies.

MURR research programs encompass three major areas: biomedical sciences, materials sciences and trace element analysis. All of the programs emphasize collaborative efforts. The biomedical science program focuses on the development of radiopharmaceuticals for use in cancer research and therapeutic applications. The trace element analysis program uses neutron activation analysis and other sophisticated techniques to determine the composition of biological, archaeological and geological samples. The materials sciences program focuses on the use of neutron scattering instruments and techniques to define and characterize materials at the molecular or atomic level.

Educational opportunities abound at MURR. As an international educational resource for multidisciplinary research, the center draws students from every continent except Antarctica. Undergraduate and graduate students participate in MURR research projects in diverse disciplines such as anthropology and archaeology, chemistry, engineering (chemical, electrical, mechanical and nuclear), geology, materials science, medical and life sciences (including cancer diagnostics, treatment and prevention), nutrition, physics and veterinary medicine. MURR also participates in the Research Experiences for Undergraduates program, a summer research program sponsored by the National Science Foundation.

University of Missouri–Kansas City

www.umkc.edu

The history of the University of Missouri–Kansas City (UMKC) goes back to the 1880s. Three of the professional schools now a part of the university were founded in the 19th century: the School of Dentistry, 1881; the School of Pharmacy, 1895; and the School of Law, 1895.

The Conservatory of Music was founded a few years later in 1906. Around that time, community leaders were discussing the need for a university in Kansas City.

By the 1920s, two groups were planning for such a university. One group wanted to establish a Methodist-affiliated Lincoln and Lee University. The other group wanted a private University of Kansas City. Eventually, the two groups united and, in 1929, the University of Kansas City was chartered.

The next year, William Volker, Kansas City manufacturer and philanthropist, gave the newly chartered institution 40 acres purchased from the William Rockhill Nelson estate. In 1931, Volker donated the funds to buy the eight-acre site of the Walter S. Dickey mansion. It was in this remodeled building that the University of Kansas City began its first academic year on October 2, 1933, with 264 students and 17 faculty members.

The first commencement at the University of Kansas City was June 9, 1936, with 80 graduates.

In 1963, the University of Kansas City merged into the University of Missouri System, giving birth to the University of Missouri–Kansas City. In 1963, the enrollment was 4,394; more than 14,000 now enroll at UMKC.

College of Arts and Sciences

The College of Arts and Sciences is the largest division of UMKC. It provides a broad liberal arts education as well as graduate and doctoral preparation, enabling students to take their places as specialists in a number of chosen fields.

The major areas of study are architecture, urban planning and design, art and art history, chemistry, communication studies, economics, English language and literature, foreign language and literature, geosciences, history, mathematics and statistics, philosophy, physics, political science, psychology, sociology, criminal justice and criminology, and theatre. Several interdisciplinary majors also are offered in such areas as Judaic studies and urban affairs. Graduate work at the master's level is offered in nearly all of the college's departments. Doctoral studies are available in psychology. A number of departments also participate in the Interdisciplinary Ph.D. Program offered through the School of Graduate Studies. Within Arts and Sciences, the Department of Theatre, the Mock Trial teams, creative writing and the UMKC Debate Squad consistently receive national attention.

School of Biological Sciences

The School of Biological Sciences seeks to provide quality education, to expand knowledge through scientific research and to apply the latest scientific information for the advancement of human welfare.

Created in 1985, the school serves to advance the missions of the campus and those programs that have a foundation in the life sciences. It is closely tied to and supports academic programs in the schools of dentistry, nursing, pharmacy and the College of Arts and Sciences. It also offers bachelor's, master's and interdisciplinary Ph.D. degrees.

In 1999, the School of Biological Sciences announced its membership in an exclusive national consortium to conduct research at the prestigious Argonne National Laboratory in Chicago.

Henry W. Bloch School of Business and Public Administration

Programs at the Henry W. Bloch School of Business and Public Administration provide present and future administrators of business, government and non-profit organizations opportunities to gain or enhance their knowledge and skills for effective leadership. These degree programs lead to the bachelor of business administration, bachelor of science in accounting, master of business administration and master of public administration. The Bloch School also offers interdisciplinary Ph.D. degrees.

The school actively engages in research of interest to the business community, Kansas City's urban core and government agencies. The school added an accelerated Executive M.B.A. program in 1995.

The Bloch School offers entrepreneurship as a component of study for students in different degree programs, including M.B.A. and Executive M.B.A. programs.

In 2005, the school was named one of the top 10 schools in the nation for entrepreneurship emphasis in the April 2005 issue of Entrepreneur Magazine. Previously, the Bloch School was in Entrepreneur Magazine's top 25.

School of Computing and Engineering

The School of Computing and Engineering, launched in 2001, was created to tackle the challenges posed by rapid changes in the fields of computer science, telecommunications, networking and engineering, and to offer new research and educational opportunities that will fuel the information technology and biotechnology areas.

The program offers courses leading to the bachelor of science, bachelor of arts and master of science degrees in computer science and participates in the School of Graduate Studies Interdisciplinary Ph.D. Program. The master's degree program has special emphases in telecommunications and computer networking. The school has expanded into the biotechnology fields of computational biology, bioinformatics, bioelectronics, bioengineering and biomaterials/nanomaterials via cooperative programs with the School of Biological Sciences, School of Dentistry and the Department of Physics. These areas are experiencing rapid growth and offer students career opportunities in exciting new areas with a high demand for professionally trained computer scientists and engineers.

The school also offers degrees in civil, electrical, mechanical and industrial engineering.

Students can pursue their bachelor of science, master of science and interdisciplinary Ph.D. degree options.

School of Dentistry

The UMKC School of Dentistry is the oldest unit of the university. It evolved from both the Kansas City Dental College, founded in 1881 as a unit of the Kansas City Medical College, and the Western Dental College, founded in 1890. In 1919, these two colleges merged to become the Kansas City Western Dental College. The college became part of the University of Kansas City in 1941.

The majority of dental students have earned at least a bachelor's degree before admission. The entering student body is selected with preference for residents of Missouri and those from New Mexico, Arkansas, Kansas and Hawaii, states that participate in exchange and support programs. A graduate receives the degree of doctor of dental surgery.

In addition to the dental students, there are dental hygiene students and graduate dentists pursuing specialty education or education in the basic sciences leading to the graduate professional diploma or master's degree.

The research program at the dental school is supported by grants from the United States Public Health Service and from industry.

The clinic provides educational experience in patient care for the dental students. At the same time, dental care is provided for thousands of patients who visit the clinic annually. The patients pay nominal fees designed to make the clinic partly self-supporting.

Continuing education courses are offered for practicing dentists and dental hygienists. These courses, designed to prevent professional obsolescence, are fully subscribed.

The dental school also conducts numerous outreach efforts each year, including clinics in rural areas of Missouri, Latin America and for area migrant workers and homeless persons.

School of Education

A major responsibility of the School of Education is preparation of teachers for elementary and secondary schools. Other responsibilities include preparation of college teachers, counseling psychologists, reading specialists and administrators.

A person is eligible to apply for admission to the teacher education program after completing 20 hours of undergraduate credit. Graduates receive the bachelor of arts degree in education. Graduate degree programs lead to the master's of arts, educational specialist and the doctoral degree. Graduate degree programs leading to the master's of arts degree in education are offered in counseling, curriculum and instruction, educational research and psychology, reading education, special education and administration.

Education specialist degrees are available in educational administration, reading education, curriculum and instruction and counseling. Doctoral degrees are available in counseling psychology. The School of Education also participates in the interdisciplinary Ph.D. program.

With the goal of addressing the unique needs of students in the urban school environment, UMKC's Institute for Urban Education was launched in fall 2005 with a pilot group of student participants. Through innovative and rigorous preparation programs, IUE will assist in better matching the teaching talents of future teachers with community needs.

A vital aspect of the teacher education curriculum is the student teaching program. Through the cooperation of the metropolitan Kansas City school districts, a demonstration program is maintained. In addition, a number of student teaching centers exist through the cooperation of the metropolitan Kansas City school districts.

The experiences available through these programs are designed to provide an opportunity for the study of child development as well as the application of appropriate instructional techniques. Student teaching assignments are available in a wide range of urban and suburban school settings in a number of Missouri and Kansas school districts.

School of Graduate Studies

Programs for advanced degrees in the liberal arts were introduced by the University of Kansas

City in 1939. Degree programs are offered in a variety of fields in the humanities, social sciences and natural sciences. Several are of special interest to students preparing for careers in the health sciences, performing arts and urban affairs.

There are master's degree programs in accounting, criminal justice and criminology, art history, biology, business administration, chemistry, computer science, dental hygiene, economics, education, English, history, law, mathematics, microbiology, music, oral biology, nursing, pharmaceutical sciences, physics, political science, psychology, public administration, romance languages, social psychology, sociology, studio art, theatre and urban environmental geology.

The education specialist degrees, master of fine arts, master of laws and doctor of musical arts are also available. The Interdisciplinary Ph.D. Program offers students a range of doctoral options. Support is available to qualified graduate students through scholarships, assistantships and fellowships.

School of Law

The Kansas City School of Law, founded in 1895, merged with the University of Kansas City in 1938. When UKC joined the UM system in 1963, the school became known as the UMKC School of Law.

The law school is housed in a modern facility, equipped with the latest audiovisual aids, ample seminar rooms, a large student lounge and individual offices for student organizations. The library is designed to accommodate 215,000 volumes. A unique feature of the building is the placement of student study stations in office suites shared by faculty.

The location of the School of Law on an urban university campus provides abundant opportunities for student participation in special clinical programs. Missouri and Kansas Supreme Court rules permit senior law students to appear in court and before administrative tribunals on behalf of indigent people. Students also serve as editors and write a substantial portion of the UMKC Law Review, a scholarly legal journal.

School of Medicine

In 1971, the UMKC School of Medicine accepted its first class in the six-year medical program. The year-round program, involving 48 weeks of study each year, provides students the opportunity to earn both their M.D. degree and a bachelor's degree from the College of Arts and Sciences. It is designed primarily for highly qualified high school seniors.

The curriculum of the School of Medicine provides an early exposure to clinical medicine and basic science education, as well as a liberal arts education that is fully integrated into the six-year program. Admission to this program as a freshman gives the student the opportunity to complete requirements for the doctor of medicine degree without a second admission process.

A unique feature of the school is the docent system, which provides a full-time faculty member assigned to 17 students for a four-year period, creating an opportunity for the student to have close interaction with a faculty member who serves as a teacher, counselor and friend.

Nearby are the Medical School's major affiliate hospitals: Truman Medical Center; Children's Mercy Hospital; St. Luke's Hospital; and Western Missouri Mental Health Center. In addition, the School of Medicine utilizes a number of outstanding private community hospitals in the Kansas City area for education in clinical medicine.

Conservatory of Music

The Conservatory of Music, organized in 1906 as the Kansas City Conservatory of Music, merged with the University of Kansas City in 1959. If offers the degrees of bachelor of music, bachelor of arts, bachelor of fine arts, master of music education and doctor of musical arts.

The conservatory offers the community hundreds of music and dance programs annually by visiting artists, faculty and students. In addition to maintaining a faculty resident string quartet, brass quartet, baroque music ensemble and contemporary music group, the conservatory allows students to participate in many ensembles, such as the Conservatory Orchestra, the University Percussion Ensemble, Conservatory Wind Ensemble, University Singers, Heritage Chorale, UMKC Jazz Band, UMKC Accordion Orchestra, along with many smaller chamber ensembles.

School of Pharmacy

A private school of pharmacy was organized in 1885 to serve the Kansas City area. In 1943, it became the School of Pharmacy of the University of Kansas City. In 1963, with the formation of the University of Missouri–Kansas City, it became the only public pharmacy school in Missouri.

The school offers both professional and graduate programs in the pharmaceutical sciences, including pharmaceutics, pharmacology, biopharmaceutics and pharmacokinetics and toxicology; pharmacy administration; and pharmacy practice.

The primary professional degree is the doctor of pharmacy. Pharmacy faculty team-conduct interdisciplinary research and engage in community service. Students are active in various outreach projects, including a program to educate school children about the dangers of illegal drugs.

The pharmacy program includes significant amounts of patient contact and provides training in the interdisciplinary approach to patient care. The clinical components of the curriculum are conducted at Truman Medical Center and other area health facilities. A senior externship is available at sites throughout Missouri.

Libraries

Located at four sites on the UMKC campus, library collections contain nearly 1.6 million volumes, some 7,027 current serial subscriptions, 1.9 million microforms and more than 450,000 government documents supporting the programs of the university. Resources are complemented by agreements that provide access to information held in other libraries and repositories worldwide.

The libraries employ advanced technologies to locate and deliver information to faculty, students and others. Up-to-date laser, computer and telecommunications and other advanced systems provide timely delivery of needed information. Internal operations also rely on advanced systems to acquire, process, catalog and circulate materials owned by the libraries.

The libraries lend materials to any citizen of Missouri through a number of resource-sharing arrangements. These arrangements are designed to assist patrons, businesses and government agencies at all levels and foster the economic development of the state and region.

Especially prominent is the commitment to enhance the development of the Kansas City metropolitan area through active cooperative programs with local libraries. The UMKC libraries are committed to such innovative programs as the Community Information Program and membership in the Kansas City Metropolitan Library Network.

In addition to the general holdings, the libraries have many special collections. These include the papers and manuscripts of Paul Creston, prominent 20th century American composer; the Midwest Center for American Music collections, including those of renowned Kansas City composer Virgil Thompson; the Gaylord Marr Sound Archives; the Snyder American collection and the Baker collection of 20th century British and American literature.

Working closely with the libraries, the University of Missouri Western Historical Manuscripts Collection has the papers of such well-known Kansas Citians as Charles N. Kimball, Arthur Mag, J.C. Nichols, Oscar D. Nelson, Elmer F. Pierson, L. Perry Cookingham, Charles B. Wheeler and Lou E. Holland as well as extensive architectural records of Kansas City buildings augmented by the Holt, Price, Barnes and Asa B. Cross papers.

School of Nursing

Approval for establishment of a School of Nursing was granted by the UM Board of Curators in 1979. The school accepted its first class of registered nurse undergraduates into its baccalaureate program in fall 1981. A four-year B.S.N. program began in fall 2001. Fully accredited by the National League for Nursing, the school also offers a bachelor of science in nursing focusing on adults', women's and children's health; and the inter-campus Ph.D., in cooperation with the University of Missouri–St. Louis and University of Missouri–Columbia campuses.

Continuing Education

The university's schools and colleges, with responsibility for their respective continuing education programs, extend the university's knowledge resources beyond the traditional on-campus degree programs. Through credit courses, non-credit courses, conferences and institutes, residents of the state and the community are provided the opportunity to continue their education in a manner suited to the adult mind.

Non-credit continuing education activities are carefully planned undertakings involving an academic department and usually an organized group from business, industry, government or the general public. Citizens throughout the state are served by UMKC through its relationship with statewide University Extension.

Offerings include liberal arts lectures and seminars; professional, refresher, remedial and post-graduate courses; and problem-oriented educational programs designed for the analysis and study of major social and urban problems. Formal education also may be continued through credit courses offered off the campus or by enrollment in correspondence courses for academic credit. Frequently, public forums concerned with vital issues of the day are organized and offered in order to increase both the number and effectiveness of people who work toward solutions of community problems.

While responding to the broad and varied needs of the community and state, the university is at the same time placing increased emphasis on the development of specific program areas identified as important to large professional, economic and other special-interest audiences within the community.

Admission

The Office of Admissions serves as the initial contact between the student and UMKC. This office conducts the registration of students in cooperation with the various schools and colleges within UMKC and maintains student academic records.

University of Missouri–Rolla

Telephone: (573) 341-4111
umrolla@umr.edu
www.umr.edu

The University of Missouri–Rolla (UMR) was founded in 1870 as the University of Missouri School of Mines and Metallurgy (MSM). MSM was the first technological institution west of the Mississippi and one of the first in the nation. The campus was renamed the University of Missouri–Rolla in 1964.

A product of the land-grant movement of the late nineteenth century, the campus was Missouri's response to the acute need for scientific and practical education in the developing nation. The early academic programs focused on the mining and metallurgical industries, but the campus broadened its engineering mission over time as the need for engineering and scientific education grew.

Graduate education and research began to assume a greater emphasis on the campus in the 1950s, and the school of Mines and Metallurgy became a comprehensive technological university.

In 1964, UMR became one of the four campuses of the reorganized University of Missouri. Today, UMR continues its focus on educating leaders in engineering and science and ranks among the top 25 in the nation in the number of bachelor's degrees awarded in engineering.

The change from "school" to "university" involved three major shifts in emphasis:

- An expanded curricula designed to encompass the full range of engineering and scientific subjects, including nuclear engineering, biological sciences and computer science.
- New degree programs in the liberal arts, humanities and social sciences, with an appropriate growth in the number and quality of faculty and courses.
- New graduate programs to strengthen the science and engineering disciplines, and a strong commitment to research in all areas. These changes better enabled the campus to respond to Missouri's needs.

Originally a mining school and later an engineering school, the University of Missouri–Rolla has become a technological university of national distinction. The University of Missouri–Rolla offers bachelor of arts and bachelor of science degrees in 32 fields of engineering, science, humanities and social sciences. Master of science degrees are offered in 23 disciplines, the doctor of philosophy in 18 and the doctor of engineering in nine.

School of Engineering

The School of Engineering is the largest on the UMR campus, with about 63 percent of the student body enrolled in its five departments.

Within the School of Engineering are the departments of chemical and biological engineering; civil, architectural and environmental engineering; electrical and computer engineering; engineering management; and mechanical and aerospace engineering.

Areas covered by these departments are widely diversified and include the major branches of engineering vital to the industrial progress of the state and nation. An education in one of these fields of engineering prepares a student professionally for positions, both technical and managerial, in a variety of industries and governmental organizations.

All departments in the school offer B.S., M.S., and Ph.D. programs. The doctor of engineering is offered in civil, chemical, electrical and mechanical engineering. In addition, UMR offers a statewide video-based M.S. degree in engineering management and manufacturing engineering, and an online M.S. degree in systems engineering.

The quality of its graduates and contributions made through research have made the School of Engineering internationally known. Departments within the school are among the largest and most outstanding in the country.

School of Materials, Energy and Earth Resources

The School of Materials, Energy and Earth Resources offers undergraduate and graduate programs in seven disciplines related to energy, earth resources and materials fields: ceramic, geological, metallurgical, mining, nuclear and petroleum engineering, and geology and geophysics. All offer bachelor's, master's and Ph.D. degree programs. A doctor of engineering is offered in ceramic, geological, mining, nuclear and petroleum engineering.

UMR is one of only two institutions of higher education in the country offering professional training in all of the energy and minerals engineering disciplines.

The school has long enjoyed national and international recognition for the quality of its educational and research programs. Through these, it has made significant contributions to both the metallic and non-metallic mineral industries of the state and nation. Close liaison is maintained with state and federal agencies concerned with mineral resources technology and management, as well as with industry and professional organizations.

College of Arts and Sciences

The College of Arts and Sciences was formed in 1970 by the merger of the existing School of Science and the Division of Liberal Arts.

The college includes the departments of biological sciences, chemistry, computer science, mathematics and statistics, physics, English, history and political science, philosophy, liberal arts and psychology. B.S., M.S. and Ph.D. degrees are offered by all science departments except biological sciences, which offers an M.S. only. The B.A. degree, which has been granted on the UMR campus since 1967, may be earned in English, history, philosophy, psychology, biological sciences and chemistry. The B.S. may be earned in psychology, biological sciences and physics.

Departments in the College of Arts and Sciences not only provide course work for students majoring in those fields (about 21 percent of the student body) but are also responsible for teaching science, mathematics and liberal arts courses to students majoring in engineering. The computer science department is the state's largest.

In addition to educating UMR students, the college serves the people and industries of the state through research and science activities.

School of Management and Information Systems

The School of Management and Information Systems, UMR's newest school, was established to meet the growing demand in industry for people with training in both management and information technology.

The school offers undergraduate and graduate programs in business administration, economics and finance, information science and technology and management information systems.

All departments in the school offer bachelor of science degrees. A bachelor of arts degree also is offered in economics and finance, and a master of science degree is offered in information science and technology.

Students in the School of Management and Information Systems will begin with a broad range of foundational courses in humanities, social sciences, science and mathematics. Interspersed with these general education requirements, they will take "SMIS core" classes, which are shared by all students in the school. These classes reflect the SMIS theme of integration of business and technology, and represent information technology, management, quantitative and communication skills. As students complete these foundational requirements, they begin to specialize in the differing degree programs.

DR. JACK CARNEY
Chancellor
University of Missouri–Rolla

Graduate Study

Graduate study has been offered at the University of Missouri–Rolla since about 1900 when the first master of science degree programs were established. The first doctor of philosophy degree for work done on the Rolla campus was granted in 1926. M.S. and Ph.D. degrees are now granted by all engineering and science departments except biological sciences, which offers an M.S.

The M.S. degree is also granted in manufacturing engineering and in sytems engineering. Nine departments offer the doctor of engineering degree.

UMR Engineering Education Center

The UMR Engineering Education Center on the University of Missouri–St. Louis campus was established in 1964 as part of the continuing education program of the UMR Extension Division. It offers evening courses leading to M.S. degrees in aerospace, chemical, civil, electrical, mechanical, metallurgical, environmental and planning engineering; engineering management; engineering mechanics; and computer science. Course instruction is by UMR faculty and selected engineers and scientists from industry. More than 2,000 degrees have been granted for work completed at the center.

UMR School of Extended Learning

In response to growing national trends, the UMR School of Extended Learning has expanded its distance and continuing education course offerings to better meet the needs of many of today's students, as well as professionals who want to continue their education, but aren't able to attend on-campus classes.

Students enrolled in distance courses at UMR may attend class online from their office or home or while away on business. Courses are broadcast live on the Internet and archived for students unavailable at the scheduled class time.

The distance courses are identical to the on-campus version. In fact, most classes consist of both on- and off-campus students. Students can also learn through mailed CD ROMs and DVDs and face-to-face communication.

UMR's distance education offerings have expanded from a few courses at Fort Leonard Wood and the Engineering Education Center in St. Louis to offering online graduate degree programs in manufacturing engineering, mining engineering, systems engineering, engineering management and geotechnics, as well as 15 certificate programs.

In 2001, UMR partnered with Boeing to offer its employees a degree in systems engineering. The program began with 30 students in its first year and has grown to a current enrollment of more than 150 students.

Research

As one of a select national group of state technological universities, UMR has directed its research chiefly toward supporting education and service in engineering and science.

Research is important on the Rolla campus not only because of its results, but as an educational tool for both faculty and students. Research projects are conducted in every academic department in nearly every phase of engineering and science and in some areas of liberal arts. Much of it is directly related to the needs of the people and industries of Missouri and to national problems such as energy, mineral resources and the environment.

UMR's research is focused on five areas: environmental engineering and science; infrastructure engineering; manufacturing engineering; materials engineering and science; and information science and technology. Among the notable research occurring at UMR is a multidisciplinary effort to develop technology for the removal of land mines; testing and development of new lightweight composite materials for use in bridges, buildings and other infrastructure; investigations into the effects of aircraft, space shuttle and rocket exhaust on the ozone layer; and the development of more environmentally friendly methods for removing paint from aircraft. Other projects are as diverse as basic investigations in cloud physics, the study of the gases in meteorites and moon rocks, research on lightweight structural steel and earthquake structures, plus robotics, flexible manufacturing, smart materials and glass beads used in the treatment of cancer and arthritis.

UMR's research centers carry out interdisciplinary investigations that involve different fields of engineering and science. UMR's research centers include the Biochemical Processing Institute, Center for Cold-Formed Steel Structures, Center for Environmental Science and Technology, Center for Infrastructure Engineering Studies, Cloud and Aerosol Sciences Laboratory, Design Engineering Center, Electronics Materials Processing and Characterization Institute, Engineering Research Laboratory, Experimental Combustion Laboratory, Experimental Mine, Center for Pyrometallurgy, Graduate Center for Materials Research, High Pressure Waterjet Laboratory, Institute for Applied Mathematics, Institute of Applied Chemistry, Institute for Artificial Intelligence, Institute for Chemical and Extractive Metallurgy, Institute of River Studies, Institute of Thin Film Processing, Intelligent Systems Center, International Institute of River and Lake Systems, Laboratory for Atomic and Molecular Research, Missouri Mining and Mineral Resources Research Institute, Nuclear Reactor, Rock Mechanics and Explosives Research Center, Transportation Institute, Center for Entrepreneurship and Outreach, Electromagnetic Compatibility Laboratory, and Applied Microwave Nondestructive Testing Laboratory.

Admission

Interested students may obtain information on admission and enrollment upon request, in person, on-line or by mail, from the office of admissions at UMR. Prospective students and their parents are encouraged to visit the campus or call the toll-free number (1-800-522-0938) dedicated to inquiries about admissions, financial aid and enrollment procedures. Students also may contact the admissions office through electronic mail at umrolla@umr.edu, or visit the UMR web site (www.umr.edu).

University of Missouri–St. Louis

www.umsl.edu

The University of Missouri–St. Louis is a public metropolitan research university located in Missouri's most populous and economically diverse region. The university strives to strengthen educational programs at all levels, enhance the research and creative capacities of faculty and students and serve the region's needs through research and technology transfer, innovative educational outreach programs and work force development.

Founded in 1963 on the grounds of a former country club, the University of Missouri–St. Louis today is spread across 350 acres of rolling hills in suburban St. Louis County adjacent to two interstate highways and five minutes from Lambert-St. Louis International Airport. The campus has 44 academic and general-purpose buildings as well as student residence halls, condominiums and apartments. The newest of these facilities are the $11 million Center for Molecular Electronics, $32 million Millennium Student Center and $52 million Blanche M. Touhill Performing Arts Center. The campus also is developing a 100-acre business, research and technology park and planning new facilities for its colleges of Business Administration and Education.

The largest university in the region, the University of Missouri–St. Louis enrolls nearly 16,000 students and employs more than 1,000 full-time and part-time teaching and research faculty members. More than 95 percent of tenure and tenure-track faculty hold doctoral or terminal degrees in their respective fields and edit or have articles routinely published in a variety of nationally renowned academic journals. Numerous academic programs have attained national recognition for their quality, including criminology and criminal justice, education, tropical ecology, nursing and optometry. U.S. News & World Report ranks the Department of Criminology and Criminal Justice's doctoral degree program as the fourth best in the country and the International Business Program as 10th in the country.

While graduates of the University of Missouri–St. Louis have taken leadership roles nationally and internationally, their influence remains centered in the St. Louis region. More than 75 percent of University of Missouri–St. Louis graduates still live and work in the region — supporting the unofficial campus tagline "We Educate St. Louis."

College of Arts and Sciences

The largest of the colleges at UM–St. Louis, the College of Arts and Sciences, through its 14 departments, School of Social Welfare and Sue Shear Institute of Women's and Gender Studies, offers a curriculum linking the liberal arts with the metropolitan area.

Students may pursue academic majors in anthropology, biology, biotechnology, chemistry and biochemistry, criminology and criminal justice, economics, English, foreign languages and literatures, history, mathematics and computer science, philosophy, physics and astronomy, political science, psychology, social work and sociology.

The college offers master's degrees in biology, computer science, creative writing, criminology and criminal justice, chemistry, economics, English, gerontology, history, mathematics, physics, physiological optics, political science, psychology, public policy administration, social work and sociology. It also offers graduate certificates in biotechnology, forensic economics, international studies, museum studies, psychology clinical respecialization, trauma studies, tropical biology and conservation, women's and gender studies and writing.

Chancellor, University of Missouri–St. Louis

It offers doctorates in applied mathematics, biology, chemistry, criminology and criminal justice, physics, physiological optics, political science and psychology.

College of Fine Arts and Communication

Founded in September 2001, the College of Fine Arts and Communication is the newest of the schools and colleges at UM–St. Louis. It includes the departments of Art and Art History, Communication, Music and Theatre, Dance and Media Studies.

Undergraduates may pursue degrees in art history, communication, music and studio art. The college offers master's degree programs in communication and music.

The college is distinguished by its collaboration with the community. Four endowed professorships through the Des Lee Vision Collaborative link UM–St. Louis to the Saint Louis Symphony, St. Louis Art Museum, Opera Theatre of Saint Louis, Laumeier Sculpture Park and other cultural institutions.

University students and faculty, as well as visiting artists, have access to the new Blanche M. Touhill Performing Arts Center. Artwork exhibitions are housed in Gallery 210, Gallery FAB and Gallery Visio.

Pierre Laclede Honors College

The Pierre Laclede Honors College was established in 1989 and has grown to include its own campus, complete with instructional, residential and recreational facilities.

Students may pursue degrees in any undergraduate division of UM–St. Louis. In addition, students must undertake a personal writing program and pursue independent study through research, internships, public service projects and guided reading.

The college features a student-faculty ratio of 14:1, a scholar development program, a writing program and 11 honors classes. It offers academic excellence comparable to expensive private colleges, but at public institution rates.

The four-year program has a highly selective student body of about 450. The college's teachers are among the university's leading research and teaching faculty.

College of Business Administration

At the undergraduate level, the College of Business Administration offers the Bachelor of Science in Business Administration degree with emphases in finance, international business, logistics and operations management, management and organizational behavior and marketing.

Bachelor of Science in Accounting and Bachelor of Science in Management Information Systems degrees also are offered to undergraduate students. These programs provide students with a high quality business education that prepares them to become productive contributors in both private and public sector organizations.

The college offers three master's degree programs. The Master of Business Administration program is designed to fully prepare students for administrative positions. The Master of Science in Management Information Systems program includes a specialized program in computer-based management information systems. The Master of Accounting program is intended for students preparing to enter the accounting profession or furthering existing accountant careers.

The college also offers a doctoral degree in business administration with a focus on information systems. All of the college's programs are accredited by the International Association for Management Education, the authorized professional accrediting body in collegiate business education.

The Center for Business and Industrial Studies was established in 1982 to meet the research needs of the St. Louis business community. The center analyzes managerial programs and conducts applied research. Through the center, clients have access to a distinguished faculty with specialized knowledge and analytical tools, statistical databases and computer software adaptable to a wide variety of business applications.

College of Education

The College of Education provides undergraduate, graduate and doctoral degree programs to prepare and sustain educational leaders for a variety of school and non-school settings.

The college is consistently one of the top three institutions in the state in the production of educators. Consistent with the college's theme of "Creating the 21st Century School of Education," programs emphasize state-of-the-art technological applications to enhance teaching and learning as well as collaboration among university, school, agency and corporate partners to prepare and revitalize educators.

The faculty, including a number of nationally recognized endowed professors, are committed to a continuous exchange between research and practice that improves the learning environment of diverse learners.

The college is divided into five divisions: teaching and learning; educational psychology; research and evaluation; educational leadership and policy studies; and counseling and family therapy.

In addition to numerous undergraduate degree programs, the college offers master's degrees in counseling, educational administration, elementary education, secondary education and special education. Within these programs, a number of emphasis areas are available, including community education, elementary and secondary school administration, elementary and secondary reading, general and school counseling and secondary curriculum and instruction. The college also offers both doctor of education and doctor of philosophy in education degree programs.

College of Optometry

After more than 10 years of study and planning, the College of Optometry came into existence on June 1, 1980. The first class of 36 students graduated in May 1984. This college offers the only opportunity to study optometry in Missouri.

Doctors of optometry are primary health care professionals who examine, diagnose, treat and manage diseases and disorders of the visual system, the eye and associated structures as well as diagnose related systemic conditions. They prescribe glasses, contact lenses, low vision rehabilitation and medications as well as perform certain surgical procedures as regulated by state law.

Optometric education is a four-year professional degree program accredited by the Accreditation Council on Optometric Education through the authority granted by the U.S. Department of Education. Upon graduation and following successful completion of the three-part examination given by the National Board of Examiners in Optometry, graduates are eligible for licensure in all 50 states plus the District of Columbia.

Entering students must have completed at least 90 credit hours of undergraduate work including core courses in the sciences (biology, chemistry and physics), mathematics (including calculus), English and the liberal arts. Applicants also must complete the Optometry Admission Test, which is designed to measure general academic ability and comprehension of scientific information. Ninety-eight percent of those admitted hold a bachelor's degree, most from a scientific discipline.

The curriculum leading to the doctor of optometry degree is a four-year, year-round program. The program prepares graduates to deliver compassionate patient care while instilling a sound background in the biomedical, optical, behavioral and clinical sciences including an understanding of the health care delivery system.

College of Nursing

The College of Nursing offers nursing studies at the undergraduate and graduate levels. Knowledge and skills needed to complete the professional licensure examination to become a professional registered nurse are available through a baccalaureate option. Nurses who have obtained their basic nursing education through associate degree or diploma nursing programs may complete their bachelor's degree at UM–St. Louis.

The college also offers a master's degree in nursing in cooperation with the School of Nursing at UM–Kansas City and the doctoral degree in nursing in cooperation with the UM–Columbia and UM–Kansas City nursing schools.

The college was established as a School of Nursing in 1980 and graduated its first class in May 1983. College status was achieved in 1994 with the acquisition of the basic baccalaureate program through the merger with the Barnes College of Nursing.

Graduate School

The graduate school has responsibility for all graduate degree programs in the various schools and colleges of the university.

Graduate programs have been designed to serve students with either of two career goals—to obtain an advanced degree or to obtain advanced training for personal or professional growth.

Academic programs include 27 offering master's degrees and 11 offering doctoral degrees. Two interdisciplinary graduate programs, in gerontology and public policy administration, report directly to the graduate school.

UM–St. Louis/Washington University Joint Undergraduate Engineering Program

The UM–St. Louis/Washington University Joint Undergraduate Engineering Program was established in 1992 and offers bachelor's degrees in civil, mechanical and electrical engineering as well as a minor in environmental engineering science. The three bachelor's degrees are accredited by the Engineering Accreditation Commission of the Accreditation Board for Engineering and Technology.

Students who enter the program take half of their course work on the UM-–St. Louis campus. The remaining half of the program, consisting of upper-level engineering courses and laboratories, is completed on the campus of Washington University in St. Louis.

Students register for all their courses at UM–St. Louis, pay UM–St. Louis tuition rates and receive their degrees from UM–St. Louis. The joint program allows Missouri to make the most efficient use of public funds while meeting the needs of both traditional and non-traditional students. There are more than 200 graduates of the joint program, including about 14 percent African-Americans and about 18 percent women.

Continuing Education and Outreach

Continuing Education and Outreach, charged with extending the resources of UM–St. Louis to the public, uses the facilities of government agencies, hospitals, schools and businesses to make college credit and non-credit courses conveniently available to the public. The J.C. Penney Conference Center provides a modern adult education setting on campus for short courses, conferences, institutes, workshops and seminars.

Continuing Education and Outreach and the College of Arts and Sciences offer through the Nonprofit Management and Leadership Program courses and seminars for professional staff, board members and other leaders of nonprofit and voluntary organizations as well as for students and others wishing to explore the field.

A graduate concentration program and undergraduate certificate also are offered. Custom designed programs for specific nonprofit association and organizations are available, and the program also provides consulting services to nonprofit or voluntary organizations.

Through the Video Instructional Program, UM–St. Louis offers courses on all local cable television stations on the Higher Education Channel. Graduate and undergraduate credit courses are offered with UM–St. Louis faculty available to answer questions and discuss exams.

UM–St. Louis also operates a two-way video system with other university campuses. This system is used for both credit and non-credit instruction.

The Center for Entrepreneurship and Economic Education provides courses, workshops, conferences and consultations on economic concerns for teachers and administrators. Curriculum materials also are developed and distributed. The center is affiliated with the Missouri Council on Economic Education and the joint Council on Economic Education, a national network of economic educators.

The university also maintains the West County Computer Center, located near the intersection of Interstate 270 and Manchester Road at 1715 Deer Tracks Trail in Town and Country, Mo. Computer classes also are taught on the UM–St. Louis campus.

Libraries

UM–St. Louis libraries support the educational objectives of the university and meet the informational needs of the campus community. The UM–St. Louis library system includes the St. Louis Mercantile Library, Thomas Jefferson Library and Ward E. Barnes Library.

Founded in 1846, the St. Louis Mercantile Library is the oldest cultural institution west of the Mississippi River. The library moved to the UM–St. Louis campus in 1998. It includes two widely renowned specialized transportation collections: the John W. Barriger III National Railroad Library and Herman T. Pott National Inland Waterways Library. The Barriger library focuses on American railroad history and is one of the largest of its kind in the United States. Its holdings include 40,000 books plus primary manuscript documents and photographs. The Pott library focuses on U.S. river and inland waterways history and contains 2,500 books and a large pictorial/photographic collection.

The UM–St. Louis libraries house one million volumes, 300,000 photographs, one million government documents and more than one million microforms. They provide access to more than 15,000 full-text online periodicals. The libraries are open more than 80 hours per week during regular academic sessions.

Admissions

Interested students may obtain information on admission and enrollment in person, by mail or online. Prospective students and their parents are encouraged to visit the campus. The web site is: www.umsl.edu. Admissions personnel may be e-mailed at admissionsu@msx.umsl.edu.

Organized in 1898 by the Missouri Press Association, the State Historical Society is directed by statute to collect, preserve, make available and publish the history of Missouri and the Middle West.

For over one hundred years, the State Historical Society has been the center for serious research into every aspect of the society and government of Missouri and the lives of its residents. It is a heavily utilized service institution for the citizens and students of Missouri, supplying research facilities and information for every department of the state, its schools and colleges, and thousands of personal requests.

Society Headquarters

The society is located on the ground floor of the University of Missouri–Columbia Ellis Library, where the reference reading room; newspaper reading room; microfilm reading room; rare book collection; art gallery; manuscript reading room; oral history program; photograph and map collections; and various administrative, research and editorial offices are located. The society is open to the public Monday–Friday, 8 a.m.–4:30 p.m., and Saturday, 9 a.m.–4:30 p.m., except on legal holidays. The hours for the art gallery, which permanently exhibits works by George Caleb Bingham and Thomas Hart Benton and changing exhibits of works by other Missouri and Missouri-related artists, are 8:30 a.m.–4 p.m., Monday–Friday.

The Library and Its Use

Citizens, officials and students interested in Missouri history, biography and genealogy find in the society library unsurpassed reference collections. The library of books, pamphlets and official state publications total more than 460,000 items. There are also more than 500,000 manuscript items and 800 reels of microfilmed manuscripts, more than 150,000 state archival records, and more than 2,900 maps. For genealogical research, the society's microfilm file of United States census reports is one of the largest in the Midwest, with a total of 6,051 reels covering 48 states and the District of Columbia, with 1,595 reels of Missouri census from 1830 to 1880 and 1900 to 1930. A pictorial collection contains more than 100,000 photographs and sketches of historical subjects.

The society's Missouri newspaper collection is the most complete in existence. Extending from 1808 to the present, and containing more than 1,275 bound volumes and more than 41 million pages on 50,395 rolls of microfilm, it is one of the largest state newspaper collections in the nation. In addition, 301 current newspapers from every Missouri county arrive weekly. The history of any famous Missourian, Missouri community, or noted Missouri event can be traced and documented in the collection.

Specialized Book Collections

Over the years, the society has acquired a number of rare or specialized book collections that have given it added recognition as a research center. These collections include the Mahan Memorial Mark Twain Collection, the Eugene Field Collection, the J. Christian Bay Collection of Middle Western Americana, the Francis A. Sampson Collection, the Paul D. Higday Civil War Collection, and the Alice Irene Fitzgerald Collection of Missouri's Literary Heritage for Children. Collections of this type, beyond mere prestige, attract scholars and researchers and form the basis of any historical library.

Manuscript and Map Collections

The society has always placed emphasis on the acquisition of contemporary research materials, and its original manuscript collections contain diaries, journals, ledgers, minute books, census records, letters and official state papers. Where original documents of this nature have not been available to the library, microfilm copies have been obtained. Research materials of this type furnish most of the intimate day-to-day accounts of Missouri history and lend vitality to historical writing.

The map collection consists of rare and old maps of the state as well as modern ones. In the collection are maps relating to the growth and development of Missouri and its roads, railroads, rivers, counties and cities. In addition, the collection contains county atlases, general business gazetteers, statistical maps, official topographical maps and early state guidebooks.

Publications

The Missouri Historical Review, an award-winning quarterly, has served as the cornerstone of the society's publication program since 1906. A benefit of membership, the journal features scholarly articles on diverse topics in Missouri history, bibliographical information on local and state history topics, and book reviews and notes. An annual Missouri Historical Reveiew article award recognizes outstanding scholarship published in the journal. In addition to the journal, the society has published over 50 volumes of edited documents, narrative and pictorial history, catalogs, directories and indexes.

Missouri Times, a quarterly newsletter, informs members about society and Western Historical Manuscript Collection activities.

History Day in Missouri and Richard S. Brownlee Fund Grants

In conjunction with the Western Historical Manuscript Collection-Columbia, the society sponsors History Day in Missouri, the statewide component of National History Day, a competition for middle school and junior and senior high school students. More than 2,200 students participate annually in regional contests held throughout the state.

Through its annual Richard S. Brownlee Fund grants, the society provides individuals and organizations with monies to assist with publications or other projects furthering knowledge of Missouri history and its citizens.

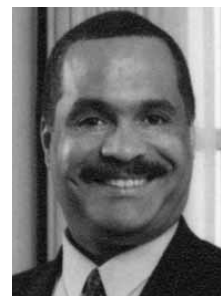
Lincoln University was founded in 1866 through the cooperative efforts of the enlisted men and officers of the 62nd and 65th U.S. Colored infantries. Lincoln University was designed to meet the educational and social needs of freed African-Americans. In 1890, Lincoln became a land-grant college which brought industrial and agricultural courses to the curriculum.

While remaining committed to its original purpose, the university, in September 1954, expanded its historical mission to embrace the needs of a significantly broader population reflecting varied social, economic, educational and cultural backgrounds. This is the unique purpose that Lincoln University fulfills in higher education.

The core mission of Lincoln University is to provide excellent educational opportunities for a diverse student population in the context of an open enrollment institution. The university provides student-centered learning in a nurturing environment, integrating teaching, research and service.



The campus is comprised of nearly 158 acres, not including the three university-owned farms for agricultural research: Busby Research Farm (273 acres), Carver Research Farm (172.7 acres), and Freeman Farm (199 acres).

Located prominently in the heart of campus is Inman E. Page Library, which opened in January 1997. The 80,000 square foot, state-of-the-art facility features the latest in computer technology, distance learning and world-wide informational networking. This facility is four times larger than the library it replaced and is often referred to as the "information mall." It has become the aesthetic centerpiece of Lincoln University's historic campus.

Lincoln University offers relevant, high-quality undergraduate degrees in more than 50 majors, and select graduate programs to include the Specialist Degree in Educational Leadership. In addition, there are divisions of Continuing Education and Adult Evening and Weekend Instruction. All of these programs are grounded in the liberal arts and sciences and are well-designed to meet the academic and professional needs of its student clientele.

Linn State Technical College, founded in 1961, is Missouri's only two-year public technical college with a statewide mission. Originating as Linn Technical Junior College, the college became a part of the public higher education system in Missouri with the passing of legislation by the 88th General Assembly.

The original educational institution was established with funding from the National Defense Education Act as a public postsecondary residential technical institution. The philosophy of the original institution was "to provide two-year vocational/technical programs to all students who wish to prepare themselves for employment."

From the very first class of students in 1961, the reputation of the college has continued to grow and become synonymous with quality technical education because it has been responsive to workplace needs. The college has a longstanding reputation for producing graduates with the valued technical and interpersonal skills needed for advancement in the workplace. With a state mandate and college mission to "prepare students for profitable employment and a life of learning," Linn State Technical College offers more than 21 technical programs as well as customized and contract training for Missouri business and industry.

Linn State Technical College offers two-year associate of applied science degrees as well as certificates. In each program, the curriculum includes an integration of theory with hands-on application and experience. Such integration ensures the development of functional troubleshooting skills with traditional and innovative techniques, approaches and equipment. Also emphasized are teamwork, interpersonal skills and work ethic. In addition, the general education core contributes to the high level of critical thinking and problem solving ability of graduates. As part of their education, many students participate in on-the-job experience through industrial internships.

Linn State Technical College monitors the economic, industrial and technological needs of the state as new programs are proposed for development. Programs recently developed include Nuclear Technology, Laser/Photonics Technology and the Light Duty Diesel option in the Automotive Technology program.

The college is dedicated to the development of the potential of each student. Class size is purposely kept small to encourage adequate individual attention and faculty-student interaction. The student body consists of traditional students who recently graduated from high school, as well as working adults making a career shift or enhancing technical skills.

The faculty have a combination of higher education credentials and real world experiences in their professional areas of expertise. In addition, they are continually updating their skills through college courses, industrial training and workshops.

Linn State Technical College is accredited by The Higher Learning Commission and is a member of the North Central Association. Other professional accreditations, certifications or affiliations at the program level include: Commission on Accreditation for Physical Therapy Education (CAPTE); National Automotive Technicians Education Foundation (NATEF)/National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence (ASE); Federal Aviation Administration (FAA); American Design

The primary campus is located along Highway 50 on 249 acres one mile east of Linn and includes a public airport. The Physical Therapist Assistant Program is offered from a hospital setting in Jefferson City. The Automation and Robotics Technology, Laser/Photonics Technology and Nuclear Technology programs are offered in Mexico, Missouri, at the Advanced Technology Center, a cooperative higher education technology center. In addition, customized and contract training is offered to Missouri business and industry.

Truman State University

www.truman.edu

Truman State University, founded in 1867, is a vibrant community of teachers and student scholars with the distinction of being Missouri's only statewide public liberal arts and sciences university and the only public university in the state with highly selective admission standards. Truman is a residential university focused on providing its 5,800 students with broad liberal arts experiences and depth of study in 45 undergraduate majors and six graduate programs.

For the eighth consecutive year, U.S. News and World Report has recognized Truman as the number one public university in the Midwest Region–Master's category. Truman also was ranked ninth overall in the Midwest region among both private and public institutions. Truman is the only public university in Missouri to be included in either ranking. Kiplinger's Personal Finance magazine's November 2003 issue listed Truman State University as ninth on its exclusive survey list of public colleges and universities that combine great academics with reasonable costs. The magazine also ranked Truman as the second best educational value in the nation for out-of-state students.

In addition to being highlighted by several news magazines, Truman has been featured in The Washington Post, The New York Times, USA Today, The Dallas Morning News, The Kansas City Star and The St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Truman State University has a long history of being recognized nationally by higher education experts for its innovative assessment program and its commitment to providing a high-quality liberal arts and sciences education at an affordable price. Truman's program of assessment allows the university to measure the results of the teaching-learning process and to gather critical information on student growth and development to ensure that graduates are prepared for future success.

Truman's curriculum provides each student, regardless of intended specialization, with a foundation of knowledge appropriate to a traditional liberal arts and sciences education. It also requires specialization in a major, providing each student with in-depth knowledge and mastery of a discipline. This exemplary undergraduate education provides graduates with the knowledge and skills necessary to be successful on graduation. More than 44 percent of Truman's graduates enter graduate and professional schools within six months of their graduation while 55 percent directly enter the workforce.

Truman's students are the brightest and the best in their high school graduating classes. For example, 77 percent of Truman's 2004 entering freshman class scored 25 or higher on the ACT examination with 37 percent scoring at the 95th percentile or higher. In addition, 71 percent ranked in the top 20 percent of their high school graduating class. In addition to their academic abilities, more than 99 percent of the class had leadership roles while in high school.

Truman emphasizes high-quality teaching as its top priority. Truman students benefit from a 15:1 student/faculty ratio, which allows for greater student-teacher interaction. Truman emphasizes undergraduate research with more than 1,000 students annually doing structured research with faculty both in and outside the classroom. A University-wide Student Research Conference is held each spring for students to showcase their research to the Truman community.

Truman has been accredited since 1914 by the Higher Learning Commission of the North Central Association. Truman is also fully reaccredited by AACSB International-The Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business, American Chemical Society, American Speech-

Truman State University is committed to the advancement of knowledge; freedom of thought and inquiry; and the personal, social, and intellectual growth of each of its students. Truman strives to maintain a recognized standard of excellence in all of its educational endeavors and be a responsible steward of the resources provided by the people of Missouri. All decision-making at the university is guided by its four core supporting values:

- A strong focus on students and student learning;
- Intellectual challenge in a nurturing and diverse environment;
- Affordability which promotes financial access to educational excellence; and

- A commitment to assessment for continuous improvement and accountability.

Central Missouri State University

Warrensburg 64093
Telephone: (660) 543-4111
www.cmsu.edu

Founded in 1871, Central Missouri State University has grown from a regional normal school dedicated to teacher preparation into a comprehensive university charged with meeting the higher education needs of all Missourians. The newest chapter in CMSU's development began October 10, 1996, when the Missouri Coordinating Board for Higher Education approved the university's statewide mission in professional applied sciences and technology.

The enhanced mission reflects an overall commitment to academic excellence and career preparation that has allowed CMSU to evolve into one of the outstanding public universities in the Midwest. It also means the latest technologies are being integrated throughout Central Missouri's comprehensive liberal arts curriculum. This is having a far-reaching impact on approximately 11,000 students from nearly all 50 states and over 60 foreign countries who attend CMSU and engage in 150 areas of study tailored to meet individual needs.

Beyond Missouri, CMSU offers onsite and online learning opportunities to students in other parts of the United States and the world. The university's international programs include exchange opportunities, internships and student-teaching programs that are all among the most challenging and affordable anywhere.

Degrees conferred by the university include the Associate in Science, Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Fine Arts, Bachelor of Music, Bachelor of Music Education, Bachelor of Science, Bachelor of Science in Business Administration, Bachelor of Science in Education and Bachelor of Science in Social Work. At the graduate level, CMSU offers excellent programs leading to Master of Arts, Master of Science, Master of Science in Education, Master of Business Administration and Education Specialist degrees. In addition, a cooperative doctoral program in educational leadership exists in conjunction with the University of Missouri, and a cooperative Ph.D. program in technology management is available in conjunction with Indiana State University. UM and ISU serve as the degree-granting institutions.

Administratively, the university's academic affairs division is divided into four core academic colleges, The Honors College and The Graduate School. The academic colleges are:

- The College of Applied Sciences and Technology, which prepares students for highly competitive careers in industry, government, health care and many more fields. Departments within the college include agriculture, graphics, power and transportation, manufacturing and construction, safety science and technology, military science and nursing. The college has achieved national recognition in safety, graphics, aviation and military science.
- The Adrian and Margaret Harmon College of Business Administration ranks among the finest business schools in Missouri and offers programs in accounting, marketing and legal studies, computer and office information systems, and economics and finance.
- The College of Education and Human Services, which prepares teachers for all grade levels in addition to professionals in such fields as criminal justice, psychology and counselor education, sociology and social work, physical education, consumer services management, communication disorders, and educational leadership and human development.
- The College of Arts and Sciences, which provides a comprehensive liberal arts foundation in support of the entire university curriculum. Departments include art, music, modern languages, English and philosophy, theatre, communication, chemistry and physics, biology and earth science, mathematics and computer science, history and anthropology, and political science and geography.

All course work at Central Missouri State University is fully accredited by the North Central Association's Higher Learning Commission. CMSU also is a state leader in program-specific accreditations, which have been granted by national organizations in actuarial science, art, aviation, business administration, chemistry, consumer services management, drafting technology, industrial hygiene, manufacturing and construction, music, nursing, social work, speech pathology and audiology and teacher education. All of the university's business administration degrees are accredited by the Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business-International (AACSB).

CMSU's main campus—with its instructional buildings, Elliott Union, 18 conveniently located residence halls, and modern family housing—is the center of university life. However, the complete physical plant comprises more than 1,300 acres, including the Prussing Farm, the 300-acre Pertle Springs recreational and biological research area, and Max B. Swisher Skyhaven Airport. State-of-the-art athletic facilities include the 8,500-seat Multipurpose Building, Audrey J. Walton Stadium at Vernon Kennedy Field, James R. Crane Stadium at Robert N. Tompkins Field, and the newly developed South Recreation/Athletic Complex.

Completed in 1999, the $30 million James C. Kirkpatrick Library is a state-of-the-art electronic library, containing nine miles of data cable with more than 1,440 Ethernet connections to the Internet. CMSU's library is a leader in developing two-way interactive television, information technologies and Internet training facilities, and in providing access to electronic information resources to the state's citizens.

At CMSU, students are valued members of the university family, and their successes—both in the classroom and in life—are the highest priority. An educational philosophy combining intellectual rigor and practical career preparation allows CMSU graduates to reap the full benefits of their university experiences. Central Missouri currently has a 93 percent job placement rate of graduates within six months of receiving their degrees.

Northwest Missouri State University

Maryville 64468-6001
www.nwmissouri.edu

Northwest Missouri State University is a coeducational, primarily residential, regional university offering a broad range of undergraduate and selected graduate programs. Since its founding in 1905 as a normal school, the university has shared educational responsibility for 19 counties in northwest Missouri. The university's programs place special emphasis on agriculture, business and teacher education, particularly as these professions contribute to the primary service region. All of the university's programs build upon comprehensive general education requirements.

The university places importance on developing each student's self-understanding, encouraging creative self-expression and stimulating continuing intellectual curiosity. Opportunities are provided for students to develop an appreciation for the creative accomplishments of the human race as reflected in the arts, humanities and sciences. Throughout the university, students are taught to gather, organize, analyze and synthesize information; think coherently; use computers and current technology; and speak and write clearly. Integration of the above attitudes, experience and skills into all aspects of the vocational, technological, pre-professional, professional and graduate curricula is considered essential for developing a flexible, self-renewing learner who will function effectively in a global society.

Accepting the responsibility to be a creator as well as a curator and communicator of ideas, the university promotes applied research that relates directly to the needs of its region, improves the teaching and learning process and advances understanding in the subject matter areas of the institution. The university encourages the continuous professional development of its faculty and staff and ensures freedom to examine ideas and express conclusions without interference. Academic freedom is limited only by the equally important obligations of academic responsibility.

Recognizing its obligation to enhance the quality of life for its citizens of Missouri, the university is a center for regional development, lifelong learning, research, the arts and recreation. Northwest is also a center for improving and expanding opportunities for access to learning through cooperative efforts with other agencies and institutions.

Northwest's student-centered Culture of Quality continually develops all individuals in the university community by accommodating and celebrating diverse learners and ways of learning and by practicing quality in all activities. In recognition of that, Northwest received the Missouri Quality Award in 1997 and 2001, the first educational institution in the state to win the award twice. The university has a deep sense of commitment to students and stakeholders, which provides the foundation by which the university operates.

Since 1997, Northwest has placed a personal desktop computer in each residence hall room on campus. This program allows students to access the World Wide Web; utilize such software programs as Windows Office, Access, Excel, and PowerPoint; and use a built-in CD-ROM. This electronic campus program greatly enhances learning opportunities through connection with a wide variety of databases as well as providing each student with the opportunity for computer literacy.

Northwest is also a leader in the development of the Northwest Missouri Educational Consortium, which promotes cooperation and links resources among educational institutions servicing the citizens of northwest Missouri. It is Northwest's goal to meet the educational needs of all the citizens and organizations of the region. Joining Northwest to form the consortium are the University of Missouri (including Extension), Missouri Western State University, North Central Missouri College, Grand River Technical School, North Central Area Vocational Technical School, Northwest Technical School and the Brookfield Area Career Center. The three Small Business Development centers in the region (Maryville, St. Joseph and Chillicothe) also participate.

The consortium serves 22 counties in the northwest quadrant of the state. These counties include the 19 counties constituting Northwest's historic service region plus three counties served by North Central Missouri College that do not overlap with Northwest's region.

The Missouri Academy of Science, Mathematics and Computing was founded at Northwest in 2000. The rigorous program is an accelerated, two-year residential program for high school students academically talented in science, mathematics or technology. Students are challenged by college coursework tailored to individual abilities and taught by Northwest faculty. Students who complete the program earn an associate of science degree.

Southeast Missouri State University

Cape Girardeau 63701
Telephone: (573) 651-2000 / FAX: (573) 651-5061
www.semo.edu

Southeast Missouri State University, serving more than 9,600 students each year, is located in Cape Girardeau, a community of more than 40,000 residents on the west bank of the Mississippi River.

The university benefits from a rich exchange of community, regional and university ideas. Because experiential learning—internships, student teaching, discipline-specific practice and research—is the hallmark of the institution, the community and the region offer extensive partnerships to create opportunities for students to combine classroom theory with practical experience in the "real world." Nearly 100 percent of the academic programs at Southeast offer an opportunity for experiential or "real world" learning.

For example, education majors test their abilities in area schools; communication majors work in the industries of radio, television, newspapers, advertising or public relations; biology students intern with cutting-edge life science laboratories in St. Louis; and criminal justice students learn alongside local and regional law enforcement professionals. In fact, at Southeast, the region is viewed as a laboratory no university alone could afford to build.

The career advantage given to Southeast graduates by this effective combination of traditional classroom theory and practical experience gives rise to the University's slogan, "Experience Southeast … Experience Success."

Recently, Southeast was named among a select few institutions nationwide listed as a "hidden treasure" by the Kaplan National Guidance Counselor Survey; and its Donald L. Harrison College of Business was listed in a 2004 Princeton Review book as one of the nation's "143 Best Business Schools."

Founded in 1873, Southeast serves the residents of a 25-county area from St. Louis to the Arkansas state line—a territory that is larger than the areas of nine states and contains more people than 17 of the states. The university has awarded degrees to more than 60,000 graduates and has enhanced the lives of thousands more former students.

The current enrollment includes more than 8,400 undergraduates and some 1,200 graduate students. Enrollment at Southeast has been on the rise over the past ten years, making Southeast one of the fastest growing universities in Missouri. A new residence hall was opened recently, housing some 300 students and featuring suite-style living with high-speed internet access in every room.

Southeast is an ideal size for students seeking a mid-sized, friendly place to learn, experience and succeed at both academic pursuits and extracurricular opportunities. With 400 full-time faculty, 90 percent holding doctoral or terminal degrees in their disciplines, the university is large enough to provide more than 150 academic areas of study. And with a student to faculty ratio of 17:1, the university is small enough for students to get to know each other and for students and faculty to interact on a personal basis. It is in this environment that the university believes the best learning takes place.

Southeast also has a diverse student population. Students attend Southeast from throughout southeast Missouri, southern and western Illinois and the St. Louis metropolitan area. Minorities account for almost 10 percent of the student population. In addition, students from 45 countries and all 50 states add to the unique Southeast experience.

Five colleges and three schools: As a comprehensive university—one which offers a variety of professional and educational programs—Southeast gives students a wide array of career choices.

These academic programs have been organized within the structure of five colleges and three schools. These include the Donald L. Harrison College of Business; the Colleges of Education, Health and Human Services, Liberal Arts, and Science and Mathematics; the School of Polytechnic Studies; the School of University Studies, which governs the general education courses required of all students; and the School of Graduate Studies, which oversees postgraduate degree programs at the master, specialist and doctoral levels. A fourth school— the School of Visual and Performing Arts—is under development. Its units are currently part of the College of Liberal Arts.

Programs in demand: Southeast's program in teacher education is nationally recognized and accredited. The innovative teacher training begins during a student's first year at the university, with field opportunities that require students to experience a variety of teaching settings. The senior year culminates with a full semester of student teaching.

Southeast's leadership in its education program has resulted in its acceptance into the prestigious Renaissance Group of institutions with exemplary programs in education and membership in the Coalition of Universities and Businesses for Education (CUBE). Southeast also is a two-time winner of the Christa McAuliffe Showcase for Excellence Award in teacher education, which is presented by the American Association of State Colleges and Universities.

Some of the other popular academic areas at Southeast are pre-med, business, science (biological, physical and environmental), criminal justice, computer science, music, art, theatre and dance, social work and pre-engineering. The university's Department of Communication has received accreditation for five programs—journalism, advertising, public relations, radio and video production— from the Accrediting Council on Education in Journalism and Mass Communications. Unique programs such as historic preservation, sports management, athletic training and corporate video round out an array of choices that bring students from around the country to study and live on the Southeast campus.

Kent Library: To support student research and learning, Kent Library implemented MOBIUS, the shared, statewide computerized library system, expanding access to over 14 million titles. In addition, the library gives students access to 6,638 full-text periodicals online. Kent Library's Rare Book Room is home to the Louis Daniel Brodsky Faulkner Collection, which gives Southeast the distinction of having one of the world's four most significant collections of William Faulkner literary materials.

Outreach centers: Southeast operates four area higher education centers—in Malden, Sikeston, Kennett and Perryville—bringing educational opportunities to place-bound residents along a 120-mile-long corridor in eastern Missouri. The Harry L. Crisp Bootheel Education Center in Malden, established in 1987 as the pilot for today's set of four outreach centers, has been recognized as one of 20 model rural postsecondary programs in the U.S. and has received the Distinguished Program Award from the National Association for Continuing Higher Education. The university has received the Regional Innovator Award for Missouri from the Southern Growth Policies Board for its work in making higher education access available in the rural parts of its service area. Courses in these centers are taught by faculty from the university and a cooperating community college, both on site and via instructional television or the Internet. A Bachelor of General Studies degree is available to students without ever setting foot on the Southeast campus in Cape Girardeau, and other bachelor's degree completion opportunities in selected fields are available at Poplar Bluff, in St. Louis and other locations throughout the region, in cooperation with community colleges and the University of Missouri.

Accreditation and affiliations: The university is fully accredited by the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools and the National Council for the Accreditation of Teacher Education.

In addition, the university holds specific accreditations and/or approvals from: AACSB—The International Association for Management Education, American Chemical Society, American Park and Recreation Society, American Speech-Language-Hearing Association, Commission on Accreditation for Dietetics Education, Commission on Accreditation of Allied Health Education Programs (Athletic Training), Commission on Collegiate Nursing Education, Council for Accreditation of Counseling and Related Education Programs, Council on Social Work Education, Engineering Accreditation Commission of the Accreditation Board for Engineering and Technology, National Association for the Education of Young Children, National Association of Industrial Technology, National Association of Schools and Colleges of Music, National League for Nursing and the National Recreation and Park Association/American Association for Leisure and Recreation.

Athletics: Southeast participates in NCAA Division I athletics as a member of the Ohio Valley Conference. Men's sports include baseball, basketball, cross country, football and indoor and outdoor track. Women's sports include basketball, cross country, gymnastics, soccer, softball, tennis, indoor and outdoor track and volleyball.

University Foundation: Gifts from friends of the university and alumni enable the institution to supplement taxpayers' dollars for the benefit of students. Funds raised by the Southeast Missouri University Foundation since its creation in 1983 have been used strategically to provide a margin of excellence, for scholarships, and to bring national attention to Southeast. For instance, the new Otto and Della Seabaugh Building which houses the School of Polytechnic Studies was completed in 2001. This building was made possible by the gifts of the Seabaughs and assisted the School of Polytechnic Studies in being recognized as a Missouri Center for Excellence in Advanced Manufacturing Technology.

Donors have raised over $11 million to make possible the River Campus, a cooperative project with the state of Missouri, the city of Cape Girardeau, and the federal government. The River Campus facilities, which will house the School of Visual and Performing Arts, are under construction on the 16.6-acre St. Vincent's College and Seminary property adjacent to the new Bill Emerson Memorial Bridge. The new and renovated buildings will include a 1,000-seat performance hall, a recital hall, a regional museum, rehearsal rooms, theatres, dance and art studios and related facilities.

Admission: Southeast Missouri State University is a moderately selective university. As defined by the Missouri Coordinating Board for Higher Education, this means that students who have taken the required college preparatory curriculum in high school and who have met certain testing guidelines are eligible for admission to the University.

Call the Admissions Office at (573) 651-2590; e-mail to admissions@semo.edu, or visit the university's web site at www.semo.edu.

Missouri State University (formerly Southwest Missouri State University) is a multi-campus metropolitan university system with a statewide mission in public affairs whose purpose is to develop educated persons while focusing on five themes: professional education; health; business and economic development; creative arts; and science and the environment. Missouri State campuses are structured to address the special needs of the urban and rural populations they serve. Missouri State–Springfield is a selective admissions, master's level teaching and research institution. Missouri State–West Plains is an open admissions campus serving seven counties in south central Missouri. Missouri State–Mountain Grove serves Missouri's fruit industry through operation of the State Fruit Experiment Station. The Missouri State–Extended Campus provides anytime, any-place learning opportunities through telecourses, Internet-based instruction and through its interactive video network (BearNet) and subnetworks (GrizzNet and VineNet). In addition, the university operates several special campuses to meet the needs of Missourians and Missouri State students, including a branch campus at Liaoning Normal University in Dalian, China. The university also operates the Bull Shoals Field Station near Forsyth, Baker's Acres and Observatory near Marshfield, the Missouri State Graduate Center in Joplin, and the William H. Darr Agricultural Center in southwest Springfield.

Missouri State is the second largest university in the state. It is located in the state's third largest city with a metropolitan service area of approximately 385,000. Its student body is geographically diverse, with students from all of the 114 counties in Missouri, and from 49 states and 80 foreign countries. Since 1986, more than 250 National Merit Finalists have enrolled at Missouri State. The university currently has nearly 450 valedictorians and salutatorians in its student body.

In a campus ceremony on March 17, 2005, the 100th anniversary of Founders' Day, Governor Matt Blunt signed Senate Bill 98, which included changing Southwest Missouri State University's name to Missouri State University. This is the fifth and final name for the university. The institution was founded as the Normal School in 1905, then changed to Southwest Missouri State Teachers College in 1919, Southwest Missouri State College in 1946, and Southwest Missouri State University in 1972. Each new name has reflected the changed nature of the institution.

Public Affairs: Missouri State is distinguished by its statewide mission in public affairs, a campus-wide commitment to foster competence and responsibility in the common vocation of citizenship. Integrated throughout the student experience, the public affairs mission seeks to develop citizens of enhanced character, more sensitive to the needs of community, more competent and committed in their ability to contribute to society, and more civil in their habits of thought, speech and action.

Public affairs are manifested across campus in a number of forms. A Citizenship and Service-Learning program allows students to engage in community service and apply academic knowledge to solve real-life problems while earning academic credit. A junior-level Capstone Course immerses students in current public affairs issues, encouraging them to view the public implications of their chosen discipline. The Campus Volunteer Center matches students, faculty and staff with community volunteer opportunities.

Missouri State is the host campus for the Missouri Campus Compact, a statewide coalition of university and college presidents dedicated "to helping students develop the values and skills of civic participation through involvement in public service." Missouri Campus Compact currently has 30 members, with representatives from each of the categories of four-year public, four-year private, and two-year colleges and universities.

A series of speakers have come to campus to address citizenship and other public affairs issues. The speakers have included three Nobel Peace Prize winners, F.W. de Klerk, Elie Wiesel and Jody Williams. Other speakers include former U.S. Senator Bill Bradley, 1997 Inaugural Poet Miller Williams, and senior editor of The Wall Street Journal Joseph N. Boyce.

In addition, Missouri State hosts a Public Affairs Conference, which brings a variety of noteworthy speakers from around the country to the Springfield campus. During the conference, panels and keynote speakers present discussions that offer perspectives from business, entertainment, education, politics, religion, health and other subject areas.

These and other efforts paved the way for the university to be chosen as one of the nation's best colleges fostering social responsibility and public service, according to The Princeton Review and Campus Compact. Missouri State is one of only 81 institutions in 33 states that The Princeton Review commended and featured in its book, Colleges with a Conscience: 81 Great Schools with Outstanding Community Involvement. Missouri State is the only Missouri university to earn a profile in the book.

History: Missouri State University was founded as the Missouri State Normal School, Fourth District, by legislative action on March 17, 1905. Missouri State first opened its doors in June 1906. After 100 years and four name changes, Missouri State is a comprehensive state university system offering a wide variety of programs and services to its students and the citizens of the state.

During the 1995 session of the Missouri General Assembly, Missouri State received a statewide mission in public affairs, making it the only Missouri university emphasizing the development of aware, committed and active participants in to-morrow's society.

Facilities: Missouri State University's main campus is located on 225 acres in the heart of Springfield. The 125-acre William H. Darr Agricultural Center exists in the southwest area of the city. Missouri State's main campus has 18 classroom buildings, an administrative building, a library, 11 residence halls, a multipurpose recreational facility, a sports complex, a health center and a campus-wide transit facility. The Juanita K. Hammons Hall for the Performing Arts hosts a variety of musical, dance and theatrical presentations.

Enrollment: In the fall of 2004, Missouri State's enrollment was 20,846 with 19,330 students on the Springfield Campus and 1,651 on the West Plains Campus. The percentage of graduate students on the Springfield campus has more than doubled since 1992, rising from 8.3 percent to 16.6 percent.

Academic programs: Missouri State's Springfield Campus offers more than 140 degree programs and options within 44 academic departments. The university is accredited by the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools as well as by 23 professional associations, including the National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education (NCATE), National Association of Schools of Music, National Association of Schools for Public Affairs and Administration, the National Collegiate Athletic Association, the American Chemical Society, the Council on Social Work Education, and the American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business. The university's academic programs are organized within nine colleges: Arts and Letters, Business Administration, Education, Health and Human Services, Humanities and Public Affairs, Natural and Applied Sciences, Continuing Education and the Extended University, Graduate College and the University College.

The university has a wide variety of international education programs available to students including programs in London, Costa Rica, Chile, Brazil, India and China; and has established a branch campus at Liaoning Normal University in Dalian, China. Missouri State also is a member of the International Student Exchange Consortium, which provides for reciprocal exchanges to programs in more than 30 countries. In addition, Missouri State's College of Continuing Education and the Extended University offers a wide variety of programs, both credit and non-credit, for adult students who are returning to college. Numerous courses tailored to meet the needs of area employers are offered, as well. Missouri State has the largest cooperative program in the state, with more than 1,200 students participating in internships in the public and private sectors.

Academic excellence: The average ACT score of entering freshmen remains above both the state and national averages. The average ACT score for first-time freshmen was 23.6 in fall 2004 compared to 21.7 in fall 1995. With the planned full implementation of selective admission standards over the next several years, the academic profile of entering freshmen will continue to improve.

Further evidence of academic excellence at Missouri State has been the recognition that student teams have received in regional and national student competitions in a number of areas, including debate, advertising and media, journalism and film. The Honors College at Missouri State offers extraordinary opportunities for outstanding students.

Faculty and staff: On the Springfield Campus, Missouri State has a total of 726 full-time instructional faculty and 270 part-time faculty. The student to faculty ratio is approximately 18:1.

Research: The principal focus of the university is applied research geared to serving the needs of diverse constituencies in the public and private sectors Faculty are encouraged to pursue their individual and scholarly activities. The university also engages in cooperative research projects coordinated through a variety of research centers. Among these are the Center for Social Sciences and Public Policy Research, which conducts surveys and polls on a variety of issues aimed at meeting community and state concerns; the Center for Resource Planning and Management, which conducts research throughout southwest Missouri focusing on local government planning and health needs; and the Center for Archaeological Research, which conducts studies to discover and identify the artifacts of early civilizations.

Missouri State's Jordan Valley Innovation Center focuses on applied research in biomaterials, nano-technologies, advanced technologies, advanced manufacturing, genomics/proteomics, bio-systems software engineering and bio-medical instrument development. Missouri State is a member of Research Alliance of Missouri (RAM), a statewide coalition of universities and other higher education institutions conducting research in Missouri.

Library: The Missouri State library system is comprised of the Duane G. Meyer Library, the Music Library, the Greenwood Laboratory School Library and the Paul G. Evans Library of Fruit Science on the Mountain Grove Campus. These four libraries have collections of over three million items including more than 835,000 accessioned volumes, full-text access to over 11,000 periodicals and newspapers in either paper or electronic format and extensive back files of journals and newspapers, many on microfilm, microcard and microfiche. The libraries provide online access to over 100 databases.

More than 925,000 state, federal and United Nations documents are held as a result of Meyer Library being a designated depository library for each of those areas. Meyer Library is the only U.N. depository library in the state of Missouri.

Meyer Library's special collections and archives department includes the internationally recognized William J. Jones French Literature Collection, the Lena Wills Genealogical Collection, the University Archives, the Southwest Missouri Collection, the Katherine G. Leaderer Collection of African-American History of the Ozarks and the Ozarks Labor Union Archives for which the library was awarded the John Session Memorial Award by the Reference and User Services Association.

Students at Missouri State have access to a wide variety of materials by using the latest technology. There are now more than 75 public computer workstations in the library. The libraries' web pages link to the online catalog, which contains information on most holdings including more than 259,000 records for government documents. Electronic access also is provided to reference resources, course reserve materials, and licensed commercial citations and full-text databases. Currently, more than 100 electronic databases are available to the Missouri State community. In addition to citations from thousands of journals, newspapers and books, these databases contain articles from more than 11,000 journals and newspapers in full text. Remote access to licensed databases is available to members of the university community. Missouri State libraries also maintain an extensive index of authoritative web-based reference resources, organized by broad subject categories, which include full-text, analytical, indexing and other resources.

Identification of and requests for materials not held in the libraries are enabled electronically. OCLC is utilized for interlibrary loans and reference, with links to more than 50,000 libraries in 84 countries. The statewide MOBIUS system is simplifying access to holdings from over 50 academic libraries in the state. In addition, the Electronic Interlibrary Loan (E-ILL) provides online access to interlibrary loan articles. Through OCLC, Meyer Library is connected with more than 50,000 libraries internationally and through them, almost any article can be obtained. Meyer Library also maintains a computer lab for Missouri State faculty, staff and students. A variety of software is provided and the capacity exists to scan and make laser prints.

teach students. Research carrels are available and are assigned to graduate students working on theses. Group study rooms, an electronic classroom, a new books area, a coffee shop and lounge make the Meyer Library an exciting gathering place. A central feature of the library is the Jane H. Meyer Carillon with its complement of 48 bronze bells.

Campus Technology: Missouri State University offers faculty, staff and students free use of its computing services and facilities for class assignments and research. The computing environment includes two IBM iSeries mid-range servers for administrative functions, a wide variety of file servers running the most current versions of Microsoft Windows® and a multitude of networked client computers. The campus networks provide high-speed, reliable services to client computers and file server systems in academic, administrative and housing facilities at all Missouri State locations including Springfield, West Plains, Mountain Grove, Lebanon and Branson. Network access in the residence halls allows students to utilize the online resources of Meyer Library, various campus computing services and the Internet from their rooms. High-speed Internet, wireless and virtual private network services are all supported, while dial-up access to campus computing resources is provided for those needing free local access. Four centrally managed computer labs located in Glass Hall, Cheek Hall, Strong Hall and the Meyer Library, plus dozens of discipline-specific computer classrooms and labs, offer substantial access and support for campus computing resources.

Missouri State University–West Plains

(Formerly Southwest Missouri State University–West Plains)

West Plains 65775
Telephone: (417) 255-7255
www.wp.missouristate.edu

Missouri State University–West Plains is one of three campuses within the Missouri State University System. The West Plains Campus is a teaching institution of higher education offering two-year associate of arts, associate of science and associate of applied science degrees, certificates and other courses as needed by employers and citizens of the area served. The college provides a liberal arts transfer curriculum at the freshman and sophomore levels, selected occupational programs and a variety of continuing education courses.

History and setting: Missouri State–West Plains was founded in 1963 as the West Plains Residence Center. In 1977, the Southwest Missouri State University Board of Regents and, subsequently, the Missouri General Assembly, designated the name West Plains Campus of Southwest Missouri State University to replace Residence Center. In 1981, the legislature enacted a permanent status bill for the campus. In 1991, the legislature passed House Bill 51 which gave the West Plains Campus the authority to offer "one-year certificates, two-year associate degrees and credit and non-credit courses." In 2005, the legislature passed Senate Bill 98 which included changing Southwest Missouri State University's name to Missouri State University.

Facilities: The campus consists of four classroom and administrative buildings—Kellett Hall, Looney Hall, Melton Hall, and the Lybyer Technology Center. In addition to the classroom and administrative buildings, the campus includes the Garnett Library, a 60-person residence hall called the Grizzly House, the Putnam Student Center, and the V.H. Drago College Store. Maintenance and custodial operations are located in the Broadway Building, and the Richards House serves as the residence for the Missouri State-West Plains Chancellor.

Enrollment: The fall 2004 maximum headcount enrollment was 1,651 students. The majority of students come from a seven-county area of the south-central Missouri Ozarks region and from adjacent areas in north Arkansas.

Academic Programs: The college offers an associate of arts (A.A.) degree in general studies and an associate of science degree (A.S.) in nursing. Missouri State–West Plains also offers associate of applied science degrees (A.A.S.) in business, child development, computer technology, enology, entrepeneurship, general agriculture, general technology, industrial technology, law enforcement and viticulture. Community-oriented continuing education courses also are offered at the West Plains campus, as well as selected intersession and upper-level courses offered through the university departments and the continuing education office.

Missouri State–West Plains also offers courses at extended campuses in Houston and Mountain Grove, Missouri. The associate of arts degree in general studies can be completed at the Mountain Grove Campus. The program at Mountain Grove is housed in Shannon Hall, and the program at Houston is housed in the Houston Higher Education Center.

As part of an educational cooperation project between Liaoning Normal University and the Missouri State System, Missouri State–West Plains offers the associate of arts degree in general studies at the Missouri State University–Liaoning Normal University Branch Campus in Dalian, People's Republic of China.

The college is accredited by the Higher Learning Commission and is a member of the North Central Association.

The nursing program has full accreditation from the National League for Nursing. Missouri State–West Plains is a member of the American Association of Community Colleges and the Missouri Community College Association.

Missouri State University–Mountain Grove Campus

(Formerly Southwest Missouri State University–Mountain Grove)

Mountain Grove 65711
Telephone: (417) 926-4105
www.mtngrv.missouristate.edu

Missouri State University–Mountain Grove has a legislative mandate to generate knowledge through research and to disseminate this knowledge for the economic development of the Missouri fruit industry.

History: The Mountain Grove Campus is home to the State Fruit Experiment Station which was established by a legislative act in 1899 and is the oldest identifiable segment of Missouri State. Until 1974, the station was operated as a state agency under a board of trustees appointed by the governor. As a result of the Omnibus State Reorganization Act of 1974, administrative responsibility for the State Fruit Experiment Station was given to the Board of Governors of Missouri State. Following university reorganization in 1994, the station was assigned to the Department of Fruit Science in the College of Natural and Applied Sciences.

Staff: The staff includes the director and seven research faculty trained at the doctoral level, and three professional staff trained at the master's level. In addition to carrying out research and advisory programs, the faculty teach and guide graduate students in their thesis research for the Master of Science degree and provide courses for undergraduate students interested in fruit science.

Facilities: The State Fruit Experiment Station is located on the 190-acre Research Campus on the outskirts of Mountain Grove, 65 miles east of Springfield. Constructed on the campus are the following buildings: Shepard Hall, which houses laboratory facilities and offices and the Paul Evans Library of Fruit Science; Faurot Hall, which underwent a $1.1 million renovation in 1998 and now houses the Evans Library, classrooms, a plant science laboratory and offices; a fruit processing laboratory; a classroom building; two greenhouses; a United States Weather Bureau substation; equipment storage buildings; a shop; and several miscellaneous buildings. About 180-acres are designated for fruit research plantings.

Research: Research is conducted in pomology, enology, viticulture, plant pathology, entomology, molecular genetics and plant physiology. The fruit crops under investigation include apples, grapes, blueberries, peaches, strawberries, blackberries and raspberries, as well as species of lesser economic importance. Information derived from the station's research is disseminated through advisory programs to fruit growers and processors throughout Missouri through bulletins, newsletters, a newspaper column, conferences, workshops and personal consultation.

The station is the site of extensive testing of new fruit varieties and selections from throughout the world for their adaptability to Missouri soil and climate and their resistance to diseases. Research on the culture of fruit crops is conducted on nutrient and water requirements, pruning and training systems, growth regulators and rootstocks. Plant pathogens and insect pests are studied for clues which may help in reducing their damage to fruit crops. Research on the reduction of pesticides used for control of diseases, insects and weeds is a major effort.

Located in a natural grape environment, the station has been the site of extensive grape experimentation since 1900, including some of the first experiments in the United States on grafting rootstocks on American grapes. Today, special emphasis is given to research on the hybrid grape varieties and their wines. One of only three USDA quarantine facilities for the introduction and virus testing of grapes from outside the United States is located at the station. The station's research and advisory programs have been instrumental in the revival of the state's grape and wine industry. Research and services provided at Missouri State–Mountain Grove for mid-America is on a par with Cornell (East) and the University of California-Davis (West).

Mid-America Viticulture and Enology Center: In addition to the State Fruit Experiment Station, Missouri State–Mountain Grove houses the Mid-America Viticulture and Enology Center, a premier provider of grape and wine research. Activities include research concerning new and more disease-resistant grape varieties and training for the workforce the expanding grape and wine industry needs. MVEC is also working to develop innovative vinification techniques and value-added products such as fruit brandies and specialty wines.

Harris–Stowe State University traces its origin back to 1857 when its first predecessor institution was founded by the St. Louis Board of Education as a normal school for the preparation of white elementary school teachers. It thus became the first public teacher education institution west of the Mississippi River and the 12th such institution in the United States. Its second predecessor institution was also a normal school founded by the same public schools in 1890 to prepare African-American elementary school teachers. Both normal schools later became four-year teachers colleges—Harris Teachers College and Stowe Teachers College. The former was named after William Torrey Harris, U.S. Commissioner of Education and former Superintendent of the St. Louis Public Schools. The latter was named after Harriet Beecher Stowe, the famed slavery abolitionist and author of Uncle Tom's Cabin. These two colleges merged in 1954, forming Harris–Stowe College. Later, in 1979, the college became a State of Missouri public college, with the name, Harris–Stowe State College.

In the early 1990s the university elected to become a "moderately selective" institution in its admission requirements and soon afterward won state approval to expand its institutional mission.

Currently, the university offers baccalaureate degree programs in 12 applied professional disciplines in the fields of accounting, business administration, criminal justice, early childhood education, elementary education, health care management, hospitality/tourism management, information sciences and computer technology, middle school education, professional interdisciplinary studies, secondary education and urban specializations at all pre-higher education levels.

Through a generous land grant from the City of St. Louis, the university's campus has tripled in size, and through many major contributions from the State of Missouri, the corporate community, university alumni, and many friends of the institution, Harris–Stowe is currently adding six new buildings to its expanded campus and making other major capital improvements—thereby establishing, for the first time in its long history of nearly a century and a half, a full campus including a student residence and student center, a quadrangle, a pedestrian mall, athletic fields and an imposing campus entryway arch. In addition, the university has acquired a small campus in south St. Louis. The State of Missouri, through recent legislation, has made the college a university. The watchword of this growing university is "Excellence In All Endeavors, Through Teamwork!"

www.mssu.edu

Missouri Southern State University was established by the General Assembly in 1965 as a two-year, upper-division state college to be operated in conjunction with the Junior College District of Jasper County. Missouri Southern operated under this arrangement through June 30, 1977, when the state assumed the responsibility of funding and operating the four-year program.

MSSC became Missouri Southern State University after Governor Bob Holden signed Senate Bill 55, on July 12, 2003. The legislation also allowed MSSU to enter into cooperative agreements with other state universities to provide graduate programs.

In June, 1990, MSSU's board of regents approved a change in the university mission to include an international emphasis in undergraduate education. This change is intended to help students prepare for the merging global environment. In 1995, the governor approved House Bill 442 directing the university to "develop such academic support programs and public service activities it deems necessary and appropriate to establish international or global education as a distinctive theme of its mission." An assessment of outcomes program is in effect to evaluate the effectiveness of that education.

Through the university's Institute of International Studies and other areas, international programs are being implemented to fulfill the mission, such as student and faculty study abroad and exchange options, international lectures, themed semesters and symposia and internships abroad. Faculty are developing a global perspective throughout the curriculum. Foreign language offerings are being expanded, and students are encouraged to become proficient in a second language.

The following degrees are offered: bachelor of arts, bachelor of science, bachelor of science in business administration, bachelor of science in education, bachelor of general studies, associate of arts and associate of science. The university offers bachelor's degrees in 42 major areas in liberal arts, teacher education, business and technology. In addition to the four-year programs, the curriculum offers premedical, preengineering and other preprofessional programs and two-year associate degrees in dental hygiene, computer science, law enforcement, radiological technology, computer aided drafting and design, computer assisted manufacturing technology and respiratory therapy.

The university is organized into four schools: Arts and Sciences, Education, Business Administration and Technology. The university mission statement stresses a liberal arts-based core curriculum which is designed to provide every graduate with knowledge in the basic areas of learning. Under a revised and moderately selective admission policy, the university encourages high school students to be better prepared for college study by following the core curriculum requirements outlined by the Missouri Coordinating Board for Higher Education.

The administration of the university is vested in a eight-member board of governors appointed by the governor with Senate consent.

The 365-acre university campus is located in Joplin, a southwest Missouri city with a population of 45,505. The university plant presently consists of 28 major buildings, including a performing arts center, an artificial turf stadium, a 3,200-seat athletic center with a 200-meter indoor track, and an expanded and remodeled library.

The university is accredited by The Higher Learning Commission and is a member of the North Central Association, the National Council for the Accreditation of Teacher Education, Missouri State Board of Nursing, Missouri State Department of Elementary and Secondary Education, American Dental Association Commission on Dental Accreditation, National League of Nursing Accrediting Commission, National Accrediting Agency for Clinical Laboratory Science, National Environmental Health Science and Protection Accreditation Council, Joint Review Committee on Education in Radiologic Technology, Committee on Accreditation for Respiratory Care, Association of Collegiate Business Schools and Programs, Accreditation Board for Engineering and Technology, and Police Officers Standards and Training.

The college provides a blend of traditional liberal arts and career-oriented degree programs, offering one-year certificates, two-year associate degrees, preprofessional transfer programs and four-year baccalaureate degrees.

Western's College of Professional Studies and College of Liberal Arts and Sciences offer baccalaureate degrees in the fields of art, biology, business, chemistry, communication, computer science, criminal justice, economics, education, engineering technology, English, French, government, history, interdisciplinary studies, mathematics, music, nursing, physical education, psychology, recreation, social work and Spanish.

The Western Institute offers applied learning, applied research and lifelong learning for the region. In addition, groups throughout the nation utilize Western's facilities for conferences and seminars.

The institution is accredited by the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools Commission on Institutions of Higher Education. Program accreditations include the Accreditation Board for Engineering and Technology, American Bar Association, American Chemical Society, American Health Information Management Association, Commission on Accreditation in Physical Therapy Education, Commission on Collegiate Nursing Education, Council on Social Work Education, National Accrediting Agency for Clinical Laboratory Science, National Association of Schools of Music and National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education.

The campus, comprising more than 700 acres, contains six residence halls and 12 major campus buildings, including eight academic buildings, a student union, a fitness center, a conference center and a learning resource center. The campus has a large nature study area, a nature trail and nine ponds.

Director, Resource Administration

The Department of Insurance regulates the insurance industry in Missouri and provides consumer protection to the insurance-buying public without federal regulation. The department is the only government agency regulating the $23 billion insurance industry in this state.

There are four divisions and the director's office within the Department of Insurance: Financial Regulation, Market Regulation, Consumer Affairs and Resource Administration.

The director's office includes the department director, deputy director, legal staff, public information staff, legislative coordinator and support staff. The director's office is responsible for policy decisions, regulation, legislation and communications. The director's office also includes legal and receivership activities. The department's Legal Section provides counsel to the director's office and each division and section and represents the department directly in circuit court and before the Administrative Hearing Commission. When a judge orders a company into receivership, the director is responsible for either rehabilitating the company or liquidating it.

The Division of Consumer Affairs assists the general public in resolving complaints, providing information to consumers regarding insurance policies and investigating alleged acts of insurance fraud. The division has two sections: Consumer Services and Investigations. The Consumer Services Section fields inquiries from the insurance-buying public and provides general information regarding insurance companies operating in the state of Missouri. In 2004, the division responded to more than 4,800 complaints and opened 484 investigations, recovering more than $13.76 million for consumers. The division operates a toll-free consumer hotline at 800-726-7390; the department also offers a toll-free workers' compensation rate hotline at 888-200-1697. Consumers can file a complaint or inquiry electronically through the department web site, which has a broad array of consumer and industry information available. The Investigations Section records complaints filed on behalf of consumers against insurance producers, bail bond agents and public adjusters. The staff also investigates unlicensed insurance activities and reviews license applications that are referred from the Licensing Unit. Department investigations may result in license revocations or suspensions, cease and desist orders, injunctions and referrals for criminal prosecutions.

The department receives a federal grant from the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services, which funds the CLAIM program in Missouri. The CLAIM (Community Leaders Assisting the Insured of Missouri) program provides counseling and educational activities to seniors on health insurance coverage and Medicare benefits. The department contracts with a not-for-profit organization to administer the CLAIM program. The program recruits sponsors and volunteers, develops and conducts volunteer training, publicizes the program and maintains a toll-free number (800-390-3330) for consumers to call. Volunteers are recruited locally and community organizations such as hospitals, community centers, extension offices or senior centers serve as cosponsors and provide space, supplies and local publicity for the program. The program currently has approximately 90 sponsors located throughout the state providing counseling.

The Division of Market Regulation protects the interests of Missouri's insurance buying consumers by ensuring companies are conducting business in compliance with applicable state statutes and regulations. The division includes four sections: the Market Conduct Examination, Life and Health, Property and Casualty, and Managed Care sections.

The Life and Health and Property and Casualty Sections approve policy forms that an insurer wants to sell in the state and reviews forms, endorsements, illustrations and some rate filings. In addition, the division oversees activities of Missouri HMOs and reviews company applications for new certificates of authority or service area changes and analyzes trends in HMO activities. The Market Conduct Section analyzes and publishes industry and market data as well as trends in the overall industry.

The division performs market conduct examinations of insurance companies operating in the state to ensure equitable treatment of policyholders. Market conduct examiners review insurers' operations, including marketing, claims handling, policies and rates. For some violations the insurance companies also are required to pay fines to the state school fund and/or restitution to the consumer, either through re-adjudication of claims or re-evaluation of the premium charged for the policy. In 2004, fines and recoveries totaled over $1 million.

The Division of Financial Regulation monitors the financial condition of all domestic (Missouri based) and foreign (non-Missouri based) insurance companies operating in Missouri. The division includes the Financial Analysis, Financial Examination, Premium Tax and Surplus Lines Sections. The Financial Analysis Section reviews financial statements received from insurance companies on quarterly and annual bases. This section is the first line of defense in identifying financially troubled companies so that further action may be taken to prevent insolvencies. The analysts recommend action on proposed business transactions by Missouri-domiciled companies and evaluate mergers and acquisitions, payments of dividends and other proposed transactions for financial and operational impact. The division conducts financial examinations of 230 domestic insurance companies on a three-year cycle and analyzes the financial condition of the 1,384 foreign companies licensed to sell insurance in Missouri. The department can call for an examination of a licensed insurer at any time. The Taxation Section audits and determines premium taxes, which insurance companies pay in lieu of income taxes. The Department of Insurance certifies to the Department of Revenue the tax due from each company. In 2004, the Premium Tax Section certified for collection $174 million in tax, which is deposited into general revenue and the state school fund. The Surplus Lines Section regulates the placement of policies and collection of premium taxes on business written in the non-admitted market known as surplus lines. The section oversaw the activities of 552 surplus lines brokers in 2004, and collected $23.3 million in taxes on surplus lines premiums, which is deposited into general revenue.

The Division of Resource Administration is responsible for the general operation and support within the department. The division includes the Licensing, Support Services, Personnel, and Information Systems Sections. The division prepares the department's annual budget request and strategic plan, monitors department revenues and expenditures, handles personnel and training for department employees, is responsible for the department's information technology infrastructure, and handles all accounting, procurement and grant management for the department. The division is also responsible for the licensing and renewals of all insurance producers, totaling over 100,000 operating within the state. Prior to granting each registration, an application review process is conducted to determine if applicants are sufficiently qualified to participate in the insurance business.

FRED HESSE
Audit Manager, Financial Examination

The department is funded through fees collected from insurance companies, agents and other licensees, rather than state general revenue.

The department's main office is located in Jefferson City at 301 East High Street.

The Missouri Department of Labor and Industrial Relations promotes economic security, safe and healthy workplaces as well as protects wage earners and individuals against discrimination by improving working conditions, enforcing labor and anti-discrimination laws and helping those unemployed, injured on the job and victims of crime.

The Omnibus State Reorganization Act of 1974 established the current Department of Labor and Industrial Relations. The department is responsible for administering programs that: (1) provide an income contribution for workers to offset the loss of a job because of injury; (2) provide an income contribution for workers to offset the loss of a job because of layoff; (3) determine the appropriate bargaining unit for public employees; (4) regulate wages for public works and construction projects; (5) promote safe working environments; (6) enforce Missouri's anti-discriminatory statutes and protect Missouri citizens in the areas of housing, employment and public accommodation; and (7) investigate allegations of workers' compensation fraud and noncompliance.

Agencies operating within the department are: Labor and Industrial Relations Commission, Division of Labor Standards, Division of Workers' Compensation, Division of Employment Security, the Missouri Commission on Human Rights, and Director and Staff Administration.

The Labor and Industrial Relations Commission is composed of three commissioners. Each commissioner is appointed a staggered six-year term by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate. One member of the commission, a licensed Missouri attorney who is qualified by reason of previous activities and interests, represents the public. Another member is designated as representing employers, while the remaining member represents employees. The governor designates one member as chair.

The commission appoints a secretary to keep full and true records of all commission proceedings and copies of all rules, regulations, decisions and orders made by the commission.

The commission hears appeals from decision and awards in workers' compensation, unemployment compensation, crime victims' compensation and tort victims' compensation cases, at the highest administrative level. In addition to these appellate duties, the commission hears and decides prevailing wage disputes.

Effective July 1, 2005, Governor Matt Blunt transferred by Executive Order the duties and responsibilities assigned to the State Board of Mediation to the Labor and Industrial Relations Commission. As a result, the commission has the responsibility of determining an appropriate bargaining unit of public employees, based on their community of interests. It also conducts secret ballot elections to determine majority status. The law provides that public bodies or their representatives shall meet, confer and discuss proposals relative to conditions of employment with the labor or employee organization, which is the exclusive bargaining representative. In addition, the commission is charged with the statutory authority to approve or disapprove all rules or regulations promulgated by the divisions within the department.

The Labor and Industrial Relations Commission nominates and the governor appoints, with the advice and consent of the Senate, a director to be chief executive officer of the department.

Director and Staff Administration

The Department of Labor and Industrial Relations provides administrative support services to each of its agencies. The major organizational entities under the director are: Administrative Services, Facilities and Maintenance, Information Systems, Research and Analysis, Human Resources and Financial Management.

Office of General Counsel

The Office of General Counsel, along with the Office of Attorney General, represents the agencies of the department. The legal staff prepares legal opinions; advises the director and other management staff; litigates all employment security tax and benefit cases including appeals; assists in the collection of delinquent unemployment contributions; represents the department in matters before the Personnel Advisory Board, the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission and the Missouri Commission on Human Rights; represents the Missouri Commission on Human Rights in housing discrimination cases; and reviews contracts and leases.

Employment Security

The Division of Employment Security was established to administer the Missouri Unemployment Compensation Law on July 1, 1946. With the enactment of the Federal Unemployment Insurance Tax Act provision under the Social Security Act of 1935, the Missouri General Assembly had created the Unemployment Compensation Commission on July 17, 1937. The division currently consists of five sections: Benefits, Contributions Field, Employer Contributions, Unemployment Insurance Programs and Appeals.

The division promotes employment security by providing for the payment of compensation to individuals in respect to their unemployment. The objective of the Division of Employment Security is to collect contributions from employers and pay unemployment benefits to individuals who are determined eligible under the law.

Costs for operating the division and the major part of its programs are paid from federal grants. The grants are derived from federal payroll taxes paid by employers and are made available by congressional appropriations. State unemployment contributions paid by Missouri employers are set aside for the sole purpose of providing for the payment of weekly unemployment benefits to qualified claimants.

Unemployment Insurance

Unemployment Insurance programs provide partial protection against loss of wages for workers who become unemployed through no fault of their own. The unemployment benefits paid to insured workers help to boost the economy of the state during periods of economic downturn by helping maintain the level of consumer purchasing power.

Payment of benefits under the regular program is made from a trust fund. The program is supported by contributions paid from employers. No part of the contribution is deducted from worker wages.

Eligible claimants can qualify for up to 26 weeks of unemployment compensation under the Regular Benefit Program. During periods of high unemployment, the Extended Benefit Program provides up to 13 additional weeks of entitlement for the long-term unemployed who have exhausted all regular program entitlements and who meet extended benefit eligibility requirements. The Extended Benefit Program is financed equally by the state unemployment compensation trust fund and the U.S. Department of Labor.

Employer Contributions

The division's contributions sections ensure that employers are properly classifying their workers, reporting their workers' wages and paying the correct contributions on wages. Correct reporting helps to ensure the prompt payment of unemployment benefits to insured workers during periods of unemployment.

Employers file quarterly contribution and wage reports with the division to report their workers' earnings. Reports may be filed via the Internet at www.ustar.dolir.mo.gov.

Payment of Benefits

One of the main objectives of the division is the prompt payment of unemployment benefits to eligible claimants.

Through four claims centers located in Jefferson City, St. Louis, Kansas City and Springfield, unemployed Missouri workers file initial and weekly claims for unemployment compensation by telephone. In addition, the division offers filing of unemployment claims via the Internet as an additional option. The Internet address is www.moclaim.com.

A person must have worked in employment covered under the Missouri Employment Security Law and earned qualifying wages in order to establish a claim for unemployment benefits. Detailed wage records are kept on every worker reported by employers on the quarterly contribution and wage reports. The wage records permit the prompt determination of benefit entitlement when an initial unemployment claim is filed.

Other unemployment insurance services include offering claim filing services to unemployed workers living in other U.S. states or territories who have worked in Missouri or more than one other state; detecting and preventing improper payments; and paying a percentage of weekly unemployment benefits to employees of participating employers in exchange for reducing work hours and avoiding layoffs.

Appeals

The Missouri Employment Security Law provides for the appeal of determinations concerning receipt of unemployment insurance benefits and tax liability of employers. In addition to appeals concerning tax liability of employers and payment of unemployment insurance benefits, the section also receives appeals regarding the withholding of child support, appeals under the Trade Adjustment Assistance program and other federal programs.

Division of Labor Standards

3315 West Truman Blvd., PO Box 449
Jefferson City 65102-0449
Telephone: (573) 751-3403 / FAX: (573) 751-3721

The Division of Labor Standards was created through the Omnibus State Reorganization Act of 1974 by combining the Divisions of Industrial Inspection, Mine Inspection and Prevailing Wage. The division currently consists of three sections: Wage and Hour; On-Site Safety and Health Consultation Service; and Mine and Cave Safety and Health.

The division administers these programs and handles receipts and expenditures of all funds; collection of fees; issuance of child labor work permits; assistance to the public relating to wages, hours and dismissal and minimum wage rights; assistance with voluntary compliance of child labor, prevailing wage, safety and health laws and enforcement of those laws where authorized and necessary; workplace safety and health training, on-site consultations and programs; mine and cave inspection; and program reports and statistics.

COLLEEN WHITE
Director
Division of Labor Standards

Wage and Hour

The section provides assistance to the public by answering questions about wages, hours, dismissal rights and minimum wage issues (Chapter 290, RSMo). Working together with employers, school officials, parents and public interest groups, the division educates individuals involved with employing youth. Also, the section assists employers in understanding and meeting their responsibilities under Missouri's Child Labor Law. They issue work permits for youth employed in the entertainment industry (Chapter 294, RSMo). When necessary, the section investigates and enforces compliance with Missouri's Child Labor Law. The division's increased outreach and education efforts with public bodies, contractors, workers and their representatives assist with encouraging increased participation in the prevailing wage survey process. The division helps public bodies and contractors with attaining voluntary compliance with Missouri's Prevailing Wage Law (Chapter 290, RSMo).

Wages, Hours, Dismissal Rights and Minimum Wage

The division answers questions for the public about issues such as breaks, lunches, vacations, hiring, wage levels, dismissals, discipline and others. Employers and employees are provided information on their workplace rights and responsibilities. Assistance is provided by giving proper procedures or referrals to other agencies with more authority. While the division has no wage collection authority, procedures are provided for those individuals seeking such assistance.

Child Labor

The Division is responsible for the administration and enforcement of Missouri's Child Labor Law. The law ensures that no child younger than 16 years of age is employed in an occupation that is detrimental to the child's safety, health, morals, educational processes or general well being. No child under the age of 14 may work in any occupation, unless specifically allowed. The exception is entertainment industry employment. The law restricts work hours for youth under 16. A child 14 or 15 may not be employed during the regular school term unless the public school superintendent or designee of the district where the youth lives has issued a work certificate. Youth under 16 may work in the entertainment industry if the division issues the youth a work permit.

Prevailing Wage

The Wage and Hour Section is responsible for compiling wage surveys, wage inspections, issuing the General Wage Order for the Highway and Transportation Commission and the Annual Wage Order. The section also is responsible for providing information to the Labor and Industrial Relations Commission regarding objections to those orders.

Prevailing wage survey information for construction projects is collected on an ongoing basis. The survey information is used to determine the prevailing wage rates for workers employed on public works construction projects. Outreach with contractors, public bodies, employees and others occurs daily to assist in achieving voluntary compliance. Site inspections are performed to assure compliance with prevailing wage rates and to investigate complaints.

On-Site Safety and Health Consultation Service

The service provides a confidential, no-charge service to employers with up to 250 workers (or up to 500 nationwide). The service assists employers in reducing injuries and illnesses without penalties, thereby providing safer and healthier workplaces. Also, employers gain a better understanding of how to comply with federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) regulations. At an employer's request, trained occupational safety and health consultants visit the workplace. The consultant informs the employer of problems found and recommends solutions to eliminate hazards. Consultants also provide safety and health training when requested.

Safety and Health Achievement Recognition Program (SHARP)

Employers who eliminate all identified safety and health problems and have, or are willing to start, comprehensive safety and health program management are eligible for an exemption from routine OSHA inspections. The Safety and Health Achievement Recognition Program (SHARP), recognizes the top level of employer participation in the program. It allows for the exemption from routine OSHA inspection for one to two years. There are currently 21 Missouri employers exempt from routine OSHA inspection.

Mine and Cave Safety and Health

The Mine and Cave Safety and Health Section consists of three programs to aid miners, mine owners/operators and cave owner/operators.

Mine Inspection Program

The inspection program is mandated by Chapter 293, RSMo to inspect mines to ensure safety in the workplace. Each fiscal year, the Mine Inspection Program conducts safety and health inspections of mines regulated by Chapter 293, RSMo. Mines are inspected twice per year. There is an inspection fee based on the tonnage reported by the mine owner. This program includes consultation services. Mine safety inspectors assist miners with mine openings, closings, safety programs, dust and noise control and compliance with federal Mine Safety and Health Administration (MSHA) standards. The program also assists with coordinating mine rescue efforts.

Cave Inspection Program

All show caves, by law, must be inspected before opening to the public. The act also requires every cave owner, operator or agent to provide necessary safety guard rails, bridges, ladders, entrances, platforms, walkways, safety barriers, rails, paths, electrical and other safety measures. The safety measures must be in place before opening to the public. Cave maps must be on file before caves are ready for public use. Caves are inspected prior to opening and once after opening to the public. The program also assists with coordinating cave rescue efforts. A listing of the caves inspected by the program is published on the department's web site at www.dolir.mo..gov/ls/minesafety/mocaves.html

Mine Safety and Training Program

The Mine Safety and Health Training Program provides training services to mines which include safety and health, first aid, cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) and mine rescue. Training is available at no charge. The program provides safety and health training to miners through a federal grant. This program is funded primarily by the Mine Safety and Health Administration. Recipients of these services have reduced accidents and injuries in their workplaces with reduced number of lost workdays.

On November 2, 1926, the Missouri Workers' Compensation Law was adopted by a vote of the people. Initially, the administration of the law was under the direction of the Workmen's Compensation Commission. Today, such responsibility is assigned to the Missouri Division of Workers' Compensation. The division's primary function is to provide prompt and equitable resolutions of all cases of work-related injuries and occupational diseases with a minimum of formal litigation.

Under the Missouri Workers' Compensation Law an individual who is injured on the job may be entitled to compensation in the form of medical benefits as well as potential temporary total disability, permanent partial disability benefits or permanent total disability. An employee is entitled to these disability compensation benefits in an amount equal to two-thirds of the employee's average weekly wage not to exceed certain statutory limitations. The average weekly pay is determined by examining various pay periods immediately preceding the date of injury.

The division's administrative costs are paid from the Workers' Compensation Administrative Fund. Employers finance the fund by paying an annual tax on net workers' compensation insurance premiums.

Adjudication

Administrative Law Judges hold dockets, including hearings that are designed to resolve disputes between injured workers and employers/insurance companies. The division has eight local offices around the state. The adjudication staff also holds dockets at other sites either in the county where the injury occurred or an adjacent county.

Injury Processing

The Injury Processing Section receives and processes all information relating to work-related injuries that occur in Missouri. The division receives reports of injury, claims for compensation, answers, temporary benefits paid, medical costs paid and other information regarding work-related injuries.

Self-Insurance

Section 287.280, RSMo, and 8 CSR 50.3.010, provide for self-insurance as an alternative to traditional workers' compensation insurance coverage. Larger employers may apply to self-insure individually. Mid-size to smaller employers may find group trusts a viable alternative. Individual employers and group trusts must satisfy the division's requirements for financial soundness, administrative ability and post surety bonds or escrow accounts.

The Missouri Private Sector Individual Self-Insurers Guaranty Corporation was established in 1992. The Guaranty Corporation was established to administer workers' compensation cases for its members who become insolvent. The corporation collects assessments from the individual self-insurers to ensure funds are available to administer the claims of insolvent members.

JENNIFER L. SCHWENDEMANN
Chief Administrative Law Judge
Division of Workers' Compensation

Second Injury Fund

In 1943, the Workers' Compensation Law was amended to benefit the physically handicapped and individuals with a previous workplace-related disability. An employer's liability is limited to the current injury. The Second Injury Fund is liable when an employee is injured, and the combined effect of the current injury and prior disability results in permanent disability. The fund also pays medical and death benefits for injuries incurred by employees of an employer who is uninsured. Under certain conditions lost wages from a second job may be paid from the fund.

Dispute Management

The Dispute Management Program is an alternative dispute resolution process to mediate disputes that arise soon after a workplace injury occurs. The division has mediators who assist parties in resolving medical treatment and lost wage disputes. This is a voluntary process and both parties must agree to mediate. When one of the parties does not agree to mediate, the party originally requesting mediation services is advised that he or she may take further steps if the problem persists, including requesting a setting on the docket from the appropriate local adjudication office.

Medical Fee Disputes

The unit's goal is to facilitate the resolution of medical fee dispute claims arising between health care providers and employers/insurers. Disputes arise when the health care provider is authorized by the employer to provide medical treatment but has not received payment or only partial payment. The division encourages informal resolution of these disputed claims. If this is unsuccessful, the division provides mediation or an evidentiary hearing, if necessary, to resolve the disputed claims.

Physical Rehabilitation

The division's Physical Rehabilitation Unit determines if the employee's injury qualifies for a weekly physical rehabilitation benefit. The benefit is paid from the Second Injury Fund. The injured employee must obtain therapy in a division-certified facility. The physical rehabilitation benefit is paid for a maximum of 20 weeks. In unusual cases, the employee may qualify for a special order extending benefits if more treatment is needed.

The division certifies physical rehabilitation facilities. Certified facilities must meet function, personnel, equipment, quality and adequacy standards.

Vocational Rehabilitation

The Vocational Rehabilitation Program is voluntary. Employers may use the service to provide job retraining to severely injured employees. To conserve state resources and reduce duplication of services, an interagency agreement has been entered into with the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education and the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation to provide this service.

Workers' Safety Program

The Missouri Workers' Safety Program is responsible for the administration of Section 287.123, RSMo. The law requires all insurance carriers writing workers' compensation insurance in Missouri to provide comprehensive safety engineering and management services to employers upon request.

Program functions include certifying and maintaining a registry of safety consultants and engineers; certifying safety programs of self-insured employers, third-party administrators and workers' compensation insurance carriers; investigating complaints of inadequate loss control services against insurance carriers; monitoring the impact of safety services being provided by insurance carriers; performing on-site safety audits and consultations; conducting occupational safety education and training; and analyzing injury and illness data provided by carriers.

Fraud and Noncompliance

The Fraud and Noncompliance Unit was established by legislation enacted in 1993. The unit is charged with conducting confidential investigations of all allegations of fraud and noncompliance. Noncompliance means employers who are not properly insuring their workers' compensation liability. Fraud in the workers' compensation system may occur at any level involving employees, employers, insurance carriers, attorneys, physicians and others who attempt to obtain or deny workers' compensation benefits in a fraudulent manner.

The unit staff participates in educational seminars and fraud detection training to inform the public, including employer and employee organizations, civic organizations, insurance companies, legal associations and other groups about proper compliance with the workers' compensation law.

The unit has a toll free number (800-592-6003) for information or to report suspected fraud and noncompliance.

Crime Victims' Compensation

The division is responsible for the administration of the Missouri Crime Victims' Compensation Program (Chapter 595, RSMo and 8 CSR 506.010). The legislation was enacted to assist victims of violent crimes who have suffered physical injury as a direct result of a crime, and to assist dependents in the case of the death of the victim. Fund is not a primary payer, but rather a public, quasi-charitable fund. The fund is financed by fees, fines and restitution paid by offenders. Funding and judgments are calculated on a graduated scale depending on the seriousness of the offense.

Benefits are limited to a total of $25,000 payable for medical costs, counseling, lost wages, funeral expenses and other miscellaneous expenses incurred by or on behalf of the victim.

To be eligible for compensation, the claimant must report the crime and cooperate with law enforcement authorities, suffer a compensable loss, and meet other eligibility requirements. The division's administrative law judges resolve any disputes about eligibility.

The mission of the Missouri Commission on Human Rights is to develop, recommend and implement ways to prevent and eliminate discrimination and to provide equitable and timely resolutions of discrimination claims through enforcement of the Missouri Human Rights Act.

The commission responds to complaints of alleged discrimination in employment, housing and public accommodations based on race, color, religion, national origin, ancestry, sex, physical/mental disability handicap, age (40-70 employment only) and familial status (housing only). Chapter 213, RSMo 2000 (Missouri Human Rights Act) requires the Missouri Commission on Human Rights to receive, investigate, settle or conciliate complaints of alleged discrimination and conduct public hearings. The statute also enables the commission to certify local commissions, establish relationships with federal and local civil and human rights agencies, implement educational or research programs and develop ways to prevent discrimination.

Commission members are nominated by the director of the Department of Labor and Industrial Relations, appointed by the governor with advice and consent of the Senate. The governor appoints at least one member from each of Missouri's nine congressional districts, one member-at-large and one member as chairperson. The commissioners serve for six years without compensation.

Complaint and Enforcement

Any person claiming to be aggrieved by an unlawful discriminatory practice may file a written complaint with the Missouri Commission on Human Rights within 180 days from the date of the last act of alleged discrimination. After the filing of any complaint, the executive director, with the assistance of the commission's staff, makes a prompt investigation. If the director determines that probable cause exists for crediting the allegations of the complaint, the director tries to eliminate the unlawful employment practice by conference, conciliation and persuasion.

In cases of failure to eliminate the discriminatory practice by conciliation, the chairperson of the commission may order a public hearing. The Office of the Attorney General or department staff counsel presents the complaint at the hearing. (In housing cases only, the parties have the right to make a decision whether to have their case decided at a public hearing or in circuit court.) Employment discrimination cases continue to consume the largest portion of the commission's workload.

The objective of the hearing process is to make a finding of fact, determine conclusions of law and determine if the respondent has committed an unlawful discriminatory practice. If the commission finds that an unlawful discriminatory practice has occurred, it may order the respondent to stop the unlawful act and to take affirmative steps, as the commission deems appropriate, which includes civil penalties. If the commission finds in favor of the respondent, after hearing all the evidence, the complaint is dismissed.

Either party has the right to appeal the commission's order to the circuit court. If no proceeding for review is instituted, the commission may obtain a court order for enforcement of its decision.

General Counsel

Although its functions date back to 1847, the Missouri Department of Mental Health was first established as a cabinet-level state agency by the Omnibus State Government Reorganization Act on July 1, 1974. The department serves as the state's Mental Health Authority, establishing philosophy, policy and standards of care.

State law provides three principal missions for the department: (1) the prevention of mental disorders, developmental disabilities and substance abuse; (2) the treatment, habilitation and rehabilitation of Missourians with those conditions; and (3) the improvement of public understanding and attitudes about mental disorders, developmental disabilities and substance abuse.

The vision of the Department of Mental Health is one of "Lives Beyond Limitations"—Missourians shall be free to live their lives and pursue their dreams beyond the limitations of mental illness, developmental disabilities, alcohol and other drug abuse.

Missourians must know that mental illness is a treatable disease, persons with substance abuse problems can triumph over their addictions, and persons with developmental disabilities can be productive citizens and good neighbors in their communities.

Mental Health Commission

The commission, composed of seven members, appoints the director of the Department of Mental Health with confirmation of the Senate. Commissioners are appointed to four-year terms by the governor, again with the confirmation of the Senate. The commissioners serve as policy advisers to the department director.

The commission, by law, must include an advocate of community mental health centers, a physician who is an expert in the treatment of mental illness, a physician concerned with developmental disabilities, a member with business expertise, an advocate of substance abuse treatment, a citizen who represents the interests of consumers of psychiatric services and a citizen who represents the interests of consumers of developmental disabilities services.

Each year the department provides services to more than 170,000 Missourians through the Division of Comprehensive Psychiatric Services, the Division of Mental Retardation and Developmental Disabilities, the Division of Alcohol and Drug Abuse, or through its contracted provider network.

Deputy Director

The office of the deputy director provides the leadership and direction in implementing state statute to create a Comprehensive Child Mental Health System. Responsibilities include supervising the work of the department's Office of Comprehensive Child Mental Health. This includes the development of new and emerging programming and policy needs for children and youth services throughout the state. This also involves the coordination of services among children and youth staff from all three of the department's divisions, the facilities, provider agencies, other state agencies, and the juvenile courts to work to improve the quality and professionalism of staff and agencies providing services to children and youth. The deputy director's office also oversees the department's cultural competency plan, services for the deaf and hard of hearing, licensure and certification of facilities and treatment programs, and internal and external audit services related to compliance, financial and performance reviews.

Medical Director

The medical director serves as the department's senior clinical leader by providing advice and counsel to the department director regarding a broad range of clinical, clinical policy, programmatic and strategic issues. The medical director provides leadership and mentoring to the department's clinical staff and establishes and promotes professional, clinical and ethical values and standards to which all clinical staff are expected to adhere. The medical director also promotes quality of care and is responsible for establishing and maintaining the department's standards of care on both clinical and programmatic levels.

General Counsel

The general counsel's office is responsible for a variety of department-wide and statewide functions in support of the department services, division offices and other support offices: providing legal advice and litigation support; providing investigations and consulting services to the divisions regarding client deaths and serious injury or risk; technical assistance with rules and policy development; consumer rights monitoring; compliance with HIPAA (Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act) privacy administration and coordination; and providing appeals and hearings for administrative due process.

Administration

The Office of Administration, headed by the department's deputy director for administration, provides a range of administrative and financial services to help the department achieve effective results. Services provided by the Office of Administration can be divided into the following areas: the fiscal management section accounts for all funds, manages expenditures, and produces fiscal summaries, analyses, and reports; capital improvements and general services provides technical assistance on construction, maintenance and repair for 29 state-owned facilities, and coordinates leases; contracts and procurement secures more than 3,000 contracts with private agencies or individuals to provide services in the community; the reimbursements section collects payments from private insurance, Medicaid and Medicare, and private pay for department services and coordinates revenue maximization proposals; and budget services develops and monitors the annual operating and leasing budgets and oversees spending plans.

Division of Alcohol and Drug Abuse

The Division of Alcohol and Drug Abuse was established within the Department of Mental Health in 1975 and became a statutory entity in 1980 with the passage of the Omnibus Mental Health Act.

The division is responsible for assuring that treatment and prevention services are accessible and affordable for persons with substance abuse, addiction, or compulsive gambling problems, and those at risk for such disorders.

Over 491,000 Missouri residents—462,000 adults and 29,000 adolescents—need treatment due to their substance abuse or dependency, and thousands more need intervention services. Substance abuse costs the state's economy over $6.9 billion per year—an average of $14,000 in losses caused by each untreated substance abuser. These costs are associated with deaths and injuries, crime, traffic crashes, workplace accidents, medical care, property destruction, insurance premiums, lost productivity, and other costs that are a burden on all Missourians.

Recent studies show that two-thirds of the clients receiving services in the division's treatment programs remain alcohol-free and drug-free one year after entering treatment, and many others reduce their abuse of these substances. At least seven dollars in societal costs are saved in Missouri for each dollar invested in treatment services.

MICHAEL COUTY
Director, Division of Alcohol & Drug Abuse

The division meets its responsibilities for comprehensive treatment, prevention, intervention and compulsive gambling services by contracting with community-based providers. The division's administrative responsibilities include procurement and management of federal grants and state funds, contracts monitoring, program management, development and enforcement of standards of care, clinical utilization review, federal reporting, data management, research, training, technical assistance and public information.

Services are provided through the Comprehensive Substance Treatment and Rehabilitation (CSTAR) program, the Substance Abuse Traffic Offenders' Program (SATOP), the state's Medicaid program, other clinical programs and a comprehensive substance abuse prevention system.

State Advisory Council on Alcohol and Drug Abuse

The State Advisory Council on Alcohol and Drug Abuse was established by State Statute in 1980. Members are appointed by the director of the Department of Mental Health. The council is comprised of 25 members who collaborate with the department on developing and administering a state plan on alcohol and drug abuse; promote meetings and programs for discussing the reduction of the debilitating effects of alcohol or drug abuse; study and review current prevention, evaluation, care and rehabilitation technologies and recommend appropriate preparation, training and distribution of manpower and resources in the provision of services to persons affected by alcohol or drug abuse; and recommend specific methods, means and procedures to be adopted to improve and upgrade the alcohol and drug abuse service delivery system for citizens of Missouri. In addition to the State Advisory Council, Regional Advisory Councils have been established in each of the Division's five regions. Members of Regional Advisory Councils are appointed by the director of the Division of Alcohol and Drug Abuse. Through public education and advocacy efforts, consumers and vendors of alcohol and drug abuse prevention, treatment and recovery services have become integral parts of defining priorities for the department and division on issues surrounding prevention, disparities, service array, recovery and housing. The council works with other advocacy groups at the local level to educate communities and individuals, disseminate information and support the development of accessible alcohol and drug abuse services and supports for individuals and families.

Division of Comprehensive Psychiatric Services

The Division of Comprehensive Psychiatric Services provides inpatient and residential services for children and adults at 11 state-operated facilities. These include four long-term care facilities, three acute care hospitals, one facility with both acute and long-term services, one sexual offender treatment center, one children's psychiatric hospital, and one children's residential treatment center. These facilities are divided into four regions across the state; central, eastern, southern and western. Each region is directed by a chief executive officer who works directly with their respective facility chief operations officer for oversight at each facility.

In addition, the division contracts with not-for-profit community mental health centers to provide services for persons with mental illness in each of 25 geographic service areas. The agency responsible for service provision in each service area is designated as the division's administrative agent. The administrative agents are responsible for assessment and service delivery to eligible individuals in their geographic service area. This includes responsibility to provide follow-up services to persons who have been discharged from state-operated inpatient services. Children and their families are also served by administrative agents.

Supported community living programs are provided to individuals with mental illness who require financial subsidies to support their housing needs or need more structured services to live in the community. Living arrangements in this program range from nursing homes to apartments and other settings that are integrated into the community. Persons in these programs are provided support through case management and community psychiatric rehabilitation program services provided by administrative agents.

During fiscal year 2004, the division provided:

- Inpatient services to 7,786 adults and 688 children;
- Outpatient and community support (includes residential) to 53,131 adults and 14,216 children; and
- Supported community living services to 5,815 adults and 268 children.

The council is comprised of 25 members who advise and make recommendations on the development and coordination of a statewide inter-agency/inter-departmental system of care for children/youth with serious emotional disorders and persons with mental illness and their families. Through public education and advocacy efforts consumers of mental health services and their families have become integral parts of defining priorities for the division on issues surrounding accessible services, crisis intervention, children's services, recovery and budget. The council works with other mental health advocacy groups in planning and coordinating Mental Health Awareness Day, an event that brings together consumers, family members, mental health professionals and advocates throughout the state where they participate at the Capitol in educational seminars and informational displays.

Fulton State Hospital, authorized in 1847 and opened in 1851, is the oldest public mental health facility west of the Mississippi River. The hospital is certified by the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS), and has been accredited by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations (JCAHO) since 1984.

The 464-bed hospital provides inpatient adult psychiatric services, including treatment and psychosocial rehabilitation for forensic patients and other patients requiring long-term inpatient care. The term "forensic" is used to describe individuals who are charged with a crime and have been committed to the Department of Mental Health by a circuit court for either a pre-trial or pre-sentence evaluation, or for restoration of competence to stand trial, or as a result of an adjudication of Not Guilty by Reason of Mental Disease or Defect (NGRI). Specifically, the hospital serves: (a) forensic and long-term care patients from a 31-county area in the state's Central Region totaling some 753,355 citizens; (b) patients from the entire state of Missouri who require hospitalization in maximum and intermediate security settings; and (c) forensic patients from a 21-county area in southwest Missouri totaling another 606,470 citizens.

The 88-bed Hearnes Psychiatric Center provides long-term inpatient care for the Central Region and minimum and campus security services for forensic patients from both the Central Region and southwest corner of the state. It includes the hospital's 21-bed ward that is certified by CMS.

Fulton has Missouri's only maximum and intermediate security units. The 201-bed Biggs Forensic Center provides treatment for individuals who have committed major offenses or those whose behavior in other settings demonstrates a need for a maximum security setting. Included is a program run in cooperation with the Department of Corrections (DOC) to provide acute mental health services for inmates from DOC and for jail detainees across the state whose charges or behavior require maximum security. The 175-bed Guhleman Forensic Center offers an intermediate security environment for former Biggs patients to progress toward increased liberty and responsibility. In addition, it provides a security setting for individuals whose charges or behavior do not require maximum security, but are nonetheless in need of a higher level of security than is available in other inpatient settings.

The hospital has a training affiliation with the University of Missouri's Department of Psychiatry. In addition, it provides training experience to students from various clinical disciplines, including nursing, social work, and occupational therapy, and an internship and fellowship program in psychology.

Mid-Missouri Mental Health Center is an acute care, inpatient psychiatric facility located on the campus of the University of Missouri in Columbia. Completed in 1967, the center was the first comprehensive mental health center to be federally funded under the Community Mental Health Reform Act of 1963. The center is accredited by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Health Care Organizations and is certified for federal reimbursement under the Medicaid and Medicare programs.

Mid-Missouri Mental Health Center serves children ages six to 17 from a 31-county area located in the central, south central, north central and northeast sections of the state and adults from an 18-county area in central and north central sections of the state. Psychiatric services provided by the center include acute inpatient care for children, adolescents and adults and day treatment services for adolescents and children. The center's 69 inpatient beds are divided among four multi-disciplinary units; one 10-bed child and adolescent unit, and three adult psychiatric units.

Through its affiliation with the University of Missouri–Columbia and other colleges and universities, Mid-Missouri Mental Health Center provides training for students in psychiatry, psychology, psychiatric social work, nursing and recreational and occupational therapies.

In December, 1997, Southwest Missouri Psychiatric Rehabilitation Center (SWMPRC), formerly Southwest Missouri Mental Health Center, moved into a new facility in El Dorado Springs from its previous location in Nevada. The 24-bed, adult psychiatric treatment facility provides both acute and long-term care for Service Area 8 and long-term care for Service Area 9 and 10. These Service Areas are located in the CPS

Southwest Region, consisting of 21 counties in Southwest Missouri.

The Administrative Agents are the entry and exit points for all DMH funded psychiatric services in the southwest region. However, four beds designated for acute care are subject to EMTALA requirements. Each Administrative Agent manages admissions to assigned beds at Southwest Missouri Psychiatric Rehabilitation Center based upon percentage of population. The facility accepts those persons in need of treatment for serious psychiatric illnesses and disorders. The staff at the facility provide intensive psychosocial rehabilitation treatment, designed to facilitate person centered recovery and community integration. Administrative Agent staff are involved with the treatment process and discharge planning by attending a monthly Clinical Review meeting at the facility.

Following discharge, community-based care and treatment is provided by staff of the Administrative Agents through the POS Program, the decentralized community placement program, and the Medicaid-funded targeted case management and CPRC programs. Treatment services are monitored by the staff of the Southwest Regional Supported Community Living Program, located in Nevada.

Hawthorn Children's Psychiatric Hospital

1901 Pennsylvania Ave.
St. Louis 63133
Telephone: (314) 512-7800 / FAX: (314) 512-7812

Hawthorn Children's Psychiatric Hospital provides inpatient psychiatric services for severely emotionally disturbed children and adolescents, ages 6 to 17. The hospital serves the 31 counties of eastern and southeastern Missouri.

Hawthorn has been a free-standing child psychiatric facility in St. Louis County since 1989. The hospital is accredited by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Health Care Organizations and certified for federal Medicaid reimbursement.

The 26-acre campus consists of a main building and five cottages which can house 60 psychiatric treatment beds. Hawthorn currently maintains 28 inpatient and 24 residential treatment beds. The hospital also operates a cooperative day treatment program providing psycho-educational services for 16 students in conjunction with the Special School District of St. Louis County.

Youth are assessed and provided comprehensive services addressing their psychiatric, psychological, social, educational, vocational and recreational needs. Diagnostic and treatment services are available for the juvenile courts.

Metropolitan St. Louis Psychiatric Center (MPC) operates 112 beds for inpatient psychiatric care, five of which are also utilized for evaluation, medical detoxification and referral for clients with substance abuse problems.

The center operates an emergency room that provides screening, evaluation, crisis intervention, referral and admission. A clinical research program, staffed by psychiatrists from Washington University, is well established at the facility. Community education and consultation are provided by the staff of the facility as part of its effort toward the prevention of mental illness.

MPC is accredited by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations and eligible for reimbursement under the Medicare and Medicaid programs. The center has a long and valued history as a site for professional education. In affiliation with Washington University School of Medicine, training is provided for psychiatric residents. With a consortium of other providers, MPC is nationally recognized for a clinical psychology pre-doctoral internship program. Other professions receiving training at MPC include social work, occupational therapy and nursing.

St. Louis Psychiatric Rehabilitation Center (formerly known as St. Louis State Hospital), originally founded in 1869, is a 196-bed facility providing care, treatment and rehabilitation for adults with mental illness who reside in St. Louis City and St. Louis, Jefferson, Franklin, St. Charles, Warren and Lincoln counties.

The facility currently accepts those persons in need of forensic psychiatric services and psychiatric services for severe and persistent mental illness. The staff of the center provide a variety of intensive psychosocial rehabilitation programs that facilitate a return to independent living within the community, while preserving public safety.

The St. Louis Psychiatric Rehabilitation Center continues to maintain its accreditation from the Joint Commission on the Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations, receiving its most recent accreditation in 2003.

Cottonwood Residential Treatment Center

Cottonwood is a 32-bed residential treatment center designed to meet the emotional and mental health needs of children and adolescents, ages 6 to 17.

The treatment center, which opened in 1987, provides intensive programming to children who do not require psychiatric hospitalization but who have behavioral and emotional problems related to socialization, impulse control and coping skills. The program centers on a psychoeducational method to develop the skills necessary to return to family and community. The interdisciplinary approach includes individual, group and family therapy, and provides psychological, recreational, educational, social work, dietetic and nursing services.

Cottonwood Residential Treatment Center is located on the campus of Southeast Missouri State University in Cape Girardeau and serves as a training site for numerous programs of the university.

Missouri Sexual Offender Treatment Center

1016 W. Columbia
Farmington 63640
Telephone: (573) 218-7045 / FAX: (573) 218-7053

The Missouri Sexual Offender Treatment Center provides appropriate treatment, care, security and custody for those persons adjudicated as sexually violent predators. With the passage of the Sexually Violent Predator law, which was effective January 1, 1999, the Missouri General Assembly mandated that those individuals adjudicated by the court as "sexually violent predators" be committed indefinitely to the custody of the Director of Department of Mental Health for "control, care and treatment until such time that the person is safe to be at large." In order for such commitments to pass constitutional scrutiny, the department provides care and treatment that is consistent with existing professional standards and practice. The law also requires that individuals committed for treatment as sexually violent predators be kept in a secure facility and housed separately from Department of Corrections' inmates and from persons served by the Department of Mental Health who have not been found to be sexually violent predators.

The location and treatment of sexually violent predators is on the campus shared by Missouri Sexual Offender Treatment Center, Southeast Missouri Mental Health Center, and Farmington Correctional Center, in Farmington. As of Spring, 2005, there were 68 individuals committed for treatment, with 38 individuals detained who are in the commitment review process. Projections suggest that 17-25 individuals will be referred to the program for detention and evaluation each year. It is anticipated for the initial years of operation, the commitments to the center will greatly exceed court ordered releases.

In addition to the treatment and custody of sexually violent predators, the department is required to provide staff to participate in the multidisciplinary team to assist the Prosecutor's Review Committee in determining whether an individual may meet the definition of a sexually violent predator. Further, the department is required to evaluate each individual for whom the court finds probable cause to believe the person is a sexually violent predator. Finally, the department must annually provide the committing court an annual report regarding the committed person's mental condition.

Southeast Missouri Mental Health Center began in 1903 as Farmington State Hospital. In 1984, the Missouri General Assembly approved the conversion of most of the hospital into a medium-security prison, operated by the Department of Corrections. Subsequently in 1987, the state hospital was converted into a mental health center and moved into buildings adjacent to the prison.

The Acute Services Program operates a psychiatric emergency room and up to 88 inpatient beds for persons needing short-term hospital care. The Long-Term/Forensic Services program operates 90 minimum/campus security beds primarily for persons referred by the criminal courts for psychiatric evaluation and/or treatment. These programs are accredited by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations.

By cooperative agreement between the Departments of Corrections and Mental Health, the Corrections Treatment Center (CTC) operates on the grounds of Farmington Correctional Center. Within the CTC unit, the mental health center staffs a small, medium-security ward for inmates with psychiatric needs, and provides case management and services for a 200-bed social rehabilitation unit.

Northwest Missouri Psychiatric Rehabilitation Center (NMPRC) provides adult long-term services for an 18-county area in northwest Missouri with a population of 256,780. It provides forensic services for that area plus an additional seven counties. The total population of the 25-county service area is 1,356,111.

The hospital opened as State Lunatic Asylum No. 2 in November 1874 on land east of St. Joseph. The capacity ranged from 250 beds to nearly 3,000 in the 1950s, and the name was changed to St. Joseph State Hospital. Over the years, downsizing occurred with the advent of better treatment options and emphasis on returning patients to the community.

In 1997, St. Joseph State Hospital was replaced with the current facility and renamed Northwest Missouri Psychiatric Rehabilitation Center. NMPRC currently provides 108 beds for adult, long-term psychiatric patients age 18 and over. Three wings, Carver, Lincoln and Twain, have 20 beds each, and are designated minimum security. Six cottages with eight beds each are designated as open campus security.

NMPRC is fully accredited by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Health Care Organizations.

Division of Mental Retardation and Developmental Disabilities

The Division of Mental Retardation and Developmental Disabilities, established in 1974, serves a population that has developmental disabilities such as mental retardation, cerebral palsy, head injury, autism, epilepsy and certain learning disabilities. Such conditions must have occurred before age 22 and are likely to continue indefinitely. To be eligible for services from the division, persons with these disabilities must be substantially limited in their ability to function independently.

The division improves the lives of persons with developmental disabilities through supports and services to enable those persons to live independently and productively. In 1988, the division began participation in the Medicaid Home and Community Based Waiver Program, designed to help expand needed services throughout the state.

The division operates 17 facilities that provide or purchase specialized services. The 11 regional centers form the framework for the system and are backed by six habilitation centers that provide residential care and habilitation services for more severely disabled persons.

The regional centers, the primary points of entry into the system, provide assessment and case management services that include coordination of each eligible person's individualized plan.

Referrals may be made by a regional center to a habilitation center. Habilitation centers primarily serve persons who are severely disabled, behaviorally disordered, court-committed or medically fragile. All habilitation centers are Medicaid certified.

State and Regional Planning and Advisory Councils

The division receives consumer advice and planning assistance from the Missouri Planning Council for Developmental Disabilities and 11 regional councils. The regional council's members are drawn from areas served by the regional centers.

The Missouri Planning Council for Developmental Disabilities was created in 1971 under federal legislation. The council also serves, under Missouri statute, as the State Advisory Council on Mental Retardation and Developmental Disabilities, providing advice to the division director and other state agencies that serve persons with developmental disabilities.

Missouri Planning Council members are appointed by the governor. The council develops and implements a state plan addressing systems change for Missourians with developmental disabilities.

The Department of Natural Resources preserves, protects and enhances Missouri's natural, cultural and energy resources and works to inspire their enjoyment and responsible use for present and future generations. Our staff works to ensure that our state enjoys clean air to breathe, clean water for drinking and recreation and land that sustains a diversity of life.

We take seriously our responsibility of stewardship to protect and enhance the environment in which we work and live. We consider all aspects of the environment when making decisions. To do this, we value integrity above all, openness to all individuals and points of view, diversity in people and approach, excellence in all we do and service.

Several offices enable the department to carry out its responsibilities: the Water Protection and Soil Conservation Division; the Air and Land Protection Division; the Division of State Parks; the Geological Survey and Resource Assessment Division; and the Division of Administrative Support. In addition, the State Environmental Improvement and Energy Resources Authority, the Petroleum Storage Tank Insurance Fund and the Missouri Lewis and Clark Bicentennial Commission are administratively attached to the department through the Office of the Director.

Office of the Director

The Office of the Director provides departmental focus on key outcomes and works to ensure that the decisions that are made result in real environmental improvements.

The Office of the Director seeks to improve efficiency of departmental actions, drive customer-focused initiatives, ensure public participation in decision-making, and attain results affecting the quality of our water, air, land, energy, recreational and cultural resources. It seeks to continue the protection and enhancement of our natural and cultural resources through collaborative, participatory approaches.

The Office of the Director coordinates interagency and intra-agency cooperative agreements, helps develop and direct specific strategies and represents the state in statutory roles. The office also provides information and assistance to state and national legislative bodies and oversees issues of state and national import.

The director of the Department of Natural Resources manages Missouri's natural, cultural and energy resources. The director serves as the state historic preservation officer and as chair of the State Inter-agency Council for Outdoor Recreation and the Energy Policy Council. He also serves as a member of the Soil and Water Districts Commission, the Petroleum Storage Tank Insurance Fund Board of Trustees and the Unmarked Human Burial Consultation Committee. The department director represents Missouri on three interstate river organizations: Missouri River Basin Commission, Arkansas-White-Red Basins Inter-agency Committee and Upper Mississippi River Basin Commission.

Missouri Lewis and Clark Bicentennial Commission

The Missouri Lewis and Clark Bicentennial Commission was created to coordinate activities to commemorate the 200th anniversary of the Lewis and Clark Expedition in 2004 and activities through 2006. The commission is developing and coordinating effective means to promote public awareness of the historical significance of the expedition related to Missouri. In addition, the bicentennial commission is a catalyst for accomplishing Missouri's Lewis and Clark bicentennial capital improvement projects, programs and special events. The bicentennial projects and events are comprised of public, private and foundation projects.

The executive director of the commission also serves as liaison between the other 14 states participating in the Lewis and Clark bicentennial. The commission serves as a statewide umbrella for bringing together Missouri's communities, the National Park Service and other federal agencies as well as private groups planning projects and events. The commission reports to the governor in October of each year.

The commission was authorized by Executive Order 98-06, which was signed by Governor Mel Carnahan in 1998. A new executive order signed by Governor Bob Holden in 2003 added three additional agencies to the commission. The commission has 21 members, including two co-chairs, agency representatives, members at large and an executive director. The bipartisan members serve a single term that

Environmental and Community Assistance

The department provides many types of outreach and community assistance. Through the department, citizens may obtain information, education, financial and technical assistance related to protecting Missouri's energy and natural resources. The assistance includes personal on-site visits to help complete permit applications and other environmental documents, multimedia on-site and pollution prevention assessments to help facilities understand their environmental requirements and often save money, and help for local governments in setting user charge rates for water and wastewater systems and understanding and operating those systems. The department also helps connect the public with financial resources in other state and local agencies that deal with energy and natural resource issues. The funding opportunities presented to the public address air, water, land, energy and several other quality-of-life issues that affect economic development in Missouri, helping communities and businesses utilize their resources in other areas.

The department also coordinates training and certification of operators of drinking water, wastewater and concentrated animal feeding operation treatment facilities. The department supports the Small Business Compliance Advisory Committee, which evaluates the effects of environmental requirements on small business.

The department also helps Missourians meet their energy needs by focusing on three areas of responsibility: analyzing energy supplies and prices, encouraging the use of energy-efficient practices and technologies, and advocating for renewable energy resources and technologies to benefit Missouri's environment and economy.

The Department of Natural Resources provides technical and financial assistance for energy-efficiency and renewable-energy improvements; supports market development and demonstration projects promoting clean energy sources and technologies; and provides energy data, information and research on energy issues to all Missourians.

Employees work with residential, agricultural, educational, local government, business and industrial clients to develop energy-efficiency programs and measures that pay back the initial investment within a reasonable time frame. Staff members consult with the Office of Administration and other agencies to integrate energy efficiency into state buildings and purchases.

The department monitors energy supplies and prices, works with state decision-makers to help ensure adequate energy supplies for Missouri, and reviews policy issues relevant to Missouri energy needs.

Staff also trains other state agencies to use alternative fuel vehicles in compliance with state laws, and it partners with the federal Clean Cities programs in Missouri's metropolitan areas to strive for cleaner air and water through alternative transportation fuels and technologies. Staff in the Department of Natural Resources also manage the mid-Missouri rideshare program and connect Missouri commuters to the carpooling program nearest them.

The department provides financial assistance for energy-efficiency projects and administers the low-income weatherization assistance program, which serves Missouri citizens through 18 local agencies. The program makes more than 2,000 low-income family homes more energy efficient and safe each year by installing measures such as wall and attic insulation, cleaning and tuning heating systems, and reducing air infiltration. The department's low-cost energy revolving loan fund helps schools, colleges, universities and local governments finance energy-efficiency projects so that money saved can be used for other public needs.

Missouri Energy Policy Council

The Missouri Department of Natural Resources chairs the Governor's Energy Policy Council, which was established by executive order to consider and make recommendations on several issues, including: major aspects of energy policy, energy supplies and energy prices; consumer protections, including consumer education, universal access, low-income assistance funding and the impact of regulatory changes; new energy technologies and trends; opportunities to increase energy efficiency, and opportunities to increase the use of diverse and clean energy supplies to improve the economic vitality and environmental quality of Missouri residences, businesses, farms and transportation.

The Missouri Department of Natural Resources chairs the council, which includes representatives from several state agencies, the General Assembly, the general public, utilities, business and industry, the buildings sector, labor, energy efficiency organizations, renewable energy organizations/businesses and environmental organizations.

Regional and Satellite Offices

The five regional offices and seven satellite offices deal with local environmental matters. Regional offices in St. Louis, Kansas City, Springfield, Poplar Bluff and Macon provide the department closer contact with the public through field inspections of regulated facilities, complaint investigation, tank monitoring, frontline troubleshooting and technical assistance, as well as local environmental emergency response. Regional offices support the air pollution control, water pollution control, environmental emergency response, public drinking water, solid waste management, hazardous waste and soils and water conservation efforts. Satellite offices are generally located in state park facilities near Branson, Festus, LaGrange, Osage Beach, Sullivan and Troy; the satellite office in Neosho is located in a U.S. Department of Agriculture facility.

State Historic Preservation

The Department of Natural Resources supports historic preservation efforts in Missouri. The department receives an annual allocation of federal Historic Preservation Fund monies from the U.S. Department of the Interior's National Park Service. These funds are used to help identify, evaluate and protect Missouri's cultural resources.

The department coordinates surveys statewide to identify historic, architectural and archaeological resources. Significant properties identified in the surveys may be nominated to the National Register of Historic Places, the federal list of properties deemed worthy of recognition and preservation. Missouri has more than 1,659 listings on the National Register, representing more than 25,000 historic buildings, sites, structures and objects. The Missouri Cultural Resource Inventory is being built from information gathered from the survey and nomination process.

As part of its federally mandated responsibilities, the department reviews all federally funded or licensed projects in Missouri to ensure compliance with related federal legislation. The department also administers federal Historic Preservation Fund matching grants for identifying and preserving cultural resources. Through Missouri's Certified Local Government program, the department trains municipalities in local preservation techniques and awards federal matching grants to help accomplish local preservation goals.

Since 1976, federal tax incentives and related legislation have promoted interest in rehabilitating historic buildings. In 1998, that interest was augmented and revitalized with the authorization of state tax credits, administered by the Community Development Division of the Missouri Department of Economic Development. The federal tax credits are available to private investors who rehabilitate historic buildings for uses that produce income, such as office buildings and apartments. The state tax credits may be used in combination with federal credits for rehabilitation on income-producing property or for the rehabilitation of non-income-producing residential properties. The Department of Natural Resources reviews both federal and state tax credit applications for historic eligibility and conformity with preservation guidelines and standards.

The Department of Natural Resources also works with the Missouri Department of Economic Development under the Missouri Main Street program to foster preservation-based economic development in Missouri's small towns. The office also administers Missouri's Historic Preservation Revolving Fund, a state fund that allows the department to help preserve endangered historic buildings.

The Missouri Advisory Council on Historic Preservation reviews all Missouri nominations to the National Register of Historic Places. The council advises the department director, the state's historic preservation officer, on historic preservation needs, plans and issues.

The Environmental Improvement and Energy Resources Authority was established in 1972 by the Missouri General Assembly to protect Missouri's environment, develop energy alternatives, promote economic development and conduct research.

Service is provided by financing projects with tax-exempt bonds and notes, conducting environmental studies and providing technical and financial assistance and market development. The EIERA's mandate is broad and assistance can be offered to businesses, institutions, municipalities and government agencies for energy conservation and environmental projects.

Petroleum Storage Tank Insurance Fund Board of Trustees

The Petroleum Storage Tank Insurance Fund (PSTIF) Board of Trustees was established in 1996 (Section 319.129, RSMo). The board administers the Petroleum Storage Tank Insurance Fund, which insures tank owners against the risks associated with leaks of petroleum products from their tanks or piping. It also provides funding to clean up certain properties where historic tank operations contaminated the environment, restoring those properties to economic viability.

The 11-member board includes the commissioner of administration, the directors of the departments of Agriculture and Natural Resources and eight citizens appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate for four-year terms. The citizens represent tank owners, financial institutions, industrial and commercial users of petroleum, the insurance industry and the public.

Air and Land Protection Division

Telephone: (573) 751-6892 / FAX: (573) 751-9277

Protecting and enhancing the quality of Missouri's environment is the responsibility of the department's environmental divisions. The Air and Land Protection Division's specific focus is to prevent pollution and to protect the public from harmful emissions, illegal discharges and waste disposal activities. The division assists Missourians with these goals through the traditional roles of permitting and inspections, and through proactive efforts to revitalize contaminated sites for redevelopment, assisting local entities with meth lab cleanups, environmental emergency response and more.

The division administers five technical programs: air pollution control, environmental services, land reclamation, solid waste management and hazardous waste management. The division has three policy-making commissions: the Air Conservation Commission, the Hazardous Waste Management Commission and the Land Reclamation Commission and one advisory board, the Solid Waste Advisory Board.

Environmental Services Program

The Environmental Services Program staffs a 24-hour-a-day, seven-days-a-week spill notification hotline at (573) 634-2436 for reporting of hazardous material and substance releases that impact public safety and the environment. Industry, fire service, law enforcement, private citizens and others can use this hotline to report such a release to the department. The department is responsible for ensuring that adequate cleanups are completed. Each year the department receives 1,500 to 2,000 incidents on the spill hotline, responding on-site to approximately 25 percent of them and providing information and coordination to the remainder. Information on environmental emergencies is available on the department's web site at www.dnr.mo.gov/meerts/index.do.

The program operates air monitoring instruments at 34 locations throughout the state, performs air quality studies and uploads air quality data to the Internet for public access. Water samples are collected from streams, wastewater treatment plants and industrial facilities that discharge into Missouri waterways. Various tests are performed to determine how the discharges affect Missouri streams. Samples are collected at both abandoned hazardous waste sites and at facilities that are actively engaged in treating, storing or disposing of hazardous wastes.

The program maintains the state's environmental laboratory. More than 112,000 total analyses are performed each year in the analytical laboratory on air, water and soil samples. This includes 87,000 analyses on drinking water from public water supplies across the state.

The program assists with safe-handling management and disposal of hazardous chemicals from clandestine, primarily methamphetamine, drug labs. Twenty specially designed collection stations are located across the state to provide law enforcement a safe and secure location to temporarily store seized drug lab chemicals. The program distributes personal protective equipment and supplies and air monitoring equipment to law enforcement and provides clandes-

Hazardous Waste Program

The department's Hazardous Waste Program carries out the policies of the Hazardous Waste Management Commission. The commission establishes regulations for the generation, transportation, treatment, storage, cleanup and disposal of hazardous waste and hazardous substances. The commission also hears appeals of decisions made by the department director and rules on requests for variances from hazardous waste management and hazardous substance regulations.

The department's Hazardous Waste Program protects public health and the environment by keeping Missouri's water, soil and air from being polluted with hazardous wastes and hazardous substances. In addition to enforcing the state laws passed to ensure proper management of hazardous wastes being generated today, the program also oversees the state's remedial fund for cleanup of problem sites resulting from poor waste management.

The Hazardous Waste Program reviews applications for permits for facilities that treat, store and dispose of hazardous waste to ensure these facilities conform to environmental laws and regulations. The program also licenses hazardous waste transporters that meet state requirements.

The program's enforcement staff helps the regional offices inspect generators and treatment, storage and disposal facilities, and takes appropriate action to ensure a timely return to compliance for those generators or facilities that are out of compliance.

The program provides oversight for 99 hazardous waste treatment, storage and disposal facilities in Missouri. Currently, 23 are actively handling hazardous waste. The program maintains a database for more than 14,000 Missouri sites registered as generators of hazardous waste. Many of these sites are no longer generating waste but the information is maintained for future reference. The program also maintains the same information for more than 11,780 sites outside Missouri that have registered to bring their hazardous waste into Missouri for treatment, storage or disposal.

The program oversees cleanup activities at 66 active or formerly used federal facilities in Missouri. Cleanup activities at federal facilities include site assessments, investigations and remediation. These facilities include those owned or operated by the U.S. Department of Energy, U.S. Department of Defense and other federal agencies. The program focuses on sites requiring remediation of hazardous or radioactive wastes that were disposed of prior to the current laws and regulations. The program also currently provides oversight and long-term stewardship at 165 Minuteman II missile sites. In addition, the program has several field offices, which allow an on-site presence during federal facility cleanups.

The program evaluates and remediates federal National Priorities List (NPL) sites, non-NPL sites and sites on or proposed for the Registry of Abandoned or Uncontrolled Sites in Missouri. The program has primary responsibility for 99 of the 147 active hazardous waste substances sites in Missouri including six of 26 National Priority List sites.

The program promotes voluntary cleanups by allowing landowners to pay voluntarily for state oversight of hazardous substance cleanups. Upon satisfactory cleanup, the department will issue a letter of completed remediation, which will facilitate the transfer of real estate. Of 546 voluntary cleanup applications, 246 sites are completed with 183 sites currently active.

The department's Hazardous Waste Program has oversight of underground storage tanks and leaking underground storage tanks. The program oversees regulations governing the construction, installation, operation and closure of underground storage tanks and also is responsible for the investigation and remediation of all leaking petroleum underground storage tank sites.

The department's Hazardous Waste Program also is responsible for cleaning up contaminated dry cleaner sites using a fund capitalized with fees paid by the dry cleaning industry.

Land Reclamation Program

The Land Reclamation Program works with the mining industry and Missouri communities to minimize the environmental and health-related impacts of mining activities in Missouri. The program is empowered by law to put into effect the regulations and statutes that regulate the state's mining industry.

The Land Reclamation Program carries out Missouri's Abandoned Mine Land program to reclaim abandoned coal mine sites within Missouri that have safety hazards or environmental problems. Abandoned mine lands are defined as lands mined prior to August 1977, which use 100 percent federal funds for reclamation. Missouri's abandoned mine land emergency program allows the Land Reclamation Program to reduce or control emergency situations in which adverse effects of past coal mining pose an immediate danger to the public.

The Land Reclamation Program is responsible for the issuance of strip mining permits related to the mining of industrial and metallic minerals including coal, limestone, sand, gravel, clay, tar sands, barite, sandstone, granite and traprock. As part of the permitting process mining companies must provide financial assurance to the Land Reclamation Program that provides for reclamation should the company not be able to complete this activity. Reclamation bonds ensure that sites are properly graded, replanted and maintained after mining ceases. After the mining company completes all required reclamation, the commission releases these financial assurances and relieves the responsible company of any further reclamation liabilities.

Land Reclamation Commission

The Land Reclamation Commission is the ruling body over Missouri's mining requirements set forth in three separate state statutes. These mining statutes protect public health, safety and the environment from the adverse effect of mining and assure the beneficial restoration of mined lands. The seven-member commission includes three statutory and four public members. The statutory members are the state geologist, the director of the Missouri Department of Conservation and the staff director of the Clean Water Commission. With Senate approval, the governor appoints four public members. Only

Solid Waste Management Program

The department's Solid Waste Management Program works to help Missourians and Missouri businesses properly manage their solid waste to protect public health and the environment.

The department's Solid Waste Management Program issues permits and permit modifications for solid waste disposal and processing facilities. Staff reviews proposed permits for facility design, construction, operations and proper monitoring controls. Program staff inspects permitted facilities quarterly and oversees the operations of these facilities to ensure that they comply with these permit conditions and do not have a negative impact on human health and the environment. In addition, staff investigates reports of illegal dumping across the state. Enforcement activities are conducted when necessary to ensure proper solid waste management. Program staff teaches state regulations to landfill operators. Other focuses of the program include planning, financial and technical assistance and educational activities that inform the public of the relationship between individual consumption and solid waste management.

Passage of Missouri's Solid Waste Omnibus Law in 1990 created the Solid Waste Advisory Board. The membership of this board today consists of the chair of the executive board of each of Missouri's 20 recognized solid waste management districts, three citizen members and two representatives from the solid waste industry appointed by the director of the Missouri Department of Natural Resources.

The Solid Waste Advisory Board advises the department about the effectiveness of the department's technical assistance programs; problems experienced by the solid waste management districts in developing and implementing solid waste management plans; the effect of proposed rules and regulations upon districts; criteria for awarding grants from the solid waste management fund; solid waste management issues pertinent to the districts; the development of solid waste disposal alternatives and other related issues.

Water Protection and Soil Conservation Division

Protecting and enhancing the quality of Missouri's water resources is the responsibility of the Water Protection and Soil Conservation Division. The division oversees and integrates technical environmental programs for public drinking water protection, soil and water conservation and water pollution control. The department's regional offices also report to this division.

The Clean Water, Safe Drinking Water and the Soil and Water Conservation Districts' commissions are the three policymaking bodies assigned to this division. The division works closely with the Department of Health and Senior Services, the Department of Conservation, the Department of Agriculture, the Department of Economic Development, the University of Missouri, the U.S. Department of Agriculture, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and numerous local partners in protecting the state's water quality.

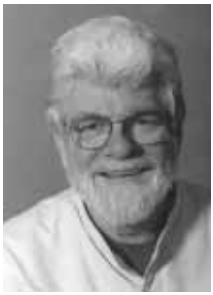
Water Protection Program

Supervising the design, construction, operation and maintenance of public water supply systems is the responsibility of the department's Water Protection Program. Technical assistance on water-supply problems related to cities, water districts, subdivisions, mobile home parks and other facilities is provided. The program also offers training for public water supply operators.

The department's Water Protection Program requires monitoring of contaminants in public water systems and provides assistance in data interpretation and data management.

Financial assistance is provided through grants and low-interest loans to improve public health protection, regulatory compliance and customer affordability at public water systems.



Safe Drinking Water Commission

The Safe Drinking Water Commission establishes criteria and procedures for administering the drinking water state revolving fund, which makes federal and state loan funds available to communities to upgrade and improve their drinking water systems.

The Safe Drinking Water Commission is a nine-member commission appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate. Five members represent the public and four members represent public water systems. The commission helps the department's Water Protection Program to ensure that Missouri's public water systems are providing safe drinking water. The commission adopts rules to carry out the Missouri Safe Drinking Water Law and Federal Safe Drinking Water Act.

The department's Water Protection Program also regulates pollutants entering the state's waters by issuing operating permits for the construction and operation of wastewater discharges. In addition, the program monitors statewide water quality conditions through stream and lake sampling and other means.

This program handles planning, permit issuance, compliance monitoring, financial and technical assistance and enforcement.

Planning activities establish water quality standards, identify water-pollution problems, develop solutions and help implement those solutions.

Permits set wastewater treatment levels necessary to protect water quality. These treatment levels are contained as conditions in permits issued to municipal, industrial and other dischargers.

The program evaluates discharge-monitoring data and permits, and performs inspections and investigations to determine whether facilities are in compliance with applicable laws and regulations.

In addition to municipal, industrial and other point-source discharges, the department's Water Protection Program provides financial and technical assistance for the control of nonpoint pollution caused by agriculture, mining, transportation and other activities.

The department's Water Protection Program provides loans and grants to local governments to assist in the construction of wastewater, drinking water and storm water facilities. This program also performs engineering reviews and inspections to ensure adequate design and construction of facilities.

Soil and Water Conservation Program

The mission of the department's Soil and Water Conservation Program is to administer the policies and general programs developed by the Soil and Water Districts Commission for saving Missouri's soil and water through the conservation districts in their work with landowners.

The primary responsibility of the department's Soil and Water Conservation Program is to assist districts as they promote soil and water conservation to their constituents. The districts provide financial incentives and technical assistance to agricultural landowners as well as educate their communities through field days, tours and programs in schools.

Other program activities include encouraging concentrated land treatment in special watershed areas, updating a statewide soil survey, administering statewide Cost-Share and Loan-Interest Share programs and providing educational programs. The program also provides direct assistance to the 114 districts through grants and training.

Geological Survey and Resource Assessment Division

The Geological Survey and Resource Assessment Division is responsible for Missouri's land, water and mineral resources and their protection, potential use and development. The division restores land survey monuments, provides survey data, protects groundwater supplies, defines hazardous areas such as those subject to earthquake or catastrophic collapse and protects the public by assuring the construction of safe dams.

The results of studies conducted by the division are available to the public through published reports, maps and other documents. Today some information on water resources, geology, well locations, mineral resources and geologic hazards is provided using computerized geographic information system (GIS) databases. Professional staff members conduct seminars, workshops and field trips. They also are available to assist in solving a wide variety of geological, water resource, dam safety and land surveying problems.

The division administers a cooperative program with the U.S. Geological Survey to obtain certain types of water resource information and make it available to the public. It also coordinates with the U.S. Geological Survey on the National Cooperative Geologic Mapping Program, a national effort to complete geologic maps for all states at a 1:24,000 scale.

Other responsibilities of the division include work carried out under contract with funding through grants and fees. A number of activities relating to oil and gas, geological studies of waste sites, spill responses, land survey work and enforcement of well drilling law, are funded through agreements with other agencies or supported by fees.

Division Director and State Geologist

The division director serves as the State Geologist and is responsible for ensuring that statutory obligations are met. The state geologist is the administrator of the Missouri State Oil and Gas Council and a member of the Land Reclamation Commission, the Well Installation Board, the Missouri Boundary Commission and the Geologist Registration Board.

Geological Survey Program

The Geological Survey Program uses geologic information and knowledge to assist Missouri citizens in the management of natural resources for a higher standard of living and healthy natural environment. The program gathers data that describes and interprets Missouri's vast geological resources. Accurate, reliable information about the distribution and composition of geologic materials is vitally important for making informed land-use decisions. This information is necessary for locating mineral deposits, managing groundwater resources, selecting waste disposal facilities and evaluating geologic hazards. This program receives thousands of requests for geological assistance each year.

MIMI GARSTANG
Director, Geological Survey and Resource Assessment Division

Staff in this program also conducts geologic field investigations that provide technical assistance to the public and government agencies. These services include determining the environmental hazards posed by waste disposal sites and spills of hazardous materials. Geological principals also are applied to minimize the impact of chemical releases or waste spills.

Missouri is blessed with vast quantities of fresh groundwater. The Geological Survey Program works to protect this valuable but fragile resource from contamination. In addition to assistance provided in siting waste disposal facilities, the program also implements the Well Drillers and Oil and Gas Acts, and the Underground Injection Control Regulations of the Safe Drinking Water Act. Working with industry and the public, well construction standards are set. The program issues permits to pump installers and drillers of water, monitoring, mineral exploration and heat pump wells to assure that wells are constructed in such a way as to protect groundwater supplies.

State Oil and Gas Council

The State Oil and Gas Council fosters and promotes the orderly development and production of Missouri's oil and gas resources. The council also works to ensure that wastes generated by oil and gas wells are managed properly to minimize the impact on the environment. In addition, the council protects groundwater

Land Survey Program

The division's Land Survey Program provides information and resources for the economical and accurate location of all private and public boundaries in the state. The program is responsible for the restoration and preservation of the original corner monuments established by the General Land Office for the U.S. Public Land Survey System. The division maintains a records storage and retrieval system for all land survey records and geodetic data. Other activities include the development of regulations for uniform professional surveying standards, the development of statewide Geographic Reference Systems and the restoration of state and county boundaries.

Water Resources Program

The Water Resources Program responsibilities are largely defined in the water resource law, which addresses the development, conservation and utilization of the state's water resources. The program provides technical assistance in groundwater and surface water resource hydrology, planning and water use records to assist state agencies and communities in meeting their water-related needs. Functional units of the program include river basin planning and policy, groundwater, surface water, water use economics, wetland conservation, source water protection, dam and reservoir safety and water planning.

The river basin planning and policy staff coordinates issues relating to major river basins that affect Missouri. Geologists and hydrologists respond to inquiries from the public concerning water quality and quantity, spring systems, groundwater recharge, caves and cave systems and aquifer characteristics. Staff cooperates with the U.S. Geological Survey in processing and publishing water level and flood data from the state's observation well and stream gauging network. Technical support is provided in surface water such as reviewing projects and reports for hydropower, water supply, flood protection, in-stream flow and drought planning and response.

The Dam and Reservoir Safety staff and the Dam and Reservoir Safety Council are responsible for ensuring that all new and existing non-agricultural, non-federal dams 35 feet or more in height meet minimum safety standards as established by the Dam and Reservoir Safety Law (Chapter 236.400–236.500 of the Revised Statutes of Missouri). The program provides technical leadership to the Climate and Weather Committee of the Statewide Drought Assessment Committee and technical assistance to those involved with wetlands.

Division of Administrative Support

Telephone: (573) 751-3016 / FAX: (573) 751-7749

The Division of Administrative Support provides the Department of Natural Resources administrative and management support. Budget development, internal audit, accounting, human resources, information technology activities, procurement, grants management and general services are functions performed by the division.

Budget is responsible for developing the department's annual operating and capital improvements budgets as well as the preparation of management and legislative reports.

Internal audit reviews departmental activities to evaluate internal controls and compliance with laws, regulations and policies. Additionally, the efficiency and effectiveness of an entity in meeting the organization's goals and objectives are reviewed.

Accounting has several major functions: purchasing, fixed assets, accounts payable, and maintenance; grant, project and fund accounting, reporting and monitoring; grant and fund fiscal management receipt processing; and special projects and analyses.

Human resources provides assistance to all divisions in the area of human resources administration and position classification, implements the provisions of the state personnel law, interprets employee benefits, conducts personnel research, coordinates training and provides career counseling and maintains personnel records for all employees of the department.

Management information services is responsible for coordinating and implementing information technology activities in the Department of Natural Resources. The coordination performed by the program provides a comprehensive capability to enter, store and process management information relevant to the development and conservation of natural resources in Missouri.

General services is responsible for maintenance and operation of the agency's motor pool, maintenance and operation of a centralized mailroom and supply center, surplus of departmental property and coordination of telecommunications.

Minority Environmental Literacy Advisory Committee

The Minority Environmental Literacy Advisory Committee was established under RSMo, 640.240.

Members of the Minority Environmental Literacy Advisory Committee are the director of the Department of Natural Resources or the director's designee (who will serve as chairperson); three representatives of universities and colleges appointed by the affirmative action office of the respective institutions; the commissioner of the Department of Higher Education or the commissioner's designee; the state affirmative action office; and five at-large members appointed by the governor, with the advice and consent of the Senate. The five gubernatorial-appointed members shall be high school teachers and college professors and shall be selected to represent various regions of the state.

The committee is to award scholarships to minority and under-represented students to pursue environmentally related courses of study. The purpose is to increase the number of minority and under-represented students who are enrolled in environmentally related courses of study.

Division of State Parks

This division develops and manages state parks and historic sites, and coordinates statewide programs in the areas of outdoor recreation and trails.

In addition to providing Missourians with recreational opportunities, this division preserves natural and historically significant resources. The division is funded primarily through the parks-and-soils sales tax, which was approved by voters in 1984, 1988 and 1996.

State parks and historic sites

Protecting, developing and interpreting a well-balanced system of areas of outstanding natural and historic importance are the functions of the Division of State Parks. The state park system includes diverse recreational opportunities, ranging from wilderness areas to trout parks. The park system includes 83 state parks and historic sites totaling more than 140,000 acres plus 61,000 acres in the Roger Pryor Pioneer Backcountry. More than 17 million people visit the system annually.

State parks protect outstanding natural features and interpret their significance for the general public through various means including programs, exhibits and brochures. Recreational opportunities include camping, picnicking, swimming, boating, fishing and hiking.

State historic sites commemorate events or structures of statewide historical importance and honor persons of state and national importance. Development of these historic sites is oriented toward restoration. These sites include interpretation by signs, tour guides, booklets or museum exhibits.

Missouri State Park Advisory Board

The board was created in 1986 to advise the department on matters relating to state parks and historic sites. The board, appointed by the governor, is composed of Don Johnson, Festus, chair; Gerald Greiman, St. Louis; Howard J. Miedler, Moberly; Anne O'Connell Albrecht, St. Louis; Robert D. Miller, Centertown; Wayne L. Morton, Osceola; Larry Russell, Springfield; Elizabeth Buckrucker, Holt; and Jeanne Kirkton, St. Louis.

Grant Management

The Division of State Parks is responsible for administering federal grant programs that provide financial assistance to individuals, groups and public entities for a variety of purposes.

The division administers funds from the Recreational Trails Program, which provides federal money for the development of trails. The Missouri Trails Advisory Board makes recommendations on grant awards and policy issues for the grant program. This advisory board is made up of representatives of trail user groups, including pedestrian, equestrian, off-highway motorcycling, all-terrain vehicle riding, bicycling, mountain bicycling, accessibility and general trail use.

The division also administers and monitors projects funded through the federal Land and Water Conservation Fund (LWCF) program, which provides federal funds for local outdoor recreation projects. The LWCF grants are awarded through the State Inter-Agency Council for Outdoor Recreation (SIACOR). SIACOR awards and oversees grants, provides a forum for consideration of outdoor recreation problems in the state and provides advice regarding problem solving and planning. Division staff provides administrative services to SIACOR; notifies the public regarding availability of grant funds; evaluates grant proposals; makes recommendations regarding funding to SIACRO; administers projects through acquisition, construction and reimbursement phases; and performs follow-up inspections to assure compliance. In addition to administering grants, the division develops the Statewide Comprehensive Outdoor Recreation Plan.

SIACOR members include the commissioner of the Office of Administration; a representative from the University of Missouri; and directors of the Departments of Natural Resources, Agriculture, Conservation, Economic Development, Transportation and Social Services. The director of the Department of Natural Resources serves as council chair.

Thomas Hart Benton Homestead Memorial Commission

The Kansas City home of the late artist Thomas Hart Benton is a state historic site administered by the Division of State Parks.

Commissioners were selected for their personal knowledge of and friendship with Thomas Hart Benton, so as to be able to advise the department on the accurate restoration of his home, and the development of an interpretive program for visitors. The commission accomplished its original mission.

Truman State Office Bldg.
PO Box 749
Jefferson City 65102
Telephone: (573) 751-4905 / FAX: (573) 751-5399

Mission

Established in 1974, the Department of Public Safety is responsible for coordinating statewide law enforcement, criminal justice and public safety efforts for the purpose of ensuring a safe environment for Missouri citizens. The department's mission "will provide a safe and secure environment for all individuals through efficient and effective law enforcement, national defense, disaster preparedness, service to veterans and education."

The department is organized into 11 separate functional agencies: Office of the Director, Missouri Capitol Police, Division of Fire Safety, Division of Alcohol and Tobacco Control, Missouri State Highway Patrol, Missouri State Water Patrol, Missouri National Guard (Office of the Adjutant General), State Emergency Management Agency, Missouri Veterans' Commission and the Missouri Gaming Commission.

Office of the Director

The Director of Public Safety is appointed to this cabinet-level position by the governor, with the advice and consent of the Senate. The director is responsible for developing public safety programs, peace officer training and certification and providing legislative guidance on criminal justice issues. Additionally, the director is responsible for overseeing distribution of state and federal resources and funds in contracts for narcotics control, victims' assistance, crime prevention and juvenile justice. As the department's central management unit, the director's office coordinates departmental budget, personnel, legislative matters and related financial and administrative activities. The director's office is also responsible for the administration of specific programs conferred upon it by the legislature or governor. These programs are:

- Administration of federal Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act (JJDPA) funds, Delinquency and Youth Violence Prevention (Title V) funds and Juvenile Accountability Block Grant (JABG) funds from the U.S. Department of Justice for projects to improve juvenile justice in Missouri and provide staff support for the state Juvenile Justice Advisory Group (JJAG).
- Administration of federal Narcotics Control Assistance Program (NCAP) funds from the U.S. Department of Justice, Edward Byrne Memorial State & Local Law Enforcement Justice Administrative Grant Program (JAG) for state and local projects in the area of drug enforcement, crime control and community policing.
- Administration of federal Victims of Crime Act (VOCA); federal STOP Violence Against Women Act (VAWA); State Services to Victims Fund (SSVF); grants that provide funds to local victim service providers, law enforcement agencies, prosecutors and other public and private non-profit agencies to assist crime victims in Missouri.
- The Office for Victims of Crime is to ensure that people affected by crime are treated with fairness, dignity and respect, to open up lines of communication between the victim organizations and the government, and to maintain the statewide automated crime victim notification system (MoVANS) within the criminal justice system.
- Administration of the Domestic Violence Shelter Tax Credit Program, which provides state income tax credits to businesses and individuals who contribute at least $100 to shelters for victims of domestic violence in Missouri.
- Administration of the Peace Officer Standards and Training (POST) Program, which deals with the certification of peace officers who have received training specified by Chapter 590, RSMo and provide staff support for the Peace Officer Standards and Training (POST) Commission.
- Administration of excess military surplus property distributed to state and local law enforcement agencies to be used in counter-narcotics operations through the U.S. Department of Defense (DOD) Logistical Support Program and the Law Enforcement Procurement Program (1122).
- Administration of the Crime Laboratory Assistance Program including the disbursement of state funds to aid in the operation of the regional crime labs as specified in Chapter 650, RSMo, subject to appropriations.

Division of Homeland Security

The Division of Homeland Security works with and through others — including federal, state, and local officials, as well as the private sector, to develop a seamless, coordinated security and preparedness strategy for Missouri.

The Director of Homeland Security coordinates activities to promote unity of effort among federal, state, local, private sector, and citizen activities related to homeland security and preparednes. Further, the Director is the governor's principal advisor for homeland security. The director works with federal officials to obtain federal resources and coordinate policy development and information exchange, approves state homeland security grant requests, educates the public on homeland security and overall preparedness issues, supports volunteer efforts throughout the state, and ensures that state resources are directed toward safeguarding Missouri's citizens.

Since 1983, Missouri Capitol Police has been the primary law enforcement agency for the 72-acre state office building campus known as the Capitol Complex. Located within that area are: the State Capitol Building, Jefferson Building, Transportation Building, Supreme Court, James C. Kirkpatrick State Information Center, Broadway Building, Truman Building, Social Services Electronic Data Processing Building, State Health Laboratory, Governor's Mansion, Jefferson Landing historic site, associated parking facilities and grounds. In recent years, Capitol Police has expanded their services to include state agencies and facilities that have moved from the Capitol Complex to other areas in Jefferson City. Capitol Police has statute authority on all state owned/leased property in Cole County. Capitol Police oversee a computerized, centrally-monitored, fire/life safety/after-hours entry control system in the Capitol Complex buildings. Closed circuit television monitoring in strategic locations and automatic ring-down emergency telephones have been among several security improvements added since 1983.

Field Operations

Missouri Capitol Police officers patrol the buildings and grounds in their jurisdiction, 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Patrols are made on foot, by vehicle and on bicycle. Criminal investigations, medical emergencies, traffic accidents, security and fire alarms and security escorts are only a few of the many incidents and calls for service that officers provide to over 15,000 state employees and over 200,000 annual visitors to the seat of government.

Executive Protection

Since 1978, officers have staffed the Missouri Governor's Mansion. From this origin, officers branched out to the Capitol and became a full functioning police department. A team of specially trained and certified police officers are assigned on a full-time basis to the Missouri Governor's Mansion. Officers on this team provide residential security for the state's first family 24-hours a day. A stand-alone fire and security system with redundant monitoring at the Capitol Police communications office is complemented by a closed circuit television monitoring system used for the security and safety at the house and the grounds. Training has been provided for these officers by the U.S. Secret Service, Pennsylvania State Police and other executive protection agencies.

Capitol Police Sergeant Stacy Skiles (Handler) and Explosives Detection K-9 (Abby) are a part of the Department of Public Safety. Sgt. Skiles is a department delegate for workplace violence prevention, public relations and crime prevention, acts of liaison between Capitol Police and Facilities Management concerning safety and security equipment and issues with the Capitol Complex, analyzing, testing, acquiring and implementing officer equipment for field operations, making presentations in the areas of crime prevention and safety, coordinating with other police agencies to organize public events in support of public relations and functions as a shift sergeant.

Sgt. Skiles researched federal grants to acquire the Capitol Police Canine and implemented the explosives detection program which has literally saved countless dollars when buildings were not evacuated. She is responsible for the training, care, maintenance, and performance of the Capitol Police Explosives K-9. She and Abby are on call 24 hours a day, seven days a week. They work special events and high security details within the MCP jurisdiction, and are available to assist other local, state and federal law enforcement agencies when requested.

need police services in the Capitol Complex 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Communications operators utilize computer terminals that interface with the Missouri Uniform Law Enforcement System (MULES), the National Crime Information Center (NCIC), the Missouri Department of Revenue Motor Vehicle and Operator files, and other information systems. In addition to radio and telephone communications with the public and other agencies, communications operators are responsible for management of a fire/life safety monitoring system which includes fire, intrusion and "panic" alarms; after-hours building access for most complex facilities; and collection of weather-related information for implementation and dissemination of the State Employee's Hazardous Travel Policy.

Special Services

Capitol Police members provide specialized training and services on request. Special investigations involving suspected criminal conduct, site security surveys and programs covering personal safety and other safety-related issues have been provided at several sites in Jefferson City and other locations throughout the state.

The Missouri State Fire Marshal's office was established by the 76th Missouri General Assembly in 1973. Effective September 1985 through legislative reorganization, the office was renamed the Division of Fire Safety and was housed within the Missouri Department of Public Safety.

The Division is charged with oversight and enforcement of various programs to maintain the safety and well-being of the general public. Responsibilities include providing fire safety standards and inspections for all state licensed facilities; investigating all suspicious fires and explosions in the state for cause and origin as provided by law; regulating the use and sales of fireworks and licensing qualified fireworks operators (shooters); training and certification of fire fighters and emergency response personnel; inspecting and licensing of nonexempt boilers and pressure vessels; inspecting and issuance of operating permits for elevator-related equipment; inspecting and issuance of operating permits for amusement rides operating in the state of Missouri; and evaluation and issuance of practicing licenses for private fire investigators doing business in Missouri.

Fire Service Training

The Division of Fire Safety's Training Unit is responsible for the training and certification of over 25,000 fire fighters in the State of Missouri. In addition, the Training Unit's customers include representatives from law enforcement, private industry, emergency response personnel, and other state agencies. Since the implementation of the certification program in 1986, and as a result of HB 230, the division has trained and tested over 40,000 individuals, while offering 14 different courses and 15 levels of certification. The Missouri Division of Fire Safety is accredited through the International Fire Service Accreditation Congress and the Peace Officers Standards and Training Commission.

The training unit is also responsible for the Fire Fighter Training Contracts, National Fire Incident Reporting System, the State Fire Mutual Aid System and Fire Department Registration. When appropriated, the division also provides funding for cost-free training for all of the state's fire fighters and emergency response personnel.

Fire Inspection

The division has a well established Inspection unit comprised of two regional chief inspectors and eleven inspectors who are positioned statewide. The unit is statutorily responsible for conducting fire safety inspections of facilities/locations requiring licensing by various state agencies to include Department of Mental Health, the Department of Health and Senior Services, and the Division of Family Services. The inspections involve licensed/religious child care, senior citizen nutrition centers and state operated mental health homes/facilities. The unit also conducts courtesy inspections of public buildings to include county jails and public schools when requested. Each year the unit conducts approximately 12,500 fire safety inspections.

Fire Investigation

The Investigation Unit provides fire and explosive related investigative services to Missouri's fire service and law enforcement agencies. Sixteen field Fire Investigators and two supervisors are strategically located throughout the state and are on call 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Under RSMo, 320.230, the State Fire Marshal and his appointed investigators are responsible for investigating incidents involving the possibility of arson, explosion or related offenses as requested by the fire service, law enforcement and prosecuting attorneys within the state. Division investigators process an average of 1,300 scenes annually.

In addition, the Investigation Unit has six certified Computer Voice Stress Analysis (CVSA) operators who assist federal, state and local government when requested. The program also utilizes two accelerant detection and two explosive detection canines. These specially trained canines and their handlers respond to incidents throughout the state as requested.

Fireworks

The Division of Fire Safety is charged with enforcing RSMo, 320.106, which regulates the inspection and permitting of businesses relating to the fireworks industry in the State of Missouri. This statute requires prospective fireworks vendors and anyone requesting special fireworks displays to apply to the Division of Fire Safety for an annual permit to do business in Missouri. Over 1,500 permits were issued in 2004, generating $106,550 in revenues.

The division's duties include the testing and licensing of those individuals who discharge fireworks for outdoor public display and proximate (indoor) fireworks shows, such as those used in theaters, ballgames and concerts, which were previously exempt from the law. As of April 2005, 629 operators had been licensed generating $62,900, which will be deposited to the credit of the Fire Education Fund for no cost fire fighter training.

Along with permitting and licensing, the division is also responsible for the inspection of Missouri's fireworks vendors or display sites for safety and compliance with Missouri laws. Division investigators and inspectors are trained in the identification of illegal fireworks and explosives as well as proper handling procedures.

Private Fire Investigator Licensure

In the 2004 legislative session, House Bill 1195 was passed, creating the Licensed Private Fire Investigator program. This newly created program will allow for better oversight of individuals performing fire investigations for a fee in the State of Missouri. This legislation will allow the division, and the new Board of Licensed Private Fire Investigators, the authorization to license only qualified individuals. It will also allow for the ongoing monitoring of their performance to ensure ethical work practices, the investigation of any violations that may arise from their practice, and the implementation of any necessary measures against these individuals or organizations. No members are currently assigned to the the Board.

Boiler and Pressure Vessel Rules

Effective November 12, 1986, the division began enforcement of periodic inspections of boilers, including many hot water heaters and pressure vessels located in Missouri. All new installations or reinstallation and repair of used boilers and pressure vessels are required to meet the ASME Code and be registered with the National Board or receive a variance from the Boiler and Pressure Vessel Unit prior to operation. Objects that were in operation prior to November 12, 1986, may be grandfathered but still require periodic inspections. A certificate inspection is required every one or two years, depending on the type of object. Accidents to objects are investigated by the boiler and pressure vessel unit with repairs to be made by a national board "R" stamp holder.

Currently, the Boiler and Pressure Vessel Unit consists of six full time employees, including four Boiler and Pressure Vessel Inspectors who work throughout the state. To date, approximately 38,000 objects have been located and registered. Each year the unit generates an average of $420,000 in revenue for the state.

Amusement Ride Safety Act

In 1997, the 89th General Assembly enacted House Bill 276 relating to amusement ride safety. This legislation places certain requirements upon amusement ride owners/operators when a death or serious physical injury occurs as a result of the operation of an amusement ride. If an injury or death occurs under the purview of the statute, the Division of Fire Safety initiates an investigation into the cause of the accident. The legislation also places certain restrictions on the rider of an amusement ride. A violation of any restriction may result in criminal prosecution.

State law also requires the division to require annual safety inspectors on all amusement rides and for those rides to obtain state operating permits before being operated in the state. Additionally, the division staff has the authority to conduct spot-check inspections on the rides.

In 2004, the Division issued over 1,500 amusement ride operating permits grossing approximately $23,000 in revenues. Staff from the Elevator Safety program perform the duties required to support the Amusement Ride Safety Act. This program is overseen by a nine-member Amusement Ride Safety Board.

Elevator Safety Act

In 1994, the 86th General Assembly enacted House Bill 1035 creating the Elevator Safety Act. The legislation requires periodic safety inspections of every elevator and similar devices as specified in the statute. Upon an approved inspection, an operating certificate is issued.

Currently the Elevator Safety Unit employs nine full time employees including six Elevator/Amusement Ride Safety Inspectors. To date approximately 17,000 elevator type objects have been registered with the division. The program generates over $350,000 annually in state revenue.

This act established an Elevator Safety Board to develop and adopt a code of rules and regulations relating to the construction, maintenance, testing and inspection of all elevators and similar devices, as well as the evaluation of variance requests.

The Department of Liquor Control was established by the Liquor Control Act in 1934 and was restructured as a division within the Department of Public Safety in 1974. The Division of Liquor Control's name was changed to the Division of Alcohol and Tobacco Control in 2003. The Division of Alcohol and Tobacco Control's responsibilities are to enforce the liquor control laws under Chapters 311 and 312, RSMo, the youth access tobacco laws under Chapter 407, RSMo, and the rules and regulations of the Supervisor of Alcohol and Tobacco Control. The responsibilities are primarily threefold: revenue collection agency, liquor licensing agency, and liquor and tobacco enforcement agency.

The liquor control laws and the state's system of alcoholic beverage regulations are designed to ensure the public health and safety as affected by intoxicating beverages. The division supervises the state's revenue derived from the collection of excise taxes on alcoholic beverages and license fees. Additionally, state statute mandates that the division protect the consumer from tainted alcoholic products and the liquor industry from infiltration and exploitation by the criminal element.

The Division of Alcohol and Tobacco Control is headed by the supervisor of alcohol and tobacco control, who is authorized to appoint and employ all agents and assistants as are necessary for the proper enforcement and administration of the Liquor Control Law, Non-intoxicating Beer Law and Youth Access Tobacco Law. The Supervisor of Alcohol and Tobacco Control has the authority under Chapters 311 and 312, RSMo, to promulgate regulations, issue liquor licenses, suspend, revoke or fine liquor licenses for liquor control law violations. The Supervisor of Alcohol and Tobacco Control also has the authority under Chapter 407, RSMo, to issue citations prohibiting outlets from selling tobacco products for violations of youth access tobacco laws.

Administration, audit and collection section

The main function of the administration, audit and collection section of the Division of Alcohol and Tobacco Control is to assure general compliance with liquor control laws requiring the supervisor to collect excise taxes on all alcoholic beverages sold in this state. This section collects approximately $28 million annually from liquor, wine and beer taxes for deposit into the general revenue fund. This is achieved by auditors regularly conducting audits of licensed manufacturers, wineries, breweries and wholesalers. Auditors also perform retail audits to determine food sales qualifications of resorts and restaurants licensed to sell intoxicating liquor by the drink on Sundays. The auditing section is also responsible for overseeing the proper enforcement of Missouri price posting systems, primary American source of supply enforcement, product testing and registration.

In addition, this section annually collects and processes $3.8 million in license fees, processes 25,000 license applications and issues licenses after they are approved by the enforcement section and the supervisor. This section also acts as support to all aspects of the division with record retention, fiscal processing and data processing support.

Enforcement section

The Division of Alcohol and Tobacco Control's enforcement section consists of three districts. The enforcement section is staffed with two district supervisors, thirty special agents and five agents. Special agents and agents are assigned territories within the district. All enforcement personnel are required to attend the basic and advanced basic law enforcement classes conducted at the Missouri State Highway Patrol Law Enforcement Academy.

The enforcement section fulfills its responsibilities of enforcing the liquor control and tobacco laws by conducting routine inspections and investigations; following up on citizen complaints; taking applications for over 25,000 new or renewal liquor licenses annually; working in a cooperative and coordinating effort with local law enforcement; and providing information to licensees concerning liquor control laws, tobacco laws and regulations.

As of August 28, 2001 the division assumed enforcement of tobacco laws with the passage of HB 381. The division has implemented and enforces the provisions of Sections 407.924 to 407.934. The division is charged with enforcing youth access to alcohol and tobacco products and enforcing the laws to vendors who sell to minors.

Badges in Business

The Division of Alcohol and Tobacco Control, in partnership with the Division of Highway Safety, has successfully introduced an innovative enforcement program called Badges in Business. Badges in Business allows State Alcohol and Tobacco Control Agents to periodically be present on a licensed premise at the request of the retailer. Agents assist store employees in the detections of underage patrons and false identifications. As minors enter and attempt to purchase alcoholic beverages, they are detained and taken into custody. The division has found a vast majority of underage youth attempting to purchase alcohol using fake IDs. The success of this project is largely attributable to the assistance and cooperative efforts of the Division of Highway Safety, local prosecutors, licensed retailers and local law enforcement agencies.

Educational programs

In recent years the division has taken a more proactive stance by providing industry education and law enforcement education programs. Seminars for thousands of retail servers across the state have been conducted to reduce incidences of underage drinking and the over serving of intoxicating liquors to customers and the sale of tobacco products to underage individuals. Informational pamphlets are also provided to assist liquor licensees and tobacco outlets in compliance with liquor control laws and tobacco laws. The division provides liquor control and tobacco law training to local law enforcement personnel. Training includes providing booklets that present liquor control and tobacco laws and elements of

Summary

In recent years the division has streamlined the liquor application process, began enforcing the youth access tobacco laws, modernized revenue collections and enhanced the professionalism of personnel. Greater information is provided to the public, liquor and tobacco industry and local law enforcement to achieve an unprecedented level of efficiency and cost-effectiveness for Missouri citizens.

Since its inception in 1931, the Missouri State Highway Patrol has evolved from a highway patrolling force to a full service law enforcement agency with its primary emphasis remaining on traffic safety. The Patrol's original force, established by the enactment of Chapter 43, RSMo, was 55 officers and a handful of civilians. Today, there are 1,059 uniformed members, 104 of whom are assigned to the Gaming Division, and 1,099 civilians in the Missouri State Highway Patrol. The Patrol is responsible not only for law enforcement on our state's highways, but also motor vehicle and commercial vehicle inspections, driver's license examinations, criminal investigations, criminal laboratory analysis and research, public education on safety issues, and more.

The Missouri State Highway Patrol is nationally known for the success of its drug interdiction program. Because of its central location in the United States and its major interstates, Missouri has become a crossroad for the distribution of drugs. Programs such as Operation Cash Crop, the BAD WEED hotline, the methamphetamine hotline, and the drug-trained canine unit make the Patrol's drug interdiction program a success. In 2004, the Patrol's drug interdiction program resulted in the seizure of over 12,232 pounds of marijuana, 396 pounds of cocaine, 4.5 pounds of methamphetamine, and 19 pounds of heroin, in addition to quantities of other illegal drugs. In connection with the drug interdiction program, 213 arrests were made and 26 weapons were seized. In 2004, 2,788 methamphetamine laboratory incidents were conducted, leading to the seizure of 1,114 operational clandestine methamphetamine laboratories.

Missouri's Automated Fingerprint Identification System (AFIS) is maintained and operated at the Patrol's Criminal Records and Identification Division. The system houses over 1.7 million tenprints. The system allows for the comparison of a set of fingerprints to the more than 1.7 million prints on file in a matter of minutes. The system can also compare a latent fingerprint from a crime scene to the 10,000,000+ fingerprints in the system (10 fingers per person) as well as to the other "unsolved" latent prints housed in the system. AFIS has proven to be an exceptional identification tool for law enforcement agencies throughout the state in identifying and tracking criminals, identifying persons assuming another's identity, identifying persons who were at a crime scene, and identifying deceased persons found without identification.

The Missouri State Highway Patrol's Training Division is the state's training center for Drug Abuse Resistance Education (D.A.R.E.). In this capacity, the Patrol is serving as the statewide coordinator for D.A.R.E. taught by law enforcement officers in Missouri.

In October 1997, the Patrol activated three major crash investigation teams including a total of six officers. In August 1998, three officers were added to the existing teams. In March 1999, a fourth team was created, bringing the total number of officers assigned to 12. The office locations of Higginsville, Jackson, Wentzville and Springfield were chosen as the best sites in which to serve the main population of the state. The teams were formed in an effort to bring the Patrol to a higher level of expertise and reporting in the field of accident investigation. In 2004, approximately 217 full reconstructions were completed.

These are just a few of the programs that the Patrol has been tasked with by the state to ensure the safety of the citizens of Missouri. During its first 43 years, the Patrol answered directly to the governor; however, during the government reorganization of 1974, it was placed under the Department of Public Safety.

The superintendent commands the Patrol, with the help of an assistant superintendent who is second-in-command. A captain commands each of the nine troops and answers to one of the five majors who make up the superintendent's staff. Twenty divisions, organized under five bureaus each directed by a major, lend administrative support to, and exercise technical control over, the troops.

Executive Offices

The Professional Standards Division ensures integrity and fairness in the Patrol's dealings with the citizens it serves and with its employees. It also establishes consistency and uniformity within the troops/divisions and assists the Patrol in accomplishing its goals and objectives.

The Public Information and Education Division prepares news releases, arranges press conferences, creates brochures and disseminates information to the news media and the general public. The division coordinates the Patrol's statewide traffic safety education program and is responsible for the Safety Education Center (Patrol museum) open to the public Monday–Friday (except holidays) from 8 a.m.–5 p.m.

In 1997, the position of Legal Counsel was created. The Patrol's legal counsel is an advisor to the superintendent and his staff.

Field Operations Bureau

The state of Missouri is divided into nine troops with headquarters in Lee's Summit, Macon, Kirkwood, Springfield, Poplar Bluff, Jefferson City, Willow Springs, St. Joseph and Rolla. The Field Operations Bureau supervises all field activities.

The Aircraft Division assists in all phases of traffic law enforcement; in manhunts and searches for lost or missing persons; and during major disasters, such as floods, tornadoes, or

Criminal Investigation Bureau

The Crime Laboratory Division analyzes evidence found at the scene of crimes throughout the state. Crime laboratories in Jefferson City, Macon, Park Hills, Springfield, Willow Springs and St. Joseph provide services to local law enforcement agencies at no cost. Initially, the American Society of Crime Laboratory Directors Laboratory Accreditation Board accredited the Crime Laboratory in 1985. It has been re-accredited every five years since. The Patrol Crime Laboratory is responsible for managing Missouri's Combined DNA Index System (CODIS) database. In 2004, Senate Bill 1000 was signed into law. This new law expanded Missouri DNA collections to include all felons, where previously, DNA was collected only from violent felons. This bill increases annual DNA collections from 2,200 per year to 28,000 per year.

The Division of Drug and Crime Control provides criminal investigators specializing in the investigation of narcotics, criminal intelligence, explosives disposal, field investigations, lottery enforcement, missing persons, and motor vehicle theft to assist various criminal justice agencies—federal, state, and local—throughout the state.

The Governor's Security Division provides protection for the governor and the governor's family. The division also provides security to the lieutenant governor, at his request when acting as governor, as well as to visiting governors and other dignitaries.

Gaming Division members perform background investigations on gaming boat operators and upper-level management and enforce Gaming Commission rules/regulations and state laws on Missouri riverboats. Each operating riverboat must have at least one Gaming Division officer on board during all operating hours. The division also regulates bingo in Missouri, performing background checks on suppliers for bingo operations and enforcing state laws regarding the game.

Technical Services Bureau

The Communications Division operates a statewide voice communications network from the nine troop headquarters on a 365-day/24-hour basis. More than 70 radio sites located throughout the state provide radio coverage in the 42 MHz band. In addition to operating the radio network, the division members receive calls and walk-in visits from the public. This division communicates critical, time-sensitive information received and disseminated by radio to officers on patrol, and communicates and coordinates traffic-safety and criminal apprehension activities with other law enforcement jurisdictions on a statewide basis.

The division operates a computer assisted dispatch system and is provided near instantaneous access to nationwide criminal justice information via the Missouri Uniform Law Enforcement Systems (MULES), the National Criminal Information Center (NCIC), and other criminal justice databases. The division manages the Patrol's state highway emergency hotline (800 525-5555, and wireless *55 program; the Missouri recorded road report system (800) 222-6400), and performs electronic maintenance on the Patrol's extensive communications network and telecommunications facilities. All Patrol communications equipment is purchased, installed and maintained by the Communications Division, with radio repair facilities located at General Headquarters and each troop headquarters. The division also conducts training and certification on operation of the MULES system for other law enforcement agency personnel.

The Patrol's Criminal Records and Identification Division (CRID) was officially designated by the Legislature in 1987, as the Central Repository of criminal history records for Missouri. Section 43.500 RSMo made reporting criminal history actions to the Central Repository mandatory for all police officers, prosecutors, clerks of courts and corrections facilities in Missouri. The Criminal Records and Identification Division disseminates criminal history record information through the Missouri Uniform Law Enforcement System (MULES) for criminal justice agencies, and disseminates criminal record information to the public by mail or at the criminal records public window at General Headquarters. The Central Repository is the single point of contact for criminal history information exchanged between Missouri and the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI). Criminal Records and Identification Division also maintains the sex offender registration file for Missouri, which can be accessed by the public via the Internet. This division also manages the Uniform Crime Reporting program.

The Information Systems Division (ISD) manages information technology solutions and computer network services for the Patrol and the Department of Public Safety. The division manages data repositories for wanted/missing persons, stolen property, criminal records, traffic accident and arrest records, drug and alcohol offender records, and other related criminal justice information. ISD also supports the criminal justice network and application systems that deliver this information to local, state and federal agencies connected to the network. This network includes connections to the National Crime Information Center, the National Law Enforcement Telecommunications System, the National Crime Information Bureau, the Missouri Department of Revenue, and other regional justice systems.

The Research and Development Division reviews, evaluates and makes recommendations on Patrol programs, policies and operating procedures. The division also conducts staff inspections, coordinates strategic planning, prepares written directives, monitors Patrol accreditation, coordinates the evidence control system, designs forms, develops reference materials, conducts general research and responds to requests for information as needed.

The Traffic Division is comprised of accident records, alcohol/drug offense records and fatal accident reporting system. The accident records section maintains traffic records for the Patrol and the statewide traffic accident records system. The alcohol/drug offense records section maintains a computerized listing of all persons convicted in Missouri courts for driving while intoxicated. This section also contains the Uniform Complaint and Summons audit unit. The fatal accident reporting system performs in-depth research on causes of fatality accidents and forwards this information to a computerized database in Washington, D.C.

Administrative Services Bureau

The Budget and Procurement Division prepares the budget, maintains records of all federal and state purchases and expenditures for the Patrol, maintains a perpetual inventory of all equipment and supplies, prepares the payroll, and administers the Patrol insurance program.

The Human Resources Division recruits, tests, selects, and maintains records of civilian and uniformed employees; monitors agency personnel policies and actions to ensure compliance with federal and state laws and regulations; and coordinates the Patrol's retirement, evaluation and promotional systems.

The Training Division provides in-service and continuing education programs and courses for uniformed and civilian employees, certified basic and career-enhancement courses for full-time law enforcement officers, and coordinates and conducts statewide Drug Abuse Resistance Education (D.A.R.E.) training.

Support Services Bureau

The Commercial Vehicle Enforcement Division operates 24 weigh stations and 24 portable scale units in an effort to provide uniform enforcement of the laws and regulations that govern the operations of commercial motor vehicles.

The Construction and Maintenance Division plans and supervises construction of all capital improvements. It also oversees the repair, remodeling and maintenance of Patrol properties throughout the state and conducts regular inspections to ensure efficient workmanship.

The Driver Examination Division develops standards, policies and procedures for the driver examination program, including the commercial driver licensing program. It constructs the written tests for operators, chauffeurs and motorcycle operators licenses and aids in the preparation of the Missouri Driver's Guide.

The Motor Equipment Division directs the maintenance, replacement and general operation of the Patrol's fleet. It also is responsible for policies controlling the expenses for fleet operation.

The Motor Vehicle Inspection Division collects fees and monitors the activities of mechanics and stations that have been licensed to inspect vehicles in the state. This division also administers an emission inspection program in the St. Louis area, the VIN/salvage title inspection program, and coordinates Patrol involvement in school bus inspection.

History

In 1959, legislation was enacted to create the Missouri Boat Commission. The purpose of the commission was to make the waters of the state safe for boating and other water-related activities through law enforcement, registration, inspection and educational programs. In 1974, the Omnibus State Reorganization Act transferred the Missouri Boat Commission to the Department of Public Safety, and the agency was named the Division of Water Safety. In 1989, the agency name was changed to the Missouri State Water Patrol. Since 1959, the authorized number of patrol officers has grown from eight to 99 highly trained professionals.

The Missouri State Water Patrol is a statewide law enforcement agency specializing in the regulation of waterways and boating safety. They operate in a quasi-military fashion with authority being delegated by rank. The commissioner is appointed by the governor and holds the rank of colonel. The commissioner determines policy for the water patrol. Second in command and assistant to the commissioner is the assistant commissioner, who holds the rank of lieutenant colonel. Next in command are the administrative services commander and the field services commander, who hold the rank of major. The administrative services commander is responsible for supervision of all administrative services of the water patrol, and the field services commander is responsible for supervision of all field activities and operations of the water patrol. The state is divided into six districts with a captain in charge of each district. District captains are responsible for supervision of all field activities in their respective districts. Patrol officers in each district are responsible for carrying out the policies of the commissioner.

Mandated Programs

Pursuant to RSMo, 306.124, the Missouri State Water Patrol is responsible for the uniform marking of the waterways in the State of Missouri through placement of aids to navigation and regulatory markers. Applications for buoys must be submitted to MSWP, at which time a public hearing is scheduled and notice of the hearing is published. Results of an investigation conducted by an MSWP officer of the affected area as well as testimony from the hearing are provided to the commissioner, who approves or disapproves the application.

RSMo, 306.130 authorizes regattas, motorboat and other watercraft races, marine parades, tournaments, parasail operations and exhibitions on waters of this state after determining that an event will not create conditions of excessive danger for the participants, observers and operators of other watercraft nor unduly disrupt navigation. An application for permission to hold an event must be filed with the MSWP prior to the event.

In accordance with RSMo, 301.560, Water Patrol Officers perform marine dealer inspections subsequent to an application for licensure as a boat manufacturer or boat dealer.

To address boating and water safety, the Missouri State Water Patrol administers a safe boating course. This water safety education program is directed toward Missouri children in the elementary and secondary school systems. Programs are taught by Water Patrol Officers during the winter months, primarily November through March. The goal is to teach water safety to future boaters while in a stable classroom environment. It is believed that knowledge and awareness from educational programs, in conjunction with law enforcement, have reduced injury and fatality rates associated with water-related accidents; therefore, in 2004, the legislature enacted legislation requiring boat operators born after January 1, 1984, to obtain a certification card from an approved boating safety course.

In Missouri the number of boats and their use on recreational waters has increased over the past years. The major lakes of Missouri and the Mississippi and Missouri Rivers account for approximately 275,000 acres with over 8,000 miles of shoreline, not including the numerous tributaries and popular float streams across the state. As of January 2005, there were 336,000 boats registered in Missouri. The number of boats using Missouri waterways also includes approximately 200,000 watercraft not requiring registration and an additional 30,000 out-of-state watercraft.

JAMIE A. POINTER
Executive Secretary
Missouri State Water Patrol

In 2004, there were 293 boating accidents reported, resulting in 126 injuries and 15 fatalities with an additional 19 drownings reported on state waterways. The total number of accidents, injuries and fatalities has decreased over the past years, even though the number of watercraft has increased. Professional enforcement policies, education and safety awareness have been contributing factors to these reductions.

In addition to patrolling the state's recreational waters and enforcing state law, the Water Patrol provides many other services to the public. Services include public safety exhibits; boat safety inspection stations; boat and motor verifications; authorization of regulatory markers and navigational aids; issuing permits for regattas, races and organized fishing events plus patrolling those events; investigation of citizen complaints, navigational obstructions, boating and water-related accidents and criminal activities; drug eradication and coordinated enforcement activities with other agencies; and recovery of accident victims.

Coordinated Activities

Flood Duty–The water patrol provides rescue and recovery assistance during flooding conditions. The division works closely with the State Emergency Management Agency and various other state and local agencies requesting flood assistance. The water patrol is one of the few agencies with proper equipment and experience to work in flooding conditions.

Dive Team–Every year, members of the Water Patrol Dive Team conduct an average of 38 dive operations to recover drowning or boating accident victims, or recover criminal evidence in felony cases. Dive team members are fully trained for dive operations in lakes, rivers, ponds, etc. In 2004, water patrol divers logged 1,800 hours for dive operations.

Assistance–As a police agency, the Water Patrol often assists other agencies in emergency situations. These situations include searches for fugitives and missing persons, felony criminal investigations, drug eradications and specialized enforcement activities. The Water Patrol offers specialized departmental resources including personnel for these coordinated activities.

The Missouri National Guard is the Hometown Guard working to serve Missourians and the United States. The Missouri Guard is an active participant in emergency management and response for the state and routinely deploys forces worldwide to perform federal missions as a partner in the Army and Air Force, including combat missions and operations other than war.

BRIG. GEN. KING SIDWELL
Adjutant General
Office of Adjutant General

People–Approximately 11,000 men and women serve in the Army and Air National Guard units based in approximately 65 communities across the state. They are trained in hundreds of specific skills, most with direct application to civilian work and professions.

Roles and Missions–Unique among all the nation's armed forces, the National Guard has a dual state and federal role under the U.S. Constitution.

The guard is Missouri's force in times of disaster and emergency. State missions include helping Pierce City in the aftermath of the tornadoes in May of 2003, helping the community of Union recover from flash flooding in the spring of 2000, and a hunt for a murder suspect in Benton County in 1997.

The guard is a federal reserve force, fully accessible to the president for short-notice duty in times of national emergency. Federal missions have kept Missouri Army and Air National Guard units very busy since the terrorist attacks on our nation on Sept. 11, 2001. The Missouri National Guard has seen almost 7,000 Citizen-Soldiers and Airmen mobilized overseas in support of the global war on terrorism and homeland security roles here in the United States. Many of the deployments have lasted more than one year.

State duty is performed under orders of the governor, the guard's peacetime commander in chief. The governor appoints the Adjutant General, who wears the two stars of a major general and oversees the Army and Air National Guard units assigned to the state by the federal government. He is advised by a state military council of senior leaders of the Army and Air National Guard, including the commanders of each major unit in the state.

The Missouri National Guard provides a Weapons of Mass Destruction Civil Support Team (WMD-CST) to support state and local authorities in the event of an incident involving weapons of mass destruction. This highly trained team is capable of deploying rapidly to assist local first responders in determining the nature of a domestic WMD-NBC incident, provide medical and technical advice, and pave the way for identification and arrival of follow-on state and federal military response assets.

Another homeland security tool available to the Missouri National Guard Adjutant General, and in turn, the governor, is the Chemical, Biological, Radiological, Nuclear or High Yield Explosive Enhanced Response Force (CERF Team). The CERF Team is specially trained to respond to a chemical, biological, radiological, nuclear, or high-yield explosive (CBRNE) incident and assist local, state and federal agencies in conducting consequence management by providing capabilities to conduct personnel decontamination, emergency medical services, casualty search and extraction and perimeter security.

The National Guard Bureau, a joint agency of the U.S. Army and Air Force, provides peacetime federal oversight of National Guard units. While the governor commands the guard on a day-to-day basis, most costs are paid with federal funds. That includes the regular pay for soldiers and airmen of the guard, except when they are on a state emergency mission. The federal funding and a force of full-time, federally paid employees ensure the readiness of the guard for federal missions or state duty if called on by the governor. The federal government pays approximately 95 percent of the annual cost of the guard.

With its ability to perform federal duty or state duty as the need arises, the guard is the most capable and cost effective of all the components of the nation's armed forces. While National Guard units and members can perform federal duty in the same manner as members of the Army, Air Force, Navy and Marine Corps Reserves, only National Guard units have the constitutional responsibility to serve at home during emergencies.

Men and women of the National Guard receive training and skills, work ethic, physical fitness and leadership that benefit their communities and civilian employers. While serving their state and nation, they earn GI Bill and other educational benefits, including state funded educational support and matching scholarships provided by many Missouri colleges and universities, unique to the National Guard.

The Missouri National Guard works with community groups in drug demand reduction programs while also supporting local, state and federal agencies in drug supply reduction efforts. Other innovative readiness training projects let guard units train by working on projects benefiting their communities.

The Missouri National Guard is also involved in several initiatives working to make Missouri a better place to live. The Missouri Air and Army National Guard work together with the Missouri Department of Health and Senior Services to operate Camp Guardian. The camp provides mentally and/or physically challenged citizens with an annual summer camp at the Lake of the Ozarks.

The Missouri National Guard Military Funeral Honors Program coordinates approximately 23 funerals for veterans across the state every day. The program began in July 1999 and coordinates funeral honors for every Missouri veteran. Anyone interested in funeral honors for their family member should inform their funeral home director.

The Missouri National Guard also honors our living veterans with the Veterans Awards Program. The Missouri Legislature approved this program providing a medal and certificate to Veterans of World War II and the Korean War. Veterans or their family members wishing more information can contact the program director at (573) 638-9838.

The oldest Missouri National Guard units claim a military lineage to pre-territorial times, when militia units were organized in the St. Louis area under French and Spanish rule. With the passage of the Militia Act in 1903, volunteer militia as a self-supporting, independent organization under total state control vanished. The new National Guard consists of volunteer Citizen-Soldiers who receive federal funding, federal controls, and are prepared to carry out both state and federal missions. Without the National Guard, the nation's victories in the wars for the past 100 years may not have been possible. Missouri National Guard units or members saw service in the Mexican-American War, the Spanish-American War, World Wars I and II, Korea, the Berlin Crisis, Vietnam, Just Cause in Panama, Desert Shield and Storm, Somalia, Haiti, Joint Endeavor/Joint Guard in the Balkans, Operation Enduring Freedom, Operation Iraqi Freedom and routinely supported smaller contingencies or deployments on every continent except Antarctica.

To Learn More–The National Guard offers speakers to civic and community groups statewide through its Speaker's Bureau. Speakers can discuss local National Guard units, major guard activities, the guard's work in drug education and awareness or the guard's role in current national defense contingency missions.

Community and school groups visiting Jefferson City are also invited to tour the headquarters of the Missouri National Guard and State Emergency Management Agency at the Ike Skelton National Guard Training Site. Call (573) 638-9846 to arrange for a National Guard speaker or arrange a group tour of the Ike Skelton Training Site.

Tours of other Missouri National Guard facilities statewide, including training site and aviation bases and facilities, are available by contacting the local base or unit.

Requests for speakers, Jefferson City group tours or general information requests can be sent by e-mail to paomo@mo.ngb.army.mil; for the Missouri National Guard on the World Wide Web see www.moguard.com.

The State Emergency Management Agency (SEMA) coordinates and develops the State Emergency Operations Plan, oversees Missouri's disaster preparedness, floodplain management, hazard mitigation and public assistance programs and coordinates the state's response operations for all types of large-scale emergencies anywhere in the state.

Agency History: The Agency began in the 1950s when State Civil Defense programs operated as a high national priority to protect U.S. citizens from the potential threat of enemy attack. By the mid 1960s, the civil defense organizations focused on domestic emergencies such as floods, tornadoes and other state hazards. In 1967, the Missouri State Legislature moved Civil Defense and the Adjutant General's Office to the Department of Public Safety. The name of the office was then changed from the Division of Civil Defense to the Disaster Planning and Operations Office.

During the 1984 legislative session, the office name was changed to the State Emergency Management Agency (SEMA) to better reflect its current and expanding role. SEMA continues to operate in the Missouri Adjutant General's Office, within the Department of Public Safety. The governor appoints the SEMA director, who works for the Missouri Adjutant General.

SEMA's mission is to protect the lives and property of all Missourians when major disasters threaten public safety in any city, county or region. These disasters include major snow and ice storms, floods, tornadoes and severe weather, earthquakes, hazardous material incidents, nuclear power plant accidents, radiological or biological hazards, and terrorism.

SEMA updates the State Emergency Operations Plan, which directs the actions of Missouri state government departments and agencies in the event of any emergency requiring use of state resources and personnel.

State Emergency Operations Center

SEMA and the State Emergency Operations Center (SEOC) are located at the Missouri Army National Guard Ike Skelton Training Site, east of Jefferson City. SEMA has a state-of-the-art facility and technical equipment to direct Missouri's disaster emergency response and recovery operations. The SEOC enables all state agencies to come together during an emergency, gather information from local jurisdictions and quickly respond to the disaster.

Coordination of Preparedness Activities

Emergency preparedness is, by law, a joint responsibility of federal, state and local governments. SEMA coordinates emergency preparedness activities among these groups and both supervises and administers a number of key, federally funded programs to boost Missouri's level of preparedness for specific emergency preparedness categories. These programs are designed to help local governments across the state in such areas as natural disaster planning and assistance, earthquake preparedness, floodplain management and mitigation, emergency management assistance, radiological protection, public warning, training and education. SEMA's training courses in emergency preparedness are made available to schools, the public, first responders, local emergency management agencies and local officials.

Homeland Security Activities

Prior to September 11, 2001, SEMA developed a Terrorism Annex to Missouri's All Hazard Emergency Operations Plan, worked with local jurisdictions on terrorism training, exercises and developing local terrorism plans. SEMA is the State Administering Agency (SAA) for Homeland Security grants.

In 1999, SEMA administered the Department of Justice Terrorism Equipment Grants. Currently, SEMA administers the Department of Homeland Security Grants, which includes the Buffer Zone Protection grants, the Citizens Corps grants, the City/County grants, Emergency Management Program grants, the Fire Department grants, Interoperable Communications grants, the Law Enforcement Terrorism Prevention Program grants, and the Transit Security grants. Missouri has established 28 Homeland Security Response Teams.

State and Federal Disaster Assistance

When a disaster overwhelms the ability of local communities to respond and/or recover, the governor may declare a state of emergency for the impacted area. This action triggers the use of additional state government resources to augment the needs of local governments in combating disaster conditions.

In extreme circumstances, the governor makes a request to the president for a federal disaster declaration in accordance with Public Law 93-288. If issued by the president, such a declaration makes a wide variety of state-federal assistance programs available to individuals, families and businesses adversely affected by the disaster. In these cases, SEMA issues emergency information to the affected public and administers key resources and financial assistance to benefit affected jurisdictions and individuals in declared counties. Disaster assistance includes the state-federal Individuals and Households Program (IHP), which helps disaster victims meet basic needs and expenses. Other federal programs such as low interest loans from the Small Business Administration are also available. Federal Public Assistance funds may be available for local governments to help repair disaster damaged roads, bridges and other critical infrastructure. Communities may be eligible for cost-effective mitigation projects, which help prevent similar damages in the future.

Volunteer Agency Coordinator

SEMA's volunteer agency coordinator has a federal counterpart in FEMA. During a disaster, SEMA's volunteer agency coordinator works with state, private and volunteer agencies to coordinate disaster services for Missouri citizens. The coordinator provides technical assistance to FEMA, state and local emergency management officials and local long-term recovery committees on disaster survivor needs. The coordinator is the point-of-contact for the Missouri Disaster Recovery Partnership and the Missouri Voluntary Organizations Active in Disaster.

Disaster Declarations

In May 2004, Missouri received a Presidential Disaster Declaration for Severe Weather, Tornadoes, and Flooding impacting 37 Missouri counties. The Individuals and Households Program helped families, and the Small Business Administration helped families and business with low-interest loans.

Floodplain and Mitigation

Coordinating the National Flood Insurance Program is a key mitigation program. SEMA works with 585 NFIP participating communities. SEMA helps with floodplain compliance issues and offers extensive training for local floodplain managers, insurance agents, and elected officials. Unfortunately there are 99 communities that have not yet joined the program.

The hazard mitigation efforts of the agency are designed to make the next disaster event as uneventful as possible. The voluntary flood buyout program following the Great Flood of 1993 remains the agency's most extensive and successful hazard mitigation project. To date, 94 buyouts have been conducted in 77 jurisdictions removing approximately 4,500 residential properties from the floodplain, assisting disaster stricken property owners and their families. SEMA has administered approximately $25 million in grant projects and plans annually, including providing grant and project management assistance to communities and counties for 11 voluntary flood buyout projects, five community safe room construction projects, two electric service line burial projects, two National Weather Service storm warning transmitter projects, a bridge replacement project and a creek channel rechannelization project. In addition, the agency has partnered with Missouri's 19 Regional Planning Commissions to help 103 Missouri counties with about 760 communities and one community college to develop the local hazard mitigation plans necessary to qualify for the federal grants that fund these projects.

SEMA mitigation also provides operational oversight and administrative support to the 1,200-member SAVE (Structural Assessment Visual Evaluation) Coalition authorized by RSMo, 44.023. This statute tasks SEMA to establish a building inspection program to mitigate injuries by determining if buildings damaged by natural or manmade disasters are safe for continued occupation. The service also reduces the need for mass care such as sheltering and feeding by enabling citizens to return home sooner following an event. The SAVE Coalition organizes and trains architects, engineers, building inspectors and skilled construction industry personnel to serve as volunteer inspectors in stricken communities and counties. SAVE Coalition members are required to pass the ATC-20 structural evaluation course prior to receiving SAVE credentials and performing inspections. When requested, these volunteers are available to work for up to three days inspecting damaged buildings. During this service period, the volunteer inspectors are immune from liability for acts committed in the performance of their official emergency duties, except in cases of willful misconduct or gross negligence. Incidental expenses incurred by the inspectors are paid by the local jurisdictions they serve.

The threat of an earthquake along the New Madrid Seismic Fault requires creative and systematic earthquake mitigation activities. Public education and awareness continue to be the backbone of the earthquake mitigation efforts. The earthquake program is now looking at both structural and non-structural projects, increased insurance participation, and increased emphasis on implementing seismic building codes. As part of this responsibility, SEMA also provides administrative support to the Missouri Seismic Safety Commission that was established by RSMo 44.227 to initiate a comprehensive program to help prepare Missouri for responding to major earthquakes. One of the commission's initial duties was to prepare a strategic plan for reducing earthquake hazards in the state. This plan listed 38 recommendations for improving earthquake preparedness, mitigation, response and recovery. The commission periodically presents a formal report to the governor and legislature, explaining earthquake issues and reviewing progress made on the 38 original recommendations.

Missouri Emergency Response Commission (MERC)

The Missouri Emergency Response Commission implements the federal Emergency Planning and Community Right-to-Know Act (EPCRA) and related Missouri laws. These laws pertain to the storage of hazardous chemicals. The commission designates and supports the Local Emergency Planning Committees (LEPC), reviews hazardous chemical contingency plans, assists local officials with training for chemical emergencies, collects information on toxic and hazardous storage and makes this information available to the public. The MERC administers the Hazardous Material Emergency Preparedness (HMEP) for HAZMAT training to local public sector employees and the Chemical Emergency Preparedness Funds (CEPF) for planning and training for LEPCs to carry out their responsibilities designated under EPCRA and RSMO 292.600–625.

Advisory Committee for 911 Service Oversight

House Bill 816 established the Advisory Committee for 911 Service Oversight in 1997. The committee adopts 911 standards, helps communities with 911 issues, reviews and comments on proposed 911 legislation. The committee's priorities include 911 compliance issues, reviewing the rule on 911 service repairs, and becoming a resource for communities either developing a 911 system or for more mature 911 systems who want help upgrading their service.

The Missouri Veterans Commission is vested with the responsibility of representing all Missouri veterans, ensuring their needs are met and defending the entitlements of those who have served their country with honor and distinction. This is accomplished through programs and services funded by the state and federal government as well as private and corporate contributions.

Our Vision

In recognition of the sacrifices made by veterans in service to our country, the Missouri Veterans Commission will lead in the provision of high quality, holistic health care to disabled veterans, in providing a final resting place with honor and compassion, and in facilitating timely, quality benefits administration.

Our History

The State Federal Soldier's Home was established in 1896 by the Women's Relief Corps Soldiers' Home Association, and was deeded to the State of Missouri in 1897. Its original purpose was to provide care to aging Missourians who had fought for the Union in the Civil War. In 1931, the state legislature, at the request of organized veterans groups, created the Office of State Service Officer for the purpose of counseling and assisting veterans of WWI and earlier conflicts whose service connected disabilities were becoming manifest and for whom numerous benefits were being made available through the newly established Veterans Administration.

In 1974, the Omnibus Reorganization Act placed the Division of Veterans' Affairs within the Department of Social Services. The State Federal Soldier's Home and Office of State Service Officer remained separate entities until the Reorganization Act of 1974 combined the two, renaming the home and establishing the Division of Veterans' Affairs within the Department of Social Services.

As defined in the Omnibus State Reorganization Act of 1974, the Division of Veterans' Affairs, as provided in Chapter 42, RSMo, 1978, was transferred from the Department of Social Services to the Department of Public Safety, Office of the Adjutant General, by a Type I Transfer.

Executive order 81-18 (February 1981) passed at the First Regular Session of the Eighty-First General Assembly, put this law into effect in September of 1981.

On August 28, 1989, the Division of Veterans' Affairs was replaced by the establishment of the Missouri Veterans' Commission as a Type III Transfer. Chapter 42, RSMo governs the commission's operation as a state agency. The commission is comprised of five veterans appointed by the governor and confirmed by the Senate.

The commissioners then appoint an executive director, who implements commission policies and is responsible for statewide management of veterans programs. The executive director reports regularly to the commission concerning all aspects of program operations through quarterly commission meetings.

Administrative offices are located in Jefferson City at 1719 Southridge Drive. This location also houses the local Veteran Service Officer.

Services and benefits provided to veterans by the Missouri Commission are:

The mission of the Service to Veterans Program is dedicated to providing services and benefits assistance to veterans and their families in a timely and compassionate manner. Further, the program seeks to facilitate a proper and effective partnership with the federal Department of Veterans Affairs, other government agencies, veteran's service and other organizations.

Through the Service to Veterans Program, the Missouri Veterans' Commission provides counseling and assistance to veterans throughout the state in filing claims for benefits from the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs. Veterans Service Offices are located in almost every county of the state to make services available to veterans close to their homes.

Information concerning locations and phone numbers of Veterans Service Officers may be found in the local telephone directory under 'Missouri, State of, Veterans' Commission', by contacting Commission Headquarters at (573) 751-3779, or through the Service Office Directory at the commission's web site: www.mvc.dps.mo.gov.

Automation of the entire Service to Veterans Program allows each Veterans Service Officer improved access to the DVA system, expediting the filing of claims and delivery of benefits to veterans. Veterans Service Officers are thoroughly trained and knowledgeable in all areas of veterans' benefits, including compensation, pension, education, burial and widow's benefits. Information and counseling regarding medical eligibility, VA Home Loan Guaranty, and other benefits, including those offered by the state, may also be obtained from the Veterans Service Officer as well.

Veterans Service Officers are also available to groups interested in veterans' benefits. These qualified personnel may give presentations and instruction regarding the benefits for which veterans are eligible as a result of honorable military service in the U.S. Armed Forces.

Veterans Home Program

The Missouri Veterans Commission currently operates and maintains seven long-term skilled nursing care facilities with a total of 1,350 available beds. Early in 2004 the Mt. Vernon Veterans Home moved into a 200-bed replacement facility and St. Louis Veterans Home added a 100-bed dementia unit.

The mission of the Missouri Veterans Home Program through inspired employees, is to daily enrich the lives of the veterans we care for through the provisions of quality healthcare in a state-of-the-art facility.

Veterans in need of nursing home care may seek admission to a Missouri Veterans Home by filing an application with the home of their choice. Prospective residents may obtain application forms from any Missouri Veterans' Home, from a Missouri Veterans Service Officer (phone book listing under 'Missouri, State of, Veterans Commission'), or by contacting the Missouri Veterans' Commission Headquarters at (573) 751-3779. Home applications may also be downloaded from MVC web site at: www.mvc.dps.mo.gov

Eligibility:

- Applicant must be an honorably-discharged veteran of the U.S. Armed Forces;
- Applicant must have resided in the state of Missouri for at least 180 days during his/her lifetime;
- Applicant must have been determined to require nursing home care.

Funding/Costs:

- State general revenue;
- Federal funding, through the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs Per Diem Grant Program;
- Charges to the veterans themselves, based on the individual's ability to pay.

The maximum amount that a veteran may be charged currently is $1,750 per month. Ability to pay is based upon the veterans' (and his or her spouses') total income and assets. The veteran is always allowed to keep at least $90 per month for personal use.

Missouri Veterans Homes are inspected at least annually by the Department of Veterans Affairs for the continuance of per diem payments. Policies for health care administration are centrally managed by the Commission's Superintendent of Homes, who routinely reviews management practice and clinical outcomes. Therapeutic modalities of physical, psychosocial and rehabilitative origin are provided in each facility.

They are divided into five sections. Sections A, B, and C are each 50-bed long-term skilled nursing care units. Section D is a 50-bed dementia unit that contains its own dining room, activity area and enclosed courtyard. Section E houses the administrative offices and ancillary services such as the recreation area, barbershop and rehabilitation area.

State Veterans Cemetery System

Signed into law in 1996, this program gives the Missouri Veterans Commission statutory responsibility to establish, operate and maintain cemeteries for veterans in Missouri.

The vision and goal of the State Veterans Cemetery System is to locate cemeteries strategically throughout the state, making it possible for veterans and their families to have access within a 75-mile radius of their homes.

The mission is to provide interment for veterans and their eligible dependents in a dignified, efficient and compassionate manner.

It occupies 117.4 acres of majestic green land and includes a lake. The cemetery will have approximately 40,000 burial sites along with a columbarium that will have approximately 800 niches for cremation. The land for the cemetery was donated by Associated Electric.

Eligibility Criteria:

Eligibility criteria for burial in state veterans' cemeteries will be the same as that for burial in national cemeteries, as stated in Missouri statute, signed into law in 1998. "…solely for the burial of veterans and eligible dependents as defined by the Department of Veterans Affairs…."

The veteran must have lived in the state of Missouri for at least 180 days during his or her lifetime.

Veterans interested in burial should contact the individual cemetery for a pre-determination of eligibility.

Benefits:

- Burial space
- Grave liner
- Opening and closing of the grave
- Perpetual care
- Placement of cremation remains in either columbarium niche or inground burial
- Upright granite headstone

Veterans Trust Fund

The Veterans Trust Fund was established in 1989 and is a means by which individuals and corporations may donate money to expand and improve services to veterans in Missouri. Appropriations from the fund are being used to improve training of Service Officers to expand capabilities in meeting the special needs of residents of State Veterans Homes and to promote public awareness of the program, benefits and services available to Missouri's veterans.

All contributions to the Veterans Trust Fund are tax deductible. Individuals and corporations can donate any amount over two dollars of their tax refund on their Missouri tax return, or by sending their contributions directly to the commission at any time. Monies from the fund are used to enhance, not replace existing programs.

The Missouri Gaming Commission was established in 1993 by the 87th General Assembly as specified by Chapter 313, RSMo. The commission assumed the responsibility for regulating charitable games on July 1, 1994.

The commission is composed of five members, no more than three of whom may be members of the same political party. Commission members are appointed by the governor, with the advice and consent of the Senate, for a term of three years. Pursuant to statute, the overall membership of the commission reflects experience in law enforcement, civil and criminal investigation and financial principles.

The commission's role is to monitor gaming related activities to ensure that criminal elements do not infiltrate licensed gaming operations. In addition, the commission works to protect the public by ensuring that games are conducted fairly, according to their rules and with full disclosure.

As a state regulatory agency, the commission and its staff hold themselves to the highest ethical and professional standards and strive to conduct all business in a manner that is in the public interest and maintains the public trust. Pursuant to statute, a strict code of ethics has been adopted prohibiting conflicts of interest and certain ex parte communications.

The key regulatory responsibilities of the commission are:

- To conduct thorough background investigations on all key persons involved in gaming operations, including substantial owners, management personnel, key operational employees and suppliers;
- To thoroughly investigate the finances of applicants and their key persons to determine if they have the financial resources and responsibility to meet their proposed obligations;
- To investigate the background of all occupational licensees, including dealers, slot attendants, food and beverage servers, security and surveillance personnel and all other employees who have access to the gaming area to ensure that the personnel operating the casino are of sufficient character to maintain the integrity of Missouri gaming;
- To photograph and fingerprint each employee so as to maintain a complete and accurate database of gaming personnel;
- To assign appropriate staff to each gaming operation to be present at all times when gaming is conducted. Enforcement agents are charged with ensuring that gaming is conducted in accordance with the Missouri gaming statute, the rules and regulations of the commission and the licensee's own internal controls;
- To ensure that the safety of the passengers is guarded, to conduct investigations of suspected wrongdoing and to receive complaints from customers;
- To review and audit the finances and compliance of the gaming operation through the combined use of commission staff, independent public accounting firms and internal casino audit staff that are retained by the licensee and approved by the commission;

- To monitor the financial integrity of gaming operators to ensure that Missouri's financial interests are protected;
- To assess qualifications of organizations applying for a charity gaming license, conduct required background investigations, conduct audits, collect taxes, conduct necessary investigations and maintain all records related to charity games.

Pursuant to statute, the commission has entered into a Memorandum of Understanding with the Missouri State Highway Patrol to perform background investigations and to provide enforcement personnel on the boats and for bingo enforcement.

Division of Gaming

Office of the Executive Director

The office of the executive director is responsible for the day-to-day operations of the commission. The director supervises all staff activities, reports to the commission and is responsible for organizing and distributing all public documents and reports. The director oversees four principal sections.

Administration Section

The Administration Section of the Missouri Gaming Commission is responsible for managing all fiscal, personnel and recordkeeping resources of the agency. In addition, the Administration Section provides support services to commission employees and, pursuant to a Memorandum of Understanding, to Highway Patrol officers assigned to the commission. This section oversees budget development, revenue collection, accounts payable, accounts receivable, cost accounting, procurement, facilities management, support services, human resources, asset inventory and records management.

Corporate Securities and Finance Section

The Corporate Securities and Finance Section is responsible for financial and transactional investigations, tax collection and enforcement, casino audit examinations, financial analysis and economic analysis of the casino industry. This section recommends appropriate regulatory action for certain corporate control transactions and also studies the economic markets for casinos in the state to assist the commission in determining the number and placement of riverboat casinos.

KEVIN P. MULLALLY
Executive Director
Missouri Gaming Commission

The Financial Analysis unit of this section is responsible for examination of licensee's business transactions, including mergers, acquisitions and other major financial transactions.

The Tax Collection unit of the Corporate Securities and Finance Section is responsible for the collection of the gross receipts tax and admissions tax assessed upon casino licensees by statute. The Audit unit section is responsible for casino audit examinations, which determine casino compliance with state statutes and regulations. These examinations concentrate on compliance with financial internal controls established to ensure that the tax owed to the state is secure.

Enforcement Section

The Enforcement Section is responsible for regulating operations at gaming facilities, with an emphasis on the integrity of gaming, the protection of assets, and the safety of patrons and staff. The licensing staff coordinates and implements the licensing of excursion gambling boats, suppliers of gambling games, and over 11,000 occupational licensees. The audit staff performs independent audits, reviews and investigations to identify and document noncompliance with laws, policies and procedures. The Enforcement Section provides extensive classroom training for gaming agents, including a fully equipped mini-casino with surveillance and the latest in electronic gaming devices. In addition, the Enforcement Section is responsible for background investigations of license applicants, investigation and resolution of patron complaints, policy development, coordination of the industry discipline system, new construction oversight, and evaluation and approval of games and electronic systems.

The Enforcement Section also coordinates and oversees the activities of the Gaming Division of the Missouri State Highway Patrol, pursuant to a memorandum of understanding with the Gaming Commission. The Gaming Division provides criminal and regulatory enforcement of gaming operations within the state. The eastern and western enforcement districts are responsible for enforcing Missouri statutes and regulations on licensed casino properties. The background unit conducts investigations of individuals and companies applying for licensure with the commission, as well as persons applying for employment with the commission. The background unit has a section that is responsible for enforcement related to charitable games in Missouri. The Administrative Services Section oversees the collection and preservation of evidence and property, division training, criminal records, case management, and special projects performed by the Gaming Division.

Legal Section

The legal section provides advice to the commissioners, executive director and other commission staff regarding riverboat and charitable gaming issues, including review of financial transactions, interpretation of laws and regulations and analysis of policy proposals. The section assists the commission in its quest to ensure that riverboats, bingo organizations, suppliers and individual licensees abide by all laws and rules of the commission. In particular, commission lawyers are responsible for drafting proposed disciplines against licensees for violations of laws or rules and presenting those disciplines to the commission. The legal staff also serves as a liaison with the attorney general's office regarding discipline appeals and related matters.

This section administers the commission's problem gambling programs, including the voluntary exclusion program, public education and outreach and participation in the Missouri Alliance to Curb Problem Gambling.

Division of Bingo

The commission assumed responsibility for the regulation of bingo on July 1, 1994. Charitable, fraternal, religious, service, social and veteran organizations are eligible to hold licenses to conduct charity games in the state. As of June 30, 2004, there were 483 regular bingo licensees in the state, 361 special bingo licensees, 142 abbreviated pull tab licensees, seven supplier licensees, 13 manufacture licensees and 141 bingo hall providers.

The Missouri Department of Revenue was created in 1945 by the Missouri Constitution to serve as the central collection agency for all state revenue. The primary duties of the department are to collect taxes, title and register motor vehicles, and license drivers.

The department is working toward improving customer service to the citizens of Missouri. By offering taxpayers easy-to-understand, efficient ways of doing business, the department aims to make interaction with government more professional and productive. Using technology, the department is improving the way it processes information and interacts with Missourians.

Customer Services Division

The Customer Services Division is the customer service arm of the department. Focused on providing excellent service and efficient assistance, each component of the division has its own distinct responsibilities.

Motor Vehicles provides customer service to motor vehicle owners and dealers. Motor Vehicles assists motor vehicle owners in need of a title or registration, and salvage dealers and leasing companies needing registration certificates.

Driver Licensing assists customers in need of obtaining or renewing a driver license. It processes and maintains records relating to license issuance, traffic violation point assessments, and safety responsibility laws for uninsured motorists. Driver Licensing also tracks drivers who fail to appear in court for infractions such as traffic violations, administrative alcohol violations, and "abuse and lose" laws for alcohol/drug offenders.

Customer Assistance manages the operations of 182 contract agent offices throughout the state. These offices provide driver licensing and motor vehicle services to Missourians. Customer assistance has several state telephone centers to assist customers with driver and vehicle transactions.

Tax is responsible for collecting Missouri's taxes and administering the state's tax laws. The following business taxes are collected: sales/use, financial institutions, insurance premiums, franchise, excise, cigarette and other tobacco products, motor fuel, corporate income and withholding. Tax also administers and collects personal taxes, including individual income, partnership, fiduciary and estate taxes, as well as property and pharmaceutical tax credits. Tax operates tax assistance centers around the state.

Information Technology manages all computer systems within the department. IT performs technical analysis, design and development, and implements the department's data processing systems. It provides systems support, production control, technical training, database administration and technical support.

Fiscal Services Division

The Fiscal Services Division focuses on internal auditing, external auditing, and financial services including budgeting, leasing and planning.

Internal Audit reviews and evaluates the department's administrative, operational and internal accounting controls. Internal Audit independently reports findings to the director's office.

External Audit audits taxpayers in-state and out-of-state to ensure compliance with Missouri's tax laws.

Financial Services is responsible for all accounting, procurement, banking and general service matters. It handles financial transactions, deposits taxes and fees, and prepares the department's financial statements. It also maintains document security, centralized filing and microfilming functions.

Budget, Leasing and Planning drafts the department's annual budget, coordinates space and location needs and leasing for the department, and assists the director with planning for the department.

Legal Services Division

The Legal Services Division ensures the department's compliance with law and internal policies, and manages the department's legislative efforts.

The General Counsel's Office advises the director and divisions on legal matters relative to the department, and represents the department in courts and administrative tribunals.

Human Resources is responsible for personnel matters, training, compliance with employment laws, and for the department's affirmative action plan and diversity programs.

Criminal Investigation develops information, investigates, and works with law enforcement to assist in the local prosecution of individuals or

The Office of Legislation and Regulations serves as the department's liaison to the General Assembly. The office develops fiscal and revenue estimates on proposed legislation and monitors the progress of bills through the legislature.

Director's Office

The director's office includes the director, deputy director, and key administrative staff responsible for the overall guidance and direction of the department. The Public Information Officer works with local, state and national media to publicize information about the department, represents the department as its spokesperson, and coordinates the department's long-range communications plan.

On November 6, 1984, Missouri voters authorized the General Assembly, by Article III, Section 39(b) of the Missouri Constitution, to pass legislation establishing a Missouri state lottery.

The governor, with the advice and consent of the Senate, appoints the five-member commission. No more than three members may be of the same political party. Commissioners receive no salary and serve three-year terms.

The commission supervises the lottery by issuing rules and appointing a director. The director runs the day-to-day business of the lottery, including hiring employees, issuing licenses and negotiating contracts with vendors.

The attorney general provides legal services for the lottery and the state auditor reviews operations by conducting audits. The legislation also details the operation of the lottery, including distribution of lottery monies, conflicts of interest, who may play the lottery, criminal penalties and taxation of lottery winnings.

The present State Tax Commission was created by an act of the 63rd General Assembly identified in Section 138.190, RSMo.

The commission is composed of three members who are chosen from the two major political parties. The members are appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate.

The commission exercises general supervision over all the assessing officers in Missouri, over county boards of equalization, and over laws concerning the general property tax. It institutes proceedings to enforce the penalties and liabilities provided by law for public officers, officers of corporations and individuals failing to comply with the provisions of laws relating to the general property tax.

The commission has exclusive power of original assessment of railroads, street railways, private car companies, bridges, telegraph, telephone, express companies, electric light, power and transmission lines, pipelines, airlines and other similar public utilities.

Other duties include:

- Hearing appeals of owners of real and tangible personal property from local boards of equalization;
- Prescribing the form of all information blanks and books that are used in the assessment and collection of the general property tax except as otherwise provided by law;
- Causing to be placed upon the assessment rolls property which may have been omitted;
- Investigating the tax laws of other states and countries and to furnish to the legislature such recommendations as the commission may deem expedient to improve the system of assessment and taxation in this state;
- Equalizing the value of real and tangible personal property among the several counties of the state;

- Printing annually a report of the proceedings and decisions of the State Tax Commission including its proceedings and decisions while acting as a board of equalization; and
- Enforcing and supervising the statewide equalization of all assessments on real property at the statutory level.

Established in 1974, the Missouri Department of Social Services includes four agencies that previously operated social programs under separate administrations. This "umbrella" structure combines the efforts of related agencies and promotes a cooperative approach toward delivering social programs to Missourians in need.

The department works to ensure the health and safety of children, to help parents and caregivers provide nurturing homes, and to aid people in need of financial assistance reach their highest level of social and economic self-sufficiency.

The director of the department assumes a mandate to efficiently administer federal, state and local funds. The director also cooperates with private organizations, businesses and individuals to extend the outreach of human services available to Missouri citizens.

Office of the Director

The director of the Department of Social Services is responsible for the overall administration of programs within the department except as otherwise provided by law. The director determines priorities for program implementation and has final approval for uses of state and federal funds appropriated to the department.

There are currently four administrative support divisions within the department: Budget and Finance, Information Services and Technology Division (ISTD), General Services and Legal Services.

There are four program divisions within the department responsible for policy formulation, organizing programs and facilitating service delivery. The directors of these divisions report to the department director. These divisions are: Children's Division, Family Support, Medical Services and Youth Services.

The Human Resource Center (HRC) guides the overall human resources management system for the more than 8,500 employees within the department. The section is responsible for ensuring compliance with merit system rules and coordinating activities in the areas of labor relations, recruitment, selection, classification, compensation and training. HRC is also responsible for union negotiations and resolution administration as well as administering the employee grievance system.

Administration divisions

The Division of Budget and Finance provides budgeting and financial support services to all divisions within the department. The responsibilities of the Division of Budget and Finance can be divided into the following major support areas: accounts payable, payroll, purchasing, receipts, audits, grants management, budget and planning.

The Division of General Services provides a variety of support services to all agencies within the department. Offices are located in Jefferson City, Kansas City and St. Louis. Services include mail processing, telecommunications, inventory and warehouse management, building maintenance, fleet management, homeland security and safety, capital improvement oversight, and operations of the Prince Hall Family Support Center.

The Information Services and Technology Division provides information technology services to all agencies within the department. This involves planning and coordinating all department information technology activities, as well as development, maintenance and operation of the department's computer systems and a statewide telecommunications network.

The Division of Legal Services provides comprehensive legal support to all programs and support divisions in the Department of Social Services (DSS). The division represents the department, its divisions and the state, not individuals. The Division of Legal Services (DLS) is organized into four major sections: Litigation, Administrative Hearings, Investigations and State Technical Assistance Team.

The Litigation Section represents the divisions of DSS before administrative tribunals and in the circuit and courts. These cases relate to the Children's Division (CD), proceedings involving child abuse and neglect, licensure and revocation of foster homes, minor guardianships, permanency planning for children including, as appropriate, termination of parental rights; legal services to the Division of Youth Services in restoring young people to leading lives as productive citizens; and, for all divisions, advice on contracts, personnel matters, and the reviewing and implementation of administrative regulations.

The Administrative Hearings section is comprised of hearing officers who conduct hearings related to child support enforcement and public benefits under Chapters 208, 454, 536 and 660, RSMo. Administrative hearings include enforcing, establishing and modifying child support orders, to ensure the obligation to provide child support is current and reflects the parents' ability to provide financial and medical support to their children in accordance with Supreme Court Rule 88.01. The section also provides hearings to thousands of public assistance applicants and recipients as mandated by federal law. These due process hearings provide the forum for determining whether the denial or termination of public benefits was justified.

The Investigation Section is divided into four units: Welfare Investigations Unit, Medicaid Investigations Unit, Claims and Restitution Unit and Special Assignment Unit. The Welfare Investigations Unit investigates fraud and abuse committed by public assistance recipients. The Medicaid Investigations Unit investigates fraud and abuse committed by recipients against Medicaid providers. Also, the Medicaid Unit is responsible for Medicaid provider compliance investigations including overpayments, denial of enrollments and program sanctions. The Claims and Restitution Unit operates and manages the Claims Accounting Restitution System (CARS). The CARS system tracks the establishment and collection efforts in all claims in the public assistance programs administered by DSS. This unit processes in excess of 40,000 recoupments and 100,000 hot line and mail requests annually. The Special Assignment Unit conducts criminal, personnel and internal investigations; investigates allegations of discrimination and civil rights violations; locates persons owing monies to DSS, as well as other state agencies, identifies their resources, initiates collection actions, monitors payments and takes appropriate action on delinquent accounts; conducts background investigations and associated research in support of DSS investigations, as well as background checks on prospective DSS employees.

Missouri's State Technical Assistance Team (STAT) has evolved from implementing Missouri's Child Fatality Review Program (CFRP) in 1992 to providing comprehensive integrated services to the entire child protection community. From data collection and interpretation, to prevention facilitation, training and complex criminal investigations, STAT provides support and expertise to professionals responsible for the protection of children at risk.

Children's Division

615 Howerton Ct., PO Box 88
Jefferson City 65102
Telephone: (573) 522-8024 / FAX: (573) 526-3971

Child welfare services are provided under federal and state laws to help each eligible child and family function at their maximum potential, both personally and socially.

The Children's Division was established in 2003 under executive order 03-02. The division has a legal mandate to provide services in three primary areas: child abuse and neglect investigations and family assessments; treatment and placement services to children and families; and provision of child care.

The Children's Division is administered by a director who is appointed by the director of the Department of Social Services. The division maintains an office in each county and in St. Louis.

Child Abuse and Neglect Investigations and Assessments

The division is responsible for receiving reports of alleged child abuse or neglect. Upon receiving a report, the division responds to protect the child. The goals of child abuse or neglect investigations and assessments are to assess the level of risk to the child; protect the child from harm; determine if abuse or neglect occurred as reported; and provide services to the family.

Under the provisions of the Child Abuse and Neglect Law (Sections 210.110, 210.167, RSMo) a "child" is any person under 18 years of age; "abuse" includes both actual and threatened physical injury, sexual or emotional abuse inflicted on a child other than by accidental means by those responsible for his or her care, custody and control, except that discipline, including spanking, administered in a reasonable manner, shall not be construed to be abuse; "neglect" is failure to provide, by those responsible for the care, custody and control of the child, the proper or necessary support, education, as required by law, or medical, surgical or any other care necessary for the child's well-being; and "persons responsible for the care, custody and control of the child" include, but are not limited to, the parents or guardian of the child, other members of the child's household, or those people exercising supervision over a child for any part of a 24-hour day.

Two categories of reporters of child abuse or neglect are established in the law: mandated and permissive. Mandated reporters include physicians, medical examiners, coroners, dentists, chiropractors, optometrists, podiatrists, residents, interns, nurses, hospital and clinic personnel and other health practitioners, psychologists, mental health professionals, social workers, day care center workers or other child care workers, juvenile officers, probation or parole officers, teachers, principals or other school officials, Christian Science practitioners, peace officers or law enforcement officials or other persons with responsibility for the care of children. Permissive reporters are others who may report when they have reasonable cause to suspect that a child has been, or may be, subjected to abuse or neglect or who observes a child being subjected to circumstances which would reasonably result in abuse or neglect.

FRED SIMMENS
Director
Children's Division

All reporting is done to the central office of the division, which is required to provide toll-free statewide telephone service for reporting purposes (1-800-392-3738). The division is responsible for responding with investigations or family assessments for all reports and for offering protective services on a multi-disciplinary basis in cooperation with the juvenile court and other public and private agencies.

Family-Centered Services

The overriding goal of family-centered services is to prevent child abuse or neglect and the possible removal of the child from the home, by stabilizing the family and improving family functioning.

Treatment services, referred to as family-centered services, are provided in preventive and protective capacities. These case management services are provided protectively to families when a finding of child abuse and neglect (CA/N) was determined by a preponderance of evidence in an investigation. Preventive family-centered services are offered when an investigation of abuse or neglect is unsubstantiated or when a family assessment detects family problems that might be mitigated by services and abuse or neglect prevented. Preventive services are contingent on the family's willingness to accept services. Families may also self-refer for services. Services may be provided by Children's Division staff and/or purchased on behalf of the family.

Intensive in-home services, also known as family preservation services, is a short-term, crisis-intervention service aimed at stabilizing a crisis that puts the child at imminent risk of being removed from the home. Intensive in-home service specialists serve small caseloads and are available to families 24 hours a day for up to six weeks. The goal of these services is to prevent children from being removed from their homes, while ensuring the safety of the child in the home.

Federal law mandates that the division provide services to children and families of children in alternative care. These services are geared toward permanency for the child, either by reunification with his or her biological parent(s) or permanency through adoption or guardianship. The goals of these services are to: prevent further child abuse or neglect; mitigate family factors that could lead to further child abuse or neglect; reunite children with their families whenever safely possible; and obtain permanent homes for children who cannot safely return home through adoption or guardianship.

To achieve these goals, the division employs staff to provide services to eligible children and families. These services are provided through two major components: direct services and contracted services.

Direct Services

The major components of the direct service program are detection, treatment and prevention of child abuse and neglect.

CD staff provides direct services when using the family-centered services case management model with families in treatment and families whose children are in alternative care settings. The CD staff work with families in assessing service needs and case planning. Actual services may be provided by CD staff, through contractors, or both.

Alternative care services (family-centered out-of-home services) are provided to children who are determined by the juvenile court to need care in a setting other than their biological family homes. These children are cared for in substitute family care or non-familial group care. Any one of three types of licensed settings provides alternative care: foster family homes, group facilities, and residential treatment facilities. Transitional Living Services and Independent Living may also be utilized for older youths who may not return home, and for whom adoption or guardianship is not deemed appropriate.

Child safety and permanency for children is the overriding goal of all services and integrates the principles of permanency planning—reuniting the child with the biological family when possible and, when necessary, finding other permanent family relationships for children.

Families who wish to adopt children unable to reunite with their families may, in some instances, be eligible for an adoption subsidy and services agreement. This is a statewide program developed to provide support to encourage potential adoptive parents to adopt "special needs children." Adoption subsidy and services agreements are used for children in adoptive placements who have been determined to be "special needs" because of a handicapping condition, racial or ethnic minority status, age, social adjustment, membership in a sibling group or the circumstances surrounding their placement in the foster care system. The subsidy or cash maintenance payment portion of the adoption subsidy and services agreement can only be granted to children who reside in a household with an income that does not exceed two hundred percent of the federal poverty level or are eligible for title IV-E adoption assistance. However, services are available to all special needs children without consideration of the family's income.

Contracted Services

Contracted services are available to individuals and families who are receiving family-centered services, or in efforts to recruit and maintain resources for permanency. These services are usually provided as a result of a child abuse/neglect report with a "preponderance of evidence" finding, but may also be authorized for children in alternative care, children in adoptive placements, and family members receiving preventive treatment services or foster and adoptive services. Services are provided through contracts with both public and private community agencies and play a major role in extending services throughout the state.

Licensing Program

The division inspects and licenses foster homes, residential child care agencies, and child placing agencies. In addition, the licensing staff monitors licensed foster homes, residential child care and child placing agencies to assure the maintenance of requisite standards, conducts public education programs, and consults with foster parents and residential child care and child placing agency personnel in the development and implementation of services for the child being served, as well as technical consultation regarding residential program development. Residential child care and child placing agencies accredited pursuant to 210.112.7 RSMo and 13 CSR 35-50.010 become licensed by virtue of accreditation status.

Early Childhood and Prevention Services

The Early Childhood and Prevention Services section administers early childhood/child care and child abuse prevention programs and services. These programs provide child care subsidies to low-income families and quality improvement and professional development activities for child care programs and their staff. Staff also administers a portion of the state Early Childhood Development Education and Care Fund, which provides grants to community-based organizations and individuals for early childhood and child abuse/neglect prevention services like Early Head Start, grants to start or expand quality child care programs for infants and toddlers, accreditation services for child care providers, and early childhood development and educational supports for parents of infants and toddlers.

The Family Support Division (FSD) was established in 2003 under Executive Order 03-02. Through this reorganization, the Income Maintenance Programs from the former Division of Family Services (DFS) and the Child Support Program from the former Division of Child Support Enforcement (DCSE) were merged into one agency. FSD is responsible for the administration of these programs and services: Temporary Assistance (TA), Food Stamps; Community Services Block Grant; Low-Income Home Energy Assistance; Rehabilitation Services to the Blind and the Visually Impaired; Medical Assistance; Supplemental Nursing Care; and Child Support Services.

Organization

The Family Support Division is administered by a director appointed by the director of the Department of Social Services. The division maintains an office in each county and in St. Louis for the administration of the Income Maintenance Programs. The division maintains 24 offices across the state for the administration of the Child Support Program. Administration of the Rehabilitation Services to the Blind are managed by seven offices throughout Missouri.

JANEL LUCK
Interim Director
Family Support Division

Income Maintenace Programs

The determination of an individual's financial need is basic to the granting of Temporary Assistance, Food Stamps, Child Care, Blind Pension, Supplemental Aid to the Blind, Medical Assistance, and Nursing Care benefits. The division has a legal requirement to consider all facts and circumstances in determining eligibility for public assistance, including the applicant's earning capacity, income and resources from whatever source received. The amount of benefits, when added to all other income, resources, support and maintenance, shall provide such person with reasonable subsistence. If the applicant is not found to be in need, assistance is denied.

The federal Social Security Amendments of 1972 provided that the adult assistance programs of Old Age Assistance, Permanent and Total Disability and Aid to the Blind be taken over by the Social Security Administration on January 1, 1974. The primary intent was to make a nationwide, uniform minimum payment to eligible adults and the handicapped. The law further provided that any state may, or in some instances, must supplement federal payments. The division administers this state supplementation program in Missouri.

Temporary Assistance

Temporary Assistance (TA) makes cash grants on behalf of needy children who have been deprived of parental support and who are living in homes maintained by parents or close relatives. This program provides temporary financial assistance for a period of time, up to five years, while the adult transitions to self-sufficiency.

During Fiscal Year 2004, a total of $136.6 million was paid to TA families. There was a monthly average of 47,796 families who received TA payments. The average payment was $237 per family per month.

MC+ Family Health Care

The MC+ program provides healthcare coverage to children under age 19, parents and pregnant women. Family income is compared to the applicable percentage of the federal poverty guidelines. The applicable income limit is dependent on age of the children and the individual's insurance status. MC+ is funded by Medicaid and the Children's Health Insurance Program (CHIP). In Fiscal Year 2004 the program provided coverage to 522,399 children, 15,921 pregnant women and 178,717 parents.

Supplemental Aid to the Blind and Blind Pension

The division administers two separate programs for the blind: the Supplemental Aid to the Blind and the state-financed Blind Pension Program. Under the SAB program, the amount of the monthly grant is $510 minus any Supplemental Security Income (SSI) payment received; under the Blind Pension Program, a flat monthly payment of $510 per person is made. The programs differ slightly in eligibility requirements. Funds are provided from a Missouri constitutionally established Blind Pension Fund with no matching federal funds.

The General Assembly appropriated $21.5 million from the Blind Pension Fund for payments during Fiscal Year 2004.

Supplemental Nursing Care

The Supplemental Nursing Care Program in Missouri provides medical services to people who meet requirements in accordance with standards developed by the division. Certain adults, who are medically eligible and who reside in licensed skilled nursing facilities or intermediate care facilities, may receive monthly cash benefits of up to a maximum of $390. If they live in a licensed residential care facility, they may be eligible for monthly cash benefits of up to $292; or if in a licensed boarding home, they may receive monthly cash benefits of up to $156. In addition, certain other claimants living in or planning to enter licensed skilled nursing homes may be eligible for payments made for their care.

The General Assembly appropriated $26.5 million for Fiscal Year 2004 from state funds for the Supplemental Nursing Care Program.

Medical Assistance

The Medical Assistance Program provides medical services for aged, blind or disabled individuals whose income and resources fail to meet medical needs. An individual must have limited resources. Income is compared to 85 percent of the federal poverty level. Persons whose income is below this maximum receive the medical services covered by the State of Missouri. Persons with income above the maximum may gain eligibility for medical services by incurring medical expenses equal to the amount of income which exceeds 85 percent of the federal poverty level.

In Fiscal Year 2004, an average of 222,604 persons per month were eligible to receive medical services under this program.

Child Care Subsidy

The Child Care Subsidy Program provides families with financial assistance in meeting child care expenses, enabling adults to work, attend school or participate in job training programs. The programs also have provisions for care due to a parent's medical incapacitation or a child's special needs. Eligibility is based on income and the need for care. Parents pay a sliding fee.

Approximately 41,460 children were served in Fiscal Year 2004.

Food Stamp and Food Distribution Programs

The Food Stamp Program is designed to help low-income families increase their purchasing power for buying food for their families. Depending upon the adjusted income and the number of persons in the household, a family receives a monthly benefit amount. The division is responsible for determining the eligibility of food stamp applicants according to guidelines established by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

During federal Fiscal Year 2004, $656.4 million in food stamp benefits were issued to 275,771 households.

The division also administers a number of food distribution programs providing donated foods to summer camps, temporary emergency food assistance programs, charitable institutions and residential child care institutions.

Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program

The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program is a federally funded program established in April 1980 with enactment of the Crude Oil Windfall Profits Tax Act. Eligibility for assistance is based on household income and the number of persons residing in the household. Benefit amounts vary based on income, family size, type of fuel utilized as a primary source of home heating and the geographic area of the state in which the recipient resides. Payments made either to the individual's home heating supplier or directly to the individual are intended to assist him or her in purchasing home heating fuels during the period of November through March of each year.

Community Services Block Grant Program

The Community Services Block Grant (CSBG) Program is a federally funded program implemented in October 1981 pursuant to enactment of the Community Services Block Grant Act. The CSBG makes funds available to impact causes of six poverty conditions: unemployment, inadequate housing, inadequate education, malnutrition, poor use of income and unmet emergency needs. The program provides for a flexible local partnership of elected public officials, business and civic interests and low-income citizens. The partnership identifies and implements programs within the general areas of community coordination/resource development and family development. CSBG programs are usually operated locally by community action agencies and serve individuals whose family income falls within the federal poverty guidelines.

Blind and Visually Impaired Services Program

The Rehabilitation Services for the Blind administers six service programs to blind and visually impaired persons: vocational rehabilitation, prevention of blindness, independent living rehabilitation to adults, Older Blind Services, children services, and the Blind Enterprise Program (BEP). Older Blind Services (OBS) assist blind and visually impaired seniors over age 55 to function independently and remain in their homes and communities.

Vocational rehabilitation services are supported by both federal and state funds. Services include diagnosis and evaluation, counseling and guidance, physical and mental restoration, college and other types of vocational training, job placement and services after employment when needed. All vocational rehabilitation services, some of which are conditional upon financial need of the individual, are to enable a person with visual disabilities to obtain or retain suitable employment.

Prevention of Blindness services are funded with state funds. Services are for the purpose of early detection of eye disease that may lead to blindness and, when indicated, providing treatment to eligible persons. Services include diagnostic examinations, surgery, hospitalization, glasses, prostheses and certain medications that are not available through other sources. Outreach vision screening clinics are conducted in conjunction with schools of ophthalmology in Missouri. The Prevention of Blindness Program conducts glaucoma screening clinics throughout the state. All services, except those available at outreach vision screening and glaucoma screening clinics, are conditional upon the financial need of the individual.

Independent living rehabilitation services for adults are supported by both federal and state funds. Services are for the purpose of enabling that person to function independently in the home and community. Services, some of which are conditional upon financial need, include diagnosis and evaluation, adjustment to blindness services, alternative techniques in the areas of daily living activities, physical restoration, home making, communication and orientation to and travel within the home and community.

Independent living rehabilitation services for blind and visually impaired children are supported by both federal and state funds. Services include counseling to the parents of the child, Parents Families Supportive Services, consultation in development and readiness skills that the child will need in order to enter and succeed in an appropriate educational setting and referral to community resources.

The federal/state Randolph-Sheppard Blind Enterprise Program provides employment opportunities for legally blind persons who have participated in special training and are licensed by the division to manage a vending facility. Located in federal, state and private industry and in rest areas along the interstate highway system, vending facilities range from full food service cafeterias to banks of vending machines.

Child Support Program

Missouri's Child Support Enforcement Program began in 1977 and operates pursuant to Title IV-D of the federal Social Security Act and Chapter 454 of the Revised Statutes of Missouri.

The Child Support Program responsibilities include location of parents, paternity establishment, establishing child and medical support orders, monitoring and enforcing compliance with support orders, reviewing support orders for modification and distributing child support collections.

FSD collects child support on behalf of families receiving public assistance, not only to eliminate their dependence on assistance programs, but also to reimburse the state for the benefits provided to these families.

In addition, individuals not receiving public assistance benefits may apply for child support services.

Federal funds available under the Social Security Act assist state and local jurisdictions in financing the costs of program operations. Currently the federal matching rate is 66 percent. In addition to federal funds, the state is entitled to retain approximately 34 percent of the collections it receives for families who receive public assistance.

The program partners with county prosecuting attorneys through cooperative agreements to assist with child support activities. All counties that have entered into a cooperative agreement with FSD receive reimbursement for their activities as provided by state and federal law.

The program partners with the state attorney general through cooperative agreement to assist with child support enforcement and modification activities.

Pursuant to Section 454.530, RSMo, FSD, together with the Missouri Department of Revenue, operates the state disbursement unit known as the Family Support Payment Center (FSPC) which receives and disburses support on behalf of families. The FSPC forwards to the state collections received for families receiving public assistance. When a family is not receiving public assistance, the FSPC sends payments directly to the family.

FSD collected $506.2 million in state fiscal year 2004.

Division of Medical Services

Telephone: (573) 751-3425 / FAX: (573) 751-6564

The Missouri Medicaid program provides medical services to eligible beneficiaries within defined program benefits in somewhat the same way insurance companies provide coverage for their policyholders.

The services provided include those required by the federal government such as hospital and physician services. Also included are optional services such as pharmaceutical and personal care services authorized by the Missouri General Assembly and identified in Section 208.152 RSMo.

The Division of Medical Services administers a mandatory Medicaid managed care program called MC+ managed care for eligible recipients in the eastern, central and western areas of the state. Children, pregnant women, TANF families, and children in state custody receive their medical care through managed care organizations,

Q. MICHAEL DITMORE, M.D.
Director
Division of Medical Services

allowing the state to ensure access to health care and control costs at the same time.

The division also oversees an expanded MC+ program which provides health insurance coverage for eligible uninsured low-income children. Authority for this program is through a waiver of Section 1115 of the Social Security Act and SB 632, signed into law June 1998 and reauthorized in 2002. This waiver initiative builds on the original MC+ program by focusing on uninsured children up to 300 percent of the federal poverty level.

Medicaid has included specialized services for specific populations within the state by receiving waiver authority from the federal government. Home and community-based waivers for the elderly, certain mentally related, developmentally disabled beneficiaries as well as patients with AIDS were obtained and allow the state Medicaid program to pay for otherwise non-covered home care as an alternative to more expensive institutional care. These services are restricted to those beneficiaries who would otherwise require, and whose home care is no more expensive than, institutionalization.

The Medicaid program is jointly funded by state and federal funds. The division's fiscal year 2005 appropriation of over $5 billion includes $1.7 billion in state and other funds and $3.4 billion in federal monies.

Division of Youth Services

Broadway State Office Bldg.
PO Box 447
Jefferson City 65102
Telephone: (573) 751-3324 / FAX: (573) 526-4494

The Omnibus Reorganization Act of 1974 created the Division of Youth Services (DYS) and placed it within the Department of Social Services.

General Responsibilities

Youth judged to be delinquent and in need of rehabilitation and education are committed to the division by the state's juvenile (circuit) courts until approved for return to the community under supervision or discharged.

The division provides an array of services, including institutional care, community-based services, nonresidential services and aftercare supervision. Chapter 219, RSMo outlines the division's responsibility to include prevention of delinquency, incentive subsidy to juvenile courts, consultative and information services to non-DYS agencies upon request and technical assistance to local communities.

Organization

The division is administered by the director who is appointed by the director of the Department of Social Services. The division operates institutions throughout the state, as well as community facilities consisting of group homes, park camps, specialized residential programs and nonresidential community-based programs as well as a case management system. Five regional administrators are responsible for the programs in their geographical areas. Central office personnel, together with the regional administrators, aid the director in planning for the agency as well as setting goals and objectives.

Goals and Objectives

The mission of the Division of Youth Services is to protect communities from juvenile offenders and to provide appropriate services to youth in the division's custody and their families. This balanced approach relies on community partnerships for the development and enhancement of services for the prevention of delinquency.

Methods of Treatment

The Division of Youth Services forms a unique treatment environment. The youth centers provide the highest structure for students in need, while group homes and park camps provide residential settings for youth who can adequately function with supervision in a community environment. Nonresidential services are provided to low-risk youth as a diversion to residential care and as a supplement to aftercare.

Case Management

A case management system has been developed to provide assessment, treatment planning, coordination of services, monitoring and evaluation of the services for youths and their families. A needs and risk assessment helps the case manager determine the most appropriate services for each youth. The assessment takes into account all pertinent factors involving the youth's delinquent history while identifying the general treatment needs.

Each division facility creates an environment which is designed to contribute to positive changes in the student's behavior and attitudes through the provision of group and individualized treatment services, recreation, academic and vocational training. The ultimate goal is to return each youth to his or her home community as a productive, responsible member of society.

Community-Based Services

Focusing on more individualized services and delivering programs at the community level, the division has expanded its program design to be more community-based. The program components are:

Intensive Case Monitoring

This service is provided by employees who track a youth's behavior and activities. Trackers also provide support and counseling to the youth when needed. Great effort is made to ensure the matching of similar personalities and interests of youth and the tracker.

Day Treatment

This service provides a structured alternative educational program which includes traditional academic courses, GED classes, career planning, job placement, and community service supported by individual, group and family therapy.

Proctor Care

This specialized alternative living program places a youth in residence with a young adult proctor who serves as a role model.

Family Therapy

DYS family therapists provide counseling to adjudicated and non-adjudicated youth and their families. In addition, the family therapy unit accepts referrals from juvenile courts, child welfare agencies, mental health agencies, schools and other sources. DYS family therapists also provide training to other state agency staff and court personnel.

Short-Term Programs

Several short-term programs have been established statewide to prepare youth for reentry into the community. These facilities provide residential-based programs to help youth move from traditional residential services into productive community living. Intensive family involvement is required and youth are expected to accomplish specific community goals before release.

Group Home Programs

Group homes provide the least restrictive residential environment. Staff provide 24-hour supervision in a home-like setting with a capacity for 10 youths. Youth follow a daily schedule with time allowed for interaction with the community (school, jobs and community projects) as well as treatment services within the facility (group, individual and family counseling). Youth in this program can participate in public schools and vocational programs or attend on-site educational programs.

Residential Facilities

Residential facilities provide a structured environment for DYS youth. The residential programs target youth who cannot function well in the community and require a more structured setting. Many of these youth have participated in repeat property offenses and require continuous structure to mature.

The program divides youth into groups of 10 with 24-hour staff supervision. A traditional school program is provided on-site by full time teachers offering basic education, GED programming and various remedial/special education activities.

Secure Care

For those youth who have a history of offenses and require a more structured setting, the division offers programs in secured facilities. Seven highly structured, secure care programs provide on-site educational classes, vocational training and recreational activities. These programs target youth with longer offense records that may include crimes against people. The offenders tend to be older and may include youth who have been unsuccessful in community-based programs. Scheduled outings into the community serve the purpose of involving the youth in community support projects. Secure care programs use a group-treatment approach with individual and family centered services. The educational program contains the broadly classified areas of basic, remedial, special and vocational education. Emphasis is placed on the acquisition of knowledge and skills that will meet the practical needs of each student.

An individual education plan, including both youth goals and staff strategies, is developed for each youth. Parents are encouraged to attend these planning meetings.

Dual Jurisdiction

The division also operates a secure care program in Montgomery City which serves youth sentenced under the dual jurisdiction provisions in Chapter 211.073, RSMo. This alternative sentencing provision allows certified youth to receive an adult and juvenile sentence with a suspended execution of the adult sentence. Treatment and educational services are provided to youth whose length of stay is significantly longer than that of other DYS students.

Aftercare

When youth are ready to return to their community, the division provides services to help them make the smooth transition. Virtually all youth under the DYS care enter the aftercare program upon their return to the community. An assigned case manager ensures support services are provided to help each youth enter and readjust to community living. Support may be of a referral, supervisory or counseling nature. The primary goal of aftercare is to provide supervision and resources to youth to assist them in making a satisfactory community adjustment. This is defined as a youth being able to function in the community without becoming involved in delinquent behavior that could lead the youth into court.

Division of Youth Services Advisory Board

Established in 1974, the DYS Advisory Board is charged with the responsibility to advise the director, the legislature and the general public on all matters pertaining to the operation of the division. The 15-member board consists of citizens from across the state who are dedicated to the prevention of delinquency and the containment and rehabilitation of juvenile offenders.

Overview

The department is guided by the Missouri Highways and Transportation Commission, which appoints the department director as chief administrative officer. The Missouri Department of Transportation's central office is in Jefferson City. The central office provides staff assistance and functional control for the various departmental tasks in 10 geographical districts. Each district contains about 10 percent of the total road mileage in the state highway system. Each district is under the direction of a district engineer, who is in turn responsible for administering all district activities.

The Centennial Road Law of 1921 created a system of connected state highways. Under the terms of this law and subsequent legislation and constitutional amendments, more than 32,000 miles of state highways have been constructed and improved through the years. These highways connect large population centers, county seats and small communities within the state.

The following table summarizes Missouri's state highway system.

System	Road Miles
Interstate	1,181
Primary	6,990
Supplementary	24,226
Total	32,397

The Missouri Department of Transportation (MoDOT) was created by legislation passed in 1996 that changed the name of the Highway and Transportation Department. That department was formed when voters approved Constitutional Amendment 2 in November 1979 merging the previously separate Highways and Transportation departments.

MoDOT is responsible for five major transportation alternatives available to Missourians—highways, aviation, waterways, transit and railroads. Those responsibilities include the total operation of the 32,000-mile state highway system, including highway location, design, construction and maintenance.

In addition, the department cooperates and coordinates with owners and operators of the four other modal systems in developing and improving airports, rail facilities and ports and in the operational cost of transit systems. The department administers state and federal programs and funds available for these systems.

MoDOT's main sources of state revenue are motor vehicle sales and use taxes.

Voter-approved bond issues of $60 million in 1920 and $75 million in 1928 helped fund early road-building programs. Bond principal and interest were paid from revenues provided by highway users. All road bonds in Missouri were retired on June 15, 1957.

An additional revenue source was created in a special November 6, 1979, state election. Voters approved Amendment 2—a measure providing revenue through reallocation of part of one-half of the motor vehicle sales tax revenue to the department. Of this revenue, 75 percent went to the Department of Transportation. Counties received a 10 percent share and cities received the remaining 15 percent.

Missouri voters approved a road and bridge improvement program on April 7, 1987, that increased the motor fuel tax from seven to 11 cents per gallon, increased heavy truck registration fees 10 percent and placed a cap on administrative expenses going to other state agencies.

In April 1992, in response to new federal transportation legislation and the need for further transportation improvements, the Missouri Legislature increased the motor fuel tax by two cents per gallon in 1992, 1994 and 1996, bringing the motor fuel tax to 17 cents per gallon.

In 1998, legislation changed the department's structure by creating the position of director to be the chief administrative officer. That legislation also mandated MoDOT to prepare a comprehensive annual report to the legislature that includes finances, road and bridge construction schedules and accomplishments. A chief financial and administrative officer and a chief engineer assist the director.

In 2000, the commission was authorized to issue bonds to accelerate Missouri highway construction. More than $900 million in bonds was sold.

In July 2002, Governor Bob Holden signed legislation implementing an earlier executive order merging into MoDOT programs from four separate agencies serving motor carrier and railroad operators in Missouri.

In November 2004, voters approved a constitutional amendment that redirects some existing highway user fees from other state services to MoDOT. The department is using this revenue to finance $1.7 billion in bonds. Called Smoother, Safer, Sooner, this bond program will improve thousands of miles of the state's busiest highways, accelerate existing major projects by several years, and construct more than a billion dollars in high-priority new major construction projects.

State Highways and Transportation Commission

The Missouri Highways and Transportation Commission is a six-member bipartisan board that guides the Missouri Department of Transportation and is responsible for planning for and maintaining the state's highway network. The commission also has responsibilities in the other transportation modes.

Commission members are appointed by the governor and confirmed by the Missouri Senate. No more than three commission members may be of the same political party. State law requires six-year terms, with two members replaced every two years. The two most senior commissioners serve one year each as chair and vice chair for their last two years on the commission.

The commission appoints the Missouri Department of Transportation's director and secretary to the commission.

Director's Office

MoDOT's daily operations are under the direction and supervision of the director, who is appointed by the commission. The MoDOT director is assisted by a chief financial and administrative officer, who is responsible for the financial and administrative operations, and a chief engineer, who is in charge of MoDOT's road and bridge design, construction and maintenance activities statewide. The directors of Community Relations, Governmental Relations, Organizational Results, Audits and Investigations and Chief Counsel's Office also report to the department director.

Commission Secretary's Office

The Highways and Transportation Commission appoints a commission secretary to provide operational support, clerical assistance and record keeping.

Department Mission, Tangible Results

The department's mission is to provide a world-class transportation experience that delights our customers and promotes a prosperous Missouri.

In addition to the department's mission, 18 tangible results drive the organization's operations. The 18 results are outcomes Missourians expect to see as MoDOT fulfills its mission. They are:

- Uninterrupted traffic flow
- Smooth and unrestricted roads and bridges
- Safe transportation system
- Roadway visibility
- Personal, fast, courteous and understandable response to customer requests
- Partner with others to deliver transportation services
- Leverage transportation to advance economic development
- Innovative transportation solutions
- Fast projects that are of great value
- Environmentally responsible
- Efficient movement of goods
- Easily accessible modal choices
- Customer involvement in transportation decision-making
- Convenient, clean and safe roadside accommodations
- Best value for every dollar spent
- Attractive roadsides
- Advocate for transportation issues
- Accurate, timely, understandable and proactive transportation information.

To achieve these results, the department is divided into three teams: System Delivery, System Facilitation and Organizational Support. The three teams are organized around delivering the 18 tangible results.

DAVE DeWITT
Deputy Administrative Officer

Chief Engineer

The chief engineer oversees the System Delivery Team, which is responsible for MoDOT's 10 districts, Multimodal Operations, Bridge, Design, Transportation Planning, Construction and Materials, Maintenance, Right of Way, Motor Carrier Services, Traffic and Highway Safety. The directors of program delivery, system management and multimodal operations, as well as the 10 district engineers, report to the chief engineer.

District offices

To facilitate providing the state highway and transportation program, the department divides the state into 10 geographical districts. A district engineer administers the department's work within each district.

District 1 (Northwest) headquarters, St. Joseph. The district consists of Andrew, Atchison, Buchanan, Caldwell, Clinton, Daviess, DeKalb, Gentry, Harrison, Holt, Nodaway and Worth counties. The counties cover a land area of about 6,049 square miles and have a total population of about 201,837. District 1 has a total of 3,120 miles of state highways.

The counties cover a land area of about 8,040 square miles and have a total population of about 177,206. District 2 has a total of 3,749 miles of state highways.

District 3 (Northeast) headquarters, Hannibal. The district consists of Audrain, Clark, Knox, Lewis, Lincoln, Marion, Monroe, Montgomery, Pike, Ralls, Scotland, Shelby and Warren counties. The counties cover a land area of about 7,017 square miles and have a total population of about 201,088. District 3 has a total of 3,325 miles of state highways.

District 4 (Kansas City area) headquarters, Lee's Summit. The district consists of Cass, Clay, Henry, Jackson, Johnson, Lafayette, Platte and Ray counties. The counties cover a land area of about 4,900 square miles and have a total population of about 1,121,328. District 4 has a total of 2,449 miles of state highways.

District 5 (Central) headquarters, Jefferson City. The district consists of Benton, Boone, Callaway, Camden, Cole, Cooper, Gasconade, Maries, Miller, Moniteau, Morgan, Osage and Pettis counties. The counties cover a land area of about 7,802 square miles and have a total population of about 452,928. District 5 has a total of 3,617 miles of state highways.

District 6 (St. Louis Metro) headquarters, Chesterfield. The district consists of the City of St. Louis and Franklin, Jefferson, St. Charles and St. Louis counties. The counties cover a land area of 2,707 square miles and have a total population of about 1,940,293. District 6 has a total of 1,533 miles of state highways.

District 7 (Southwest) headquarters, Joplin. The district consists of Barry, Barton, Bates, Cedar, Dade, Jasper, Lawrence, McDonald, Newton, St. Clair and Vernon counties. The counties cover a land area of about 7,139 square miles and have a total population of about 329,173. District 7 has a total of 3,356 miles of state highways.

District 8 (Springfield area) headquarters, Springfield. The district consists of Christian, Dallas, Douglas, Greene, Hickory, Laclede, Ozark, Polk, Stone, Taney, Webster and Wright counties. The counties cover a land area of about 7,448 square miles and have a total population of about 518,769. District 8 has a total of 3,678 miles of state highways.

District 9 (South Central) headquarters, Willow Springs. The district consists of Carter, Crawford, Dent, Howell, Iron, Oregon, Pulaski, Phelps, Ripley, Reynolds, Shannon, Texas and Washington counties. The counties cover a land area of about 9,889 square miles and have a total population of about 257,810. District 9 has a total of 3,751 miles of state highways.

District 10 (Southeast) headquarters, Sikeston. The district consists of Bollinger, Butler, Cape Girardeau, Dunklin, Madison, Mississippi, New Madrid, Pemiscot, Perry, Scott, St. Francois, Ste. Genevieve, Stoddard and Wayne counties. The counties cover a land area of about 7,954 square miles and have a total population of about 394,779. District 10 has a total of 3,873 miles of state highways.

Multimodal Operations

Aviation

The Highways and Transportation Commission is mandated by law to administer an aeronautics program. The law further requires the commission to "encourage, foster and participate with the political subdivisions of this state in the promotion and development of aeronautics." The commission has made this the responsibility of the aviation section, and the section fulfills its obligation in a variety of ways.

The aviation section administers federal and state grant programs that help local governments in planning, maintaining and developing existing airports and establishing new facilities. The objective of these grant programs is to provide modern, all-weather airports for safety and to enhance economic development throughout the state.

The aviation section inspects most of the publicly- and privately-owned airports within the state that are open to the public. These inspections assist airport operators in maintaining safe, efficient facilities. The section maintains a statewide airport system plan that guides airport development project priorities. Aviation also produces a free annual aeronautical chart and airport directory for the flying public.

Railroads

The railroad section is responsible for freight rail regulation, passenger rail support, light rail safety regulation, highway/rail crossing safety, rail/highway construction issues and railroad safety inspection and outreach.

The railroad section also provides assistance in all railroad matters affecting the state and is responsible for activities cited in Chapters 389, 622 and 680 of the Revised Statutes of Missouri. The railroad section has attempted to meet its goals and objectives through the preparation and implementation of a state rail plan.

The railroad-highway grade crossing program administers federal and state funds to improve safety at railroad crossings by implementing grade separations and improving at-grade crossings. The railroad section also inspects the various railroads operating in the state for track safety, hazardous materials, operating practices of trains, and grade crossing surfaces, conditions and signals.

The section investigates all grade-crossing fatalities and serious accidents at crossings and participates in the Operation Lifesaver program to reduce rail grade-crossing accidents. The section also produces a free map of all railroads in Missouri and maintains a current listing of Amtrak passenger rail information and schedules of passenger trains. Further information is available on the section's web site at www.morail.org.

Transit

The transit section assists in the financial and technical support of the state's public transit and specialized paratransit systems. This function is carried out through the administration of state and federal programs relating to general public transportation and specific programs for nonprofit agencies serving the mobility needs of senior citizens and people with disabilities.

The Missouri Elderly and Handicapped Transportation Assistance Program provides state financial assistance for nonprofit organizations offering transportation services to seniors and people with disabilities at below-cost rates. The program has more than 190 grantees that provide approximately 4.6 million trips annually.

Thirty-one small urban and rural general public transit systems receive financial and technical support from the department. These systems have an aggregate operating budget of $18 million, provide more than three million trips, and travel 10 million vehicle miles per year. The entire state of Missouri is covered by these systems.

MoDOT also provides federal and state assistance to transit systems in "small urbanized" areas with populations of more than 50,000 and less than 200,000. Participating cities in Missouri are Columbia, Jefferson City, St. Joseph and Joplin. The combined fleets number about 60 vehicles. They provide 2,009,000 annual trips with a combined operating budget in excess of $7.0 million annually.

The transit section purchases approximately 65 vehicles for about 35 grantees annually, using funds allocated to the state through the Federal Transit Administration's Elderly and Persons with Disabilities Capital Assistance Program. The program is open to all areas of the state (rural, urban and urbanized) for nonprofit organizations and qualifying public entities. There are more than 500 active vehicles operated by almost 200 organizations. The active fleet provides more than 800,000 elderly trips and 1.6 million disability trips per year and travels more than 7.5 million miles.

STEVE BILLINGS
Administrator of Transit

SHERRIE MARTIN
Administrator of Waterways

DAVE NICHOLS
Director, Program Delivery

The transit section also administers the rural transportation assistance program, a training and technical assistance function funded by the Federal Transit Administration. Training courses offered include defensive driving, CPR and first aid, passenger assistance techniques and emergency procedures. Technical assistance is offered in vehicle procurement and maintenance.

The transit section prepares a statewide application for national discretionary capital assistance. The capital discretionary program has funded about 1,000 vehicles since the state began to receive Section 5309 assistance in Fiscal Year 1993. These vehicles are operating throughout the entire state. Major facilities funded to date include park-n-ride facilities, bus facilities, transitways, personal computers, radio systems, maintenance equipment and miscellaneous equipment.

Waterways

Chapter 68, RSMo allows cities and counties located on or adjacent to navigable waterways to form port authorities and become political subdivisions of the state, upon approval from the Highways and Transportation Commission.

The waterways section helps port authorities develop commerce and foster local economic development. The section also promotes the use of Missouri's navigable rivers, assists in capital and administrative funding, acts as an information clearinghouse, provides technical assistance and represents port interests within industry and government.

Program Delivery

The director of program delivery reports to the chief engineer and oversees the following divisions: Bridge, Design, Right of Way, Construction and Materials and Transportation Planning.

Bridge Division

The Bridge Division produces structural designs and detailed plans for all state highway bridges, including cost estimates and site-specific job provisions.

The bridge design process begins with a preliminary investigation that includes a detailed and complex study to determine the most suitable type of structure for a given location considering hydraulics, economy, site requirements and aesthetics. The finished product is a set of detailed design plans from which contractors can construct the bridge.

Bridge personnel provide inspection services in steel fabrication shops around the nation to ensure structural steel for bridges and other materials meet specifications and that the bridges are safe for motorists.

The Bridge Division maintains extensive microfilm files of all plans and design data for bridges, culverts and retaining walls on the state highway system. The division also reviews plans for rehabilitating or replacing locally owned bridges using federal bridge funds. It administers a program for inspecting locally owned bridges and provides engineering assistance to counties and cities.

Bridges are analyzed to determine their safe load-carrying capacities, and the division initiates posting of bridges not able to safely carry the state's legal loads. The unit also maintains the National Bridge Inventory for Missouri and helps in developing overall strategies for managing MoDOT's highway structures.

Design

Design prepares all roadway plans and advertises projects for bids. Included in plan preparation are determination of state and/or federal funding for projects; ground surveys and aerial photography; public involvement meetings; consideration of social, environmental and economic factors; detailed plan design; Bid Analysis Management Systems (BAMS); and the development of specifications and cost estimates for highway projects prior to advertising for bids.

SHYAM GUPTA
State Bridge Engineer

DIANE HECKEMEYER
State Design Engineer

TERRY SAMPSON
Director
Right of Way

In addition, Design is responsible for the department's computer aided drafting and design (CADD) program including support and training. The division also operates a print shop that produces documents for MoDOT's monthly bid openings.

The division's responsibilities include the planning processes that identify and evaluate the state's transportation needs and the location, environmental and cultural resource studies required for initial evaluation of proposed projects. Professional engineers, planners, environmental and cultural specialists and other support staff are involved in the comprehensive evaluation and study of transportation projects prior to detailed design.

The division coordinates with district project teams and regional planning organizations as well as other federal, state and local agencies to facilitate completion of transportation projects. Design's involvement begins with the initial concept, proceeds through the project development process and provides services and support through and beyond construction of transportation facilities.

Environmental and cultural assessments provide clearances allowing the expenditure of federal funds and issuance of permits by regulatory agencies.

Right of Way

Right of Way acquires all realty rights for constructing and improving state highways and related facilities. It provides a relocation assistance and payments program for all persons displaced by the commission's land acquisition activities. It also is responsible for the disposition of right of way no longer needed for state highway purposes and assists the Chief Counsel's Office in preparing condemnation cases for trial.

Right of Way administers the regulation of outdoor advertising, salvage yard control and scenic byways programs. It also assists the Chief Counsel's Office in preparing outdoor advertising and salvage yard cases.

Construction and Materials

Construction and Materials administers highway construction and other contracts to ensure quality highways and materials so the traveling public has a safe, efficient transportation system.

The division provides technical assistance, implements new technology and assures quality materials on department projects. It also provides assistance in preparing many specifications for materials used in highway and bridge construction and maintenance, as well as continual testing and inspection for all materials used in the highway system.

After a contract has been awarded through the competitive bid process, the work is assigned to project offices located geographically throughout the state. Engineers and technicians assigned to these project offices do field surveying and perform quality control tests on the work performed by contractors to ensure quality construction that improves Missouri's transportation system.

Division engineers make periodic field inspections to help field personnel and ensure uniform contract administration over the entire state. Quality assurance reviews of the project offices are performed regularly.

The division provides assistance in preparing many specifications for materials used in highway and bridge construction and maintenance as well as continual testing and inspection for all materials used in the highway system. Testing is done in a modern laboratory in Jefferson City.

Personnel analyze pavement designs, roadway foundations, asphaltic concrete and portland cement mixtures, as well as carry out soil and subsurface condition surveys and furnish geotechnical information for the design, construction and maintenance of roads and structures.

DAVE AHLVERS
State Construction and Materials Engineer

KYLE KITTRELL
Transportation Planning Director

Division employees are also involved in the national Strategic Highway Research Program (SHRP), an ongoing national research effort to improve highway materials such as concrete and asphalt pavements. By using new technology such as the Superpave bituminous pavement mixture, the department strives to improve the Missouri roadway system for the future. Personnel also inspect and oversee disposal of hazardous and environmental materials related to highways.

The External Civil Rights Administration unit also falls under Construction and Materials and works to ensure civil rights policies relative to department operations meet standards. The unit is also responsible for implementing the department's Disadvantaged Business Enterprise program to ensure non-discrimination in the award and administration of contracts and to create a level playing field on which DBE firms can compete fairly for federally funded transportation projects.

Transportation Planning

Transportation Planning is responsible for long-range planning, data administration, systems analysis, and planning and programming.

Transportation Planning collects, manages and analyzes data to provide a single source of information to support the department's decision processes. A common reference system links safety, bridge, congestion, traffic and pavement data to provide a map-based geographic information system (GIS).

The division also develops and tracks the five-year Statewide Transportation Improvement Program, the department's highway and bridge construction program. The department's regional planning partners, along with local officials, participate in the schedule and program development.

Transportation Planning coordinates the department's highway, enhancement, off-system bridge and small urban programming issues as well as provides metropolitan planning organization support. Additionally, the unit provides technical support for the department's project management software.

Transportation Planning maintains a transportation plan that looks at least 20 years into the future. This plan analyzes needs for all modes of transportation including aviation, bicycle and pedestrian accommodations, freight rail and ports, highways and bridges, passenger rail and bus service between cities, and public transportation. This plan also provides policy and goal direction for MoDOT as it develops the construction program.

Transportation Planning provides statewide guidance on issues including bicycle and pedestrian accommodations, involvement of local public officials in transportation decision-making, statewide and metropolitan planning regulations and Clean Air Act impacts to transportation. The unit also provides oversight of federal transportation planning funds and implementation of planning activities.

System Management

The director of System Management reports to the chief engineer and oversees the following divisions: Highway Safety, Maintenance, Motor Carrier Services and Traffic.

This unit provides direction and oversight for safe and efficient management and operation of the state highway system. In addition, this unit promotes statewide programs and campaigns such as work zone safety and Work Zone Awareness Week, the No MOre Trash! program and the department's participation in the Missouri State Fair.

Highway Safety

Reducing deaths, injuries, and property damage caused by traffic crashes on Missouri roadways is the goal of the Highway Safety Division, which was created as a result of the National Highway Safety Act of 1966. Administration of the state's highway safety programs became a MoDOT responsibility in August 2003 when the Division of Highway Safety was merged by executive order into the department.

Highway Safety staff concentrate their efforts in three areas that are proven effective in preventing deaths and injuries from motor vehicle crashes—education, enforcement and engineering. The lives saved and injuries prevented save Missouri taxpayers millions of dollars. The unit provides resources and/or technical information to the public, state and local governmental entities, the legislature and safety advocates across the state. Funding to support these efforts is provided through federal grants.

DON HILLIS
Director
System Management

JIM CARNEY
State Maintenance Engineer

The Highway Safety Division works with other MoDOT divisions and safety partners from both the public and private sector as part of the Missouri Coalition for Roadway Safety. The coalition is charged with leading the statewide implementation of Missouri's Blueprint for Safer Roadways. The Blueprint outlines strategies to reduce fatal and serious injuries occurring on our roadways due to motor-vehicle crashes, with a goal of 1,000 or fewer fatalities by 2008.

Maintenance

Maintaining state highways and bridges is the primary function of the Maintenance Division. The division also establishes broad policy, disseminates best practices and supports field activities by providing quality assurance. Included in these are preservation, upkeep, operation and restoration of roadways, bridges, signs, traffic control equipment, and all appropriate facilities so they remain safe and usable.

Maintenance of bridges requires annual inspections (sometimes using an aerial bucket truck modified to look under bridges and also using underwater diving techniques), painting and major repairs by unit personnel.

Increased highway use continues to place increased demands on the maintenance of interstate rest areas, rapid and complete removal of snow and ice from pavement surfaces, and many other additional services provided by the division. The Maintenance Division also coordinates a variety of roadside management programs including Adopt-A-Highway, No MOre Trash!, Growing Together and the incarcerated personnel work release program.

Motor Carrier Services

The Motor Carrier Services Division was created in July 2002 through legislation consolidating Missouri's motor carrier services and railroad safety programs within MoDOT. Joining the department were the Division of Motor Carrier and Railroad Safety (MCRS) from the Department of Economic Development and the Highway Reciprocity Commission from the Department of Revenue. Railroad safety programs were merged into the railroad section of the department's Multimodal Operations Division. MoDOT already had a commercial vehicle operation providing permits for overweight and overdimension vehicles.

JAN SKOUBY
Director
Motor Carrier Services

EILEEN RACKERS
State Traffic Engineer

MoDOT Motor Carrier Services provides a Carrier One-Stop for the commercial motor vehicle industry so carriers can receive what they need in one location in a timely manner. MCS helps motor carriers deliver goods as quickly, safely, and cost-effectively as possible. MCS provides information, credentials, permits and enforces safety and economic regulations for businesses and individuals operating commercial vehicles on the public highways in and through Missouri. Headquartered in Jefferson City, there are nine regional offices distributed throughout MoDOT's 10 districts across the state. MCS currently employs about 100 people.

Specific responsibilities of MCS are as follows:

International Registration Plan (IRP) – The IRP is a registration reciprocity agreement among 49 states of the United States and 10 provinces of Canada.

International Fuel Tax Agreement (IFTA) – The IFTA is an agreement, currently among 58 jurisdictions, to promote and encourage the most efficient use of the highway system by making uniform the administration of motor fuels taxation for motor vehicles operating in multiple member jurisdictions.

Single State Registration Systems (SSRS) – The SSRS allows motor carriers to register for authority in each jurisdiction of operation.

Hazardous Waste/Waste Tire Transporter – MCS provides for the licensing and registration of hazardous waste and waste tire transporters operating in or through Missouri. MCS collects and deposits fees collected into the Missouri Department of Natural Resources fund and coordinates licensing with that department.

Interstate Exempt/Intrastate Regulatory Authority – For-hire motor carriers transporting property or passengers in interstate commerce (between states) exempt from federal authority and intrastate commerce (wholly within the state) are required to apply for authority to operate in or through Missouri.

Overdimension/Overweight (OD/OW) Permits – MCS issues permits for vehicles and/or equipment exceeding the legal limits for width, length, height and weight, provided a safe route can be found.

Safety and Compliance – MCS' Safety and Compliance Program provides for the education and enforcement of Missouri state laws and federal safety and hazardous materials regulations.

Traffic

Traffic is responsible for the safe and efficient movement of people and goods on the state highway system. The division supports signing, striping, traffic signals, lighting, management, operations, roadway access and safety management programs throughout the state. Traffic coordinates training activities that incorporate traffic-engineering principles in all MoDOT activities.

There are currently more than 110,000 miles of striping, 800,000 highway signs, 2,300 traffic signals and numerous other traffic control devices on the state highway system. The department's central sign manufacturing facility produces more than 120,000 signs annually. The division is working to implement many new technologies, including enhanced pavement markings, highly reflective sign materials, video cameras for traffic monitoring and control and light emitting diodes for various applications. These new technologies help increase the efficiency and effectiveness of traffic devices and traffic personnel. Traffic also provides oversight for the logo signing services program throughout the state.

The Traffic Division also provides statewide coordination of management and operations activities such as traffic management, incident management, traveler information services and telecommunications networks. This coordination helps to provide a single operating system to maximize the performance of the statewide transportation system while improving safety, mobility and customer satisfaction. Other management and operations activities include managing work zones and operating a radio communications system for field operations and emergency response. The Traffic Division coordinates the Motorist Assist Program in the Kansas City and St. Louis areas.

Traffic also analyzes crash data, which is used by district and Central Office units for location studies and project prioritization. Traffic supports districts and local safety partners in the development of regional safety plans that support Missouri's Blueprint for Safer Roadways. Federal funding is administered to provide traffic engineering services and training for smaller cities and counties that do not have traffic engineering expertise.

In addition, the Traffic Division is involved in determining the safety and operational implications involved in requests by outside parties for changes in access on roadways. These changes in access include driveway and street connections, levee attachments and grading on interstate right of way. The unit also assists MoDOT districts in complex requests for roadway access.

System Facilitation Team

The department's chief financial and administrative officer manages the System Facilitation Team, whose role is to help the System Delivery Team achieve its tangible results. Equal Opportunity, Employee Benefits, Information Systems, Human Resources, General Services, Resource Management, the Controller's Division and Risk Management make up the System Facilitation Team. The chief financial and administrative officer reports to the MoDOT director.

Equal Opportunity

The goal of the Equal Opportunity Division is to value and respect multiple cultures and experiences by integrating diversity, equity and fairness principles into all practices and processes of the department.

The division strives to leverage transportation resources to available human capital through outreach programs, cultural education, affirmative action, mentoring programs, exit interviews, an Employee Advisory Council and other specialized programs. The division monitors recruitment, hiring, training, promotion, termination and transfer practices to ensure the selection of individuals conforms to federal/state regulations and statutes. Creating an inclusive culture that employs the talents of all employees helps the department provide excellent customer service to the citizens of Missouri.

BRENDA TREADWELL-MARTIN
Director

Employee Benefits

Employee Benefits oversees all aspects of MoDOT's medical and life insurance plan. The division also provides support to the Missouri Department of Transportation and Highway Patrol Employees' Retirement System. The division also monitors claims to pinpoint areas of concern and works with actuaries to determine appropriate premium schedules. Employee Benefits provides information allowing employees to make informed decisions regarding benefit options. This division also assists employees with enrollments for the various benefits, such as retirement, health and life insurance, employee assistance program, cafeteria plan and deferred compensation.

Information Systems

Information Systems provides information technology products, services and support to the department and coordinates its information technology activities. It provides application, data, voice and video services from a central computing facility to remote locations through wide-area and local-area networks. The division also coordinates the operation of remote computing facilities located in each district.

Additionally, Information Systems provides other services in the form of Help Desk support, media conversion, client relations' activities, technology standards facilitation, computer equipment checkout, Internet access, web publishing and e-mail accounts. Personal computer and laptop configuration and installation are also responsibilities, in addition to creating and maintaining hundreds of applications for the department's engineering, financial, operational and general information needs. Information Systems uses a suite of Intel and Unix servers located in a data center and around the state in district offices.

Human Resources

Human Resources develops and administers a statewide personnel program to meet department needs. The division recruits nationally for college graduates to fill civil engineering positions throughout the state and recruits locally for all positions in the Central Office in accordance with affirmative action efforts. Employee development staff is responsible for conducting or coordinating training programs in managerial leadership and vocational technical training and also works in the area of performance assessment.

Human Resources also develops personnel policy, manages the department's classification and pay system and maintains personnel records for employees.

General Services

The General Services Division is responsible for supporting MoDOT activities by providing guidance and support services to all districts and Central Office in the areas of facilities management, procurement, distribution center services, fleet management and equipment repair.

Facilities Management provides planning, guidance and design services to build and maintain more than 1,700 facilities located at 600 sites throughout the state. Fleet Management provides support services for a state fleet of more than 6,400 vehicles and specialized equipment. The Procurement unit supports the department's purchasing activities and manages a central distribution center.

The General Services Division also provides travel, mail/freight and facilities maintenance services.

Resource Management

Resource Management coordinates financial resources and spending plans through forecasting, analysis and training. Resource Management performs financial planning and fiscal analysis, budget, federal aid, and innovative finance administration functions for the department.

Controller's Division

The controller provides administrative support to the Missouri Department of Transportation in accounting, financial reporting and policy development, building and maintaining an effective system of internal controls and cost accounting.

This division maintains all financial records and reports for MoDOT, the Missouri Department of Transportation and Highway Patrol Employees' Retirement System, the medical plan, the self-insurance plan, and the Missouri Transportation Finance Corporation, as well as all financial reports required by law. Functions include project accounting, accounts payable, accounts receivable, contractor payments, fixed asset accounting, payroll, cost accounting, maintaining system management over MoDOT's financial reporting system and formulating procedures and codes for document processing. The division also provides quality assurance measures for these functions.

Risk Management

This division administers the Department of Transportation's insurance operations and is responsible for workers' compensation, fleet liability, general liability and property damage recovery. Also included under the risk management umbrella are safety and health programs.

Organizational Support Team

The third team, Organizational Support, includes the Chief Counsel's Office, Audits and Investigations, Governmental Relations, Community Relations and Organizational Results. These units report directly to the MoDOT director.

Chief Counsel's Office

The chief counsel is appointed by the MoDOT director with the consent of the Highways and Transportation Commission to handle legal responsibilities for the department and the commission. The Chief Counsel's Office helps the commission and MoDOT to achieve their strategic and business plans by providing three basic legal services. These include: prosecuting and defending litigation; rendering legal advice and opinions; and reviewing and drafting documents.

Audits and Investigations

The Audits and Investigations unit is charged with improving efficiency and helping ensure organizational integrity by identifying problems early.

Audits and Investigations conducts internal audits of division and district operations; external audits of overhead rates and actual cost agreements between MoDOT and entities such as cities, counties, utilities, railroads and consultant engineering firms; and investigates a wide range of areas from grievances and equal opportunity complaints to misappropriation and employee misconduct. The unit also conducts analyses of competitive bidding practices in the construction industry.

Organizational Results

The Organizational Results unit provides focus and direction for decision-making at MoDOT by updating and aligning MoDOT's mission, values, tangible results and business plans, which support the department's long-range direction and drive individual performance plans. Organizational Results also spearheads and directs organizational performance measures. These performance measures show the department's progress towards achieving the tangible results and help transform MoDOT into an efficient, customer-driven government organization that continuously improves its operation to achieve success. In addition, the Organizational Results unit facilitates process improvement, customer satisfaction and problem solving teams, which improve operational performance.

Governmental Relations

Organizational Results also oversees MoDOT's research efforts. MoDOT's research mission is to respond to customer needs; provide information and technology for management policy decisions; and undertake research and development issues that have a high possibility of being implemented.

Other research responsibilities include policy studies, finance, community and economic development as related to transportation, as well as research in the environmental area.

Over the past year the department entered into a memorandum of understanding with the newly established Missouri Transportation Institute (MTI). MTI is a consortium of Missouri-based universities and nonprofit organizations established to address the research, development, public policy and technology transfer needs of Missouri's transportation system.

Governmental Relations

The role of Governmental Relations is to work with federal, state and local officials, stakeholders, the public and department staff to advocate the department's objectives by advancing legislative initiatives designed to develop sound public policies relating to all modes of transportation. Governmental Relations develops legislation, recommends policy changes, increases public awareness of department initiatives and promotes positive rapport with customers and department staff.

Community Relations

Community Relations works to provide information about the commission and the department's programs and services to the public, as well as to MoDOT employees. Community Relations informs communities about department activities through a variety of avenues, including news releases, special events and the department's Internet web site at www.modot.org. The unit also develops exhibits, creates multimedia presentations, prepares speeches, produces brochures, distributes official highway maps, prepares communication and marketing materials and provides support to district public information efforts. In addition, the unit also publishes internal educational publications.

Missouri Mississippi River Parkway Commission

The Missouri Mississippi River Parkway Commission works to preserve, promote and enhance the scenic, historic and recreational resources of the Mississippi River, to foster economic growth in the corridor along the Mississippi, and to develop the national, scenic and historic parkway known as the Great River Road. The GRR is a river parkway system utilizing existing Mississippi River valley roads while preserving the region's landscape quality. The commission promotes and supports tourism, coordinates domestic and international marketing, facilitates efforts to enhance economic development and encourages resource awareness. It also works to leverage dollars for highway improvements, recreational trails, bikeways, scenic overlooks and historic preservation along the Mississippi River.

The Missouri commission is one of the earliest of other such bodies from the 10 states involved in the Great River Road program. Ten commissions were established as part of the National Mississippi River Parkway Commission to act in the planning and implementation of plans for the overall Great River Road development.

The Great River Road

The concept for a parkway along the Mississippi River originated in Missouri in 1936 when Governor Stark asked the Missouri State Planning Board to consider it. In 1938, the 10-state national Mississippi River Parkway Commission was formed. Congress authorized the development of the Great River Road in 1954 after a two-year feasibility study and resulting report, which recommended a plan for a Mississippi River scenic route development by the states through which the route would pass. The various state highway departments would administer the plan by improving existing highways to parkway-like standards. It was further recommended that existing highways could be incorporated into a continuous route by interconnecting them where necessary with limited sections of new construction.

The Great River Road provides three major benefits.

(1) It represents a concentrated effort to protect and conserve the natural and cultural environment of the Mississippi River corridor.

(2) The road provides a diverse experience for the vacation traveler and residents that is both enjoyable and educational through the river's major scenic and historic areas.

(3) It provides a positive economic impact on the region serving as an important part of the nation's transportation system. The program has provided important funds for road improvements in a predominately rural section of the nation.

Tennessee-Missouri Bridge Commission

Although attached to the Missouri Department of Transportation by law for organizational purposes, the Tennessee-Missouri Bridge Commission operates independently of the department.

Metro

707 N. First St., St. Louis 63102
Telephone: (314) 982-1400

Although attached to the Missouri Department of Transportation by law for organizational purposes, the St. Louis Area Metro operates independently of the department.

Origin

Metro of the Missouri-Illinois Metropolitan District was established September 20, 1949 by compact between the states of Missouri and Illinois to make plans for the overall development of the St. Louis metropolitan area and to carry out specific projects. In the following year, the U.S. Congress and the president approved the compact. The compact was authorized by legislative acts of the two states and was consented to by the Congress as required by Article I, Section 10, Clause 3 of the Constitution of the United States. Under subsequent legislation the two states agreed to amend the original compact. These changes were approved by the Congress and the president in 1959.

The compact was further amended by Illinois in 1979 and Missouri in 1980 to broaden Metro's powers to include the authority to acquire and operate facilities handling refuse or waste derived resources, fuel or energy.

Scope and functions

The compact created the Missouri-Illinois Metropolitan District to include the City of St. Louis and the counties of St. Louis, St. Charles and Jefferson in Missouri and Madison, Monroe and St. Clair in Illinois. Within this district, Metro has two functions. First, it is empowered to construct, maintain, own and operate specific facilities including bridges, tunnels, airports, wharves, docks, warehouses, grain elevators, passenger transportation facilities and air, water, rail and motor vehicle terminal facilities. Second, it is authorized to make plans for coordination of streets, highways, parking areas, terminals, water supply, sewage and drainage facilities, recreational facilities, land-use patterns and other matters in which joint or coordinated action of the communities within the areas will be generally beneficial.

Metro may charge and collect fees for use of such facilities as it may own, issue bonds upon the security of revenues to be derived from such facilities and receive for its activities any contributions or money appropriated by municipalities, counties, states, the federal government or other agencies. It has no taxing powers.

Metro is authorized to issue revenue bonds, collect fees and receive funds from federal, state, local and private agencies. Metro has no taxing powers.

Administration

A board of 10 commissioners administers Metro, five appointed by the governor of Missouri and five by the governor of Illinois. The commissioners serve overlapping terms of five years each, so that only one term expires each year. The commissioners serve without pay and elect their own officers. A president and chief executive officer appointed by the board of commissioners administers Metro.

Metro's 10-member board provides overall leadership and policy direction for the agency. In Missouri, members are selected by the governor. In Illinois, the chairman of the board for both St. Clair and Madison counties appoint their representatives. Members of the board serve their five-year terms without compensation and must be resident voters of their state, as well as reside within the bi-state metropolitan region.

Kansas City Area Transportation Authority

1200 E. 18th St.
Kansas City 64108
Telephone: (816) 346-0200

Although attached to the Missouri Department of Transportation by law for organizational purposes, the Kansas City Area Transportation Authority operates independently of the department.

Background

The Kansas City Area Transportation Authority (KCATA) was formed with the signing of a bi-state compact created by the Missouri and Kansas legislatures on December 28, 1965. The compact was authorized by legislation enacted by the 73rd General Assembly of the State of Missouri (Revised Statutes of the State of Missouri 1969, Sections 238.010 to 238.100) and by the 61st regular session of the Kansas Legislature (Sections 12-2524 to 12-2535 Kansas Statutes Annotated). The compact was approved by the 89th Congress (Public Law 89-599) and the bill signed on September 21, 1966, by President Lyndon B. Johnson. Actual transit operation began February 1, 1966.

The compact gives the KCATA responsibility for planning, construction, owning and operating passenger transportation systems and facilities within the seven-county Kansas City metropolitan area. These include the counties of Cass, Clay, Jackson and Platte in Missouri, and Johnson, Leavenworth and Wyandotte in Kansas.

Commissioners

The ATA is governed by a 10-member board of commissioners, five from Kansas and five from Missouri. Commissioners serve a maximum of two four-year terms. The commissioners select their own officers on an annual basis.

Missouri Voting and Elections

Who registers to vote in Missouri?

Citizens living in Missouri must register in order to vote. Any U.S. citizen 17 years and 6 months of age or older, if a Missouri resident, may register and vote except:

- A person who is adjudged incapacitated
- A person who is confined under sentence of imprisonment
- A person who is on probation or parole after conviction of a felony until finally discharged
- A person who has been convicted of a felony or misdemeanor connected with the right of suffrage (RSMo 115.133)

How do Missourians register?

Qualified citizens may register in person at the office of their local election authority, by mail, at the driver's license fee office or at participating state agencies. Registration in person is accomplished by filling out registration forms with information on identity, residence and qualifications which are signed and sworn to, then witnessed by the election authority or a designee. The voter must present appropriate identification such as a birth certificate, a Native American tribal document, other proof of United States citizenship, a valid Missouri driver's license or other form of personal identification. (RSMo 115.155)

Registration by mail, at the driver's license fee office or at the participating state agencies requires submission of an application stating qualifications. If mailed, this form must be postmarked by the fourth Wednesday preceding an election to be eligible to vote in that election. The voter must include a copy of appropriate identification (see above). If the voter does not submit such information, the voter will be required to vote in person for the first time and to present additional identification upon voting for the first time. A verification or rejection of registration is sent by the election authority within seven working days. (RSMo 115.159)

When do Missourians register?

An unregistered citizen may register to vote whenever local election officials' places of business are open, by requesting an application by mail from the election authority, when renewing a Missouri driver's license or when receiving services from a participating state agency. Special registration sites and dates may be utilized prior to major elections.

The deadline for registration is the fourth Wednesday prior to an election. New Missouri residents may register immediately.

When do Missourians vote?

In addition to certain special and emergency dates, there are six official election dates in Missouri:

The statutes require that all public elections be held on the general election day, the primary election day, the general municipal election day, the first Tuesday after the first Monday in February or November, or on another day expressly provided by city or county charter, the first Tuesday after the first Monday in June and in nonprimary years on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in August. (RSMo 115.123.1)

The general election day is the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November in even-numbered years. The primary election day is the first Tuesday after the first Monday in August in even-numbered years. (RSMo 115.121 (1 & 2))

Elections for cities, towns, villages, school boards and special district officers are held the first Tuesday after the first Monday in April each year, known as general municipal election day. (RSMo 115.121.3)

A statewide presidential preference primary shall be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in February of each presidential election year. (RSMo 115.755)

Who conducts registration and elections?

Voter registration and the conduct of elections are the responsibilities of boards of election commissioners in the counties of Clay, Jackson, Platte and St. Louis and in the cities of Kansas City and St. Louis. In 2005, legislation was passed giving Cass County the option of setting up a board of election commissioners. The county clerk serves as the election authority in all other counties of the state.

Special voting provisions

Disabled voters and persons prevented from voting because of absence or illness may vote absentee. Persons with permanent disabilities may apply for permanent absentee ballot status by making application with the local election authority. (RSMo 115.284) Curbside voting is permitted in Missouri, or voters may be transferred to more accessible precincts. Local election officials should be contacted about absentee federal service balloting or ''new resident'' ballots for residents who arrive after the registration deadline.

When voting, Missourians must show an approved form of personal identification. (RSMo 115.427)

Elections and political parties

Missourians do not register under party affiliation. Hence, at primary elections, voters may choose which ''established party'' they vote within. Party nominees—and independent candidates—are then listed on the general election ballot.

There are presently three ''established political parties'' statewide—the Democratic, Republican and Libertarian parties. Persons may seek the nomination of these parties for any elective office from the county level and above. In order to become ''established,'' a party must have received more than two percent of the votes cast statewide for at least one of its candidates. New parties are formed by petition and may exist on the county, district or state level. They must meet the same standard as any other party to remain established.

At the time of primary elections, voters select county committee members of established parties in Missouri. Those committee people, thus elected, have certain duties and responsibilities. They serve, as appropriate, as members of legislative, senatorial, judicial, and congressional district committees. County, district, or state committee members may be called on to fill candidate vacancies on party ballots or to select nominees for special elections as needed. The state committees are selected, indirectly, by local committee persons. The state committees become especially important when delegates to presidential nominating (national) conventions are being selected.

Constitutional Amendment No. 3

Proposed by Initiative Petition

Shall the Missouri Constitution be amended to require that all revenues from the existing motor vehicle fuel tax (less collection costs) be used only for state and local highways, roads and bridges, and also require that vehicle taxes and fees paid by highway users be used only for constructing and maintaining the state highway system (less collection costs, refunds and highway patrol law enforcement costs), except that up to half of such vehicle taxes and fees, phased in over four years, will go into a state road bond fund to repay state highway bonds?

The constitutional amendment has a zero net fiscal impact. The amendment increases funding for the Department of Transportation to be used for transportation purposes only and limits the use of highway user fee revenues by other state agencies. The indirect fiscal impact on state and local governments, if any, is unknown.
